SICK WOMAN MADE HAPPY

Entirely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mart, Texas.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up as was all run-down, nervous and sick. I ached and hurt all over so that I was often compelled to go to bed, and I had to have most of my work done. No medicine seemed to help me until one of my neighbors who was taking the Vegetable Compound insisted on me trying a bottle of it. The medicine helped me from the first, and the best of all is that I can even sew again without that awful, nervous feeling I was used to having. And I used to take crying spells, with such a blue feeling that I cannot explain. Now all that has left me. I feel so cheerful, and I have gained in weight, sleep well and eat hearty. Oh! I wish I had words to express what this medicine has done for me! I am a housekeeper and do every thing from the sewing to the washing now and it doesn't hurt me. You may use my letter in any way you wish. I will be glad to help any suffering woman to the road of health and happiness."—Mrs. B. F. BRANNON, 404 Travis Ave., Mart, Texas

Miss McCollum is to give a demonstration on the Blue Valley Creamery company, at Chicago, May 13.

Sunday evening, May 4, is to be a memorable one for Elder Burnham Memorial church society, as the mortgage, which has for eight years been hanging over the parsonage, will be consigned to ashes. During the pastorate of Rev. E. W. Klein the mortgage of $1,300 was largely through his efforts reduced to $200 at the time of his retirement a year ago.

Rev. J. W. Carpenter, the present pastor, instituted church Dollar Day, which was observed April 6. The sum raised was not quite sufficient to meet the debt, but the amount has since been made up and Sunday evening, May 4, the church society will be freed from debt. There will be a special service to mark the event.

Notice was received Tuesday of the death of Mrs. Hattie Fuller, at Spring Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Hansen were in Willimantic Tuesday.

The sound of the state road steam whistle falls sweetly on the ear, for it means the state road will be finished some time.

WINDHAM CENTER

The last bean and salad supper to be served this season was given by the L. A. S. of the Congregational church Friday evening. A fine supper of baked beans, potato salad, cabbage salad, pickles, rolls, brown bread, cake and coffee was served to about 150 persons, this being the largest attendance for the season. Following the supper a fine program was given by some of the younger members of the Windham National bank employes, under the direction of Harold S. Maine. It consisted of selections by a mixed quartette and a male quartette, tenor solos, readings, saxophone solos, selections by a banjo, mandolin and saxaphone. A number of local hits caused much amusement.

He was born in ... in 1758 and died March 18, ... He was a member of Captain Stephen Lyon's company, in 1776. His service record shows that he fought in the battles of Long Island, White Plains, Fort Washington and Fort's Point and, later, in the battle of Rhode Island. In 1780 he was a member of Captain Ben Sumner's command.

Long after the war for the services he had rendered his country in conflict, congress issued a warrant for 160 acres of land and his widow received a pension.

His first wife was Mary Peabody, who died April 2, 1802. Three daughters were born to them. Following her death, he again married, this time to Sarah Harwood of Sutton, Mass. Eight children were born of this union, Sarah being the youngest. Mrs. Bradway makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Darwin Clark.

Relative to the line of manufacturing to be undertaken by the new concern that is to be located in the Manhasset mill property, an investors' publication has the following:

After a halt in the plans of the Rheabat Corporation covering several months, there are indications that within the next 60 days the corporation will be well on the way toward the success promised for it in the experimental days of the corporation.

It is learned that interests close to the company have acquired a big New England mill, in which the rhea fiber is to be spun and made into yarns.

With the clearing up of some slight financial difficulties, everything will be in readiness to go ahead with the original plans of the corporation.

It is proposed to equip the mill with the machinery being brought from Germany, and to start the manufacture of yarns spun from the rhea fiber on an extensive scale.

Arrangements entered into between the Rheabat corporation, and the spinning company indicate the immediate development of an earning power which will guarantee the dividends on the preferred stock, and provide for a liberal balance for the common. The arrangements being entered into between the spinning company and the Rheabat corporation are understood to be very favorable to the Rheabat corporation.

The new company, while taking a huge volume of rhea fiber manufactured by the Rheabat corporation, will not have an exclusive option on the rhea fiber produced.

In the past few months the Rheabat corporation has been developing new markets for its fiber, and some excellent contracts are said to be in sight, outside of the demand for the fiber for the spinning purposes.

Practically all of the difficulties that have served as a barrier to the progress of the Rheabat corporation, it is learned, have been ironed out, and interests which are now furthering the plans of the corporation state that the company has no need of financial assistance.

This is taken to mean that the increase in capitalization proposed some time ago will be effected, and that the securities issued under the increase will be satisfactorily disposed of without any public offering.

Present outlook for the company is that the success indicated at the time it was introduced to the public will be fulfilled, both from the standpoint of company earnings and security values.

Secretary A. F. Ralston has issued the following communication of general city interest:

The meeting of the chamber of commerce, May 8th, ought to be the most important and interesting meeting of the year. We say 'ought to be' because it all depends on the membership in general. If the attendance is poor the meeting will fall flat. If it is largely attended, there is no foretelling how interesting it will be. Where there are numbers, there are ideas; where there are ideas there is discussion; and where there is discussion something constructive in the way of criticism, suggestions and action is sure to come out and therefore our organization will progress; will become a greater factor for good in our community.

Last year the attendance was not what it should have been. Nevertheless the meeting was crammed full of interesting discussion and action. Many who did not attend said they were sorry they missed it.

Let's all put a circle around the date of the meeting on our calendars right now, and let's make no other arrangements for that night. If we are interested, loyal chamber of commerce members we will be present at this annual meeting, which will follow dinner at the inn and an address by an out-of-town speaker whom the entertainment committee is trying to secure.

A New Jersey concern, making curtain overdraperies, came to Putnam recently seeking 10,000 square feet of floor space. The chamber of commerce, hearing that the No. 5 mill of the Manhasset property was to be leased, took the visitors down and they looked around. When they left town, laden with all the information they wanted about the city (freight facilities, lighting and power rates, nationalities and types of Putnam workers, etc., etc.), they asked the chamber to look into the question of their leasing a floor of the Manhasset mill alluded to. This has been attended to and the whole matter referred to the proper authorities. We do not know whether they will come to terms. That remains to be seen. But at least we did all we were able to do, acting swiftly when this latest opportunity came to interest a manufacturing concern in Putnam.

Should organizations conducting ag days in Putnam be required by city ordinance to obtain a license from the mayor? It is an interesting question and there are many citizens heartily in favor of such a requirement. Your directors considered the question thoroughly and were unanimously of the opinion that such an ordinance should be adopted by the common council. The council, therefore, has been informed of the attitude of the directors, who have recommended the adoption of an ordinance covering the matter.

A representative of a Springfield company was in Putnam the past week, seeking the endorsement and cooperation of the chamber, in the proposal to get up a new directory for Putnam. Your directors considered the subject at their regular meeting and decided, for several reasons, not to approve the directory making at this time.

Members of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows will assemble at their rooms Sunday morning and march to the Congregational church, to attend service in a body.

Owen J. White, principal of the Israel Putnam school, is among those who have become interested in the Headquarters company, infantry, of the 43d division to be organized here and who will be an asset to it.

Lambert L. Gustafson, Kennetir C. Sharpe and James H. McCullough, all past noble grands of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows, will make up its delegation to the state grand lodge session to be held in Thompsonville, May 21.

Desire Labby, chairman of the police committee of the common council said Wednesday that nothing had been done relative to any investigation of matters pertaining to the police that developed at the hearing of the Smith and Culley cases Monday in the city court.

At the Older Girls' conference of Windham county to be held at Hampton May 10, Miss Dorothy Ames and Miss Thelma Bosworth of this city, will have a part in the program.

Two Backs

Which is Yours on Monday?

FOR GENERATIONS women have had back-achey washdays

TODAY a new kind of laundry soap takes all the drudgery out of washday—leaves you fresh and free for vital things

Dragging heavy wet pieces up and down on a washboard every Monday!

For generations women have worn themselves to weariness—too tired on washday to give anything fresh to their homes, their children.

And the clothes they spent so much precious energy on—the clothes themselves did not escape the harmful effects of this kind of washday! For the eternal rubbing of the clothes to get them soapy, and rubbing them to get them clean—played havoc with the family wash.

TODAY—women all over the country are being released from this old drudgery.

You now see many a fresh, energetic mother at the end of washday eager and ready for a romp with the children—able to give smiling attention to the more vital needs of her home.

A new laundry soap has made this possible—a wonderful new kind of soap that does away with all the hard rubbing—a soap that gives you the cleanest, snowiest wash in the way that saves your time and strength! Rinso, the first really modern laundry soap!

Rinso simply soaks dirt out of clothes. Its creamy white granules dissolve completely in boiling water. You pour this rich Rinso solution into your tubs—it makes the water soapy all through. An even soapiness that goes into every fibre of your garments, soaking dirt out.

Just use enough Rinso to get big lasting suds after the clothes have been put in. Then only a light rubbing is needed on such especially grimy spots as collar bands, cuff edges, and the like.

Because Rinso is completely dissolved it rinses out thoroughly, giving you a gleaming white wash. No bits of soap to stick to clothes and turn them yellow under the iron.

Use Rinso for every washday step—soaking, boiling, washing machines. It does the whole job—you need no other soap.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux. It is just as successful for the family wash as Lux is for all fine things.

Make your next wash easy—get Rinso at your grocer's—regular size or big new package. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

THE HOSPITAL AUXILIARY CAMPAIGN.

Norwich should be highly gratified at the campaign which has been inaugurated for increasing the membership of the Women's auxiliary of the Backus hospital. It was but a short time ago that Norwich and surrounding towns responded handsomely in the move for increased facilities and endowment of the institution. It was indicative of the interest in the hospital and a recognition of its need. It was likewise a demonstration of the appreciation on the part of the people dependent thereon, of the importance of an adequate and efficient hospital.

Much valuable service has been rendered to this community institution by the Women's auxiliary. There is the need and the opportunity for a still greater service. There are organizations engaged in broad humanitarian work which impresses and which inspires participation. It is an honor to have a part therein, a pleasure to help in such work and a gratification to realize that it is made possible by the joining of many hands. It is in the furtherance of this end that the appeal is being made to get more of the Norwich people really interested through doing something in connection with the city's hospital.

An organization of women, working along the same lines as the local one, has done and is doing great things for similar institutions. Norwich is desirous that its hospital should equal if not excel, others in communities of like size. An auxiliary does much in the provision of supplies of various kinds and in overcoming of many handicaps. As has been properly said the kind of a hospital any city has depends upon the support it gets and its preparedness to meet the demands made upon it.

The desire and determination to bring the fitness to the top notch is a most commendable one. It is one to which the women of Norwich can be expected to and it is believed will make a quick and effective response. There good works are discernible in many directions and they should be eager to have a hand in such a worthy cause that concerns not only Norwich but the towns surrounding it. The move for an increased and more effective work deserves a hearty endorsement.

THE PRESIDENT'S DENIAL.

While the telegram which was forwarded by a correspondent named Miller concerning an interview with the president was not intended for publication it becomes evident that it conveyed an erroneous impression when it made reference to the "delivery" of Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford.

Because of the misrepresentation and misquotation involved the president has felt called upon to make a prompt denial of such a statement. The president is not concerned with Muscle Shoals except to dispose of it to the best advantage to the country. He has on record to that effect. He has advocated the disposition of the plant and has said that while the price is an important element an even more compelling consideration is the satisfying of the demand for cheaper fertilizer and the protection of the country in case of war through nitrate production.

The president takes the opportunity to declare that his message had been written before Mr. Ford called upon him last December and that he recommended to congress the appointment of a small joint committee to consider the offers, conduct negotiations and report definite recommendations.

At no time whatever has the president indicated otherwise than that he wanted Muscle Shoals disposed of on its merits. He has not advocated the Ford terms or tried to impress congress with the advisability of accepting them. On the contrary he has endeavored to get congress to avoid any possibility of snap judgment in connection with the offers which have been made for the project.

The telegram, it is to be realized, was not one that was sent by the president. It was forwarded by one who was representing Mr. Ford, or at least representing those connected with his weekly. It is not to be expected that the president is to be held responsible for such a wording as was used in a private telegram, and it is quite right and timely that he should put forth a prompt and emphatic denial. It was to the point and effective.

SAVING THE MAYFLOWER.

One who is an ardent lover of wild flowers and cannot bear to think of their extermination has been impressed by the scarcity of the trailing arbutus and has offered the suggestion that she indicated disappearance of the delightful and fragrant mayflower may be due to ways in which those selling them are patronized. The inference is that while there may be many who are refraining from the destruction of this wild flower those same ones may be encouraging others to do so by creating a market for them, in that those who prepare the flowers for sale may be pulling them up by the roots and are being encouraged by the ready manner in which they dispose of their wares.

This doesn't give the pickers the benefit of figuring that if they pull the arbutus up by the roots there will soon be no flowers, and if there are no arbutus to pick there will be none to sell.

It was recently deplored by a botany professor in Wisconsin that such serious inroads were being made into the supply of arbutus, which is hard to cultivate, that unless it was checked it would be quickly exterminated.

In an effort to gather arbutus for President Coolidge the 300 people who scoured the woods in the vicinity of Plymouth, Mass., found the blossoms scarcer than usual and the vines hard to find.

It is an old saying that you cannot have your cake and eat it. It is quite as true regarding the arbutus. This wild flower cannot be indiscriminately pulled up by those who raid the beds for the satisfaction of the immediate object of gathering an early and big bunch of the flowers and have the lovers of the flower expect to find the damage repaired by another year. This is a plant that is more easily destroyed than many others and the way to prevent its extermination is to surround it with the necessary bit of protection that checks those who rip up the beds as if they were no more than grass or wild carrots.

FOR CHILD HEALTH.

May day has in the past been associated with disorders. An effort is being made this year to have May day the occasion when all classes and individuals should turn their thoughts to the health and well being of children. It must be regarded as a worthy movement. It is one that has the endorsement of the president and he voices a general sentiment when he says, "The stupendous growth of urban population constantly presents new problems of child life and health. These problems should be met by action within each community itself. Our whole social and political progress lies in strong and effective action and initiative of our local communities. Our national voluntary associations concerned in these questions serve a great purpose in scientific research and building up public understanding upon which action shall be taken and from which solutions will be found in each community."

When the mortality figures are considered it can be appreciated that every effort in behalf of good health should have the most generous backing, and certainly there is the incentive for it in overcoming conditions which are detrimental thereto. Whatever can be done for the betterment of the conditions concerning the health of the child from birth to maturity means better and stronger citizens, and when there are removable dangers standing in the way of health it is distressing that all possible means are not employed to combat them.

Making May day the occasion for concentrating more thought on the children and their health is a cause not only which all should endorse but in which all should enlist.

SHOULD NOT WASTE TIME.

When the American members of the expert commission return with their statements in regard to their work, it can be appreciated that they are sincere and serious when they point out that the plan should be adopted without any unnecessary delay.

They were called upon to consider the conditions in Germany and to suggest a remedy which would stabilize conditions. They were also asked to pass upon the capacity of the country to pay and to devise a method of doing so. They have met their responsibilities in a faithful and conscientious manner. It has been reported what the conditions are, what is needed and what should be done to meet the situation. They have dealt with conditions as they found them and naturally their plan takes that into consideration. It can be readily understood therefore that if the plan is to be effective it should be put into operation as soon as possible. They have not proposed action hinging on conditions a year or so from now, but have recommended for the present.

Preliminary expressions by the various interested countries have been favorable. The experts have received approval for the most part. Their plan is regarded as a basis for action, but the aim of the American experts in their statements is to emphasize the importance of early rather than delayed action. Results are wanted. The work of the experts should not go for naught. It is a time for the allies to get together and stick there instead of palavering and dilly dallying among themselves and wasting time when that is just what the situation shows should be prevented. A speedy settlement would be beneficial to all, including Germany.

TOTALLY LOST

"Come away," cried the apprehensive wife when her husband tried to break away and pause at a window filled with radio equipment. "We are happy now and why wreck the situation?"

"Aw," lamented the foiled husband, "I just wanted to look at those sets, Galoshe! Lemme alone!"

"Listen," the apprehensive wife began in low, condensed tones, propelling him onward by main force. "That's the way they all start and after they are started anybody might just as well try to stop the mercury from going down in zero weather as to distract their attention to anything else on earth!

"If you think for one minute, Galahad, that I am going to sit by idly and see you plunge headlong into the clutches of one of the prime causes for divorce nowadays, you are sadly at sea in regard to my real nature! Some day the women of this land are going to arise and wreck every aerial station in sight and get acquainted again with their husbands and sons.

"I don't know why it is that the radio fever hits the men so much harder than the women. Maybe it is because they can escape from a humdrum atmosphere filled with janitors, steam heat, butchers' bills and Johnny's report card and go gallivanting over the wide earth listening to fairy tales—men always do kick and struggle against the dry facts of life!

"You cannot begin to imagine the situation in hundreds and hundreds of homes about you, Galahad, all due to the installation of a radio machine. Why, Bessie Tart tells me that while she would be able instantly to recognize the back view of her husband and son she expects they have changed so in the last six months that she is afraid of meeting them on the street some day and not speaking, taking them for utterly strange men. They bolt their dinner in their haste to clamp on the earmuffs and till bedtime sit breathlessly bent over the wooden box, jabbling in jabbers, turning wheels and saying in hushed, excited tones, "Listen! Didja get that? Hush! Wait a minute! Listen!"

"Poor Bessie has read everything in the bookcase and mended all the socks twice over and there doesn't seem to be anything left for her to do but sit and look at those two backs.

"Seraphine Plum says that her nerves are at the snapping point and that the muscles of her face are completely petrified because for so many months now she has been saying, 'Yes, dear,' and 'You don't mean it!' in glad tones to her husband. No matter what she is doing George rushes in shouting that what does she suppose—he just got Landslide, Alaska, and heard just as plainly as anything the fight in the Landslide general clubhouse and poolroom. Or else it is Pitipat, Patagonia, which he has intruded on and he heard the town band play the 'Wild Violet' waltz and could actually tell that it was a waltz!

"And the most even-tempered men are getting terribly quarrelsome. The 8:16 trains all over are becoming seething hotbeds of lies and quarrels because if John Smith blows in saying, "Hello, boys, would you believe it, I got Catalina last night? Hendy Jones lights his cigar with a perfectly "Didja? Well, we listened in on Honolulu at our house—great!"

"And then the respected banker, who probably is Sunday school superintendent, too, says, 'Grrrrrrrrrip—my boy has an especially fine radio, but I must say I was surprised as well as gratified to hear last evening that he tuned in on Tokyo.' And then everybody pitches in and a lovely time is had, lives being saved only by the grain stopping indefinitely at the Chicago station and the figgers being shooed out by the car cleaners.

"It is because I want to spare you all this wearing excitement Galahad—"

"There was a dandy one there in the window for $98.50," said the foiled husband dreamily. "C'mon, let's go back—I just wanta look at it, Garosha!"—Chicago News.

BRADFORD STILL WAS THANKFUL

Misunderstood, persecuted, betrayed, falsely accused, arrested, bereaved and almost impoverished, William Bradford, nevertheless, gave to America its first Thanksgiving observance.

He was born in Austerfield, England, was a child when his parents died, and he lived with relatives, who taught him and had him work on their farm. Sick for a long time, he could not play like other children.

When 12 years old he would walk to the Reformist church, ten miles away, and when 16 he joined the Separatists, despite that relatives raged, friends deserted him and neighbors scoffed at the future Pilgrims.

To avoid persecutions he and others sailed for Holland. The shipmaster betrayed them and all the party were thrown into prison. Released, he braved the perils of land and sea to reach Zealand. Soon after his arrival there, he was arrested on the charge of being a fugitive criminal from England, but was set free.

Going to Amsterdam, he apprenticed himself to a silk manufacturer. When 21 years old he sold his inherited property in England, went into business, and lost most of his funds.

Joining the Pilgrims at Southampton, he sailed on the Mayflower. The two-months' journey across the rough Atlantic ended, he prepared to land in America when his wife fell overboard and was drowned.

But there were other things to be thankful for, and in the fall of 1621 he set four men fowling so that the remaining members might "after a more special manner rejoice the fruits of our labor."

The observance that followed was America's first Thanksgiving.

And Bradford served as governor of the Plymouth Colony all the rest of his life, except for a brief period when he declined election and enjoyed the honor, loyalty and friendship of his people.

Purdue University, which today begins a notable celebration in honor of its semi-centennial, has as its president Dr. Edward C. Elliott, an educator of wide experience and proven executive ability. Dr. Elliott is a Chicagoan who, after graduation at the University of Nebraska, and a year in Germany, returned to the United States and won a doctor's degree at Columbia University. Then, after teaching several years in Nebraska and Colorado, he went East and joined the staff of the teachers' college at Columbia where he taught pedagogics. Next followed 11 years of responsible teaching and administrative work in connection with the department of education at the University of Wisconsin. In 1916 he accepted the chancellorship of the University of Montana, in which post he remained until called to the presidency of Purdue in 1922. During the war Dr. Elliott was a member of the Montana State Council of Defense and also a director of the Student Army Training Corps in the Northwestern states.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

LEIPZIG

Scores of American merchants recently attended the annual "world's fair," at Leipzig.

Importance and population in Germany only by Berlin, Hamburg and Munich, Leipzig is a living memorial to the value of goods," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society at Washington, D. C. "The world has made many paths to Leipzig's door but the Leipzig philosophy proclaims that good road-work on the paths keeps the world coming.

"Even as herds of buffalo, deer, and other animals came regularly to salt licks, primitive man found that practically the only need which would take him out of his own valley was salt. Halle, also in Saxony, was a source of salt and some of the earliest German merchants passed through the tiny Slavic fishing village, Leipzig, on their way to Halle a few miles distant to get salt.

"At a date too early to record, the 'Rotary' club of Leipzig decided that a good road between Leipzig and Halle would make more merchants go through Leipzig. Thus the little village in the broad flat plain, devoid of natural strategic aids, made itself a junction point and outstripped its neighbor villages. Descendants of that early 'Rotary' club completed a 1913 railroad station in Leipzig in 1913 that has a facade 1000 feet long. 'Right now Leipzig is a discouraged town. This year it planned a great 'normalcy' fair. More than 170,000 people attended the fair, but sales were weak. 'Prices too high' said merchants from America, Persia, England, China—mechanics from everywhere. So the toymakers from Nuremberg and Thuringia, who stoutly maintained that the children of the world invariably prefer German toys, went sadly home with scant orders. The Leipzig fair to the commercial world is an event—to Germany a national crisis.

"Nevertheless, certain old reliable buyers appeared at the fair this year for the first time since the war and this was the silver lining for Leipzig. Since 1918 most of the buyers have been sharpers trying to profit on the fluctuating mark. 'Next year,' says Leipzig, 'that's the year.' The United States has nothing to compare with the Leipzig fair. Nearest it, probably, is a great New York skyscraper where a buyer can outfit a hotel completely from table silver to ham and bellboys' uniforms.

"Fairs in the United States ordinarily mean blooded stock competitions, cooking and sewing competitions, horse races, and ballyhooing on midway. The word originally referred to a Roman religious festival and even now in Europe 'fair days' frequently fall near the religious holidays. Lacking communications, medieval merchants made their church duties serve their worldly welfare by transacting business while attending church festivals. The need to see purchases diminished with the coming of printing and the railroad, so modern times have seen the decline of the great Nizhni Novgorod fair and the Deaucaire fair of France. Only the Leipzig fair has stood its ground. It adapted itself by devoting its fair to those products which it still is necessary to see before purchasing, notably toys, leather and furs.

"Leipzig, like Berlin, Vienna and other European cities, has added variety to the swords-into-ploughshares legend by razing its old battlements into boulevards. Its Ring-Strasse, built where grim walls rose once, surrounds the old city in the center of which is the fair market. To the east is the fine Book Exchange building which annually attracts hundreds of publishers. Leipzig is the publishing center of Germany, more than 500 periodicals emanating from this town. That it is also a publishing center for all Europe is seen in the fact that 11,000 publishers have representatives in Leipzig.

"On the edge of the town, almost on the battle site where Napoleon's defeat in the Battle of Nations foreshadowed Waterloo, is Leipzig University, a leading German educational institution. Many Americans have studied medicine and other subjects in these halls made famous by Goethe. Tourists today are shown Auerbach's beer cellar where Goethe, the student, made merry and drew inspiration for Faust from old mural paintings. A hidden door discloses an underground passage from the beer cellar leading directly to an old university building.

"Nearby on the same street where Goethe wooed is a simple tablet in a wall with the inscription: 'In this house was born Richard Wagner, May 22, 1813.'

"Although Leipzig can point to no great cathedral, it has as fine a musical and literary tradition as any town in the Reich. Bach, who is the composers' composer, much as Spenser is the poets' poet, drilled his choruses in a Leipzig church. With a nucleus of the four town pipers who were under municipal contract to play for weddings and festivities, with patience and without extortion," Bach built up an orchestra. Young Felix Mendelssohn took up the baton of this orchestra, and out of it grew the famous Leipzig Conservatory. Schumann and the poet Schiller were also attracted to Leipzig, lending it reflected glory.

Leipzig is at the intersection of some of the main north and south and east and west routes of central Europe, and has a population slightly larger than that of Pittsburgh. Unlike the American practice the German supreme court is located not at the seat of government, Berlin, but in the 'fair city.'

"Before the war Leipzig proclaimed itself 'The Paris of Germany.' Now it is seeking a new slogan."

A Little Talk on Thrift

ELIMINATING MORE WASTE

It is gratifying to note that organized official action is being taken to eliminate what is perhaps the greatest source of waste in American life, namely, lack of simplified practice in industry. This waste is officially computed at $10,000,000,000 annually or enough to pay all federal, state and municipal taxes with a large margin left over. The figure mentioned was arrived at after engineers of national and international reputation spent six months in making surveys. Their findings revealed an average of 49 per cent waste in six of our greatest industries.

The basis of this waste lies largely with the individual consumer, who thoughtlessly, in most cases, creates a demand for endless varieties, styles and grades.

The industries in which an average of 49 per cent waste was found, were according to William A. Durgin, chief of the division of simplified practice in the Department of Commerce, metal trades, boots and shoes, textiles, printing, building, and men's clothing. Perhaps there are other industries where the percentage of waste is just as great, but the ones mentioned have particularly been surveyed.

As an example of what can be done toward eliminating waste in industry, it is pointed out that a large producer of men's shoes recently eliminated 93.7 per cent of his former line. A manufacturer of food products has, through simplified practice, decreased the variety of his output 82 per cent with a decrease of 73 per cent in cost of sales force, a 18 per cent saving in advertising and an 80 per cent saving in overhead, with an increased sales volume of 60 per cent.

An almost endless list of instances of this kind may be found in the records of the division of simplified practice.

It is a splendid phase of thrift work in which each individual can render helpful cooperation. It also emphasizes the fact that there are perhaps few businesses that cannot by intensive study of this phase of their activities introduce methods that will very greatly contribute to their more profitable operation.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Two Kinds of Pillows

Martha is just starting to attend kindergarten. Her uncle visited her parents and began tossing pillows at her. He picked up one on the corner of the davenport and started to throw it to Martha, when she exclaimed excitedly:

"Oh, Uncle Russell, you mustn't throw that pillow. That isn't the romping pillow."

Net Angels Wings

Every community has an automobile with a horn that has a peculiarly penetrating horn. Once heard it is never forgotten, and is of course easily identified.

Not long ago at a Sunday school entertainment in an outlying community, a little girl who had been carefully rehearsed in her part stepped forth to say her line. Placing herself in a questioning attitude, she said: "Hark, do I hear the rustle of angels' wings?"

At that moment there was a sound outside. Immediately there came the answer from the audience in a childish treble, "No that was just the bus."

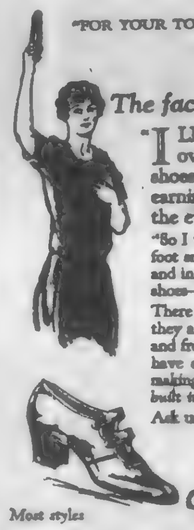
"FOR YOUR TOES' WOES"



The factory worker speaks:

"I LEARNED long ago that old run-over dress shoes or snappy style shoes worn on the job mean lowered earnings—footsore nights—no fun in the evening.

"So I wear a shoe that is pliable yet holds the foot snugly balanced to carry my weight easily and in comfort. I wear good looking comfort shoes—Ye Olde Tyme Comfort Shoes."

LEBANON SURVEY REPORT BEFORE GOSHEN CLUB

A meeting was held under the auspices of the New London County Farm Bureau at the Goshen Community club Tuesday night. The meeting was held for the purpose of reporting progress on the agricultural and economic studies being conducted in the town of Lebanon by the Connecticut Agricultural College and Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station. I. G. Davis, reporting on the progress of the survey, stated that the soil survey and the study of the use of land had been completed and that field work on the economic survey of the farms had also been completed but that the complete analysis of the facts secured in the farm survey would require four or five months more. He stated that the last phase of the survey has started. Dr. E. L. Kirkpatrick and Miss Kneeland of the United States Department of Agriculture with Mrs. Dakin of the Connecticut Agricultural College, assisted by Miss Zisman of the Council of Jewish Women and other workers have opened a home management study course.

Mr. Davis said that in conducting this phase of the survey the same cooperation was asked of the women in Lebanon as had been given so willingly by the men in connection with the farm survey. He expressed his appreciation of the very valuable assistance and help given by all persons throughout the town and stated that the Lebanon farm studies were generally acknowledged to be the most complete that had ever been attempted in any one area in the United States.

Professor Morgan of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station reported on the results of the soil survey and Clarence I. Hendrickson of the Connecticut Agricultural College on the results of the economic survey. At this meeting those present passed a resolution to stand back of the Lebanon survey in every way and to encourage other people of the town to do likewise.

A similar meeting was held in the Lyman High school hall, Lebanon on Wednesday evening.

MIDDLETOWN HEARING BY NORWICH COMMISSIONER

Selectmen Howard S. Peck and William J. Trevithick, Town Attorney Ernest A. Inglis and Director of Public Works J. Warren Mylchreest of Middletown were in Norwich Monday at a compensation hearing before Commissioner J. J. Donohue. The hearing was relative to a claim made by the estate of Walter R. Markham for compensation on account of his death. Mr. Markham was tree warden for Middletown at the time of his death a few months ago.

Town Attorney Inglis of Middletown in a finding made several weeks ago declared the town not liable as the position of tree warden was appointive rather than a hired employe. His ruling was that the town was not liable for other than a hired employe. Mr. Markham was engaged in trimming the branches of a tree at the south end of High street, when knocked to the street, his injuries causing his death a few hours later. The hearing was originally scheduled for several weeks ago, but was postponed at request of the compensation authorities.

Electricians and motion picture operators, installing apparatus for the pageant "The Lighted Trial," to be given in Springfield, May 7, in connection with the Methodist general conference, threatened to stop work today when they discovered Rev. Chester H. Hoyt, of a local church, working on some of the wiring.

BULKELEY'S HARD-HITTING TEAM SWAMPS WINDHAM BALL TOSSERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 30. Good relief pitching and heavy hitting by the Bulkeley team gained last year's state champions the third victory of the season. This time the defeat was charged up against the Windham nine. The final score was 18 to 6, and although Windham threw a scare into the supporters of the Crimson and Black in the first two innings by scoring four runs, the team from Willimantic was never in the running after the fourth inning.

Tillie Daniels the pitching ace of the Bulkeley nine, had to be pressed into service with the second inning rain-birds game. Daniels stepped into the role of the visitors and kept them safe for the rest of the contest. His pitching was good and but two hits were knocked off him in seven and one-third innings. Daniels was pressed into service because the Windham hurler fell under the offerings of Danny Basile and only lasted in the second inning when the Windham team was in the height of its batting. Basile was touched for two runs in the second inning on Windham's only hit, two men on with a base drive over second. Burr replaced Basile in the second inning and Kelley walked and Normile singled with the bases full, forcing Burr to retire. Burr then settled down and pitched good ball for the remainder of the game, allowing but one hit, a single by Kelley in the seventh inning.

TENNIS RECEIVED WITH ENTHUSIASM AT BULKELEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 30.—Then tennis team which will be one of the major sports at Bulkeley was given a rousing send off at the meeting held at the school auditorium this afternoon after school was dismissed. Approximately fifty students who are interested in tennis were present at the meeting. Various matters were discussed among those were the selection of a manager and coach. If Headmaster Underwood agrees with the selection of the manager made by Coach Hamm, an instructor of English, who will coach the tennis team this year, Johnnie MacDonald of the senior class will be awarded the managerial berth. Several letters have been received at the school which applies for the position of a manager to book games. However with the election of Johnnie MacDonald to the manager's position a schedule for the Bulkeley team will be arranged as soon as possible. The first game will probably be with the New Britain High school at New Britain either on the 21st or 28th of May.

The first practice for the tennis team is expected to be held at the Connecticut college public court if permission can be received from the athletic director at the college. There are several good players at Bulkeley that have had considerable experience wielding a racket and a good team is expected to be turned out. A game will probably be arranged with Norwich Free academy's tennis team for the same day that the Bulkeley team travels to that town to play in baseball.

WEBB STARS AT BAT BUT PITTSFIELD LOSES

Pittsfield, Mass., April 30. Hartford defeated Pittsfield here this afternoon 7 to 2 despite the pitching and batting of Earl Webb, Pittsfield outfielder. Webb was honored by 12 hits in the Hartford ballgame but indulged errors at inopportune moments, largely to his defeat.

At bat Webb was a big star getting a home run, a single and a double on three trips to the plate. The game was called in the end of the seventh inning on account of rain.

Pittsfield was suspended infielder Red Wade purchased from Worcester, terms not reported. The score:

Two base hits: McPhee, Webb. Home runs: Webb.

AMHERST'S ERRORS GIVE YALE 6 TO 1 VICTORY

New Haven, April 30. Amherst's poor and wild pitching in the fourth inning lost them defeat at the hands of Yale today, 6 to 1. Woodruff walked four men and two errors were made, giving the Blues their only opportunity to score. The game was called in the seventh on account of rain. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham New York Giants

Fast man and a left-handed hitter at the bat. He hits a slow roll between the pitcher and first baseman.

Who should cover first base?

This play comes up quite frequently and many times it is possible for a second baseman to field the ball for the first baseman to cover the bag. In the majority of times the first baseman finds the ball and the pitcher runs for first base and is in good position to cover, only to find the ball has undershot him and he has to turn to the bag or even better just allow the baseman to reach the bag.

This is a play which makes a great deal of trouble to pitchers and well for teams having good first baseman.

MARANVILLE STEALS HOME WITH WINNING RUN

Chicago, April 30. Rabbit Maranville stole home in the 14th inning with the run which gave Pittsburgh a 2 to 1 victory today over Chicago and an even break in the series with Pitcher Elmer Jacobs, Seattle recruit, stood on the mound with the ball in his hand, apparently not knowing what to do. The pair were out when Maranville hit an eight flash. Heath was turned a somersault in attempting to catch the ball and Maranville reached home as the ball rolled to the fence. Schmidt was purposely passed and while Morrison was at bat with two strikes on him, Maranville darted home over the deserting pitcher. Hornsby, Grantham and Cuyler gave the visitors the first run and Chicago tied the count on Grimm's double and Heath's single. Score:

BREACH IN TENNIS RANKS WIDENS WITH BOTH SIDES STANDING FIRM

New York, April 30. The split in tennis ranks over the playing status of William T. Tilden and Vincent Richards from one of open and professional standing to that of amateur, which Davis Cup team, was widened further today in spite of effort to patch up the differences.

Latest development in the controversy was the announcement by the United States Lawn Tennis association of the resignation of Richards after failure to persuade him to withdraw his refusal to Tilden to consider any offer to become tennis professional of the Briarcliff lodge, and additional evidence that agitation for the ousting of the U. S. T. A. may force a reconsideration of the player-actor's case within a short time.

Although reports from Chicago indicated that mid western units of the U. S. L. T. A. did not contemplate interference in the case, it was learned that pressure is being brought to bear from that as well as other quarters to have the entire case reviewed in order to prevent a split in the ranks. Should the association be split into two camps, it is said, the tournament committee would be compelled to withdraw the Davis Cup team from competition, as the United States would be unable to muster a team of sufficient strength to have a chance against the foreign players.

Besides Mr. Richards, Mr. Tilden has received a letter from Julian S. Myrick, president of the U. S. L. T. A., in which the latter is informed that the executive committee of the association, including Holcombe Ward, chairman of the national rules committee and Julian S. Myrick, president of the association, will be in New York with the object of meeting the Tilden committee, which is composed of Alexander M. White, chairman, Howard A. Kelly and Dr. Walter Dill Scott, in an effort to settle the matter. The letter to Tilden was signed by Mr. Myrick.

Tilden's reply to the letter was that he would be willing to meet the committee, but that he would not appear before the executive committee of the association. Tilden's letter was received by Mr. Myrick today.

DUGAS AND BARBER SIGN FOR BOWLING MATCH

Cliff Dugas of Fairfield and Frankie Barber of Bridgeport completed arrangements for a special prize match of twenty strings to be rolled in two weeks. The first match will find Dugas rolling Barber at Danielson on Tuesday evening, May 13th. The second match of the series will be rolled at Fairfield on Thursday evening, May 15th.

The prize will be at least $300 and possibly it may be raised to $600 before the match. Dugas won the Eastern championship by rolling title a few weeks ago and the match is a challenge match with Barber former champion to the title of champion.

It is said that after the Dugas-Barber series there will be a two-man match with Dugas and Toney Barber against Dugas and Tilmore. Tilmore was the runner up in the Eastern Connecticut bowling league.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Strand.

Norwich will be one of the few fortunate cities of the United States that will have the opportunity of witnessing the United States government war picture, Powder River, the first presentation of which will be given at the Strand theatre today.

The picture describes the hostilities of the late World war, presenting the part which America played in the war. The major battles of Catigny, Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, and the Argonne are pictures. Most of the scenes were "shot" under fire. Very particularly is presented the part played by the New England boys, the famous 26th.

Powder River is to be shown for three days only in Norwich. It is presented under the auspices and in cooperation with the Veterans of American Legion in this city, Robert O. Fletcher Post. All members of the post will be admitted free by presenting their membership cards at the door.

Ohio State Journal, Columbus, Ohio, says: Through efforts of Columbus Post No. 11, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Grand theater is presenting this week an epic in celluloid. An epic, strangely enough, for which no plot was directly written; in which no handsome star is featured; in which action is what the film has nothing else but; and which is incidentally the clearest possible presentation of the history of the most crowded years in the life of the United States.

See it with your own eyes! No one can tell you about it!

Broadway Theatre.

Real big city shows! That's the kind the Norwich theatregoers have been seeing at the Broadway theatre.

To further this fact, the program arranged for the last half of this week at that popular playhouse will more than fulfill all expectations.

Fresh from its metropolitan triumphs come George McClellonia's Jazz Devils. A company of ten improvising comedians who present a series of vaudeville surprises.

Working in the colorful dressing of their native costumes, The Plaza Rose, offer a fast athletic routine.

Pairing the piano and singing Joyce and Jean Bernard, offer Harmonious Moments.

Hunting and D'Armond in The Love Lane, present singing, dancing and comedy that will meet with your approval.

Three people appear in the company of Douglas Flint and company, who offer a comedy classic entitled Grouch Gregory.

If you want to see some of the most daring stunts ever shown on a screen, if you want to enjoy a real, lively romance, if you want to witness some splendid acting, then by all means go to the Broadway theatre, where Richard Talmadge in Let's Go! opened today for a three days' engagement. This is a Carlos production, released by Truart Films.

Do not fail to visit the Broadway theatre this week, there is a treat there waiting for you!

CHURCH MUSIC OF RUSSIA DEMONSTRATED BY QUARTET

Russian church music a monotony of chords of great richness, was demonstrated by the Russian Cathedral Quartet at Sheldon Memorial last night. Two compositions of the Orthodox ritual, the Lord's Prayer by Pakhmeteff and the Cherubimic Hymn of Protopopoff were sung by the four in the robes which they wore as choir singers in Moscow. The remainder of the program was an assortment of Russian and American popular selections. The Volga Boatmen's Song was the best of the secular numbers.

M. P. Bataeff, basso, was as was to be expected in a Russian quartet, the featured singer. In the Armorer's Song, he easily took the D below the C on which basses usually preen themselves. His low note in B-flat. N. G. Wasilevsky, tenor, who has an odd habit of singing with his lips apparently closed, like a ventriloquist, sang a Russian lullaby beautifully, and the other members of the quartet gave solo numbers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

This quartet will be at the Community House, Sunday, May 4.

Tilden, 2nd national champion, and M. Fukuda, a member of the Japanese Davis cup team, Takeo Harada, also a Japanese Davis cup player, and G. Berninger, and Manuel Alonso and C. Rautenberg.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Palace now playing Jimmie Hussey's Musical Comedy Revue in a new show starting today, entitled Lucky Boy. A mighty assembling of Mr. Murnane's from the world of mirth and melody including Norma's favorite comedian Tom Carroll, Musical Bannon clever Russian dancer, Mabel Vesey and Williams in a new dancing specialty, and a chorus of 20 sweet singers and steppers.

When Edwin Carewe began to film Bad Man, a First National picture which is now showing at the Palace theatre, he had no difficulty in securing atmosphere. Atmosphere, in motion picture parlance means people of a peculiar type, race or walk of life that will contribute to the realism of the picture.

All the scenes of The Bad Man with the exception of those at the first ranch along the Arizona-Mexican border in this section of the country Mexicans predominate and it was necessary to use large numbers of them.

When it came time to select the atmosphere, Carewe swept down to Olvera Plaza in heart Los Angeles and there "hard picked" his atmosphere from the loungers who busy meet there for their siesta. All of the Mexicans used are natives of the outer regions and they played without makeup.

Holbrook Blinn, Jack Mulhall, Ford Bennett and Walter McGrail will be seen in the leading roles.

Extra added attraction, Lloyd Hamilton in his latest and funniest comedy Lonesome and Pale Reuben.

Operating on daylight saving time week day and Sunday standard time.

BREED THEATRE

In each picture thus far revealing the genius of Jackie Coogan, a different set of his singular appeal has been disclosed. From The Kid in which the lad co-starred with Charlie Chaplin and made his screen debut, Long Live the King, recently released by Metro, every characterization directed by Jackie has been different from every other. Different degrees of pathos, different degrees of mirth, different heights of tragedy and different qualities of humor have been employed in the kaleidoscope art of the wonder-child.

Now comes A Boy of Flanders different from all the others and presented last week at the Breed the film as effective as the best that Jackie has given to the world of his admirers. It is not so elaborate as the films of Metro's Jackie Coogan productions, its plot is simpler and less involved. It is not as adventurous as Oliver Twist, but it possesses more human appeal with its merriment and dramatic youthful spiritual qualities. The plot floats in alternating sunshine and shadow. It is shrouded with the gay colors of abounding life and dashed with the sombre shades of tragedy. The verdict of last night's audience seemed to be that of all the pictures thus far made by this extraordinary child. A Boy of Flanders is unquestionably the most human.

The Boy of Flanders is at the Breed for the remainder of the week and other pictures on the bill include the Fox news and a comedy.

PALACE THEATRE

There is no more interesting story to Americans than one relating to the romance, development such as Emerson Hough uncovers in the marvelous narrative of The Covered Wagon. With its tales of adventure, love and treachery linked to a period of history more colorful than war and more alive with heart throbbing conflict, struggle, aggressive achievement and daring.

For the first season in the history of New York, Chicago, Boston and Los Angeles have created a "long eyes" where and stories told the most popular and the best discussed of all motion picture productions since and including The Birth of a Nation.

The Covered Wagon will be presented here for the first time on Sunday evening, May 4 at 7:30 at the Palace theatre twice daily 2:30 and 8:15 exactly as given in the leading cities where it has been played to date. The cast in an exceptionally strong one including Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan, Ethel Wales, Alan Hale, Charles Ogle, Johnny Fox Thompson of Indiana and the host to be forgotten "prairie schooners." Seat sale opens today, mail orders filled in order of receipt.

NEW LONDON DAY DRIVERS MUST PERFORM FIRE DUTY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 30—Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of George Mallach to be suspended.

David T. Ealahan, 37, died late yesterday at the residence of his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Kenure, 29 Ocean avenue, after a lingering illness. Besides Mrs. Kenure, Mr. Ealahan is survived by another aunt, Mrs. Ellen Cavanaugh, a brother, Thomas Ealahan; four sisters, Misses Margaret and Catherine Ealahan and Mrs. Michael Cuniglia of New London and Mrs. Morris Foley of Hartford and by an uncle, Patrick Kenure of New London. Mr. Ealahan was a member of W. L. Hook and Ladder company and Spider of Moose.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Carroll Connor, widow of James J. Connor, was held at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church where a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollaston with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Sheehan, deacon and Rev. John C. Meehan, sub-deacon. The bearers were Edward M. Sweeney, William Clark, Thomas Quinn, Daniel J. Luey and Andrew A. Collins of New London and Joseph Carroll of Brookline, Mass.

Miss Adelaide Chappell of Huntington street and Arthur Gage of Salem, this state, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were [illegible]

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Lawrence hospital [illegible] operation, which was performed yesterday following an operation for appendicitis.

The funeral of Mrs. Lavina Conklin, widow of Matthew Conklin, was held this afternoon, at 1 o'clock with services at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. [illegible] Gadbois [illegible] conducted by the Rev. [illegible] pastor of Pleasant Point Baptist church. Lane and services at Fairview church, were also conducted by Rev. Mr. Collins, at 2:30 o'clock. Pallbearers at the funeral of Mrs. Conklin were nephews. Burial was in the family plot in Flanders cemetery.

The body of Henry Hewitt, who dropped dead on the barge G. A. Falan, on which he was employed yesterday noon, was forwarded today to Hewitt's former home in Kingston, N. Y. where burial will take place.

Gertrude P. Lester, administratrix of the estate of George H. Powers today sold the dwelling 26 Howard St., [illegible] Ramsdell, reserving to the property to [illegible] and the latter sold [illegible] Murray.

Charles Swift has not been supporting his children of late, so he has fallen into the hands of the police. He is now ordered to provide for his children or to spend a month in jail. Finally he did not want to have the experience that would come to him in custody of a jailer so he decided he would pay his wife and children $10 a week. That lets to his being left in the custody of the probation officer who will see that the order of the court is carried out, or that Mr. Swift is landed in jail in a hurry.

Great sale opens today! The Covered Wagon; symphony orchestra. Palace. Adv. Four days, beginning tomorrow, Eve. May 4, 7.30; twice daily after, 2.30 and 7.30.—adv.

Isadore Belgrade, the largest ice-[illegible] who was fined $5 in the police court today for a bit of carelessness. Izzy had an afternoon away from work yesterday so he decided to spend it at the theatre. He drove his automobile up to the curb and then he left it for a couple of hours. Policeman John Courtney was surprised that an automobilist should ignore the ordinances of the city in that way so he tagged the car. Today Izzy rebuked himself for his heedlessness. He said he had been driving a car several years and should have been acquainted with the laws of the city, but that he just forgot and was willing to pay the price.

James Davis, a stroller, has been in the police court so many times that the officials there have come to know him and to anticipate just what he is to testify when he comes to account for his arrest. He has always been at work, but he brings up the matter of Mission for assistance whenever he hits New London. Last night he wandered in and when he reached the mission he was rather intoxicated. Mr. Mansfield handed him over to the police and today Davis went to jail to stay thirty days. He is an intelligent man and one who does not appear to be of the vagrant and idle class. But he cannot keep away from liquor.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Bacon have returned to their home in Boston, having spent several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Macomber at Fairs Harbour apartments.

The New London police believe that juvenile thieves have been guilty [illegible] many of the petty burglaries and [illegible] about the city for several months. Both boys are minors, the oldest but 15, and have confessed to several of their burglaries. The capture of the youths was made by [illegible] Sarantsky. Sunday night [illegible] received a report of the theft of two bicycles from Groton.

The following night Selesnitsky observed one of the youths with a cycle, the description of which tallied with one of the stolen wheels. The boy admitted that he had stolen the cycle and that a companion had also stolen the second wheel. Last night the boys were further interrogated and it was admitted by them that the second stolen cycle had been sold to a Poquonnoc bridge youth for $4. Officers were sent to Poquonnoc Bridge and recovered the wheel. A further questioning of the boys today revealed that not only were they guilty of bicycle thefts, but that they recently entered the unoccupied residences of Congressman Richard P. Freeman, 293 Williams street and of Mrs. John Hislop, 52 Nathan Hale street, respectively. The boys found a window unfastened at the Freeman home and climbed through it, but they were not rewarded with obtaining any plunder. They fared better at the Hislop house for after climbing through an open window they went to the bed rooms and on one of the dressers was found a jewel box in which was a string of beads. These the youthful crooks took away, but today they were recovered.

Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linicus and Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Shipman yesterday afternoon inspected the building, a three story wooden structure at the corner of Green and Pearl street, owned by Abraham Bronstein of New York, formerly of New London and found the place to be a fire hazard. The owner of the property will be notified to make the building more safe against fire and the premises, both interior and exterior, will be relieved of an accumulation of inflammable material.

Frederick Snow, 53 Connecticut avenue, complained to the police late today that youths had caused considerable damage to an unoccupied house at 94 Ocean avenue owned by him; the youths having stoned the building within a week and destroyed numerous windows.

Lawrence E. Easton, former New London resident, held by the New York police last Saturday at the request of the New London authorities, who hold a warrant charging Easton with forgery, will not be brought back to this city for trial until the latter part of May, for today the New York police granted the request of Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin that Easton be held in New York 30 days. The only stipulation whereby Easton would be held was that the New London police forward to New York an exemplified copy of the indictment against Easton and this was done this afternoon. Easton is accused of forging a check on the Old Colony Trust company, Boston, for $163, the check having purported to be the issue of the Structure Oil company of New London when in reality it was a forgery.

Jane Robinson of Westerly, Mildred Marono of Waterford and Mrs. John Virga and infant son of Jefferson avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Samuel A. Goldsmith, president of the S. A. Goldsmith company, who underwent a serious operation recently at Roosevelt hospital, New York, is improving rapidly and it is anticipated that the patient will be able to return to New London in another week.

Elizabeth C., widow of James H. Noyes, 52 Truman street, is seriously ill at her home suffering from a shock.

Mrs. Noyes, who is a sister of Mrs. Catherine C. Connor, whose death occurred Sunday and whose funeral took place today, was about to go to the house where her sister lay dead, when stricken. She had dressed for the street and was about to go to the door when she was seized with the stroke and collapsed. Her condition today was reported as slightly improved.

The day drivers of the New London fire department will be compelled to perform fire duty at any time during the day or night beginning Thursday, for this was decided upon yesterday at a conference between City Manager William A. Holt and Chief Charles Rose. The reason for the new order is because the day drivers are paid members of the department and are subject to duty at all times. As a result of the decision the police speed automobile, which responds to all alarms with officers, will go to the Thomas Rose company after delivering officers at the scene of fire where it will then proceed to the fire with Chief Rose and Alfred Harvey, William Gray, James Woods, George Alger and Lawrence McCabe, drivers employed during the day. The other drivers will proceed to fires by other means of conveyance.

Joseph A. St. Germain, contractor, complained to the police this evening that youths had entered a building owned by him on Garfield avenue, formerly used for Red Cross purposes. St. Germain declared that not only had the building been entered and the interior disfigured, but electric light fixtures had been destroyed and that a fire had been made in the cellar. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Carlos Murphy visited the building and determined that the structure was easy of access, as the entrance was not secure. The officers also learned the names of several boys who have made a practice of visiting the place.

Acting upon orders of City Manager William A. Holt the police late yesterday and today have visited the stores in various parts of the city, but more particularly on State, Bank and Main streets and warned the proprietors against displaying goods upon the sidewalks with a warning of prosecution in the event that the order is not complied with.

There has been a rush at the office of the city clerk today and tonight by owners of dogs who have failed to secure registration of their animals. The time limit for procuring licenses without payment of the additional fee of $1 as delinquents, will have expired tomorrow night. Today about 250 dog owners received licenses, but there are over 300 owners who still have failed to secure registration of the dogs, as there are about 1,000 dogs in the city.

Charles Murphy, a resident of Ireland for many years, arrived in New London yesterday and is the guest of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Wall of Jefferson avenue. Mr. Murphy is a brother of Edward Murphy.

Irene Kangesier, 21, and Hazel Sansousie, 19, inmates at the State Farm for Women made their escape from the institution last night and the New London police have been requested to apprehend the girls if they put in an appearance in this city. When they left the institution the girls were attired in checkered dresses and brown sweaters. The Kangesier girl is described as being about five feet, nine inches in height and very thin. She has light bobbed hair. The Sansousie girl is about five feet, two inches in height and has black bobbed hair.

BULKELEY JUNIOR PROM WILL HAVE FEATURES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 29.—The annual Bulkeley junior prominade, which will be held at the Hotel Mohican ballroom Friday evening, promises to be the biggest social event of the season. From present indications, it looks as though more than a hundred couples will attend, including guests from

WALTER JOSEPH BARRY
Committee Chairman

Brooklyn, N. Y., Hartford, Springfield, Mass., Norwich, Willimantic, Westerly, R. I., Bridgeport and Waterbury. Four banners with the "Bulkeley 1925," will bedeck the sides of the ballroom, and streamers of Orange, Black and Blue will hang from the walls. A [illegible] with posies will also be one of the decorative features.

The feature of the dancing programme will be the Ballroom dance, which becomes thirteenth on the programme. During this dance all except a few wall lights will be extinguished and two hundred balloons will be released from the center of the ball room upon the heads of the dancers. This idea will be the first of its kind to be tried in the city.

The committee consists of Walter Joseph Barry, chairman, Edward Ralph Henkle, George Herbert Sheffott, Herbert Max Fern and Samuel Stephenson Winram.

The patrons and patronesses are Mrs. S. Winram, Jr. and Mrs. E. A. Henkle, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Barry, H. Sheffott and Mr. and Mrs. M. Fern.

JEWETT CITY

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tracy are entertaining their little grand-son, Master Robert T. Johnston, L. Hartford.

E. M. Gray goes to Boston today (Thursday) for a week's end business trip, and visit with his daughter Mrs. Esther Langhehn.

S. T. R. Cheney of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. R. F. Cheney.

Mr. and Mrs. George MacFarland, of Norwich, are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Robertson.

In the presence of 75 local and visiting Masons, Tuesday evening, Mt. Vernon, No. 75, Dr. F. D. Browning, master, conferred the M. M. degree on a class of five. The work of the new degree team was the finest ever seen on the floor.

Kite flying has taken a new lease of life in the borough. Sunday afternoon in the moderate breeze from the north there were three in sight at the same time.

On Taylor hill there was a big one up, with a long stretch of string out. On this string about half way between the kite and the ground, was two wide strips of paper. These papers were calculated by the flyer to be messengers, sent to reach the kite, by way of the string. A knot, stopped these pieces and being held fast, they waved and flapped in the breeze. A man and his wife came over the brow of the hill, bound toward the borough. The man spotted the paper messenger with its ends moving slowly up and down. "There," said he as he grasped his companion's arm, "see, the great osprey that was here around the Ashland mill last summer? He is back again, look, see him hovering over the pond; watch sharp, and when he spies a fish you'll see him dive."

The woman eyed the kite—the man and the osprey in turn and groaned. Just then the kite made a great dive and likewise did Mrs. Osprey. At once, the man seemed much interested in the sunset, at a far removed point of the horizon.

Mercifully the string broke, and kite and osprey dropped to the fields.

The annual meeting of the World Wide Guild of the Baptist church was held at the home of the president, Miss Georgine Campbell, Tuesday evening, eighteen being present. Two were received into membership. The Guild contributed $20 toward the continuation campaign. The program, which was in charge of Miss Priscilla Scates was based on the Home Mission Study Book emphasizing the need of play as well as work in the life of a child. Several games were used by way of illustration. The following officers were elected: president, Miss Georgina Campbell, vice president, Miss Winifred Scates; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Willis; treasurer Miss Ellen Prior, councilor, Mrs. E. E. Scates; assistant councilor, Mrs. Arthur M. Brown. The hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Francis Campbell, and Miss Agnes Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Chesbro of Pachaug announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Iola Button, and Stanton Brown of Norwich. The ceremony took place April 24 in New London.

Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Stephenson expect to return today from New Haven where they went Monday to attend the Yale Divinity School Fifteenth annual convocation.

Dr. J. H. McLaughlin and family are occupying their new home, recently purchased from A. M. Clarke.

Wednesday noon, thirty young men staged a prize fight in the Baptist cemetery probably not knowing that it is against the law to desecrate a graveyard. It would seem that a sense of common decency would tell anyone to pass quietly through the resting place of the dead. An officer was notified, but too late to inform the men what the result will be of another such offense.

Rev. Samuel S. McKeown, close to forty years ago was the minister at the Jewett City Methodist church. He and his wife, and a well remembered colored woman, named Lovey Ann Keeler, lived on Mechanic street.

Father McKeown, as he was called here, although bent with age, and as the result of a partial stroke, gave every evidence of having once been a man of unusual stature and great strength.

In his early life in Maine, he was hunting for partridges one day in a wooded piece not far from his rural home. As he crept along, on the alert for a possible bird, a great Maine catamount or panther sprang upon him from a tree. Even as the beast was in the air, the reverend let him have the charge of fine bird shot he had in his gun, but it was as nothing to the creature's tough hide.

The animal and man grappled. Mr. McKeown gripped the panther's neck, while a small bird dog did what worrying he could.

In the height of the tussle, the minister, seeing that he was playing a losing game, jumped free and ran. The panther was soon close behind and sprang again.

This time, realizing that it was to be a finish for one or the other, the young reverend held on and choked for hi every life. After what seemed a long time, the brute ceased to claw and struggle. Returning to his home, Mr. McKeown stopped at an Indian camp and told his story whereupon the young chief sent out his braves and brought the [illegible] after that the young man was honored by the red men, as the only man in the Pine Tree State that had killed a Maine panther with his bare hands. "Father" McKeown and his wife and their faithful colored friend, all died here and are buried in the Jewett City cemetery.

LYME

WESTERLY

A complaint by Albert Denison of Mystic, assistant prosecuting attorney of the town of Stonington, dated the 29th of April, alleging "Unlawful neglect and refusal to provide a sufficient support for his wife, Anna E. Robinson, of the town of Stonington," brought Hary H. Robinson, of Pawcatuck, before Judge William A. Wilcox, in a special session of the town court in Stonington Wednesday morning. Through his Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly, reading of the complaint was waived by defendant and a plea of not guilty was entered. Attorney Dunn stated that he would note the complaint dated back at least to the time that an agreement made between the parties involved expired; if it was a felony that it should be three years and if it was not, one year. Attorney Rathbun objected, saying that the complaint alleging non-support was for one particular day and in a complaint of this kind the time and period of discontinuance of support should be stated. He said that his client not only had kept his agreement made at the time the parties were in the common pleas court, in which it was arranged between them for Mr. Robinson to pay $5 a week or $30 a month for the support of Anna E. Yeager Robinson, but had increased payment so that he held the money order receipt for $30 in payment of the period in advance and that it amounted almost to persecution to have his client brought into court. He recommended that the case be nolled.

Attorney Denison said that his contention was that Robinson was not paying his wife the amount which he was able to, and that he was not living up to the purposes of his agreement. Attorney Rathbun claimed that the complaint was defective. Lawyer Denison asked to be allowed to change the complaint and introduced evidence, to which Rathbun objected.

Attorney Denison said that he did not think parties could be cut off without a hearing and Lawyer Rathbun claimed that the amendment to the writ could not be made unless there were grounds, and said that there had not been shown any unlawful negligence or refusal to pay and regular payments had been made. Judge Wilcx inquired of the assistant prosecuting attorney stating that he had a right to have the case nolled if he wished to. Attorney Denison then declared that he withdrew the charge. The case was declared nolled by the judge and court adjourned.

Seat sale opens today; The Covered Wagon; symphony orchestra, Palace, Norwich. Four days, beginning Sunday Eve., May 4, 7.30; twice daily thereafter, 2.30 and 7.30.—adv.

At the session of superior court for Washington county, April term, at West Kingston Wednesday, for the second day of this week before Judge Blodgett the jury in the Nathan C. Richmond vs. Frank A. Green and Alice M. Richmond vs. Frank A. Green, being tried jointly, was charged. Juryman Benjamin Richmond, of Westerly, having been in Providence, being unable to make train connections did not arrive in the court room until after the judge had charged the jury. The eleven other jurymen after being charged retired to the jury room. They finally returned to the court room at 2.30 p. m. and reported a disagreement. It is said that the jurymen stood 9 to 2 in favor of the plaintiff, Richmond.

The jury was empanelled in another automobile case which occurred in Wakefield, R. I., and they were still in the court rom when the session closed for the day. It is said that court may not come to Westerly until Tuesday of next week.

A collision occurred on Narragansett avenue Tuesday morning at about 11 o'clock when Dr. William A. Hillard was driving his automobile in a wide curve to turn from High street, up which he had just come into the avenue. It so happened that Forbes Duguid was coming out of Narragansett avenue to High street and the automobiles were in a head-on collision. The radiators of both automobiles were punctured and the guards and fenders bent.

Sachem Colby J. Sanford and thirty braves of Misquamicut tribe, No. 13, Improved Order of Red Men, hit the trail from Westerly to Norwich, Wednesday evening in automobiles. The degree team of Misquamicut Tribe worked the first degree on a class of fourteen candidates, the second being worked by Essex Red Men and the third by the New London Braves.

Miss Harriet Constantine, who spent last summer at Watch Hill, has returned from Miami, Florida, by automobile and entered the employ of Dubrelle and Galin.

Mr. and Mrs. Denison C. Hinckley returned to Westerly Tuesday evening from a winter's visit at their home in the Isle of Pines. The return trip was made to Havana, Cuba, where a Ward Line steamship, Siboney, was taken. They sailed from Havana April 26, a rough trip being experienced up the coast.

Farquhar Smith accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marsh Clark also of Westerly, made an automobile visit to Cromwell where the Pierson greenhouses at that place were visited.

PLAINFIELD

The annual meeting of the Windham County Federation of Women's clubs, was held with the plainfield club at the Community house, Wednesday afternoon. Miss Kelly, the president of the federation, was in the chair during the sessions. The programme was as follows: Morning session—Address of Welcome, Mrs. Benjamin Dawson, of the Plainfield club; reading of Collect For Club Women, Mrs. Charles Heap, Plainfield; address, The New Connecticut, Mr. Bradstreet, of Hartford; recitations, Mrs. Clifford, Windham; luncheon at Lawtion inn.

Afternoon session—Saxophone solo, Claude Leathers, accompanied by Miss Helen Gallup; vocal solo, Miss Ruth Higginbottom; paper, Our Courts, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, Norwich. Reports of work done by clubs during the past year, by the club presidents of Putnam, Danielson, Plainfield, Moosup and Willimantic. Address on the Windham House, which is being erected at the Connecticut College for Women, at New London.

Betty Charleton, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denison Charleton of Providence, is spending a few weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Wibberly, having been accompanied here from Providence by Mrs. Wibberly.

The fishermen in and about this village, are beginning to report good catches, some large trout having been caught. John Leahy got two trout, one on Tuesday, and one Wednesday, the first weighing one pound and nine ounces, and the other exactly a pound and a quarter. The trout are on exhibition in Connell's show window.

After meeting Stonington High team Saturday, Plainfield will commence getting in trim for the game with Norwich Free Academy which will be played at Norwich May 17th. Plainfield supporters hold out strong hopes for the defeat of that team by Plainfield, and the high school boys are working their hardest to bring a victory home. Bibeault is having a light workout afternoons this week, and he will be in perfect condition by the time that Plainfield meets Norwich, thereby greatly strengthening the chances of the former team for winning. The local team has two games scheduled for next week, one with Pomfret school on Tuesday at Pomfret, and a home game on Saturday, when they meet the Bartlett High from Webster.

Definite action has been taken by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad toward greater protection at the Railroad avenue crossing. Toward that end the company has lengthened the hours of the flagman, the present hours being from 6.15 a. m. to 7.10 p. m. These hours will cover all the trains of the day, the first train being scheduled at 6.22 a. m., and th elast at 7.07 p. m.

Mrs. Charles Reed and daughter, Ethel, of Lawrence, Mass., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wibberly.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lyon, Roy Parkhurst, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Butler of Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herrick of Canterbury, were at the home of Nelson J. Lyon, in Canterbury, Tuesday evening, at a party in celebration of his eightieth birthday.

Fred Walsh is at present employed at the store of C. D. Salisbury. The stock of this store is being moved into the new quarters of the business block building formerly owned by the firm of Dearnley & Clarke.

Jeremiah Holmes of Bridgeport was here for the day recently.

Funeral services for Christopher Morgan were held Wednesday afternoon at his home on Broadway, in the presence of a notable gathering of local and out of town friends, and relatives, the home being filled. The service was conducted by Rev. George L. Farnham, pastor of the Mystic Bridge Congregational church, with Charity and Relief Lodge, No. 72, A. F. and A. M., in charge of the committal services. Burial was in Elm Grove Cemetery.

Benjamin F. Burrows, 65, one of the leading merchants of the village, died Wednesday at a New London hospital, where he had been a patient for nearly a week. Mr. Burrows had been seriously ill for several days previous to entering the hospital and it was hoped that an operation might relieve his condition but it was found impossible to operate and he failed steadily until the end. Mr. Burrows was born in Groton, April 14, 1859, the son of Captain Benjamin and Ann Avery Burrows. Mr. Burrows was associated with his father in the coal business prior to the death of the latter and has since continued the business. He is survived by a sister, Miss Elizabeth Burrows, two daughters, Mrs. Alfred O. Colby of Mystic, and Mrs. William E. Allen of Providence and by three grand children.

NUMBER FIVE

pitals and stores, and one is soon charmed with it all. On our ride we saw numberless rice fields and mountains in the distance, as well as many little villages with mud huts and thatched roofs. The natives here are most picturesque. The men, wearing their black hair long, were different from any we had yet seen and were very savage looking. However, some of the men and women were very handsome and the children were very happy and pleased when we would wave to them, and would display their beautiful, white teeth.

We went to Kandy to visit the Temple of the Sacred Tooth, but were disappointed in not seeing it, as it is shown only once a year and that is in December. We did not care to wait until then. We saw the wonderful library and jewelled books. The Sacred Tooth, of course, was Gautamis', but it is so large that the belief is that a crocodile's was substituted for the original that was lost.

The mountain scenery of Ceylon is very beautiful, the peaks being broken and jagged and the slopes wooded and green. When we arrived at Kandy, after a three hour ride on a train, we were taken to the Queen's Hotel, which is a very large hotel and we were all comfortably quartered. During our dinner, Carrie became acquainted with some native people whom we had judged as some plantation owners, but later it developed that the man was the district judge of Ceylon, who has two sons at Harvard College, and he himself was a commissioner from Ceylon to the St. Louis World's Fair. His wife was delightful to meet, as well as her companion and Miss Perez. His name was Judge Paul Perez. They insisted that we breakfast with them in the morning and see the wonderful view from their home. This we did and we have no regrets for so doing. We will always remember our short visit with our newly made friends ,even though it was only for an hour or so.

Not far from here are the botanical gardens. Carrie in particular was delighted with the wonderful specimens. One of the palms is called the Tailpot. This blooms but once when it is from forty to fifty years old. The blossom resembles ostrich feathers. After blooming it dies. Several varieties, which, of course, were interesting to us were the nutmeg, clove, allspice, cinnamon, bay rum, a great variety of palms, the rubber tree, giant bamboos two or three feet in diameter, orchids, and in fact, all kinds of beautiful flowers.

All through India we had seen bullock carts, which were most quaint and interesting. The little bullocks, with horns curving towards each other, trot madly about like a pony and the natives ride in the picturesque little carts they draw.

We were served many fruits in Colombo such as the mango, etc., but were disappointed in finding the "papaya," which we liked so much in South America, tasted like sawdust. It was at Kandy that I saw for the first time the sandal wood tree. There are also satin wood, mahogany, rubber, teak and ebony trees. I bought elephants made of each of the different woods. Beautiful blueoirds flew through these trees.

One morning we went to the river to see the elephants bathe. This was an interesting experience. The beasts have been taught to beg. We bought quantities of bananas and sugar cane to feed to them, but, not unlike other beggars, they sometimes threw away what was given them and put out their trunk for more. This second act is a bid for money for their keepers. Here, too, one sees many specimens of the Mongoose, which kills the venomous snakes of India. Should a man find a Mongoose in his yard, he will make every effort to keep it, he regards it as a good omen and thinks himself lucky. Usually the possession of one of these animals insures the owner against any invasion of the dead Cobra and other poisonous reptiles in his home. Not far from here is where the really wild men dwell. We are told that the few who have been captured and forcibly detained have not warranted the attempt to civilize them. They generally live in trees and swing from limb to limb like monkeys.

In all foreign travel, one must carry one's own soap and it is hard to get accustomed to this habit.

The crows infest the air here and they will pilfer anything that they can carry away from your room in the hotel. The only protection the guests have is provided by small boys who, stationed outside the window, attempt to keep them away with boys and arrows.

One afternoon, we went for tea to Mount Lavina, a popular bathing beach picturesquely situated among the rocks. Many were bathing and enjoying the water, but these beaches are, known, however, as about the most dangerous spot on earth, because of the man-eating sharks. The waters are either vividly blue, green or steel. They almost look as though they were painted. I was interested in the appearance of the Catholic priests on the Island. They were dressed in spotless white and wore long beards, contrary to custom. However, this is for a purpose. They find it necessary to protect their throats from dampness. I talked to one who had not left the island in twenty years. He was the picture of health and told me that he had never been ill. On our auto ride of seventy two miles, we never lost sight of the cocoanut trees and several of them we tasted and quenched our thirst with the milk.

Every Burman must pass through the priesthood. Therefore, one sees many young boys dressed in two shades of yellow, effected by the Buddhist priest. It is picturesque and ornamental. The priests shave their heads, and, I believe, live on alms. These little yellow robed boys go about from house to house with their rice pots, seeking food. The novitiate is from one to three years.

Cadden spent a lot of time in selecting jewels for people who wished him to do so. Here only is found the celebrated star sapphire and several of the semi-precious stones. Cadden bought many and is going to give the Norwich people an opportunity to have them before he disposes of them in New York.

Among the very interesting things to be seen in Ceylon, one must not forget to mention the waiters at the hotels. They wore very long hair, fastened up with large circular combs, having two points in front. The combs are of tortoise shell and are very handsome. The points curve out in front, giving an unusual crownlike effect.

We were very fortunate on the evening that we were in Kandy to witness the Devil Dance. The devil dancer and his curate, the Tom Tom Beater, have a good time in Ceylon and there are about 8,000 of these scoundrels distributed throughout the island. The setting was in the garden of the Queen's Hotel and it was in the evening, lights being derived from the cocoanut bark and the husks which burned freely. They dance with all kinds of hideous masks and garments. The idea is that if anyone is very ill and likely to die, these devil dancers try to revive them with their hideous noises that could be heard for miles. They are supposed to be the direct result of the devil and are in continuous demand now with these people. It is surprising that after nearly 2,000 years of influence over the Cingalese, the Buddhist has not destroyed this superstition.

The office or rotunda of the Queen's Hotel in Kandy was a regular haven for the English sparrow, which flitted about on the inside and builded nests in the electroliers.

We visited the Lipton tea factories and it was a revelation to us all to see the method that they have to adopt to put the product on the market.

Alongside of the road we saw a most extensive zoo, and, upon inquiring, we found out that it was a private enterprise and that the owner had it for his own amusement and allows the public to enjoy it with him. He is a rich tea planter.

We left Ceylon, the beautiful isle of peace and plenty, on the anniversary of my birthday and we celebrated. While we all remained sober, nevertheless, we had a good time. I was pleased with my cables and cards. I am attaching to this letter the menu of my birthday dinner, but cannot send you a photo of the beautiful cake the steamship people made for the occasion.

We want you all to know that we are well. We will arrive in Calcutta on Wednesday, the nineteenth of March.

We are going to spend four days in Calcutta and then we go on to Rangoon. The time will soon be around when we will be back home.

Give my regards to all and write often.

I am sincerely yours

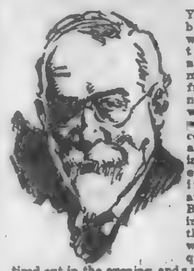
You Can Now Try Nuxated Iron At My Expense

I First Compounded This Remarkable Remedy For My Own Neighbors And Their Praise Of It Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over Four Million People Use It Annually—Read My Unusual Offer Below.



Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalising weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

Cut out trial coupon and go to any druggist and get your first trial package of Nuxated Iron; then see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.

Trial Coupon

Fill in this coupon with your name and address and take it to any druggist in your city. Deposit with him the price of one regular full-size bottle of Nuxated Iron. This is not a payment, but a deposit only. If you are not more than delighted with the results obtained by two weeks' use of Nuxated Iron, simply return the outside wrapper to your own druggist who will promptly refund your money. We will repay the druggist the full amount he refunds upon receipt of the coupon and wrapper.

May Morning

How like a gentle nun in softest gray
Aurora steals from out the purple east
And opening wide the opal gates of day
Comes down the path of heaven, while morning's high priest,
The robin, greets her with a burst of song!
What mad caprice! No nun is she!
For see,
Flinging aside her mantle gray, with strong
Swift step advancing, like a bride is she,
Blushing with youthful happiness and mirth,
In pearls and silver radiant—loveliness
Paid homage to by all the sons of earth,
And by each sprite of air and earth and sea,
While pealing bells, blue smoke and bird songs wild
Announce the advent of Day's fairest child!
—Louella C. Poole in Boston Transcript

Little Dandelion

Gay little dandelion
Lights up the meads,
Swings on her slender foot
Telleth her beads,
Lists to the robin's note
Poured from above;
Wise little dandelion
Asks not for love.

Cold lie the daisy banks
Clothed but in green,
Where, in the days agone,
Bright hues were seen.
Wild pinks are slumbering,
Violets delay;
True little dandelion
Greeteth the May.

Brave little dandelion!
Fast falls the snow,
Bending the daffodil's
Haughty head low.
Under the fleecy tent,
Careless of cold,
Blithe little dandelion
Counteth her gold.

Meek little dandelion
Groweth more fair,
Till dies the amber dew
Out from her hair.
High rides the thirsty sun,
Fiercely and high;
Faint little dandelion
Closeth her eye.

Pale little dandelion,
In her white shroud,
Heareth the angel breeze
Call from the cloud;
Tiny plumes fluttering
Make no delay;
Little winged dandelion
Soareth away.
—Helen Barron Bostwick in Indianapolis News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

She—Does he belong to the 400? He—Yes, he's one of the ciphers.—Jack-o'Lantern.

Uncle Bill—Now, Bobby, you mustn't get into any fights with the neighbor's children.

Bobby—But, I've got to get acquainted with them some way.—Exchange.

She married that homely, ill-natured man simply for his money.

"Well," answered Miss Cayenne, candidly, "there had to be some excuse."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Suburbs—I—I think—I'm sure I hear a burglar downstairs.

Mr. Dubbs—Well, you get up and go down, dear. No burglar would strike a woman.—New York Sun and Globe.

Do you take pleasure in studying foreign languages?

"No," answered Miss Cayenne, "one of the pleasures I find going abroad is that of meeting people who can't speak their troubles."—Washington Star.

"I don't see how I am going to keep you in shoes, Jimmy," said a father to his seven-year-old son. "This is the second pair you have worn out in three months."

After a moment's thought the little fellow asked: "Well, what's the matter with getting me a scooter?"—Chicago News.

"At what time you stopped your son's allowance when he married that pretty girl?"

"When I told him he needn't expect any change from me."

"But how does he manage to live?"

"He has increased his mother's allowance about $6,000 a year."—Boston Transcript.

Young Minister, (discouraged) — Do you think my congregation really has any excuse for sleeping through my sermons?

Deacon Smith—No, parson. They sleep just because they don't give a hoot. Now, I always drink a good strong cup of coffee just before coming to church.—American Legion Weekly.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Letter for Uncle Lucky

Then the two little rabbits went and peeping there, Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky hopped back to the Luckymobile to let the lighting bugs out of the lamps. After that, they started off for the old gentleman rabbit's house. Dear me, I almost forgot to mention that the chimney had just been painted a bright red and a hitching post with an iron horse head stood at the front gate.

Now, I suppose you are thinking, "Oh, dear me! Something will happen before those two nice little rabbits get home!" But I won't let it. Not if I have to call out the whole Police Station to see them home safely.

Well, pretty soon, they reached Lettuce Avenue and the next minute or three, they came to Carrot street and stopped, for that's where the old gentleman rabbit's house stood," you know, right on the corner.

"Tra la la, tra la loo, You're home at last, are you?"

twittered the little sparrow from her nest under the roof of the front porch.

"Yes, we are," answered dear Uncle Lucky, waving his old wedding stovepipe hat as he gracefully steerds the Luckymobile with one paw through the front gate and around the big geranium bed, to the little garage.

After giving the Luckymobile a nice cool drink of gasolene, the two little rabbits hopped into the house to put on clean collars.

"Gracious me! Here's a letter!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit, opening the envelope with a paper cutter made out of a bayonet which a friend had given him for a birthday present.

And what do you think that letter said. Listen and you shall hear Uncle Lucky reading it aloud to his little bunny nephew?

"Dear Mr. Lefthindfoot:
Will you please send a few Circus Tickets to the Salvation Army?"

"Well, well, well!" cried the old gentleman rabbit. "I guess yes three times," and he called up the Old Red Rooster to take them right over. "If the Salvation Army needs my help, your Uncle Lucky's ready to give it," and he sat down to the piano and sang:

"I've got the rheumatism in my little
And it makes me limp so badly that to dances I can't go,
But if I cannot tango, I can wear a stiff shirt front
And make other people happy with my little circus stunt."

MRS. DIXON'S LETTER TO COL. LANMAN'S DAUGHTER

Senator James Dixon, who died in Hartford, in 1885, held many offices and had a position of commanding influence. In 1857, he was elected United States senator, and was a prominent figure in all the parliamentary debates that preceded the Civil war. He was remarkable among his colleagues for the tenacity with which he adhered to his political principles, and for the very clear way in which he grasped the drift of events. His home, in Hartford and in Washington, was noted for its rare hospitality and the brilliant coterie of men and women met there. Mrs. Dixon, who was the daughter of the Rev. Dr. Jonathan Cogswell, was a charming hostess, and no literary or social gathering was complete without her and her husband.

Fashionable life in Washington, in 1855, is depicted in one of the many letters with which Mrs. Dixon kept her friends in touch with her life, one of which written to Mrs. John DeForster Domo, the daughter of Colonel Charles J. Lanman, was as follows:

Washington, April 14th, 1855.

I cannot realize that "the winter is over and gone," although the trees are in bloom and many flowers.

It has seemed like a dream, full of gay pictures. The winter has been unusually gay even in the palmiest days of Washington. There have been so many superb dinners, two at Lord Napiers, General Cass's, the Toucays, etc. We have been at three parties at Lord Napier's, the great fete in honor of the marriage of the Princess Royal, another just before Lent, and a small one to meet Mr. Edward Everett, which was most agreeable.

Mr. William C. Johnson (whose wife was a grand-daughter of John Quincy Adams) gave a supper, and we invited him to our second party, again for Governor and Mrs. Hollen of our own state. We had an agreeable party. Our governor and lady had been to Richmond, by invitation, to the inauguration of the statue to Crowford and on their return we gave a party for them, taking that opportunity to return our invitations. Miss Lane was here from the white house and Buchanan Henry, Lord Napier, Baron Gerolt, the Danish and Spanish Ministers, Senators Seward, Sudell, Mason, Foster, Chandler, Foot, and some of their ladies. Reverdy Johnson of Baltimore, Governor and Mrs Floyd, Secretary of War and Mrs. Toucey, Miss and Mr. Mockwell, Miss Perkins of Norwich, ex-Governor and Mrs. Robert J. Walker, he quite a lion. Among the belles was Miss North, daughter of General North, others too numerous to mention. It is said to be agreeable and particularly select. We have been to two beautiful parties at Mrs. Ogle Taylor's, to two of Miss Cass's receptions, and one at Governor Floyd's, one at Miss Toucey's, two parties at Mrs. Douglass', a ball at Colonel Craig's, and I forget where besides, but more than I ever wish to attend again, my inducement to go out being in the person of my niece, Miss Constance Kinney, who has been greatly admired. The great winding up of festivities was Mrs. Gwin's fancy ball. It was superb and an entire success. The president was there, the Turkish admiral and suite in Oriental costumes, Lord and Lady Napier, as the first ambassador and lady to this country, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond. It so happened that Mrs. Hammond was an American lady, so Lady Napier paid a pretty compliment to America. She wore a rich brocade over a pink petticoat covered with point lace, her hair dressed over cushions and powdered, and pink and white feathers in her hair, and a bandeau of emeralds and diamonds; a muslin handkerchief festooned around the neck with a breast knot of roses, necklace with diamond heart and cross brooch of pearls and diamonds, high-heeled shoes with pink bows, Lord Napier in crimson velvet suit lined with white satin, hair powdered, with a long queue, white silk stockings and very large diamond buckles, and full white cravat with wide [illegible] Neither Mr. Dixon nor [illegible] objected to dancing but our [illegible] priestess and [illegible] a wreath of [illegible] and on the shoulder and opening up the tunic. Lady Napier sent for me all to go up there to tea, and we saw several there, Mrs. Wise, nee Everett, a Greek Lady, Mrs. Emory, a Quakeress. My niece says the house was decorated with garlands of flowers, the floors all white and brilliantly lighted. The supper was sumptuous, including two tureens of enormous strawberries.

HENS AT STORRS ARE AVERAGING 78 EGGS

The hens in the egg laying contest at Storrs, at the end of the twenty-fifth week, had laid a grand total of 78,030 eggs, or an average of a little over 78 eggs per bird. The total for the week was 3,528 eggs or a yield of a little over 50 per cent. The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds have an average production per bird of a little over 94 eggs. A pen of White Leghorns owned by C. T. Darby of North Branch, N. J., was the leading pen for the week with a production of 97 eggs. Merritt M. Clark's Barred Rocks from Brookfield Center, Conn., was second with a production of 96 eggs. Two pens of Rhode Island Reds, one pen of White Rocks and a pen of White Leghorns all tied for third place with a production of 49 eggs each. One pen of Rhode Island Reds is owned by John Z. Labelle of Ballouville, Conn., and the other by Fernside Farm at Attleboro, Mass.; the White Rocks are owned by H. F. Barber of Dover, Mass., and the White Leghorns by Ernest Craze of Ramsey, N. J. Fourth honors for the week go to a pen of Rhode Island Reds entered by H. P. Deming of Winsted, Conn., for a weekly total of 48 eggs.

There is a general agreement among authorities that the doctoring of poultry is not to be recommended. Except in case of a few diseases, such as chicken pox, colds and occasional worms. The reasons and reasons for this are that the unit of production of a commercial bird is so small that a commercial plant that [illegible] individual [illegible] and chicken [illegible] the health of the flock [illegible] identity is [illegible] forgotten and [illegible] pen and may keep [illegible] the offspring [illegible] weakness that was [illegible] causes of its being ill. The opinion of practically all [illegible] large numbers of [illegible] large proportion of [illegible] the birds ought to be killed. The treatment recommended [illegible] tryman is to give [illegible] can be applied to a flock [illegible] and with reasonable [illegible] beneficial results. [illegible] only when the treatment is simple, easy and need to be administered a very few times.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

New York, April 30.—Stock prices developed a reactionary trend in the early part of today's stock market because of the bearish interpretation placed by many traders on the quarterly report of the U. S. Steel Corporation and Chairman Gary's remarks and publication of a relatively poor quarterly statement by the Studebaker Corporation. Realization that many issues had been oversold brought about a recovery later which left many popular shares practically unchanged on the day.

While the steel earnings were the largest of any quarter in peace time, professional traders used the prediction of Mr. Gary that substantial improvement in business could hardly be looked for until around election time, as an argument for selling stocks. U. S. Steel common opened 98-98 1-4, advanced to 98 1-2, dropped to 97 1-8 and finally closed unchanged at 98. Bethlehem Steel dropped about 1 1-2 points on the announcement of new financing but recovered part of its loss before the close. Other independent steels yielded fractionally.

Studebaker (old stock) opened unchanged at 82, advanced to 83 3-4, broke to 80 1-2, a new 1924 low, and wound up at 82 1-2. Erratic fluctuations also took place in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, which opened at 90, advanced to 92, broke to 88 1-2 and closed at 89 for a net loss of 1 3-4.

Reduction of the local federal reserve rediscount rate from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent. which has frequently been referred to as a constructive stock market factor, was not announced until after the market closed.

Copper shares were inclined to heaviness on selling ascribed to speculative disappointment over the trend of the commodity market. Sugar shares held relatively firm despite disquieting reports concerning political conditions in Cuba.

Independent strength was shown by a number of issues including Davison Chemical, which closed more than 3 points higher at 48 7-8, International Harvester and General Electric.

Trading in the rails was rather quiet, with the popular shares displaying a firm tone. Norfolk and Western touched 123 1-2 in the early trading, but reacted later to 123 7-8, up 5-8.

Call money held at 4 1-4 per cent. all day despite the increased commercial demand for funds to meet month-end requirements. The time market was dull with a plentiful supply of funds offered at 4 1-4 per cent. for the shorter maturities. The longer maturities and prime commercial paper continued to command 4 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchange trading was again dull with irregular fluctuations in rates. Demand sterling ruled nearly a cent lower around $4.37 5-8 and French francs reacted slightly to 6.43 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 30.—Bond prices lagged in today's dull trading, which was enlivened only by movements in a few individual issues. Firmness of money rates checked the buying tendencies which recently had been in evidence, turning the main price trend toward lower levels.

Reduction in the federal reserve bank's rediscount rate was not announced until after the close of the market. The cut from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent., however, was welcomed in bond circles, on the theory that it would release additional funds for investment purposes.

Announcement by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation that it would offer $30,000,000 additional six per cent. bonds to the public influenced selling of the company's outstanding issues, which dropped 2 points each to a new low price for the year. The new items, which will be issued under the consolidated mortgage and as a part of series "A," will be priced at 96 to yield about 6.25 per cent.

Seaboard Air Line obligations were the only conspicuous strong spots in today's trading. Buying was stimulated by the company's favorable report on March operations, showing the highest earnings of any month in its history. Reports that continued improvement in the road's financial position would lead to a payment of accumulations gave leadership in the movement to the adjusted 5s, which jumped 3 points to the year's best price at 58 1-4.

Serbian 8s again were the outstanding feature in the foreign group, establishing a new 1924 high record of 83 3-4.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 30.—Unexpected renewal of month-end liquidating sales led to a decline in wheat prices today and the market closed unsettled, 1-8@1-4 to 3-4c net lower, May $1.03 1-8 to $1.03 1-4 and July $1.05 1-2 to $1.06 1-2@5-8. Corn finished at 1-4@3-8c off to 3-8c advance, oats 1-8c to 1-3c up, and provisions varying from 10c drop to an equal gain.

Owing to the fact that shorts had apparently supplied most of their wants and that speculative buying power was inactive, the wheat market showed a downward tendency throughout the day except for a little rally in the last hour. This rally was due to some purchasing credited to northwest account. Otherwise, the bulk of trading was in changes from one delivery to another, with elevator interests shifting hedges whenever the difference between May and July widened to 3 1-4c or more.

Predictions that fully 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels of wheat would be delivered here on May contracts tomorrow did a good deal to check bullish sentiment as compared with yesterday. Estimates that 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken for shipment to Europe failed to act as a stimulus to buying here, and so, too, did the fact that domestic receipts were light.

The first authoritative private crop figures issued this season, put the United States probable winter wheat yield in 1924 at 668,000,000 bushels, 4,000,000 bushels less than last year's total. This forecast was about as generally expected.

Delay to planting north of the Ohio river tended to rally corn prices a little. Demand for May tightened the oats market.

Lard was weak on account of unfavorable expert advices. Meats, however, responded to improving domestic trade.

COTTON.

New York, April 30.—Spot cotton quiet, middling 29.80.

CURB MARKET.

New York, April 30.—Stock prices displayed a sagging tendency in today's curb market with selling pressure being concentrated on the oil shares because of the further increase in crude and gasoline stocks in storage. With the exception of Pennmex Fuel and Imperial of Canada which dropped 1 and 2 points respectively, the net losses in the active issues were held to fractions. Largo Petroleum was again the most active stock on the list, closing at a slight fractional gain.

Losses prevailed in the industrial group although trading was in light volume. Several of the Public Utilities yielded 1 to 2 points on odd lot sales. Cuba Company, making its first appearance in some time, dropped 1 1-2 points apparently in reflection of political disturbances in Cuba.

NORWICH TOWN

A company of young people assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs Charles C. Browning of Plain Hill, Tuesday evening, when in honor of the approaching marriage of their younger daughter, Miss Jessie Balfour Browning, and Olmstead Skinner Peck, both of Plain Hill, a miscellaneous shower was given, which was attended by friends from Ledyard, Yantic and Norwich Town.

There were thirty-seven present including members of Miss Browning's Sunday school class, with the teacher, Miss Susan Hyde, from the First Congregational church, as well as several from the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, of which Miss Browning is a member. Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark and daughter, Louise Clark, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barrett and son John all of Ledyard.

The enjoyable evening which was devoted to games, selections on a Victrola, was arranged by Miss Browning's sister-in-law, Mrs. John L. Browning of Norwich Town, and Mrs. Arthur Barrett, of Ledyard.

Miss Browning was presented many beautiful gifts, comprising pieces of aluminum ware, cut glass, linen and Pyrex. Conspicuous among them was a Pyrex casserole in a silver standard, the gift of her Sunday school class (The One Aim class) and teacher. The large and prettily decorated May basket which concealed the gifts was presented by Mrs. Browning and Mrs. Barrett, who also served sandwiches, cake, fruit punch and candy, assisted by Miss Florence Browning and Miss Lillian Browning.

Miss Browning is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy and for a time attended Willimantic Normal school. She has been a successful teacher in the schools of Ledyard, Baltic and Lisbon.

Mr. Peck who for a year or more was a student at Bacon Academy in Colchester, has been located in Hartford until recently, in the real estate business. Both are members of the First Congregational church.

SPRING PHYSICAL PROGRAM OPENING AT Y. M. C. A.

Monday marked the opening of the spring physical programme at the Y. M. C. A. and plans are to conduct a busy and attractive programme in the "Y" physical department during the spring months. The recreational type of work will be stressed and the swimming activities will be prompted to a larger degree.

The spring schedule is as follows: Junior Boys—Tuesdays, Thursdays, 4 p. m. Saturdays 10 a. m. | Employed Boys—Mondays, Thursdays, 7 p. m. Older and Academy boys—Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 3 p. m. Business Men—Mondays and Thursdays, 5.15 p. m. Night business men—Mondays and Thursdays, 8 p. m. Seniors—Tuesdays and Fridays, 8 p. m.

The playlot in the rear of the "Y" building will be put in good condition for volleyball and other games and used as soon as the warmer weather arrives. Among the principal activities in the spring programme will be the class activities, third annual swimming campaign, game tournaments, athletic meets and baseball. The swimming campaign which will be open to all boys of the city will probably be conducted about the second week of May, and Physical Director Fritz is hoping that many non-swimmers will take advantage of this court of free swimming lessons.

COMMITTEE TO WORK REVISING MEDICAL ACT

Stanley H. Bullard, president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, has announced the appointment of the chamber's committee which will work to secure a revision of the Medical Practice Act at the next session of the general assembly.

The committee is made up of: William B. Boardman, chairman, Bridgeport; David Brosmith, Hartford; David Russell Lyman, M. D., Wallingford; Rev. William McGurk, Waterbury; and Frederic W. Mercer, New London.

The work of the committee will be to study the results of the exposures and investigations now being carried on in connection with the granting of medical certificates in this state with a view to recommending to the next session of the legislature such amendments to the laws governing the practice of medicine as will bring the state up to the proper standard and safeguard its citizens.

The State Chamber was influenced in its action by the belief that physicians are handicapped in any effort to secure stricter medical laws because of the suspicion on the part of certain members of the general assembly that medical societies want a monopoly of the practice and that the interests of an outside organization like the State Chamber would erase any sign of suspicion.

Returning From Bridgeport.

Having passed several days this week at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Major and Mrs Lafayette E. Evans, of Bridgeport, Mrs. Byron H. Evans returns to Norwich today (Thursday). While in Bridgeport, Mrs. Evans attended the two days' convention Tuesday and Wednesday, of the Daughters of Veterans.

FIRE DEPARTMENT COAL AT $13.25 PER TON

At the business meeting of the board of fire commissioners held in Central station Tuesday evening proposals for supplying the department with fuel were received. Four bidders entered lists and the contract was awarded to the Thames Coal company, the lowest bidder. The contract was let out at a price of ... per ton. Other bids ranged from $13.50 to $13.55 per ton.

The board also worked on the departmental report and making an inventory of the department. It was voted, and Chief Howard L. Stanton was instructed to have the meal hours of the department moved ahead one hour beginning May 1st. The test blows were also changed and hereafter they will be struck at 11 o'clock and 6:30 o'clock, standard time, as far as is possible. These tests are for the department test records only and it was emphatically stated that they are not for the purpose of furnishing time signals to the public.

SELF SEAL INNER TUBE SALESMEN ENTHUSE OVER COMPANY'S PROSPECTS

Great enthusiasm for the future of the H. H. Allyn Rubber Corporation, one of the latest of the new Norwich industries, was the spirit that marked the dealers' and salesmen's convention that was held here Wednesday, beginning with a visit to the factory on Thames street where the processes of manufacturing the Allyn Self Seal Leak Proof Inner Tube was shown. Following this there was a demonstration in Union square, after which there was a luncheon at 1.30 p. m. at the Wauregan house and the balance of the afternoon was spent with several addresses in which the feature was a spirited salesmanship talk by O. A. Ryffe, director of sales.

The party of 50 men met at the Wauregan house at 10.45 and were taken from there to the factory at 18-28 Thames street by Mr. Ryffe. Here President H. H. Allyn, inventor and patentee of the leak proof tube showed the process of making the four-ply tube in which the distinctive feature is an inner layer of plastic rubber back of which is a sheet of tinfoil. This combination makes a tube which immediately seals up any puncture no matter what size. Slow leaks are prevented, from 40 to 60 per cent. is added to the tire mileage, and the heavy cushion of the tube adds to the resiliency and does away with shocks and vibration. President Allyn told the men that the company is preparing to make tubes for balloon tires and there are also plans on foot for the company to make a tire equipped with the self seal tube.

Demonstration Given

From the factory the men returned to Union square where a demonstration was given by having Mayor Milo R. Waters drive several long wire nails into the tires of an automobile equipped with the Allyn tube.

The machine was then driven around the block and local agent William Alleski pulled out the nails with pliers. The tires remained just as hard as if no nails had been driven into them. Photographer Don Houghton took a picture of the mayor hooking the nails that had been pulled out with the machine standing by with its tires in perfect condition.

Luncheon With Talks.

At 1.30 the officers of the company, salesmen and guests enjoyed luncheon in the Wauregan house dining room. A floral centerpiece with the words "Welcome and Success" and "Welcome to Norwich, The Rose of New England," on ribbons graced the center of the table, a tribute from the Chamber of Commerce.

George A. Finn, secretary and treasurer of the Bankers Trust Co., was the toastmaster for the afternoon, speaking in admiration of the business principles of the Allyn corporation and the ability of the men behind it. As for himself he said he was a perfectly satisfied user of a self seal tube for eight months, during which time he had not even had to renew the air.

Mayor Waters was received with enthusiastic applause as he was introduced, welcoming the salesmen to the city and predicting that another year would see a gathering that would fill the room.

President Allyn spoke briefly of his satisfaction in realizing a dream that he had had for two and a half years of a puncture proof tube and told of his idea of a tire and tube combined that will be more satisfactory than any in use today.

Judge Nelson J. Ayling was called upon to speak from the standpoint of a stockholder, giving it as his opinion that the new company is over the top, going straight ahead with all brakes off and nothing can stop it. It has the elements of success, he said, a feasible and practical product, a capable and wise management, a regular dynamo of energy in its director of sales, who is held down and steadied by the cool and practical president. Judge Ayling said he believed the growth would mean other factories to be established and he hoped one might be in his own home state of Pennsylvania.

President H. M. Lerou of the Chamber of Commerce congratulated the company on the progress that had been made and told the salesmen they had made good on every promise. He welcomed the Allyn corporation as another addition to the diversified industries of Norwich and expressed appreciation of the advertising value to the city which the manufacture of the seal proof tube here meant.

Stirring Sales Talk.

Mr. Ryffe, director of sales, enthused the gathering with a stirring talk, in which he told of his first association with Mr. Allyn in 1917 when he induced Mr. Allyn to go to Texas where the first of these tubes were made, and he went on to tell of moving to Philadelphia where the self seal leak proof tube was developed to the 100 per cent. perfect proof, by eliminating one difficulty after another.

Why did we come to Norwich, he asked. Judge Ayling was first of all responsible, he said, and through the judge came introduction to Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Lerou and others. Factories were investigated, the banks showed a helpful spirit. There were three reasons, Mr. Ryffe said, that brought the company to move from Philadelphia to Norwich, the lower rent, the nearness to raw products, and the labor. Here they could get their raw rubber in 48 hours. In Philadelphia it took nine days. If you realized what that water transportation means against railroad transportation, there is no reason, he said, why Norwich should not be a city of 100,000 people. Labor conditions here are good because you have living conditions that make contented workers and contented workers are efficient workers. We are here and we are here to stay till we put our proposition where we want it to be.

Mr. Ryffe gave a demonstration to the salesmen of the points which could be presented to customers for the tubes, saying that they could be satisfied they had the best article on the market today.

He told of some of the experiences of salesmen and the way the tubes stood the tests with absolute satisfaction and said that the company now has contracts on its books for $1,440,000 worth of tubes, has practically 50 dealers and is about to close contracts in Boston and Baltimore. It is out to play the game square from every angle towards stockholders and customers and can promise a business that will expand to many times its present volume, making now about 100 tubes per day at its Thames street factory.

Salesmen who spoke briefly were George H. Bradford, Montville, who has the Hartford agency, J. I. Morris, Southbridge, Mass., T. F. Bast, Schuylkill Haven, Pa., Frank Jervais, Putnam, Joseph T. Grill, Westerly.

One man told of a tire with the self seal tube that carried 94 nails in it and didn't have a pump put to it for months, another told of tires that carried over 250 nails, one man showed the spike of a trap that he picked up in his tire on the road between Colchester and Hartford without puncturing it. Another man told of running 8,000 miles without looking at a tire or a valve when he had the self seal tubes in his tire.

The directors of the company are as follows: H. H. Allyn, president and general manager, Norwich; Charles P. Hill, secretary and treasurer, Norwich; Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Norwich; James C. Mara, Norwich; George H. Bradford, Uncasville Thomas B. Bast, Schuylkill Haven, Pa.; O. A. Ryffe, Norwich.

ROTARY COMMITTEES ARE NAMED FOR THE YEAR

At the monthly business meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel, the following committees were named for the ensuing year:

Boys' Work—Dr. Robert R. Agnew, George W. Carroll, Charles F. Wells

Business Methods—Charles R. Butts, Edward W. Jewett, Joseph H. Ellers.

Educational—Lucius Briggs, William G. Park, Frank P. Welch.

Fellowship—Arthur M. Thompson, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, Alfred G. Bliven.

Program—Herbert B. Cary, Hezekiah M. Lerou, Herbert C. Adams.

Public Affairs—Joseph C. Worth, F. Russell Smith, John J. O'Rourke

Publicity—Edwin A. Harris, Lewis M. Carpenter, William H. Oat, Frank H. Pullen.

President Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting and Alex McNicol, the Jewett City vocalist, was the inspiring song leader. Among the various musical numbers was a voluminous duet by Joseph Christo... Worth and Grosvenor Ely. Bert Geiger and his musical four rendered a touching selection.

There was a report from the programme committee of which Herbert B. Cary is chairman. He announced the programme for May as follows: First meeting will be in observance of Boys' Week and Dr. R. R. Agnew will be in charge with E. LaRue Bliven as song leader; second meeting, Gen. William A. Aiken will be the speaker and R. L. Tarrant will be the song leader; third meeting ... definite speaker, James J. Malden will be the song leader; fourth meeting, regular business session, Myles E. Standish will be song leader. McCary also suggested a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions club on June 11th at which time he suggested that the two clubs enter into a debate on some timely topic.

Secretary J. Nelson Weymouth read a communication from George Cooper of Pittsfield regarding a resolution relative to spring and fall conferences and conclaves. The club took favorable action on the resolution.

Grosvenor Ely requested the presence of every Rotarian at the meeting at the town hall on Friday evening when the taxation problem will be considered. This meeting has been called by the five business organizations of the city with a view to getting a more equal taxation in Norwich. The meeting will be addressed by Tax Commissioner Blodgett and T. M. Russell of Middletown.

After reports from the various chairmen of the committees the meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

FOUND STOLEN SUIT HAD BEEN PAWNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 30.—Russell Cleveland, a member of the crew of the Nova Queen, which has just cleared from Norwich, where the ... cargo of lumber was being unloaded, reported to the New London police this morning that a suit of blue serge clothes and an overcoat belonging to him had been stolen and that he suspected Albert Evans, another member of the crew, of the theft. The craft's cargo was unloaded Saturday and Sunday the boat cleared.

Sergeant Frank Howard this afternoon visited the pawnshop of Wolf & Lambert and there found a suit of clothes that tallied with those lost by Cleveland. The latter was notified and came to this city this evening and going to the pawnshop identified the suit as his property and it was returned to him. No trace of the overcoat, however, was found.

COOLIDGE WOULD HAVE W. M. BUTLER MANAGE CAMPAIGN

President Has Decided That in the Event of His Nomination at Cleveland He Would Recommend That Butler Succeed John T. Adams as Chairman of the Republican National Campaign Committee—Butler is a Massachusetts Man and Has Been in the Contest For Republican Nomination For U. S. Senator.

[illegible] – William M [illegible] will manage [illegible] national campaign [illegible] Adams of Iowa [illegible] republican [illegible] President [illegible] the Cleveland [illegible] republican [illegible] today that [illegible] Cleveland [illegible] and selection [illegible] pre-convention [illegible] new republican [illegible] the campaign [illegible] one of [illegible] Republican [illegible]

The national chairman is selected by the national committee at a meeting following the convention but it is the invariable custom to select as chairman whoever may be recommended by the nominee. Mr. Butler is the present member of the national committee from Massachusetts and is highly regarded by his committee associates.

It is not expected either by committee members or by the political managers of the president that any difficulty will be encountered.

Mr. Butler's selection was not unexpected although various other persons had been suggested to the president for the chairmanship. Among the names suggested were those of [illegible] Pepper, Senator and member of the national committee, and now secretary to the president. Others of those suggested were Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin, chairman of the budget committee of the senate; economic experts of the republican committee; and Charles A. Dawson Johnson, newspaper man and successor to Mr. [illegible] as secretary of the navy.

The selection of Mr. Sloan was said to be a matter of the president's political advisers although Mr. Sloan himself, on account of his [illegible] Mr. Coolidge was understood, is known to have had the Mr. Sloan's services were also valuable [illegible] certain as it is a political advantage to have the chief man at any [illegible] Mr. Butler [illegible] Mr. Butler was trained in the political school of thought of which the late W. Murray Crane was the head. He like the president is a man of few words.

New York, May 1. William M. Butler, named today as the successor of John T. Adams, as chairman of the republican national committee in the event President Coolidge enters the republican presidential campaign, announced he would resign the post [illegible] Mr. Butler was reached [illegible] York [illegible] tonight for Washington, where he will discuss the proposal with the president [illegible] convention.

WILLIMANTIC

Carpentry work in this city was [illegible] Thursday morning, when all but a few members of Willimantic Local 325, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, employed by the Willimantic Building association on outside work struck for higher wages. The outside men wanted an increase from 82 1-2 cents an hour for a forty-four hour week to at least one dollar an hour

The Master Builders' association received notification last January that the journeymen carpenters wanted one dollar an hour, to take effect May 1. The Master Builders attempted to compromise at 87 1-2 cents an hour, an increase in weekly salary from $36.50 to $38.50, but this offer met with the unanimous rejection of the journeymen carpenters.

Oliver L. Willard, secretary of the Master Builders' association notified the carpenters' local recently that due to present building conditions in the city and out of fairness to the people who paid the bills, the association would stand on the offer of 90 cents an hour. With W. J. Sullivan of New Haven, a national representative of the United Brotherhood, acting as spokesman the carpenters returned a compromise offer of 92 1-2 cents an hour, but this failed to shake the stand taken by the builders.

Meetings were held Thursday at Central Labor union hall by the journeymen, but to all appearances the deadlock remains with the figures set at 90 cents an hour and one dollar an hour. The strike affects about sixty outside carpenters.

Another meeting will be held today (Friday) when further steps will be taken toward reaching a mutual agreement. Thomas J. Doyle is president of the Master Builders association. The wages of the indoor carpenters have been agreed upon and the wood turning shop conducted by Hillhouse & Taylor was in operation Thursday.

When their automobile capsized and was wrecked Thursday afternoon, at Windham Center, on the highway between the Green and Bricktop road, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Bass, of Scotland, were painfully injured. They were taken to St. Joseph's hospital and given attention. Mr. Bass was able to return home, but Mrs. Bass will remain at the hospital for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Bass were driving toward this city in a Ford touring car. Mr. Bass was at the wheel and when he attempted to turn out for an approaching car he met with a state truck that was being filled with gravel by the side of the road. The Bass machine left the road and rolled down a low embankment, turning over twice. Residents of that section gave first aid treatment to the injured people and they were rushed to the hospital in an automobile.

The annual entertainment and social for the benefit of St. Marys' church, South Coventry is planned for Hillside hall, Eagleville. It is indicated that the affair will be a repetition of that held last year. At a recent meeting plans were formulated. Rev. W. H. Kennedy was in charge. The committees who will take part in the arrangements are: Tickets, Michael Donovan and Joseph Prue. Hat room, George Copeland and George Prue. Refreshments, Mrs. Joseph Prue, Mrs. Edward Champlin, Mrs. David LaMarche, Mrs. Emma Thompson, Mrs. Edward Foley, Ruth Costello, Clara Hemberg, Helen Donovan, Mrs. Minnie Thompson, Mrs. Joseph Kuryan, Dorothy Griffin, Mrs. Henry Day and Mrs. Elmer Botham. Floor, Francis Mahoney, M. J. Farrell, James O'Sullivan, Neil Graf, William Costello and John Lynch. The use of the has been donated by Edward Champlin. Prof. H. A. Seckerson's Connecticunt Agricultural College players will present one of their clever little plays. A quartet under the direction of Michael J Farrell, of Storrs will be heard in several selections and George Lefleur, the boy tenor of Eagleville will also sing. Dancing is to be another source of enjoyment.

There is interest in the fact that three local young women are members of the graduating class of the Connecticut College at New London, this year. All graduates of Windham High school. They are, Helen Holbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holbrook, of 66 Spring street; Doris Bradway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradway of 242 Church street and Myrtice Tryon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Tryon of 142 Prospect street. Miss Holbrook was graduated from the local school in 1919, Miss Bradway in 1920 and Miss Tryon in 1920. The first named spent one year in post graduate work.

At her home in Windham Center, funeral services for Mary D. Little were held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Arthur W. Clifford officiated. Burial was in Columbia cemetery. The bearers were H. C. Lathrop, C. A. Keeney, William Holbrook, Harry Little, Mitchell Little and Frederick Little. The J. C. Lincoln company was in charge of the arrangements.

At two oclock Thursday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Fuller were held at the grave in Storrs cemetery. Prayer was offered by Rev. Leonard Smith of Spring Hill. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

Virginia LeClair, the four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred LeClair of High street met with a slight injury recently when she ran out from the sidewalk and was struck a glancing blow by an automobile driven by a young woman who gave her name to the police as Miss Cote of 36 Maple avenue. A physician treated the child and found her suffering from bruises.

A good sized crowd eagerly looked on as the new gas bus over the Air Line btween this city and Middletown, with side trips to Colchester via Amston, made its first appearance in this city Thursday. Trips were made from Willimantic at 5.30, 9 a. m. and 1.55 p. m. "Sam" Barnes of New Haven was the motorman and Charles J. Healy of this city, the conductor. The iron shod bus has a more inviting appearance than the cumberseme passenger trains for short trips. It has accommodations for 34 passengers, also smoking and baggage compartments.

What is probably stolen property was abandoned last Monday in the form of a Ford automobile, on Sunset farm, on the North Windham road, by three young men who said that they would call for the car the next day. Frank S. Campbell, the city garbage collector and owner of the farm reported the matter to the police department Thursday. The machine bears New Hampshire registry number 38-701.

Rain on the windshied of his machine which obscured his view of the road caused Edward Allborek, a local jitney driver to crash through the west gate of the Union street railroad crossing about two o'clock Thursday morning. Allborek did not notice the lowered gate. He reported the accident to Lieutenant Frank McLean of the olice department and agreed to settle for the damage.

Willimantic Rotarians who were in attendance at the Putnam Rotary club banquet Wednesday evening were Walter Abbe, Jr., John F. Ahern, James P. Bath, James P. Mustard, Harry W. Standish, J. E. Sullivan Dr. M. D. Riordan, Charles B. Pomeroy, Henry M. Congdon, Al Linn Weatherhead, Valentine L. Murphy, Louis A. Kingsbury, Charles W. Hill and Herbert W. Huber.

Boys who came up to requirements in the 100 yard dash, plain front dive and the 50 yard back stroke for the swimming contest at the Y. M. C. A. this week are: W. Powell, E. Casey, S. Katarcyniec and J. Pickett. L. Axlerod, S. Wojcik, W. Lennon and J. Hendry were successful in the first two events while Charles Smith J. Ashton and F. Ferriner passed the dash test.

Crippled or disabled children who wish to join in for the exercises to be held in connection with Boys' week Saturday will find plenty of accommodations in a number of automobiles provided for their use. Local people who are acquainted with boys so afflicted have been requested to communicate with either Charles W. Hill or James P. Bath and necessary arrangements will be made.

From taxi driver to hotel manager is the step to be taken within a few days by Joseph Peck, one of Willimantics pioneer jitney men. Peck has leased the hotel at Momauguin Beach, East Haven, and will take possession May 26. He will also condues the restaurant and dancing pavilion connected with the hotel.

A small boy received slight injuries about noon Thursday, on Valley street, near the corner of Broad street. Mr. Gaudreau, driving one of Leonard Brothers' auto trucks saw the boy running across the street and he brought his truck to a stop with such a force that the machine was slightly damaged. The boy ran into the truck and received a cut on one hand, which was treated at St. Josephs hospital, after which he went to his home.

The closing session of Windham town night school was held Thursday evening at the high school auditorium where a short program was carried out. Adjournment was then taken to the gymnasium where a social hour and dancing were enjoyed. Refreshments were served. Many of the pupils entertained guests.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Hayes of The Ridges a party was given Thursday afternoon in celebration of the fourth birthday of their little daughter, Madeline. Her little friends spent a most enjoyable afternoon, playing games and partaking of refreshments.

Several of the cottage owners at Columbia nad Coventry Lakes are making preliminary preparations for the opening of the summer season. Cyril Lamoureux spent Thursday at Lake Wangaumabug getting his summer home into condition.

P. W. Carey, former manager of the Hotel Hooker, was in this city Thursday, calling on friends as the guest of Thomas J. Killourey of Union street. Mr. Carey came here to attend the funeral of Mayor Dion.

Mrs. Darius M. Bennett returns to her home at The Ridges today (Friday) after spending four months in Orlando, Fla.

Dugals, a dog owned by Chief of Police Allan MacArthur and the mascot of the department made his appearance Thursday all dolled up with a bright new collar. The dog is a 'descendant of Dexter. Lieutenant Frank McLean's well known rabbit hunter.

Next week will be one of celebration for the Baptists of this city in connection with the reopening of the church, recently altered and redecorated. The program for the week is in the making. The celebration will open Sunday, May 4, with morning and evening services.

Business and professional men feasted over 75 boys at a big brothers banquet held in the Chamber of Commerce room under the auspices of the Willimantic Rotary club, in connection with observation of Boys' week. The affair was a decided success. The repast was served under direction of "Rufe" Worden assisted by a number of local young women. Harry W. Standish, president, presided. The Windham High school orchestra played, under the direction of Charles H. Caswell. Community singing was enjoyed, Raymond A. Parker acted as song leader and Dr. R. B. Jones was accompanist. The Rotary club quartet, John F. Ahearn, Harry W. Standish, Henry M. Congdon, Ray Parker, was heard in several selections and received encores. Richard E. Dodge was toastmaster. Rev. O. M. Beaumister, who was scheduled to deliver an address, was unable to be in attendance. The speakers were D. J. Hinds, of the American Thread company, Arnold Storrs, a Windham High student, Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton and Egbert A. Case, superintendent of the schools. James B. Fullerton was the chairman of the committee of arrangements.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Dwight J. Glazier, 87, who died at the Johnson Memorial hospital Monday afternoon after several weeks' illness, was one of the substantial citizens of Tolland county and locally had been honored by being elected a representative in the general assembly, a member of board of selectmen and assessor, also to a number of minor offices. He was a member of the Second Congregational church in West Stafford and had been a deacon of that church since 1860. He was a member of Wolcott lodge of Masons and a prominent member of Stafford grange. He leaves two sons, Hobart and Charles D. Glazier, both of West Stafford and several grandchildren. His funeral services were held at the West Stafford Congregational church Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. F. A. Fuller officiated. Burial was in West Stafford cemetery.

Mrs. Fred Wildey and daughter Mrs. Philip Barton are visiting friends in New York.

Mrs. Fanny G. Brown has returned to Stafford Springs after spending the summer in Hartford.

One man was arrested and four badly beaten in a resumption of violence in the Public Transportation Company Bus Drivers' strike in Newark, N. J., which was called last Saturday. Bricks were hurled and bus tires punctured with ice picks.

Finds Cure For Pyorrhea

Dr. Harold Keith Box, D. D. S., young Canadian Dental Scientist of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Toronto University, who has found a method for curing Pyorrhea. He claims that the cause of the disease is a new germ condition called Rarefying Pericementitis Fibrsa, and originates in the tooth socket membrane. With this knowledge in hand he predicts a positive cure for Pyorrhea in the near future.

WILLIMANTIC STORES
Know What To Buy—How To Buy—Where To Buy

CHURCH REED CO. SETS PACE FOR COMPETITORS IN WILLIMANTIC

For nearly fifty years a leading clothing establishment in the city, the H. L. Hunt & Co., store at the corner of Main and Church streets was purchased in December, 1914 by the Church-Reed Co. Inc. From the very day of its inception the Church-Reed store has been favored with a large patronage, including hundreds of satisfied customers of the H. L. Hunt & Co. Nevertheless the store has continued to enjoy progress in rapid strides until it now compares favorably with any establishment of it's kind in Eastern Connecticut.

A month after the business and good will of the former owners had been purchased the store was renovated and enlarged, but the capacity of the place gradually became overtaxed and four years later the adjoining store in the block was taken over. Thousands of dollars were spent in making improvements so that when the work was completed the establishment was doubled in dimension and presented a most modern appearance.

Unparalleled quality in goods and excellent service have been the foundation for the building up of an extensive business. The latest in styles and the best in material are features of the stock carried and the demand for the company's goods is steadily increasing. In the newest models can be found the Kuppenheimer and other high grade makes of clothing, the incomparable Stetson hats, Ralston's men's shoes, the well-known Eagle shirts in all shades and textures and a complete line of haberdashery.

The officers of the firm are: President H. E. Church, treasurer A. L. Reed and assistant treasurer T. Frank Cunningham. Mr. Cunningham is the general manager and buyer for the firm. As a boy he entered the employ of the H. L. Hunt & Co. fifteen years ago, at the same stand and through his long experience he has a thorough knowledge of the clothing business. Considered as one of Willimantic's leading business men, his careful supervision of all sales made at the store gained the full confidence of the buying public. His studied buying and concentrated effort to give satisfaction in price and quality have to a large degree been responsible for the extensive trade that the firm now controls.

Efficient salesmen are prepared at all times to display the stock and take a personal interest in every purchase made. The force consists of Manager T. Frank Cunningham, Albert J. Piche, J. Edmund Hurley, Luke Hevrin and Walter Caron.

PUTNAM

A Memorial day practically unobserved—the past considered as a prospect for Putnam this year. Arrangements have been made to [illegible]ate the graves of the nation's soldier dead in all the cemeteries for on[illegible] about Putnam on Memorial day, but there will be no parade, as has been the custom for more than half a century. While the day will be a general holiday, in accord with long established custom, there will be little of the ceremony that for so many years past has been the outstanding feature of a day's tribute to those who gave fought in the nation's war and have passed beyond.

With the ranks of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic so thinned and the ages of the remaining veterans of the great civil conflict so advanced that their post charter was surrendered several years ago, the burden of arranging a Memorial day observance, as it has long been known here, has passed into other hands. In recent years the American Legion has assumed the care of arranging and carrying out the Memorial day program. In this participation [illegible] Legion finds [illegible] practically [illegible] interest, even among its own membership [illegible] with a program such as come to be accepted as suitable for the observance of the day and following a meeting of Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion, [illegible] Thursday morning, [illegible] that the post has practically abandoned its plans for a Memorial day observance other than is involved in the proper observance of Memorial day. There is lack of interest on all sides. Of the World war veterans, no more than a corporal's guard have signified [illegible]ing ess to participate in a Memorial day procession. In view of such a set of circumstances, there appeared to the Anselm Mayotte post [illegible] nothing left to do but to [illegible] all plans for informal observance of the day, with speakers, services and parade.

Since a situation so soon after the [illegible] waves of patriotism that swept the country in 1917-18 can hardly be explained, Antietam and Gettysburg and Lookout Mountain appear to have slipped back into the mists of the ages. For some reason, or for many reason, Memorial day appears to mean little to Putnam now. This situation will hurt the [illegible] and [illegible]ing the vocals of many, or there are the fools.

Four weeks remain before the coming of Memorial day. In that period, with the city awakened to the [illegible] meeting can be done to insure against a passive observance of the annual memorial period for those who have worn the nation's uniforms in time of stress and have stood between the enemy and wine entire structure of the republic's future. Today the American Legion post is discouraged over the lack of interest and has abandoned plans for any observance other than decorating of graves.

A reprieve may be considered as granted those who [illegible] the [illegible]ward Thursday afternoon [illegible] in program for stores in Putnam as the result of the action [illegible] of members of the Chamber of Commerce held in the organization's rooms on Thursday morning. The Thursday half-holidays will continue uninterrupted until next October at least. More than a score of members of the chamber attended the meeting called by the merchants' committee, and there was general discussion of the subject at hand. It was pointed out that when the present arrangement of closing the stores every Thursday afternoon "brought out" the [illegible] was not into effect it was with an understanding that the plan was to be continued for one year. The vear, in regard to this, does not expire until October, so, it was agreed in a resolution adopted at the meeting, that the Thursday afternoon closing will continue until that time. In the meantime a meeting will be held in August, at which the subject will again be up for consideration, and if the chamber then votes to discontinue the weekly half holiday plan for the [illegible] year, the half holidays will be abandoned with the coming of October and the end of the year's agreement period.

Rotarians to the number of 108, gathered here Wednesday evening for the observance of the first anniversary of the Putnam chapter had such a delightful [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] who [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

EQUITABLE TAXATION.

Taxation is a matter that concerns everyone, one way or another. It isn't possible to dodge it whether a listed taxpayer or not, but it is a levy upon the people which should be fair and just.

For that reason the people of Norwich should be much concerned with the citizens' meeting which has been arranged tonight in the town hall, apparently the forerunner of a special town meeting that is to be sought later, for the purpose of getting the public better acquainted with taxation conditions and problems, and to set forth how and where Norwich differs from other towns or cities in regard to equitable taxation.

The taxation situation in Norwich is one that may well set all possible attention. It is a matter that deserves serious and constructive consideration. It has long been pointed to in an uncomplimentary manner but no improvement has been made. This is not because of lack of opportunities, but because of a strange unwillingness to upset conditions which have prevailed for years, deplorable though they have been known to be.

For the purpose of bringing about a better understanding of the present situation, through a comparison with the experiences of others, the public meeting tonight should attract a large attendance. It is a matter in which all are interested and one in which all possible enlightenment should be obtained. It may be that we cannot or should want to pattern exactly after others but there is always something which can be learned from the methods adopted and followed elsewhere. If no one can apply any of such to our own benefit there should be a desire to do so. That is to be expected from a progressive community and Norwich isn't ready to accept any other classification.

The aim of equitable taxation is a high one. Its appeal should be general and tonight's meeting, even though no decisions are to be made, should attract a hall full of interested citizens.

PROTECTING THE CROSSINGS.

In the state of New York a new law demands "flagmen and gates at all grade crossings or other adequate safety devices."

This is a move for greater protection to the users of railroad crossings. It doesn't make any distinction between the crossing where a view of the track to either side is obstructed and the one where a clear view of the railroad track may be obtained. In connection with a great many accidents the results seem to show that it doesn't make very much difference what the visibility is. The great and surprising trouble seems to be the unwillingness to properly respect the danger that exists at such points.

The erection of gates and the placing of flagmen at crossings don't mean the elimination of crossing fatalities. Even if this protection is in operation 24 hours a day there are those who intentionally disregard them and insist upon crashing through the gates or who refuse to stop and even knock down the flagmen in their refusal to slow up. There are also those who are thoroughly familiar with crossings and their danger who seem to feel so immune to harm at such places that they invite rather than guard against accidents.

Whenever adequate safety devices are provided, regardless of what form they may take, an added security can be felt. It provides the means of preventing the much dreaded accidents and fatalities up to the point where respect for such warnings is had, and it is a highly desirable safety provision for those who are careless to respect danger but who for various reasons may not be aware of it.

Flagmen, gates, bells or lights are sufficient to restrain those who are willing to yield a second or two to avoid death or injury. They provide the protection to which the public is entitled and when New York gets the provisions of the law respected there should be a marked reduction in crossing fatalities except among the reckless and negligent.

CARING FOR THE NAVY.

Some opinions have been offered recently concerning the condition of our navy, the first line of defense. It is possible to compare our navy with the navies of other countries from so many angles and get so many results that only experts are able to judge where the errors are. There are those who can show conclusively that the British or the Japanese have stronger navies than we have, and yet there are those who can point out the weaknesses of other navies and the strength of our own in such a manner as to indicate that we lead the world. Where does the truth lie? Are both views correct? Is it possible to prove anything so long as naval secrets are not divulged?

While there have been those who have been pointing to some of our shortcomings in naval construction and strength, it is to be noted that [illegible] leaders who have been saying the same thing, over deploring the failure to make additions in this direction and that.

All of this, while a bit confusing, is nevertheless good foundation for urging naval appropriations. Those in charge of naval affairs at Washington haven't been quoted as being alarmed over the naval situation. By the report which has been made by Admiral Coontz, as the result of the recent manoeuvers, it becomes evident what he advocates. He points to the weakness of the submarine, the way in which they retarded the fleet and he had something to say about airplane carriers which cannot be lightly passed over.

One of the things he stressed was the need of increasing the elevation of the guns on several of the ships. This is not a new matter, but one which has been retarded because of an unwillingness to violate the naval agreement, or to do anything that would seem to overstep it. It is a report, however, that is entitled to and will no doubt get the attention that criticisms of such an official calls for. It is a report that deals with defects and is not just big navy talk.

WATER POWER DEVELOPMENT.

Demands for cheaper power have long prevailed and they can be expected to continue until they bring results. The Associated Industries of Massachusetts has become interested in the problem with the result that a special committee was named to consider the hydro-electric resources of New England and the eastern part of Canada. In a report of considerable length the committee sets forth the possibilities of power development in New England but indicates that it is none too soon to begin to look to the greater opportunities which exist in Canada for the harnessing of the streams. This involves the transmission of current over a long distance, but that is less of a problem today than in the past. It is one of the reasons why such favorable consideration is given to Canadian prospects.

Maine cannot be said to be exhausted as far as power development is concerned but Maine is disposed to restrict such to use within its borders. Opportunities for getting the benefit of the full 800,000 horse power which remains undeveloped in New England need not be overlooked, but the five million horsepower which the rivers of Canada can furnish command greater attention.

Going to the dominion for power involves more than New England development would, since there must be some arrangement with the Canadian government as well as that of any province in which the development might be desired. Inasmuch as it would mean the utilization of what is now going to waste and would be a benefit to Canada as well as to New England there seems to be no reason for any serious impediment.

The report is in keeping with the efforts to establish a superpower system along the northern Atlantic seaboard. It points to future probabilities as well as possibilities and is not restricted by the uncertainty of the proposed St. Lawrence development. New England is destined to use far more hydro-electric current before it uses less. It indicates a determination to prevent the waste in the years to come that has taken place in the centuries gone.

THE SNOWDEN BUDGET.

Much interest has been manifested outside of Great Britain in the budget that Chancellor Snowden of the British exchequer would present to the house of commons. The chancellor recognized the danger of taking a too radical a position. The result is a programme that is likely to create a due amount of discussion but not to cause any breaks.

One feature which seems likely to draw plenty of debate is that which aims to greatly reduce the duty on motor cars, especially the cheaper ones, bicycles, musical instruments, clocks, watches and films. Cutting the duty on autos from 90 to 33 1-3 per cent will not only have its attractions for manufacturers of cars in this country but it can be expected to develop considerable opposition by manufacturers at home. On the other hand the large number that would be favored by such a change will likewise have its influence, though employes as well as employers understand the effect of such letting down of the bars and the inviting in of foreign production.

This budget will give a chance for the showing of hands, but there is no indication that it will result in defeat, since England is not ready for an election and that would be the logical outcome should the labor government fall.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

I cannot imagine any place more peaceful and restful than Cousin Mary Goodno's beautiful home in Naperville. It is a delightful haven that I really wonder that I have not oftener sought, but perhaps that is because of the remoteness of our relationship. She herself said, when I first claimed cousinship, that it was by courtesy, owing to the fact that her mother and my mother's great grandparents were neighbors in pioneer days in Ohio.

"Cousin Mary, darling," I said, when I arrived at her house on last Wednesday afternoon, "I have come out to this adorable place to stay a few days with you and invite my soul."

"I don't know exactly what you mean, Lucile," she replied laughing, "But you are very welcome, my dear, if you won't mind the dullness."

"It isn't dullness. It is heavenly quiet. I'm glad that you live so far from the town, so that I can feast my eyes on the long stretches of lovely country from your windows. The fact is, Cousin Mary, dear I'm simply fed up on the city, and I want a real rest cure. You mustn't bother about me at all. I just wish to snuggle down here and forget the world for a little while."

"You sound almost pessimistic, Lucile," she said.

"Oh, no, I'm not pessimistic. I'm only a little tired from too much club work and gayety," I answered. I did not feel that it was necessary to explain to her that one reason for leaving town was that a society note in the papers mentioning that I had gone west would explain my absence at the Chamberlyne-Welles wedding. When I sent the note to the papers I expected to go to Denver, but on thinking it over I was sure that father would not finance the trip, so I decided to go only as far west as Naperville.

In the morning after my arrival when I heard a knock at my door I answered sleepily, "What is it?"

"Mrs. Goodno says are you getting up, Miss Lucile? She is waiting breakfast for you in the sun room."

"Oh, tell her please not to wait. Give her my love and say that I'm not getting up for breakfast, if she will excuse me." I replied and then I tried to go to sleep again, but the rather crude maid had knocked so violently that she had thoroughly aroused me, it seemed.

I decided to rise and make my own coffee, for I had taken out my own little electric coffee machine which Dexter Haines gave me. After starting it, I pulled down the window until my coffee was ready.

"Mercy on us, Lucile, what have you been doing?"

I opened my eyes and saw Cousin Mary standing with a horrified look in the middle of my room.

"I must have fallen asleep again," I said, "Has anything happened?"

"Well, rather!" answered Cousin Mary. "As I was passing your door I fancied I smelled something queer like burned coffee. You didn't answer my knock so I came in. Look at that." She pointed to a large, dark-brown stain on the cream-colored rug. "It that coffee, Lucile?"

"Why—why—yes, I'm afraid it is. You see I am drinking a special brand now and I made it, and then I guess I went to sleep. It must have boiled over. I am sure that stain will come out all right, Cousin Mary."

"I certainly hope so, Lucile," she said with an ungracious astonishing from one of her usual charming poise. "I had this rug made especially in China for this guest room."

"Oh, how wonderful! You are always so—"

"Lucile, I go into town every year at about this season and stay at a hotel for a little change. I've suddenly decided that this is the best time for me to go. We can take the early afternoon express."

I cannot understand how Cousin Mary, so noted for her hospitality could bring herself to curtail my visit in such a casual way. I do hope that none of my friends discoverd that I was home, up in granny's room, the night of the Chamberlyne wedding.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

How the South and West Feel

Mr. Editor: It is a privilege to be able to keep in touch with my white ribboned comrades through the hospitality of your paper.

I am quite sure they will be interested in the activities of their southern sisters, who now are thoroughly awake to the crisis which confronts the temperance forces through the failure of officials in authority to enforce the law and moral obtuseness of the many in high society who for the gratification of their own undisciplined appetites are willing to defy the law and so encourage the bootleggers. Mrs. Mary Armor, the representative of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in a recent address said: "Prohibition has become a schoolmaster to lead the world to total abstinence and though I am a staunch democrat, I will vote a dry republican, if there is one, if they put up on the democratic ticket a wet man. Emphatically she scored the men and women who have repeatedly asserted that the Volstead act must be modified or repealed because it was not being kept one hundred per cent. Do these people know of any law that ever has been? They illustrate the lawless spirit that has honeycombed the political world of both parties."

Mrs. Armor firmly believes that if the democratic party puts up Al Smith they will see the solid south disintegrate like a snowball on a hot stove; he is not a democrat, he is a "liquorcrat." She implored the women to realize the seriousness of the crisis and vote for no man who did not stand openly for law enforcement and for protection of the prohibition amendment. Mrs. Armor echoes the sentiment of the democratic women of the west.

For six months I have been traveling through [illegible] have been deeply impressed with the keen interest wh[illegible]e showing in all important political questions. They will unquestionably appreciate and endorse President Coolidge's advice to the D. A. R.'s to excise their right of suffrage; for this was the first time they had had the vote in time to take part in the selection of candidates in a presidential campaign. It was most timely advise; for it has been stated that only 25 per cent. of women have used the vote; while 33 1-2 per cent. of men have used it. Women have not risen to their opportunity. Will they? Anton Lang was asked, by a lady when he was in Baltimore, "Do you sir, live the life of Christ?" "Madame," replied Mr. Lang, "if you are a Christian, you as well as I have the obligation of living as far as we can the life of our Lord. Our striving upward toward that divine model is the measure of the perfection of our Christian lives." The question that this reply should raise in the mind of every Christian man and woman is, "Am I a Christian if I fail to use the privilege of voting which my country has bestowed upon me; am I loyal to God and my country. In the light of Christ's sacrifice and suffering, we must answer no. The need of America today is to bring Christ's sublime principle of justice and live with our national character through the positive action of each individual. The keystone of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is Jesus Christ. Unquestionably the country over they will accept cheerfully President Coolidge's timely advice.

It was gratifying to see that at the time that the W. C. T. U. women of the south were declaring their purport to sustain the man who stood for law enforcement and protection of the 18th amendment, the W. C. T. U. women of New York state through their leader, Mrs. Ella Borle were taking their stand as firmly for these two great principles and when Al Smith's name was mentioned as a possible candidate for the next president, the cry was, "Never, never, never!" The last emphatic warning has come from the D. A. R.'s who have just closed one of the most brilliant sessions of their organization. In no uncertain voice they proclaimed their determination to support law-enforcement and the protection of the 18th amendment. These are two of the largest women organizations in the country. The political parties can not ignore their warnings or their desires.

Let us remember that "Heaven is above all yet. There sit a Judge that no king can corrupt. We can not escape His judgment of our acts or words.

MARINDA C. B. ROBINSON.
Washington, D. C., April 27, 1924.

A May Day Lesson

Mr. Editor: The present is a time when it is scarcely possible to lay too much emphasis on the past because it is a time the feeling is and the tendency to decry the experience and the lessons of the past. This is always the failing of immaturity because the new always appeals to immaturity, but the bane of it is, that it also contributes to greater immaturity and to pride in the present and its wisdom as being the very acme for both present and future.

There was a time in Athens when it was said that the Athenians and their visitors did nothing else but either to tell or hear some new things."

For all that, the Greeks did not arrive at eminence by forgetting the value of their past, which seems to be rather the besetting sin of our generation.

When the French Revolution was brooding and hatching in the clubs and in one a hot protest against the empire was being made, a young man with more sense but as much courage as the rest, arose and pointing to Corsica on the map said: "A small island in the Mediterranean that made France very great." And the effect was magnetic, because it was truth.

A great American statesman became famous largely by the statement, "We have no means of judging the future but by the past" or words to that effect and the repetition of this sentiment was in itself a Cuneau inspiration, which we believe lifted the states to the future which they reached.

Neither personal nor national greatness is attained by discarding what has been already learned, but by adding to it. Great discoveries are reached, too, by the hypotheses of the past, and what is old can not be condemned, and we may despite the old, because in the dazzle of the new we do not have a true prospective.

We apprehend that in the final adjustment, the lesson of the World was fought under the slogan "to make the world safe for democracy." will be the demonstration that democracy—after all, in its present form of being, was not the safe thing for the world, and what we had in mind was really, our Anglo Saxon democracy in type, not at all adapted to other civilizations nor to their past, and a Herculean task, never to be finished? Can our doctrine that "all men are created equal" be demonstrated or proved to be a fact in the great world?

Abraham Lincoln said this nation was "dedicated to that proposition," but in reality the fathers were attending only to themselves as "all men" and that they were asking for the recognition of their superiority. There was still an older adage that "what is one man's meat is another man's poison," and isn't this, politically, being proved true?

Isn't even the attempt to make it possible within our own borders, meeting failure? Are our common run of citizens and legislators improving with the years?

There was a dark day once, when the sun seemed to withdraw, and some thought that the Day of Judgment had come. The American legislature was then in session, and it was moved to adjourn. One, Davenport arose, and we know him now by what he said: "Gentlemen: Either the Day of Judgment has arrived or it has not. If it has, I desire to be in the way of my duty and so move that candles be brought in and that we proceed to action."

In the British parliament during the debates on our resolution, the great statesman, Burke, said, that what he feared for England was "the day of judgment." He passed away before he witnessed it.

Have we statesmen today, or young men who are training for it, who fear the day of judgment, or who for their own sakes and the nation's rest believe that there is to be a day of judgment?

This is the final that we urge in this paper, and this is a time in which we need to impress the terrors of the law.

JOHN TROLAND,
Norwich, Conn., May 1st, 1924.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Treat, U. S. A., retired, who has been designated to represent the U. S. Army at the coming Olympic Games in France, closed his active military career last December, after a service of more than 40 years. Gen. Treat is a native of Maine. He graduated from West Point in 1883 specialized in artillery, graduated from the Artillery school and the War college, and steadily rose to a position of influence and conceded ability that won him a brigadier general's rank in the regular army in 1916. At that time he was stationed in Hawaii. After the United States had entered into war with Germany he was given command of the new army units at Camp Sheridan, Alabama, and later at San Francisco. Near the close of the conflict with the rank of major general in the United States National Army, he was detailed for special duty in Italy.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PORTAGE DAY

Portage Bay, in which Maj. F. L. Martin, commanding the U. S. Army round-the-world flight was forced to land when he was lost for half a day recently is not on Kodiak Island as at first reported, but on the mainland of the Alaska Peninsula," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"This isolated bay, surrounded by rocks and cliffs, with here and there a small spit, is directly opposite the southwestern end of Kodiak Island, some 40 miles across Shelikof strait. Cape Igvak, which marks the southern point of Portage Bay, and close to which the Martin plane was found, is very near the point where the 156th degree of west longitude cuts the Alaskan coast.

"Kanatak, to which the plane was first taken for repairs by the rescuing Navy destroyer, is a tiny village consisting of a few houses on the coast where the bay penetrates farthest inland. It is barely 10 miles from the spot where the plane was found.

"The whole coast in this region is extremely rugged, with numerous indentations and off shore islets, while a short distance inland rise volcanic mountains. Katmai Volcano, the eruption of which in 1912 was one of the most violent in modern times, and the wonderful Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, which the eruption created, are little more than 50 miles away. The story of the tremendous volcanic disturbance in this almost uninhabited region was pieced out partly by the stories of Kanatak residents who felt the violent earth tremors and saw the fiery eruption.

"When forced to land Major Martin had just passed Geographic Harbor, named for the National Geographic Society in recognition of The Society's expeditions which studied Moun Katmai and discovered the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes.

"Kodiak Island, just across from Major Martin's landing place, played a prominent part in Russia's control of Alaska. When the Russian-American Company took charge of Alaskan affairs in 1799 it made Kodiak its headquarters and in effect the Capital of Russian America. The all-powerful director of the company made the island his home.

"A few miles east of Major Martin's landing place on the mainland and across from it on Kodiak Island, the flyers saw the last forests they will encounter until they penetrate Japanese territory. With surprising suddenness the thickly forested regions of the Alaskan coast terminate and give way to the grass lands which characterize the entire Aleutian chain. The sudden change is most striking on Kodiak. The east end of the island is heavily timbered while the remainder of its land is entirely treeless."

Stories That Recall Others

Found—The Thrifty Young Man

Three men were discussing wine, women and song.

"I must confess my greatest weakness is for women," the first said. "Were I down to my last dollar and hungry and met a girl friend, I should spend that money on her if she was hungry and do without food myself."

"I like food too well for that," explained the second. "If I were down to my last dollar, and met a lady friend I would match dollars to see which was to buy the food. Wouldn't you do that?" he turned and asked the third.

The third shook his head. "I'd put my dollar in the bank," he said truthfully.

PEARY FOUGHT ICE AND SNOW

For 23 years Robert E. Peary battled to gain the North Pole. His struggle was not alone with cold and hunger, blinding snow and perils of treacherous ice. A poor man, devoting most of his income as a naval officer to his expeditions, he was under the necessity of finding additional funds for every trip.

He was born at Cresson, Pa., in 1856, and was three years old when his father died. He passed his boyhood with his mother in Portland, Maine.

Graduated from Bowdoin College, he became a land surveyor, and when 23 joined the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Later he was a naval lieutenant.

On leave in 1886, he went to Greenland, caught the "Arctic fever" and resolved to win the Pole. In 1888, accompanied by his wife, he made his first try for the goal. After a thirteen-months' 1300-mile trip across the great ice cap, he attained 51 degrees 37 minutes North latitude. In 1893 he remained in the North 25 months. Again Peary accompanied him, and in Greenland their eldest child was born, the famous "snow baby."

In all, he made eight expeditions. In 1889 his feet were frozen and seven toes were amputated.

He began his last expedition in 1909. Soon the natives began to get nervous and some had to be sent back. Many times Peary and his companions were in imminent danger of death from great cracks in the ice. When 133 nautical miles from the Pole he and four others started the final dash. When the Pole was actually in sight, Peary was too fatigued to take the last few steps. Sleeping for a few hours, he pressed on.

"The Pole at last," he wrote in his diary. "The prize of three centuries. My dream and goal for 20 years. Mine at last! I cannot bring myself to realize it. It seems all so simple and commonplace."

When he wirelessed back "Stars and Stripes nailed to the North Pole," he received word that another was being honored as the discoverer, and Peary had to prove his accomplishment. This he did and was given the full credit he deserved.

TAXATION DISCUSSION FOR NORWICH CITIZEN'S MEETING

Tonight, at 8 p. m. daylight time an open citizens meeting will be held in the town hall to discuss the tax rates of this and other communities throughout the state. Arrangements for this meeting were made by a general committee composed as follows: manufacturers, H. H. Gallup, J. F. Rogers, C. F. Wells; merchants, Abner Schwartz, D. T. Shea, C. E. Smith, Building and Loan association, Edward Crooks, C. V. James, E. O. Rodler; Rotary club, Grosvenor Ely, F. R. Smith, F. P. Welch; Lion's club, C. E. Carpenter, E. D. Disco, G. A. Finn, chamber of commerce, Rev. A. H. Abbott, H. M. Lerou, A. L. Peale.

The purpose of tonight's meeting is to give the citizens an opportunity to hear State Tax Commissioner Wm. H. Blodgett of Hartford relate some of his experiences in the course of his duty in other Connecticut cities, regarding real estate assessments. T. M. Russell, is chairman of a special citizen's committee authorized by a special town meeting in Middletown to analyze the methods used by the assessors in that town, ascertain the weaknesses of the system, and make recommendations to the citizens of Middletown what, in their opinion should be done to establish a justifiable tax assessment method for the town.

The recommendations submitted by Mr. Russell's committee were approved and accepted by the citizens of Middletown. Mr. Russell, who is president of the largest industry in Middletown, the Russell Manufacturing Co., has an interesting and instructive story to tell of the result of the analysis of the assessors methods and system for laying taxes.

The general committee, having this matter in hand, feels that the entire citizenry of Norwich, men and women, should become actively interested in this important subject and that this interest will show itself by the attendance at the citizens meeting this evening in the town hall at 8 o'clock, daylight time.

YANTIC FIRE COMPANY PRESENTS CLEVER PLAY

In the fire engine hall Thursday evening a well chosen cast of the Yantic Fire Engine company presented "A Regiment of Two," in a very creditable manner. The cast follows:

Arthur Sewell, a theatrical warrier — Charles Bentley
Ira Wilton, his father-in-law — Fred Manning
Harry Brentworth, Arthur's friend — Walter Hitcheon
Reginald Fudley, an Englishman — James Wells
Jim Buckner, known as the parson — Robert Lyon
Conrad Melzer, a plumber — Eugene Manning
Eliza Wilton, Ira's better half — Lois Manning
Grace Sewell, wife of Arthur — Florence Sterry
Laura Wilton, daughter of Ira — Marion Gibbs
Lena, a German maid — Mary Flynn

Synopsis: The scene was laid in the drawing room of the Sewell residence, New York city. Act I—In time of peace prepare for war. Act II—Off to the front. Act III—Behold the conquering heroes come.

All the parts were exceptionally well interpreted and Thumms' orchestra furnished music during the evening between the acts and after the play.

Specialties were introduced between the acts. Al Parrin, the negro comedian, took the house by storm with his song hits and dances and Frank Carberry was a favorite in his Jewish comedian specility act.

Robert Lyon as director deserved the credit that was accorded him by the members of the company and by the patrons of the play, who were able to enjoy such a smooth production by a well trained, well balanced company which will appear again tonight (Friday).

MOTHERS' DAY PROGRAMME BY B'NAI BRITH

A celebration of Mother's Day was carried out with an appropriate programme Thursday evening at Venice hall at a joint meeting of Rose of New England lodge, No. 898, and Auxiliary, No. 40, B'Nai Brith.

Max Hanover, master of ceremonies, opened a programme with a recitation upon "Motherhood" which was followed by the singing of America. A welcome was extended by Mrs. Betty Pasnik, president of the Auxiliary, after which original exercises upon Motherhood were conducted by the president, vice president and prelate. A tableau, Rock a Bye Baby, was given with a solo by Mrs. A. H. Manes, and the address of the evening was given by Judge Joseph G. Shapiro of Bridgeport who declared that the young man or young woman who honored and respected his parents could not fail in being a good citizen.

A reading, My Ma, She Knows, was given by Miss Madeline Thune, a violin solo by Dr. K. K. Markoff, accompanied by Mrs. Manes, and a solo, by Dr. Paul Schwartz. After an overture, Poet and Peasant, had been given on the reproducing piano an address was given by Max Hanover upon The Beauty of Association Among People.

A quartette number, with Dr. Paul Schwartz and R. Henschel soloists, Dr. Markoff violin and Mrs. Manes at the piano was followed by the Star Spangled Banner as the closing number of the formal programme.

Ice cream and cake were served.

JUDGE MARVIN HEARING EAST LYME CASE

In the superior court at New London Thursday before Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin the trial was started in the case of Herman W. Quandt vs. Charles W. Brockett, both of East Lyme. The plaintiff is suing to recover $1,159.98 which he claims is due him for labor and materials expended by him in performing work for the defendant.

BODY OF MISSING LEDYARD MAN FOUND IN LITTLE USED PATH

The body of John M. Gray, 73, missing since Tuesday noon, was found Thursday afternoon about 2 o'clock in a little frequented path through the woods about a half mile from his home in Ledyard Center. The discovery was made by one of Mr. Gray's neighbors, James Gray. Dr. N. B. Lewis, medical examiner for the town of Ledyard, was called and after an investigation pronounced death due to a fractured skull. The body was face downward when found and the indications are that Mr. Gray had fallen and fractured his skull by striking a stone wall by the side of the path. Death was no doubt instantaneous.

Mr. Gray, well known as proprietor of a general store which he had conducted in Ledyard, for years, walked up the road past his home Tuesday noon for about a half mile and then turned into a trail through the woods which he folowed for about a quarter of a mile.

A search was made by neighbors and friends following his disappearance and the local police were notified and asked to keep a lookout for him. Wednesday night Jacob Gallup called Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton of this city and asked the aid of the Boy Scouts in the search for the missing man. Scout Executive F. A. Benton with a detail of scouts went to Ledyard Center immediately but owing to the heavy rain were unable to make much headway in the search.

Thursday morning Scout Executive Benton, accompanied by F. H. Wyant of this city, an agent for the Connecticut Humane society, organized a further search. The search, in which scouts from Ledyard, Poquetanuck and Laurel Hill took part, was prosecuted for a considerable time and scouts from North Stonington were on the way to join the detail when the body was discovered by Mr. Gray. The family greatly appreciate the aid given them in the search.

Mr. Gray, who was a prominent citizen of Ledyard, was born Oct. 6, 1860, and had resided in the town for his entire lifetime. He was one of Ledyard's popular business men, having a genial disposition, making many friends who deeply regret his taking away. He was a member of the Congregational church and one of its deacons and for 35 years superintendent of the Sunday school which prospered under his administration. On Aug. 25, 1897 he was elected a trustee of the Bill Library association. He was very fond of music and rendered valuable aid to the choir, as its principal bass singer. His home was always freely open for social gatherings of the church when he drew a large gathering of both young and old, enjoyed by all, being financial help to the society. He was married to Flora I. Peckham, also a native of the town, who with three children, Mrs. Joseph W. Dean and John R. Gray of New London and Leslie P. Gray of Ledyard, survive him. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Erastus Gilbert of Ledyard. His death has cast a deep gloom over the town. He was always a staunch friend and supporter of the pastor and the sympathy of the entire town is extended to the bereaved family.

EVERARD THOMPSON DIES ON WAY TO JAPAN

San Francisco, May 1—Everard Thompson, 54, of New Haven, Conn., father of the Yale bowl and of the Sheepshead Bay speedway, died here today from pernicious asthma and heart disease. He arrived in San Francisco Tuesday and was to have sailed Thursday for Japan. He was taken ill in Chicago two weeks ago, but continued his trip west.

Mrs. Thompson, the widow, will leave for New Haven, Conn., tomorrow with the body.

Shortly before the above Associated Press dispatch was received by The Bulletin, a telegram had come to Dr. William Tyler Browne, of Broadway Norwich, announcing the death of Mr. Thompson. The latter was on his way to Japan as representative of the United States Rubber Export Co.

Mr. Thompson came to Norwich as Associated Press operator for The Bulletin, when this paper was located on Main street, doing good work for several years. With his two aunts he made his home in an apartment in the Jennings Block, on Laurel Hill avenue. From Norwich he was assigned to New Haven and in the course of time became editor of the Yale News. He wrote for magazines and got out a successful series of books for boys.

Afterwards he was engaged in literary work in New York.

Early in the world war, he entered the employ of the government, as supervisor of balloons at the field newly established at Rockville, Conn. There he showed such good judgment that he was sent by the government to Akron, Ohio, as inspector of the rubber for balloon use and incidentally became known to Firestone, of the tire company. The latter sent Mr. Thompson to China and Japan, and projected a trip for him to Siberia.

He had traveled in South America for the same company and had had excellent opportunities not alone to earn large salaries, but to travel and meet men of prominence in many countries. His latest commission—to go to Japan as representative of the United States Rubber Export company—had in it every promise of great financial and business success.

For a number of years Mr. Thompson had suffered from asthma which had left him with a weak heart; but his perseverance spurred him on to risk the long voyage to Japan.

Over ten years ago, at New Haven, Mr. Thompson married Mrs. J. Waldo Jewett of that city, who had accompanied him on his frequent trips and whose sympathy and encouragement had been an inspiration to him in all his work.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Thompson leaves an aunt, Miss Mary Thompson, of Boston, formerly of Laurel Hill.

How Mr. Thompson's services were valued in New Haven is indicated by the following Associated Press dispatch received late Thursday evening:

New Haven, May 1—Everard Thompson conceived the idea of building the Yale bowl, which now stands as a monument to his far-sightedness in accommodating the thousands of football enthusiasts who yearly make their way here to attend the games between the big colleges of the east. The old Yale football grounds, in the opinion of Mr. Thompson, were far too small to handle the crowds and it was his proposal to erect a large bowl, half sunk in the ground and carrying a seating capacity which inside of ten years would reach to 80,000 people.

Mr. Thompson's estimate of 80,000 capacity has been reached and the bowl the largest in the country, now proves inadequate to accommodate the spectators.

It was also through the efforts of Mr. Thompson that the Carnegie swimming pool at Yale was built.

Mr. Thompson is remembered in The Bulletin office as a genial, ambitious, skillful young man, faithful to his work, into which he put the same spirit and thoroughness which has helped make his later success in life.

JUDGE WEBB'S ESTATE SHOWS OVER $100,000

The will of the late superior court judge, James H. Webb, of Spring Glen, Hamden, which shows that the jurist leaves an estate considerably in excess of $100,000, was offered for probate before Probate Judge John L. Gilson in New Haven Wednesday.

All the personal property is left to the widow, Helen M. Webb, while the real estate is held in trust, the income going to Mrs. Webb, and at her death to be divided among the six children. Mrs. Webb, Paul Webb and Harry A. Webb are named as joint executors and trustees of the estate. The other children are: Mrs. Florella Webb Joslin of Hamden, Mrs. Lucy Webb Bell, of Washington, D. C., Arthur J. Webb and Thomas A. Webb.

APRIL RAINFALL FILLS TWO NORWICH RESERVOIRS

The rainfall in April gave a total measurement of 4.68 inches, according to the figures kept at the water department office, a good average for the month.

Both Fairview and Stony Brook reservoirs are now at full pond with a little water running over the flashboards, which is a satisfactory condition for this time of the year.

WILL QUIETLY OBSERVE 56TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Saturday will mark the arrival of the 56th wedding anniversary of Past Department Commander Orrin M. Price of the G. A. R., and Mrs. Price of 35 Lafayette street, who will observe the day quietly and in an informal way.

Mr. Price who is 79 years of age was born in Norwich in a house which stood on the present site of the Masonic Temple. He is the son of Captain Zalman and Elizabeth C. Price. His father was a steamboat captain. For many years Mr. Price was a millwright and carpenter, but he retired from active work about three and a half years ago.

COMMANDER ORRIN M. PRICE

In Norwich, December 6, 1861, he enlisted in the 13th Connecticut Volunteers and served as a sergeant in the company of Captain James J. McCord. He saw considerable active service in the Department of the Gulf under Generals Butler and Banks and was at the siege of Port Hudson on the Mississippi. Later he was in the Shenandoah Valley under General Sheridan and received his honorable discharge in April, 1866. He was twice wounded, once in the head and once in the foot.

Mrs. ORRIN M. PRICE

Mrs. Price, who is now 73 years of age, was born in Preston March 26, 1851, the daughter of Charles H., and Caroline Billings Gulle. Mr. and Mrs. Price were married May 3, 1868, by Rev. George Pryor. They resided in Bozrah for three years and then moved to Norwich where they have since made their home.

Mr. Price is a member of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., and at present holds the office of commander. Mr. Price is a 32nd degree Mason. Mrs. Price is a member of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Price have three children living, two daughter, Mrs. Carrie N. Edgarton of Hartford and Mrs. Elsie I. Loomis of Los Angeles, Cal., and one son.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB HAS MAY TEA PARTY

Thursday afternoon, the Catholic Women's club held a business meeting in the rooms of the Ladies of Columbus, with a large and enthusiastic attendance. The president, Mrs. James Dutton, presided. Plans for activities during May were discussed, arrangements being made for a cake sale.

At the close of the business meeting, the hostesses for the afternoon served tea, the tables being artistically arranged in yellow with white, with vases of forsythia and candles. Mrs. William J. Farrell poured, and was assisted by Mrs. George P. Madden, Mrs. John H. Cunningham and Mrs. John C. Kennedy. This social hour proved a real May tea party, greatly enjoyed by the assemblage.

PUT HIS KNEE OUT ON FISHING TRIP

David D. Disco, of 181 Washington St., has one knee in a plaster cast but is getting around on crutches as the result of his experiences on a fishing trip one day this week when he put his knee out while he was getting up from the ground after taking a trout off the hook.

Suffering excruciating pain, and using a stick for a cane, he was able to get back to his automobile with great difficulty and he was given medical attention as soon as he had reached the city. Later he was taken to a Hartford specialist.

READ PLANT'S LETTERS TO GREENWICH FOLLIES BEAUTY

New York, May 1.—Letters of Philip Morgan Plant, young millionaire in which he avowed an "undying regard" for Miss Helene Jesmer, former Greenwich Village Follies beauty, were read today at the trial of Miss Jesmer's $500,000 damage suit against Plant for injuries received in an automobile accident in November, 1920. The letters were written while Plant was touring Europe with his mother in 121.

"You don't know how lonely I am without you," he wrot and in another leter after describing the "blue skies of Nice," and the 'sapphire Mediterranean" he said, "I wish I was at the Palais Royal with you instead of here."

Other missives pictured him at Monte Carlo.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Oliver L. Johnson returned Wednesday evening from New York.

Mrs. Ambler Blackford, from Georgia, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Thomas H. Perkins, of Uncas street.

Mrs. Albert Lewis has left town for Boston, after a visit with her cousin, Mrs. William H. Palmer, at "Elm Hill."

Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Johnson are at their home on Washington street, following ten days' stay at Hot Springs.

Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins and daughters, Misses Elizabeth, Alice and Suzanne Higgins returned Monday from a trip to Washington, where they were entertained over the week end by friends of Former Congressman and Mrs. Higgins.

As guests of Miss Clara Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard H. Palmer, members of Apha Gamma Sigma Sorority, N. F. A., spent several days at the Palmer cottage at Point Breeze. Other guests were Miss Marion L. Bishop, of Norwich and Miss Barbara Smith, now of Newton, Mass, the party numbering fourteen.

Mrs. George A. Ashbey, regent of Faith Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., is receiving the names of members of the chapter who plan to attend the May luncheon, to be given by Lucretia Shaw Chapter, New London, at the Mohican Hotel, Monday, May 5th. Local daughters have received a most cordial invitation to the luncheon.

RICKARD WILL STAGE BOUT BETWEEN WILLS AND DEMPSEY ON SEPTEMBER 6

New York, May 1.—(By The A. P.)—Jack Dempsey will defend his world's heavyweight crown against Harry Wills, giant negro contender, in a 12-round match at Boyle's thirty acres, Jersey City, on the afternoon of September 6.

This announcement, which paves the way for fulfillment of a goal Wills has sought for nearly three years, was made today by Tex Rickard after he called off all further negotiations with Luis Angel Firpo, temperamental Argentine, who has announced his rejection of the promoter's $500,000 offer for battlement from the ring and rejected ties with Wills and Dempsey.

Wills already has signed with Rickard for a series of matches leading up to a title bout with Dempsey, while the promoter declared he had an agreement assuring him the champion's services, despite a statement credited in Los Angeles today to Jack Kearns, the titleholder's manager, that he had not yet made such arrangement. Rickard admitted that articles with Kearns and Dempsey had not yet been signed but asserted he would have no difficulty coming to a final understanding with them.

Before Wills steps into the ring with Dempsey in what observers believe would be another "battle of the century," however, he must hurdle two obstacles now in his path. The "Brown Panther of New Orleans" is matched for a 15-round contest with Bartley Madden, New York heavyweight, on May 12 at the Queensboro A. C., and also is scheduled, under Rickard's auspices, to box either Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight, or Erminio Spalla, Italian who holds the European heavyweight title, at Boyle's thirty acres, probably on June 21.

Ring experts are confident Wills will emerge triumphant from these tests, but expect him to meet his stiffest opposition from Romero, who will be picked to meet the big negro if he survives successfully his first American trial May 9 at Madison square Garden with Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, as an opponent. Spall, who was knocked out by Firpo in fourteen rounds at Buenos Aires recently, has not yet arrived in this country.

The matching of Wills and Dempsey is the culmination of one of the most unusual chapters in heavyweight history. Nearly three years ago the negro attracted attention by cutting a wide swath through the ranks of the division and established himself as a prominent contender. In July, 1922, his formal challenge to Dempsey for a title match was upheld by the state athletic commission and the two gladiators signed tentative articles for a championship match. But because no promoter came forward with satisfactory inducements for the contest, it hung fire and within the past year it also was charged political influence had blocked attempts to put on the bout in this state.

Rickard's abandonment of negotiations with Firpo came after protracted Homs, to Buenos Aires in an attempted dealings during which the promoter sent his personal agent, Juan to persuade the Argentine fighter to change his mind about retiring. These proved ineffectual despite Rickard's attractive financial offers, which were understood to call for more than $300,000 for a match with Wills and, if Firpo conquered the negro, $300,000 for another title fight with Dempsey.

Rickard said today he was now convinced Firpo would not return and had decided to eliminate the Argentine from his 1924 heavyweight program. He has instructed his agent to return to this country.

The Wills-Dempsey match, Rickard believes, will attract a gate of more than $1,000,000, more than half of which probably will go to the principals. The negro's arrangement with him about $200,000, while the champion's share would be close to a half. Rickard is undrestood to guarantee million.

The promoter also disclosed today that he will stage all his fights at Boyle's thirty acres this year in the afternoon to avoid the congestion and difficulties he has experienced in putting on shows at night.

FIRPO WILL NOT FIGHT HERE THIS YEAR

Buenos Aires, May 1.—(By The A. P.)—The announcement that Tex Rickard had matched Dempsey and Wills for a fight in September is viewed in sporting circles here as signifying not only that Rickard has definitely abandoned his efforts to induce Luis Firpo to return to the ring, but has eliminated any possible chance of his return under any other promoter, at least this year, as it is considered there are no other opponents for the Argentine heavyweight who would make a fight sufficiently attractive.

When the news was received of the Dempsey-Wills match Firpo was speeding northward by automobile on a business trip to various cities that will occupy several days.

SENATORS BREAK STREAK OF THE WINNING YANKS

New York, May 1. — Washington broke the winning streak of the New York Americans here today, defeating the world's champions by a score of 3-2, after they had won eight straight games.

Johnson pitched a strong game for Washington for six innings, but Manager Harris took him out after Ward and Scott tripled with none out in the seventh. Marberry intentionally passed Ruth in that inning, filling the bases, but retired Meusel. Meusel also fanned with runners on third and second in the ninth.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Captain, New York Giants

Eighth inning. Score 5-1 in favor of team in the field. Man on first base. None out. Ball is hit to first baseman.

How should first baseman play it?

In such a situation the first baseman should always make sure to get one man out. The score indicates his team has a safe lead and it should not take any unnecessary chances as a result.

At the same time, it must be remembered that the play to be made depends upon the way the ball has been hit. If it is a hard hit ball and he gets it on the first hop and has plenty of time to catch the runner going to second, the first baseman should take a chance of throwing it to second and then doubling the batter at first. Even then, it would be safter to touch first base first and let the runner on first advance to second as that puts two men out and makes scoring rather difficult.

The thing to remember here is not to hurry the play as an error would leave two men on bases and only one out. That might bring further trouble on the next play.

CUBS HAMMER MAYS AND MAY IN EARLY INNINGS

Chicago, May 1.—Chicago pounded Carl Mays and Jakey May hard in the early innings and defeated Cincinnati, 8 to 1, in the first game of the series here today. The extra base hitting of the Cubs was a feature, their 17 hits being good for a total of 28 bases. Vic Aldridge pitched in fine form, the visitors being able to bunch hits in only one inning, when they scored with the aid of Statz's error and a sacrifice. The score:

PIRATES BUNCH HITS AND BEAT OUT CARDS

Pittsburgh, May 1. — Pittsburgh bunched hits in the third and sixth innings and won the opening game from St. Louis, 8 to 7, today. Carey had four hits and a walk in five trips to the plate. A running catch by Maranville back of first base was a fielding feature. The score:

RICHARDS RECONSIDERS HIS ACTION IN RESIGNING FROM DAVIS CUP PLAY

New York, May 1.—Developments in the player-writer controversy between the United State's Lawn Tennis association and two of its most prominent players took an unexpected turn today when Vincent Richards, youthful international star, withdrew his resignation as a member of the 1924 American Davis cup team. The Olympic player-writer rule, however, has barred him definitely from the Olympic team, he pointed out. The request for reconsideration of his resignation was granted by President George W. Wightman of the U. S. L. T. A.

Richards who follows the example of William T. Tilden in resigning from the international teams asked that his withdrawal, already conditionally accepted, be reconsidered. Definite assurance from tennis officials that he was eligible to play on the 1924 team and that he would be given every opportunity to present his side of the case under the player-writer interpretation after it becomes effective next year, prompted his change of mind, he said.

This surprising move of Richards, coming after his bitter attack of the player writer rule and his denunciation of tennis officials for their action, pacified, to some extent, the turbulent waters that have surged around the resolution since its adoption by the tennis association.

In his letter to Wightman, Richards said he had received assurances from executives of the association that he was eligible to represent the United States during 1924, and that if any question should arise as to his amateur status during 1925 he would be given an opportunity to present his side of the case before a decision is rendered.

"For this reason," the letter said, "and because I believe it will be for the good of the game, I have reconsidered my resignation and ask to withdraw it."

Richards said he might not be able to play in the Olympic games because of the ruling of the Olympic committee against player-writers and because he had a contract with a news service to represent them at Paris. He asserted he had taken up newspaper work as a means of livelihood and felt he should not be considered a professional if he was assigned to report tennis matches and did so.

"I believe," the letter continues, "that the United States Lawn Tennis association is an organization controlled by men who have the best interests of the game at heart, that the will of the majority should prevail and that at the meeting when the player-writer interpretation of the amateur rule was adopted the sentiment of the majority at that time was conclusively proven by the overwhelming vote in its favor."

COACH ALDRICH LAYS DOWN LAW TO BULKELEY PLAYERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 1.—The Bulkeley High school baseball team will receive its acid test on Saturday afternoon at Morgan park, when the fast Naugatuck High school diamond tossers will invade the Whaling City to attempt to take the first fall out of the Orange and Black this season. A record of three straight victories, the amount of games that the Bulkeley team has engaged in so far this season, will either be extended to four or will be shattered in Saturday's contest. Both Naugatuck and Bulkeley have clean slates for this season and there is bound to be a blemish on either record after their game.

Naugatuck so far this year has gained five victories and had another team by a score of 9 to 1 when the rain intervened in the third inning. Judging by the past performances of the visiting team it looks as though the Bulkeley team will have a job cut out for themselves. Bulkeley is all the more desirous of gaining a victory over Naugatuck, because it will mean that the fight for the state high school title will be one game nearer its goal. Crosby High gained a victory over New Britain High last Friday and a victory for Bulkeley will mean a tie for these teams at present in the state standing. And that reminds us, Bulkeley will stack up against Crosby High on Saturday, June 7th.

Because of the importance of Saturday's game on Bulkeley's chances for the state high school title, Coach Robert T. Aldrich called a special meeting of the baseball players in room 14 this afternoon after school was dismissed. He laid down the plans that will be enforced for the leaving of the players that attend the annual junior prom at the Mohican ballroom on Friday evening. The players, Coach Aldrich said, would either choose going home at 11 o'clock from the dance or would have to remain away from the Naugatuck contest. This announcement comes like a bolt of lightning out of a clear sky, for every member of the team expected to attend the dance. Out of the nine players on the Bulkeley team, eight are juniors and this announcement will come as a terrific blow. Much of the gayety and enthusiasm that is manifested at the annual junior prom dances will be missing. Whether any of the Bulkeley players would rather stay at the dance until the end, which is one o'clock and with a possibility of extending the time limit until two o'clock, could not be learned late tonight. This important matter was expected to be decided some time Friday by the players that intend to attend the dance.

It is hoped in Bulkeley circles that the Bulkeley players choose to leave the ballroom at the time set down by the Coach and thus avoid all possibility of the team to lose this game.

CHAPMAN TECH TO HAVE BUSY WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 1.—Two baseball games and a track meet are scheduled for the Chapman Tech school athletes for the next four days. The first of the events is a baseball game with the Westerly High school on Saturday at Westerly and on Monday afternoon a dual track meet between Stonington High and Chapman Tech takes place at Morgan park. The third event is a baseball game with Essex High at New London on Tuesday. This makes a busy athletic program for the next three days for the Tech athletes.

The game with Westerly at the Rhode Island city on Saturday afternoon will be the second game of the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league series. The first Tech game in this league came on last Saturday against Stonington. Chapman Tech won this game and went into the lead with one victory and no defeats. Norwich Free academy went into a tie with the Red and Black by gaining a victory over Stonington Tuesday. This game with Westerly for the Tech will either mean that the top of the ladder will be theirs or whether they will go into third place in the standing.

The shifting of Courbois to third base from the outfield is a step that will save Chapman Tech quite a few runs on bunts and errors. Courbois is far superior to any other player to play at this position to date. Brown, who played at third base and the outfield when he did not twirl, will take his place in left field. This position will be permanently taken care of by Brown, when he is not on the mound. With the addition to Courbois to the infield, it makes this important defense a strong one. The outfield is also being strengthened by the addition of Brown. Duhaime and Cruise make up a good outer garden.

The standing of the teams in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league is as follows:

Chapman Tech	1	0	1000
Norwich F. A.	1	0	1000
Westerly	0	0	.000
Stonington	0	2	.000

CARPENTIER KNOCKS OUT TOWNLEY IN SECOND

Vienna, May 1.—(By The A. P.)—Four and one-half minutes sufficed for Georges Carpentier to defeat Arthur Townley, the British light heavyweight, in what was to have been a twenty-round bout here today.

The Frenchman knocked out Townley in the second round with a clean solar plexus blow one minute and a half after the round had started. Under the impact Townley, who several times before had been floored, doubled up with pain, crashed to the canvas and was counted out.

To some of the uninitiated Austrians the blow appeared to be low but experts of the fighting game seated at the ringside were of the opinion that it was one of the cleanest cut knockouts on record. The Vienna boxing association was appealed to against the manner in which the final blow was delivered. The association will render its verdict on the fairness of the knockout tomorrow. Meanwhile the purse money will not be paid. The withholding of the association's decision may cause a delay in the departure of Carpentier from Havre for the United States on Saturday to meet Tom Gibbons.

It was a prosaic lumberjack battle lacking science as far as it went, and its quick ending was a rude jolt to the spectators, coming as it did in less time than it took those in the high priced seats to count out their stacks of crowns to pay for the privilege of seeing what had been advertised as an exhibition of manly art. Although there was keen disappointment for awh

FARMERS AND FARMING.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

According to the department of rural education of Cornell university, it took 274 hours of labor to produce a bushel of corn in 1857. This included measuring, plowing, harrowing, marking, planting, cultivating, cutting, husking, and all the other operations. All of them, of course, were done by hand.

Now, by the aid of machinery, the time needed to produce a bushel of corn has been cut to forty hours.

According to the same authority the average acreage tilled by one man was 23 in 1840, while it is now more than 31.

Both of these and other changes noted are properly ascribed to the greater use of machinery. And there is a manifest tendency on the part of those digging out these statistics and those circulating them to brag a little over the showing.

While they do not say so in so many words, it is clear that they all feel like crying out, "Look at us pots swim!" They do say outright that there is no reason to doubt the continuance of the movement. What they self-complacently call "American ingenuity" will, they feel sure, continue to supply machines to take the place of the scanting labor-supply.

One metropolitan editor calls attention to the fact that, while the gross population has increased by fifteen millions in the past ten years, the number of household servants has decreased by 300,000, or one-fifth of the entire number formerly employed. Yet, this sage gentleman goes on, "with the aid of electric and gas assistants, more public laundries, hotels, restaurants, and factories preparing food, more hot-water piping, etc., the material comfort of the home has made a great advance in that same decade . . . .

It is unbelievable that the modern housewife would exchange the modern inventions that lighten her work for the help of a maid servant even if such a servant could be found."

Perfectly satisfied, you see. What is popularly called "optimistic" in regard to existing conditions and future prospects. On the whole, rather glad that housewives and farmers and similar folks are deprived of help on the theory that they're already getting something better, i. e., more machinery.

Now, there's small use and less glory in getting in front of the car of Juggernaut and trying to stop it with a palm-leaf fan. When King Canute had his throne set up on the shore of the North sea and set out to stay the incoming tide by a royal behest and a wave of the sceptre, he furnished a figure for all succeeding generations to point to as an illustration of the folly of "biting off more than you can chew."

You and I, old farmers, with memories running back to the days when electricity meant just lightning and nothing more, when there wasn't a tractor in the world or a gasoline engine in the dreams of any inventor, when even the mowing-machine was a "new-fangled" notion, and the sulky-plow unheard of,—you and I may not be from Missouri, but, all the same, we want to be shown. We want to have it made clear to us that these newer ways are really better ways. We have lived long enough to learn that new things are not, necessarily, true things. We have found out, often it, our own sorrow and loss, that change is not always improvement. We know, alas! that movement is not always progress; that it sometimes is going backward, not forward. We have observed, in our many jogtrips behind Old Dobbin, that the road goes down-hill just about as often as it goes up.

We recognize the stern logic of events, and the irresistible tendencies of human nature. We have no intention of imitating King Canute and trying to stop the flooding tide by setting up a throne at low-water mark and commanding it to stop right there. At the same time, it seems as if we might be allowed to put a camp-stool well on the bluffs and from it watch the young folks busily at work on their ramparts or outworks in the sands below.

Did you notice, in that quotation made a little above from the New York city editor's reflections, how he plumed himself on the fact that there are "more public laundries, hotels, restaurants and factories preparing food" than there used to be? How he made this a cause for congratulation?

You and I, who have all our lives known mother's home - cooking and home baking and home making,—what do we think of that? It has doubtless been the fate of all of us to eat, occasionally, at hotels and restaurants. Once in a while, as a change, it is a sort of fillip. We have also all of us been required, in emergencies, to eat canned and cartoned foods prepared in factories. They do well enough to tide over a sudden and unexpected call. But if any of us has ever, for his sins, been compelled for a month to eat three times a day at a restaurant, or live for a month on canned goods, he knows that they do not, never have and never can fill the place of the cosy home kitchen and the cleanly, wholesome, unadulterated and nutritious home-prepared foods.

It is easier to dine at a restaurant than to get dinner at home. It is easier to warm up a can or two of factory-cooked meats or vegetables than to cook the real things.

It is also easier to go to the devil than it is to climb even the most Devectable Mountains. But,—

Is it really wiser or better? Or more economical? Is it an advance? Or a decadence? Is it a thing to brag about? Or one to question?

Of course, our questioning isn't going to stop or even hinder anything. This generation seeketh after the soft snap. Its desire is unto easy ways, not right ways. It approaches all its tasks with the question, not "How well can I do them?" but "How can I do them easiest and quickest?"

Well, by those who find that sort of thing admirable that sort of thing will be admired. And belauded and bragged about. And pointed to as proof of "Progress."

But the man who sits on his contemplative camp-stool above the beach must, after all, be permitted to have his own opinions about it. They won't in even the slightest degree influence the conduct of the young folks with their busy work on the tide-swept sands below. But why should he turn lunatic because the majority has gone woozy?

May I call attention to just one other consideration suggested by that statement that it now takes only forty hours' work to grow a bushel of corn, as compared with 274 hours in 1857?

This marked decrease in the amount of labor involved is frankly credited to the wide use of somewhat expensive machinery which the producing farmer has to buy and pay for. Now let's look at the real meaning of this:

By the aid of this expensive machinery the farmer is enabled to grow a bushel of corn and put it on the market with only forty hours of labor.

And the market,—I quote from last week's New York papers,—will give him from ninety-four to ninety-seven cents for the bushel.

According to the eminent statisticians who are making this one of their boasts about our agricultural progress, the purse-proud farmer thus gets from ninety-four to ninety-seven cents for "only" forty hours work.

This is at the rate of almost two cents and a half an hour for his labor.

I'll leave it to any mechanic who is getting from ninety cents to $1.25 an hour if the farmer has any earthly right to complain? What does the greedy critter expect, anyway? All he has to do is to invest a few thousand dollars in a farm, pay a few thousands more for up-to-date machines and tools, and, presto! he gets almost two cents and a half an hour for his labor raising corn!

Can you wonder that our dear friends, the city consumers, stand aghast in horrified astonishment at his presuming to pretend that this isn't enough? What does the hayseed want? The earth, with a gold ring around it? Well, he isn't going to get it. Let him buy more machinery so he can produce his bushel of corn with two or three less hours of labor. Thus he might get up to fully two cents and a half an hour, perhaps even to three cents. Don't say he can't get the money to buy more machinery. Hasn't he a farm? It's already mortgaged? Well, what's to prevent putting a second mortgage on it? At two and a half or three cents an hour for his labor he'll have no trouble keeping up the interest. If he can't, then let the farm be foreclosed and turned over to some one who has more capacity.

That's the way they talk. Worse still, that's what some of them actually think.

There's an old saying that one half the world doesn't know how the other half lives.

If, by some impossible hocus-pocus, the two halves could suddenly be transposed into each others' places, it might be a good thing, educationally, for the survivors. But, say, the mortality in the first few months would be something startling. Just imagine about eleven million railroaders and miners and factory hands and shop workers and store clerks dumped down on eleven million farms and given their choice of getting a living off them at two cents and a half an hour or starving to death. I suspect there's be a tremendous and immediate advance in the price of cemetery lots!

But I'll bet a good cookie against a stale egg that those who stuck it through for a year would then go back to their old jobs with a very different idea about farmers and farming.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn.

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent., and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

YOU wonder why you never tried it before, once you get a brush into that smooth, rich Effecto Auto Enamel! It's so interesting and profitable. Just brush it on and a day or two later you drive out what looks to be a new car! A few dollars' worth of Effecto is all you need and often one coat will do. Free-flowing and self-leveling, Effecto dries quickly, without brush marks, to a smooth, lustrous surface that wears longer than the finish on most new cars. There are eight live Effecto colors for you to choose from. Come in and see them.

The thinking woman is not afraid of housework.

Does a Married Woman Look It?

WE often say that a man "looks married"—poking fun at wedlock. But too often we really can distinguish the married from the unmarried woman—and frequently merely by the condition of her hands.

Too many housewives believe their hands must remain red, rough and coarse-looking because they've so much cleaning and washing to do. But this is a mistake, as thousands of intelligent housewives know.

Red, coarse-looking hands are caused by using impure soap which irritates the skin. To avoid this ugliness you must choose your household soap with the same care that you choose your toilet soap. This is why so many thinking women insist upon Kirkman's Soap for all their household and laundry uses.

* * * *

KIRKMAN'S Soap is as harmless to the hands or to the most delicate fabrics as is the most exquisite toilet soap. It is free from lye to irritate the skin. It is made only of the purest and finest materials.

And there's no quicker nor more thorough cleanser than Kirkman's Soap.

For the sake of your hands insist upon Kirkman's.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

ASPARAGUS FROM SEED OR ROOTS

Asparagus is the most popular spring and early summer vegetable of the garden and the most permanent investment that can be put into the home grounds, once a bed is established either by planting nursery grown roots or from seed. A great many gardeners are growing their beds from seed because very often the roots purchased have been out of the ground so long that they lack vitality and little is gained. A year may be gained by planting roots, one-year-old size being preferable to the two [illegible] establish themselves more quickly.

A bed giving a fair crop may be established by these ways from seed [illegible] for a year and then select the best plants the following year. Discarding those which show [illegible] inferior types. Many gardeners believe it a good plan to wait to see which are the fruit-bearing sorts and planting only those which do not show berries, as the heavy berried plants become a nuisance with tiny asparagus plants coming up and establishing themselves in hedges and shrubberies where the seeds have been carried by birds before they are noticed. As they make deep root growth they are [illegible]

The Garden

Plant in rows [illegible] feet apart each way in bed per[illegible]ment bed or two feet apart in rows [illegible] The asparagus needs [illegible] and [illegible] should be [illegible] spring.

The Washington Rust Proof, a giant strain developed by the Department of Agriculture, is one of the finest varieties. Others are Bonvallet's Giant, Argenteuil, and Conover's Colossal. White asparagus is not a separate variety [illegible] deep [illegible]

IMPROVED GRAPES AND APPLES INCREASE TRADE

Each year adds to the income which American farmers are realizing from [illegible] crops which have been introduced from foreign countries and developed and fostered by the United States department of agriculture and the various state experiment stations. Some of these crops have been here so many years that we are inclined to look upon them as our own. Most of them, however, got their start in some other country.

Take, for example, the raisin industry of California which has grown to such great size in recent years. Varieties of grapes were introduced from [illegible] and dried out under Pacific coast conditions. For many years the department has maintained experimental vineyards in various parts of California. Within the last three years it has acquired titles to two vineyard tracts, one in Napa county, and one in Fresno county, which are exclusively devoted to the problems of grape culture in that state. Research [illegible] by the federal department and the state experiment station [illegible] others, have helped greatly in [illegible] possible for raisin producers [illegible] the product which [illegible] of our raisins during [illegible] month period in 1924. With [illegible] same time the United Kingdom took about fifteen million pounds.

The apple may be taken as another example of a fruit, not native to this country, which has been developed to a high state of commercial perfection. This is largely because of plant production and improvement, together with development of effective cultural methods, including the prevention and control of destructive diseases and insect pests, that it has been possible to build up an extensive trade in this fruit, a trade which is increasing greatly. The export of apples in the eight months ending with February, 1924, was 4,719,371 boxes and 1,698,114 barrels, a movement much in excess of that in 1923, according to the department of commerce reports.

Although the apple was not indigenous to this country, so far as the fruit of modern varieties is concerned those which figure extensively in our commercial trade are practically all American origin.

HELP FOR THE POTATO BREEDERS

The public now felt, for improved new varieties of potatoes adapted to particular sections of the United States, immune to wart and resistant to other diseases that afflict this crop has been a strong stimulus to plant breeders.

Many, perhaps most, of our present varieties have resulted from chance seed balls, but the work is now done in a more purposeful way by crossing flowers of plants possessing qualities that breeders desire to combine.

This has proved to be a difficult and uncertain undertaking, because potato flowers so often fail to set seed.

Many observations have been made with reference to the various aspects of fruitfulness, and numerous views have been expressed regarding the causes and conditions of sterility in the seed. No clearer outline of the situation with reference to the distinctions between the several types of sterility now known to be present in other plants, however, has been drawn, and no adequate survey of the varieties by studies of the viability of their pollen has been made. Investigators in the United States Department of Agriculture making a study of this problem, have just issued Department Bulletin 1136, which will be of interest and value to other plant breeders and investigators.

The results of this investigational work clearly show that two types of sterility exist: (1) Sterility for non-blooming and abission and (2) pollen [illegible] or one-sided impotence, giving loss of maleness. The sterility from nonblooming can be overcome to a large degree for seed-breeding work [illegible] varieties under cool-season conditions such as prevail in the [illegible] where the greatest seed [illegible] made. Nearly all varieties, if not all, are able under conditions of favorable [illegible] to produce seed balls in response to proper pollination with viable pollen.

THE WINDBREAK AS A FARM ASSET

Windbreaks on the farms in windy sections of the country are familiar sights. Trees grown for that purpose have been considered useful as well as ornamental, but according to Farmers' Bulletin 1405, a revision of Farmers' Bulletin 788, just issued by the United States department of agriculture, they have been found profitable [illegible]

This bulletin contains the practical results and recommendations that were derived from careful experimental work on the various relations of windbreak to the protected crops [illegible] farm. It will be especially helpful to those farmers who are considering the planting of windbreaks as well as to those who may be wondering whether their windbreak is worth while or not.

In what way does a windbreak protect the nearby crops? First, by [illegible] or breaking the force of the wind and [illegible] lessening or preventing me[illegible] second, by reducing [illegible] and thus conserving soil moisture. Effective windbreaks reduced evaporation in closely adjoining areas on the leeward side as much as 65 per cent. A more or less indirect effect is produced by the windbreak in some cases because of the higher temperatures in the daytime in the [illegible] which is a condition beneficial to some growing crops, particularly corn. Offsetting this advantage to some extent, however, were the lower temperatures found at night in those same areas, and yet an instance is recorded of great reduction of fruit losses in windbreak orchards during a freeze as compared with orchards not protected.

Windbreaks are often harmful to the neighboring crops, first, by using plant food and soil water needed by the crops, and second, by shading the [illegible] and thus reducing their growth. To determine, therefore, whether the total effect of windbreaks is good or bad, crop measurements were made of wheat, barley, and corn in the Great Plains region. In each case it was found that the increased yield in wind-protected fields over that in unprotected fields either equalled or exceeded the loss by shading or sapping near the windbreaks, as well as the loss on the area occupied by the trees. The conclusion was therefore reached that "under Middle Western conditions a windbreak whose width [illegible] does not exceed two or three times its height will more than pay for itself, regardless of the timber which it may produce."

In the latter connection, estimates [illegible] of the annual yields of timber per acre for some of the species of trees commonly used in windbreaks. Recommendations are also made by the author Mr. Bates of the Forest Service, as to the best species to plant in different sections of the country under varying conditions of soil and climate.

MILLIONS WASTED YEARLY ON FARMS

A concrete manure pit is a certain means of saving a part of the millions of dollars that are wasted annually in this country from careless handling of barnyard manure. Soil fertility built up and maintained by regular application of barnyard manure will allow this material to lose the greater portion of its value fertilizing elements by improper care or lack of care.

According to the Pennsylvania experiment station, the value of manure produced in one year by a horse is $41.67; that by a dairy cow $38.75. One-half of the value of manure is in liquid, consequently every precaution should be taken to save this part. The simplest manure pit is simply a watertight concrete box, which prevents the valuable elements of the manure from leaking away. This can be enlarged to suit requirements. For the average farm, a manure pit 20 feet wide and 24 feet long with an average depth of four feet will take care of the storage of manure from 20 animals. It should be made with a floor sloping toward one corner, in which the liquid manure can drain and from which it can be pumped out. One end should be open so that a spreader can be backed into the pit to facilitate the removal of the manure.

The fertility of the farm which has been preserved through long years of cropping, has been maintained through the careful utilization of all manures.

Closing business establishments in order that all in the community may attend the graduating exercises is the unusual custom by which Pasadena, Cal., honors its high-school graduates. More than 25,000 persons saw the pageant, following which the members of the class of 1923 received their diplomas in the great "rose bowl."

REFRIGERATORS

During the months of December, to and including March, there was a great trend toward Business Depression, due to the following cause—Seemingly a lack of confidence on the part of the retailer as to the future—this brought daily to the manufacturers, desk cancelations for merchandise ordered.

The manufacturers—though optimistic—had two issues to face—either dispose of their merchandise on hand—or—close their factories.

It was then that we foresaw that this lack of confidence—this depression was only temporary, and knowing from experience that it was the logical time to buy—we bought merchandise at less than cost of production. That our foresightedness was well founded is proven by the fact that this same merchandise would cost us from 35 to 45 per cent. more today than it did—but a few months ago, and knowing that May, June and July are months when homes are refurnished—we have placed ourselves in a position to give to the public the benefit of our foresightedness, which assures you a saving of from 35 to 45 per cent., by inaugurating the—

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PALACE THEATRE

Let's go is right. Let's go and see Jimmie Evans' Musical Revue—Let's Go—now playing at the Palace with a cast of 20 people including Norwich's favorite Hebrew comedian Tom Carroll, he'll make you laugh. Miss Florence Pippen violinist playing artistically, her brightness and pleasing appearance adding much to her numbers. She later leads the chorus in Jimmie Valentine one of the best numbers in the production. Dolly Jollimore is also a decidedly clever performer. She makes a hit in the opening number rendered in an admirable manner, and looked well in her pretty costume. While later she and Roy Gillis present a classic dance, Love Dreams, which is one of the big features, both being splendid, in her movements and a chorus of pretty smilers, singers and steppers.

Those who take delight in action, mingled with color and good acting, will find all they desire in The Bad Man, a First National attraction, which is now showing at the Palace theatre. It was directed by Elwin Carewe.

Not a little of the delightfulness of the play is due to three forces. Elwin Carewe, the director, Holbrook Blinn, the star, and Charles A. Sellon, who portrays the role of "Uncle Henry," and does all his "stuff" in a wheel chair. Carewe has even surpassed his work in Mighty Lak a Rose and The Girl of the Golden West. He has injected into this production a wholeheartedness, a thoroughness that is not usually encountered in a motion picture.

Enid Bennett, who will be remembered for her work with Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood, has the leading feminine role. Miss Teddy Sampson has the only other feminine role in the production.

Other members of the cast whose work is noteworthy are Jack Muihall, Walter McGrail, Harry Meyers, Stanton Heck, Thomas Delmar, Frank Lanning and Peter Venzuella.

The screen adaption is the work of John Lynch, while Finis Fox wrote the scenario. Wallace Fox was the assistant director and Sol Polito is responsible for the excellent camera work.

Extra added attraction the funniest of all two reel comedies Lonesome with Lloyd Hamilton, and latest Pathe Review.

Matinee daily at 2 p. m. Evening 7 to 10:30 except Saturday's continous 1:30 to 10:30 daylight saving time. Sundays standard time. Prices evening's 50c, 25c. Matinee's 25c and 15c.

If you miss this show you are missing a good one

RUSSIAN QUARTET

A delightful presentation of ... ca Russian music was given at the college auditorium last night by the Russian Cathedral male quartet. The members of the quartet have just recently come to America and are giving concerts to the public throughout this country in their native musical style which is unique and effective.

The quartet consisted of an arrangement of individuals with well trained voices and remarkable musical ability which is fundamentally essential in the production of good music. The vocal solos were as a whole well done and the harmony and voice quality of the quartet is beyond appreciative description. The high tones of the group were of a light, mellow, lyric quality and the lower tones were as great resounding organ notes with the characteristic of the Russian basso.—Daily Sentinel Tribune.

Tickets for this concert to be given at the community house Sunday are on sale at The Cranston Co. and Talking Machine Shop.

WAITING ROOM FOR BUS LINES OPENS MONDAY

The Connecticut Motor Transportation Company of New London announces the opening of a new bus terminal at 326 Main street to become effective on and after Monday, May 5. The owners of the three bus lines operating to and from Norwich have secured this waiting room for the comfort of their passengers. The room is the store formerly used by Mr. Waddington, the florist, near the post office. They have also secured the approval of the city government for a reserved parking space adjacent to the waiting room. The location of the waiting room and the parking reservation authorized by the city officials is a happy solution of a problem that has been studied for some months past.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Selling the Circus Tickets

Now let me see. Just as I ended the last story dear Uncle Lucky was singing at the piano, and I couldn't tell you what this story is to be about. But you just wait and read for something new is always happening to Little Jack Rabbit and his brave Uncle Lucky. It's a wonder to me, sometimes how they manage to get out of all their scrapes. Indeed, yes.

"The old dog didn't have to ask them."

Well, as soon as Uncle Lucky had finished his song, he sat down at the desk to write a letter to the Salvation Army in which he promised to give them as many tickets as they could use.

"I guess they can dispose of a thousand," mused the old gentleman rabbit. "Every bunny in Rabbitville will buy one, and I'll get my cousin, John Hare at Bunnybridge to help. The Salvation Army deserves every penny. They are always doing good."

In a few days Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit drove down to the depot to see if the carload of tickets had arrived from the printerman. Sure enough, it had. So the two little rabbits filled the Luckymobile and started off to the Salvation Army Headquarters. He did things in a big way for he was president of the Rabbitville Bank, you remember, and president, too, of the Welsh Rabbit Club.

"Now we'll take one thousand over to Bunnybridge and start a big campaign there," said Mr. President Lucky Lefthindfoot and off they went again, he and Little Jack Rabbit. By and by, on their way, they met the Old Stage Coach. No sooner did the Old Dog Driver see this than he pulled in his team of Billy Goats.

"How many circus tickets can you sell for the Salvation Army?" asked Uncle Lucky. "You ought to make every passenger buy one to ride, it seems to me."

Now the Old Stage Coach was crammed full of passengers. There was Mrs. Pig, with a yellow wig, and little Miss Hen, with her bright red comb, and a big fat duck with yellow slippers, and an old fat goose, with a pink sunbonnet, and a long legged frog with a silk hat. Last and least, was a tiny mouse, a calico apron tied around her waist with blue strings.

Goodness me! The old dog driver didn't have to ask them to buy the tickets. Before you could say "Winky, pinky," they all opened their purses, which so pleased the old gentleman rabbit that he stood up on the front seat of the Luckymobile and sang:

"Buy a ticket every day,
All the money goes to pay
For a dinner or a dress,
Helping someone in distress.
Hip, hurrrah and hip hurray!
Buy a ticket every day."

After that the two little rabbits drove off to Bunnybridge and in the next story I'll tell you what they did in that little town.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Cook—What are we having tonight, m'm?

Mistress—Why I just told you; clear soup, fillet of sole, cutlets, cabinet pudding.

Cook—I meant on the wireless, m'm. —Punch.

Short sighted lady (in grocery)—Is that the head cheese over there?

Salesman—No ma'am; that's one of his assistants.—New York Sun and Globe.

Diner—Hyre, waiter, bring me a spoon for my coffee.

Waiter—Sorry, sir, but we don't serve them—the music here is so stirring.—London Answers.

First broker — Dropping a million yesterday didn't seem to disturb Smallfunds a particle.

Second broker—No; he tells me his wife had a pretty good week at mah jong.—New York Herald.

"Why, Edna," said a mother to her little daughter, who was crying, "What are you crying about?"

"C-cause," sobbed Edna, "I-I started in to m-make dolly a b-bonnet and it c-comed out b-bloomers.—Chicago News.

How many children have you? a woman was asked.

Woman—What they used to call a baker's dozen, which makes me a very good baker's customer.—London Tit-Bits.

"Human wisdom is incapable of fathoming all the mysteries of this existence," remarked the ready-made philosopher.

"That's right," answered Senator Sorghyn. "In one brief investigation you may discover more things than you can hope to understand in a lifetime."—Washington Star.

Mother—Well, Johnny, I shall forgive you this time, and it was rather nice of you to write a letter to say you're sorry.

Johnny—Yes, ma. Don't tear it up, please.

Mamma—Why not?

Johnny — Because it will do next time.—London Answers.

A New Jersey woman adopted a clever but unavailing scheme to get around the rule of prohibiting dogs in railway passenger cars. She dressed her pet Boston terrier up in baby clothes, put a heavy veil over its head, and carried the "infant" in her arms. All went well until the dog barked just as the conductor was coming through the car to collect tickets.

Carrier pigeons were used to transmit the news of the progress being made by the dog team in the world's championship 200-mile Derby that started from The Pas, Manitoba. The pigeons were held at the fifty and 100-mile points on the course and were released one at a time with messages tied to a leg announcing the position of the racing teams as they passed the points where the birds were held.

Among the Bahuma tribesmen of Uganda the women are unusually fat, as corpulence is looking upon as a sign of beauty. Girls, before marriage, are not allowed to walk about, and are encouraged to drink as much milk as possible in order that they may become as fat as possible before their affianced husbands come to claim them. The fatter they are the greater the marriage dowry the parents receive.

The Harvard University library received a gift of a rare volume in honor of the ninetieth birthday of Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus. This book is Heylyn's "Cosmographie Containing the Chronographie and Historie of the Whole World," second edition, printed in London in 1657. John Eliot, apostle to the Indians of Massachusetts, at one time owned the volume and it bears his autograph and marginal notes written by him.

A record of coincidences is reported from Devonshire, England, concerning twin brothers born in 1851. When they were twelve years old the twins were apprenticed to a miller. They are still millers and are still working side by side. The brothers married on the same day and lived in adjoining houses. Each had ten children; one, three boys and seven girls; the other, three girls and seven boys. For fifty-seven years both twins have attended the same Sunday school and neither has missed a Sunday.

SOME OF THE JOYS

The throb of a motor beneath my feet,
And my hand on the wheel;
An old-fashioned road not of concrete,
And the country's wide appeal;
Say—twenty miles an hour. Slow?
Well, it's fast enough for me,
Some like it forty or more, I know,
But I want to really see.

There are children playing near a stream,
A staetly house on a hill;
A little dark wood that's like a dream,
So lovely it is, and still.
A neglected garden, a meadow, where
Cows are contentedly munching grass
And the smell of sod in the very air,
And the song of birds as we pass.

What's that? A shot? Well, I declare—
It's that back tire! How I could swear!

STATE FORBIDS ANOTHER GAS STATION ON BANK STREET, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 1.—Policewoman Mrs. June M. Cassidy, who received appointment to office two weeks ago, succeeding Mrs. Alice Hunt, resigned, reported for duty to Captain Charles A. Finney this afternoon. Mrs. Cassidy will be on duty from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 10.30 o'clock in the evening. Her principal work will be to maintain a watch of the streets for the conduct of girls who are liable to fall into ways of vice. Particular attention will be devoted by the policewoman to the conduct of both youths and girls at dance halls, especially at Ocean Beach, which many of the uniformed men stationed at the submarine base and the island forts frequent.

Henry J. Von Nessek, 55, died last night at his home, 167 Huntington street. Mr. Von Nessek had been in ill health several months, from heart affection. He was for many years employed as foreman at the Palmer Brothers' mill on Washington street. Mr. Von Nessek is survived by his widow, by two daughters and two [illegible]

An automobile owned and operated by Clifford W. Thurber, 39 Thames street, struck and injured Samuel Whipple, of Groton, last night on the Thames river highway bridge. Whipple is now a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a broken back. At the institution this afternoon it was stated that his condition is serious. Thurber was operating his machine across the bridge at a time when rain was falling heavily and a strong wind was blowing. Whipple for some unexplained reason was walking in the highway and not in the space set aside for pedestrians. Before Thurber realized the fact the machine was close upon Whipple and before the former could reduce the speed of the car the man was struck and hurled to the highway. When Whipple was unable to rise it was seen that he was badly injured and he was rushed to the hospital where the extent of the injury was revealed together with the seriousness of the injury. It is believed that the heavy rain and the lights of machines passing in the opposite direction from that in which Thurber's car was traveling caused Thurber's vision to be obstructed, and that he did not see Whipple until the car was upon the man.

Henry R. Griswold has sold a house and lot on Lincoln avenue to Catherine Sullivan.

Barnet Lubow has sold a building lot on Montauk avenue to Gertrude D. Gaffney.

Ralph H. Hewitt and Harry J. Hewitt have sold a dwelling on the west side of Huntington street to James F. and Catherine Connors.

John Grillo of Shaw street, Mrs. Lorn Taylor and infant of [illegible] street, Frederick Panciera of Waterford, Adam Dulbin of Jefferson avenue, Mrs. Nora Connell of Montauk avenue, Miss Agnes Rogers of Squire street and Miss Monica Matterson of School street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan, of Montauk avenue, who has been confined to his home several months suffering from asthma, resumed duty today.

Motorcycle Officer William T. [illegible] has concluded his vacation of two weeks and has returned to duty.

There has been a break in Gasoline Row as Ralph [illegible] has removed his sign from the conspicuous position it has been prevented by the Gulf Refining company from occupying on the state property to establish a filling station. On the first day of January Mr. [illegible] received a check for the sum the Gulf company paid him for the property in question. Mr. [illegible] took the check to the place. Then Mr. [illegible] around to see where he could establish his business. Today he is in search for a new place and has returned to the Gulf company's representative the $3000 deposited with him. He was a disappointed man, for he believed that $300 given him would compensate him for holding the property for the Gulf company. There will be no more options of that sort given in the vicinity of Bank and Truman streets. The location is the best in the city for such a station as was proposed, but the state authorities are so fearful of fires from gasoline that no permission to establish the station proposed would be given. The city of New London was not so particular and after looking at the site and the property unhesitatingly gave a permit.

Teamsters and motorists using North Bank street are complaining that the condition of that highway [illegible] is becoming dangerous as to [illegible] holes. They represent that [illegible] than once the money to put the street in condition that would make travel safe has been appropriated but it has never been expended on that highway. A petition that will contain the names of every resident on the street and many teamsters other than those will be presented to the council [illegible] becomes necessary to get [illegible] made. It was pointed out [illegible] pedestrians through [illegible] are spattered with muddy water from the highway when vehicles passed through the street.

David Ahearn, 83, dropped dead in the workshop at the rear of his home, 289 Vauxhall street this noon, death being caused by heart trouble. He was for many years employed on the pier of the New London line in this city, having retired from active labor ten or twelve years ago. Mr. Ahearn is survived by his daughter, Miss Margaret Ahearn. His niece is Miss Mary Kiley. Mr. Ahearn was about the house this morning apparently as well as usual although he had complained of late of experiencing dizziness. About noon he decided to go to the workshop, which adjoins the house to cut a piece of timber. He had entered the workshop but a few minutes when his daughter heard a strange sound as though something had fallen and going to the shop she found her father lying on the floor dead.

An automobile owned and operated by John J. Kelly, 380 Huntington street, was damaged last night and two other cars, both of which were motionless were also damaged, when the machine driven by Kelly hit one of the parked cars, causing the one struck to be driven against the other. Kelly was operating his car, a Davis sedan in a southerly direction. Just after the car turned from Bank street into Ocean avenue, the car crashed against the machine owned by William Collins of Dell avenue, which was parked in front of No. 29. Collins car was forced against the automobile of Thomas Ealahan, parked in front of the Collins car. All three cars were damaged. Kelly was brdered by Motorcycle Officer George Laboue to appear in the police court this morning and answer a charge of reckless driving. Kelly put in an appearance, but his case was disposed of by his being discharged without being presented.

Irene Kangesier and Hazel Sansoucie, the girls who ran away from the State Farm for Women at Niantic Tuesday night were apprehended shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, when Patrolman Thomas Lyden saw the girls passing through Bank street. They were taken to the police station, where they remained prisoners until this noon when Eben Strong, an employe of the institution came to New London and took charge of the runaways.

Mrs. J. F. Shepard of Canada, has communicated with the New London police requesting aid in locating her husband, who has reason to believe, is located in New London or this vicinity.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Clyde B. Getchell of 618 Williams street to be returned to the owner. The license was suspended two week ago, following Getchell being penalized in the police court of the charge of speeding on Mohegan avenue.

Mrs. Bridget Loftus, of 50 Crystal avenue, Mrs. Andres Mundwall of 188 Lincoln avenue and Ernest Champlin of Westerly, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Louis F. Lougee, 68, died today at his home, 14 Williams street from bronchial pneumonia from which malady Mr. Lougee had been a sufferer for a long time, although his condition did not become serious until a week ago. Mr. Lougee was a carpenter here fourteen years. He was born in North Parsonfield, Me., but removed to New London from Ashford. He is survived by his wife and four sons, Kilman, Leon and Kenneth Lougee of New London and Louis Lougee of Norwich, and by two daughters, Miss Esther Lougee and Mrs. W. H. Eldredge of this city.

Mrs. Alice Carter Holland, 83, widow of William Holland, died at her home in Niantic. Mrs. Holland had been a sufferer from heart trouble for several years. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harry Mitchell, with whom she had made her home.

George J. Kiley has sold the dwelling at 269 Vauxhall street to Clemento Tramontaro.

A Pierce Arrow car owned and operated by Frederick Martin, 70 Ocean avenue and a Ford touring car, operated by Waina E. Dickson of Waterford were in collision at Montauk and Ocean avenues this afternoon. Both cars were considerably damaged and the operators reported the accident at the police station.

Mrs. Barnett was fined after Mandel Zimmer this evening. She moved her household goods from 14 Willetta avenue to 4 Blinman street, but while she was away with the first load of goods Zimmer went to the tenement being vacated and took a dresser, claiming it belonged to him. Mrs. Barnett didn't have the same opinion so she asked [illegible] to recover her property of [illegible] Zimmer. When the police found Zimmer he had been advised of [illegible] for entering an apartment and [illegible] away furniture without the consent of the owner, so he returned the dresser where he found it. Now will come the question of [illegible] Zimmer will have to deliver [illegible] to the new home of Mrs. Barnett.

A woman so intoxicated she could not tell of herself was taken into custody by the police this evening at [illegible] the corner of Williams and Vauxhall street. She said she lived at Howard and Pink street.

PLANT SAYS HELENE GRABBED STEERING WHEEL

With an apathy born of nervous exhaustion Miss Helen Jesmer, former [illegible] and at one time declared by authorities to be one of the [illegible] women in America, [illegible] today in the [illegible] to the testimony of Allyn Plant, fosterson of Theodore Morton [illegible] Western Point, whom she [illegible] $500,000 for injuries received in an auto smash.

Miss Jesmer's left cheek now bears a disfiguring scar, and her right eye is totally sightless as the result of injuries received when an automobile in which she was riding with young Plant crashed into a tree on Pelham [illegible] New York, early in the [illegible] of Nov. 1, 1920. Plant, told Court Justice Gavegan and a jury that Miss Jesmer was responsible for the accident. Plant spoke in [illegible] and with the same set [illegible] countenance he has [illegible] the trial began.

He agreed with Miss Jesmer's account of their automobile trip to New Haven, Sunday, October 31, 1920. On the return he said they started with Chester Morehead in the back seat. At Norwalk they picked up three additional prep school students, Edward Hersey, Nolan Hussey and David Calhoun.

As Cos Cob, he said, Hussey and Calhoun visited the Cos Cob Inn about fifteen minutes.

A mile further on, he said, a bottle was produced and everybody had a drink of whiskey with ginger ale, including Miss Jesmer and himself. When the bottle was passed again he didn't take any because all the ginger ale was gone and he didn't like straight whiskey. From then on, he said, all except himself, "were taking swigs, singing, laughing and having a good time."

Miss Jesmer, he testified, was kneeling on the front seat beside him with her elbows on the back of the seat and trying to teach the boys a song then current in the Greenwich Village Follies, Snap Your Fingers at Care. Every few minutes, he said, she would turn around to speak to him and in doing so would bump into his arm, so he finally said to her, he testified: "Helene, please cut it out."

An automobile suddenly appeared, coming in the opposite direction and in the middle of the road. As he started to slow down, he said, Miss Jesmer "flopped around and grabbed the wheel." The car swerved and hit a tree.

Plant at first denied, under cross-examination by Thomas J. O'Neill, attorney for Miss Jesmer, that he had told the policeman who came up soon after the accident, he had turned to the left of the road to avoid hitting a car. Confronted with the officer, he admitted he had.

Another patrolman, William J. Flynn, testified the speedometer on Plant's car registered 55 miles an hour right after the accident. Plant insisted he had not driven faster than 20 to 25 miles.

Plant's right leg was fractured and he was taken to the Presbyterian hospital. Miss Jesmer testified that all the time he was in the hospital he telephoned to her two or three times a day at the New York hospital and wrote to her. He got out of the hospital a long time before she did, she said, and told her his mother was sending him to Europe. When he returned six months later, she testified, she noticed a "distinct change."

She said there was no more talk about his loving her or wanting to marry her. Through questions put by her attorney, Mr. O'Neill, it was disclosed that Miss Jesmer declined to sue Plant for breach of promise "on account of the way things have turned out," and said she would only sue him for negligence.

In her testimony before the court Miss Jesmer said that after she became acquainted with Plant they saw much of each other. Asked by her counsel, Thomas J. O'Neill, what their relations were at the time of the accident, she replied, "It was love, sir, between the both of us." Throughout her testimony she addressed the attorney with the now quaint term of "sir".

She said Plant had twice spoken of marriage, once in a restaurant on Long Island, when he asked, "What would you say if I asked you to marry me?" and again in her home here when she said he told her she "would make a beautiful wife."

"He said I was a flower with my feet in the mud, because I was on the stage," she testified. "He told me how good he thought I was and that I was gentle and quiet, did not speak loudly or try to be the life of the party."

On the way back from New Haven where she had gone with him to pay a Sunday afternoon visit to one of his friends, a freshman in Yale, she said, she asked him "at least three times to drive slower," the last time only two or three seconds before the crash; and that his reply the last time had been, "That's all right. I know every turn in the road."

Just before she took her disastrous ride with Plant, she said Alan Dwan, motion picture director, had offered her an engagement. When she was injured, she said, he took Jacqueline Logan, another former Follies girl, back to the coast with him.

Dwan and Alfred Cheney Johnston, photographer, several of whose studies of Miss Jesmer, made before the accident, were introduced in evidence by her counsel, testified of her former beauty and talent. Both said her present disfigurement had rendered her useless to the stage and as a model.

The trial continued Thursday.

Thomas McBroome as toastmaster called upon several of the guests, who responded with brief remarks.

The affair was one of ununsual enjoyment. There were stories old and new, with a number of familiar songs, in which the company joined, William Dealtrey being leader.

After many expressions of regret by members of the party, Mr. Clarke told in a few words of his business and social relations with Jewett City, in which he was highly appreciative of his many friends. He received as a parting token a handsome 32nd degree Masonic ring, in solid gold.

The guests present included: Earl E. Gilbert, Thomas McBroome, Fred H. Gilbert, H. B. Kingsley, F. D. Bailou, Norman B. Parkhurst, Olin F. Miller, George H. Prior, Frank C. Whiting, William Dealtrey, William T. Crumb, John H. Tracy, Walter A. Richardson, H. Gordon Willis, George Young, Everett H. Hiscox.

William R. Palmer has been appointed by J. M. Whittlesey of Hartford, state commissioner of domestic animals, dog warden for Griswold, Lisbon and Voluntown. The plan has been adopted of having this officer in connection with that of deputy game wardne, so that a check up may be made of roaming dogs who do damage to deer, birds and birds' eggs.

Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., extended an invitation to the night school, at their meetnig Wednesday night, to attend a reception next Thursday night in Assembly hall.

Mrs. George H. Prior was in Chicopee, Mass., Tuesday evening and addressed Hampden county convention of the King's Daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Gardner and daughter Evelyn go to Hope Valley today (Friday) to spend Sunday.

Some fine scores were made at the weekly shoot of the Rifle club Wednesday night. Only one possible was made, that falling to the eagle eye of D. Ballou. Mr. Ballou has the disconcerting habit (to his fellow shooters) of making these quite often. The scores: D. Ballou, 50; P. Geist, Jr., 46; O. Guthknecht, 45; A. Burke, 44; E. Gutknecht, 43; W. Webster, 40; N. Myott, 40; O. Gilbert 36; J. Davis 35.

Thursday night being the K. of C. minstrel night the monthly meeting of the rifle club is to be held tonight (Friday.)

EARTH SHOCKS RECORDED AT ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY

St. Louis, May 1.—Violent earthquake shocks were recorded on the seismograph of St. Louis university from 3 until 3.01 o'clock this afternoon. Brother Reuppel, in charge of the instrument estimated the disturbance was at a distance of 2,100 miles, in a southeasterly direction. This, he said, would be in the neighborhood of Porto Rico.

44" long, 18¾" wide, 21" high—Imitation walnut, lined with aromatic red cedar. Front lid makes it air-tight. Queen Anne design.

$42.50
45" long, 20" wide, 20¾" high—Queen Anne design. LANE hardwood American walnut finished chest. If you are interested in a genuine walnut chest, we would like to show and explain this exclusive LANE construction which is, so far as we can learn, the only hardwood chest manufactured that will afford absolute protection against moth larvae.

Interlocked corners that cannot pull apart. An important feature!

Full 50" chest, Queen Anne design, priced at $37.50 for this sale.

ALL of the beautiful LANE Chests in this sale are the pick of the country's largest manufacturer—fashioned from the finest red cedar that nature provides. Each has dovetailed panels, interlocked corners, damp-proof bottom and dust-proof lid. Each is absolutely moth-proof, and in every little detail is built to withstand the wear and tear of generations.

Consider, too, the remarkably low price and the convenient terms this great sale offers you. There never was a more favorable opportunity to get just the kind of cedar chest you have always wanted. All the finest styles are here in a great variety of sizes—window seats, hope chests, period designs—as beautiful as they are serviceable. To match your furniture some styles are finished in enduring imitation of walnut or in the genuine hardwood as preferred. In any one of them your furs and woolens and the daintier apparel you wear from day to day can be kept absolutely clean and safe.

Large 48-in. chest
specially priced for this week at $18.75

48" long, 19" wide, 19" high. This is a full 48" Chest (not the small size ordinarily advertised to attract attention). Queen Anne design, beautifully decorated with cedar and copper trimmings, one that will beautify your bedroom and which is large enough to provide protection for all your treasures. This chest would be an exceptional value at a much higher price.

$1.00 brings any chest to your home

BALANCE, one dollar a week, or in any reasonable payments you may wish to make. These easy terms put a cedar chest within reach of everyone, particularly the young girl at school or working who has been kept from owning one by the thought of immediate payment.

Our complete assortment shows remarkably low prices for such unusually roomy, high-class chests. You'll immediately notice that these are not the small skimpy chests frequently advertised by some stores for sales purposes. We can assure you that the values all along the line are out of the ordinary. Another big thing to be said about these LANE Cedar Chests is that no matter what price you pay or what style and size you select you get the same high order of workmanship and finish in each.

This is because all LANE Cedar Chests are built to unvarying standards. For instance, only that genuine red cedar heartwood which has been hand-sawed and dry kilned to bring out its beautiful graining and keep in the protective cedar oils is used. Panels are so joined as to prevent them from pulling apart. Corners are doubly interlocked. Lids are specially constructed and they have a dust strip which is found only in the LANE. Bottoms are finished and painted so that dampness cannot seep in. Yale lock on each.

LANE CEDAR CHESTS

Certainly you will want one. Come see them while the stock is still complete.

WESTERLY

Having served for thirty-three years as manager of the American Thread company's plant in Pawcatuck, William Clark of 42 Elm street, Westerly, announced his retirement May 1st. His successor is Andrew W. Bell superintendent under Mr. Clark's management for two years.

Official announcement of his retirement and Mr. Bell's promotion was made Thursday morning by Mr. Clark. His resignation and the appointment of his successor, which was approved recently by the board of directors in New York took effect May first.

For a year or more Mr. Clark has been making preparations to step aside and let a younger man relieve him of the cares and responsibilities connected with th emanagement of such a big industrial enterprise. His decision to retire was hastened somewhat by a recent illness, which has necessitated his absence from the plant for practically a month, during the greater part of which time he has been in Luke's hospital, New York.

The retiring manager and his brother, Robert K. Clark, learned the thread manufacturing business under their father, the late William Clark, for 42 years manager of the Clark O. N. T. Co. at Newark, N. J., and Paisley Scotland. In 1891 William Clark and his two sons organized the William Clark company in Westerly and erected the local mills, which seven years later were taken over by the American Thread company as a branch of that corporation. The younger William Clark had charge of the plant under the original ownership and was retained as manager by the American [illegible]

Mr. Bell, Mr. Clark's successor, came here as superintendent two years ago after many years of service in the mills of the American Thread company at Holyoke, Mass., where he started as a boy in 1897 and worked his way up through various stages of promotion. In 1909 he was made overseer and ten years later became assistant superintendent, which position he held for three years prior to April, 1922, when he was transferred to Westerly and promoted to the superintendency of the local mills. It is a coincidence that his father, Robert K. Bell, was a brother of William Clark of this town. The former has been the overseer Thread company's agent in Mexico during the great part of the time since he left Westerly, more than [illegible] years ago.

The annual meeting of Westerly Hospital society, held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly hall of the Wilcox Memorial and Public Library was called to order by President Everett E. Whipple. The secretary-treasurer's report and the committees. The report of the nominating committee, Rev. William F. Wilson, A. A. Palmiter and Mrs. La Clede Woodmansee was made and officers were elected the following officers. Miss Lillian Thomas, making report for the committee and also acting as secretary pro-tem of the meeting: president, Everett E. Whipple; first vice presidents, N. Henry Langhear; second vice president, Albert P. Pendleton; recording secretary, Mrs. Ella Burdick; corresponding secretary, Miss Lillian Thomas; treasurer, Miss Gertrude B. Foster. Executive committee, the officers and Mrs. Ella Hancock and Albert E. Barber. Membership committee, Rev. S. Wilson, Mrs. E. M. Foster, Mrs. Ella Hancock and Mrs. La Clede [illegible]. Program committee, Miss H. Louise Ayers [illegible] Wilcox. Publicity committee, Arthur M. Mills, Basil Wood and F. Stewart Green. Auditing committee, Miss Marie Zapp and Miss Lillian Thomas.

After the conclusion of the business session Mrs. William C. Smith read a paper on "Connecticut Heroines of the Revolution."

Births recorded in the Westerly health officer's office for April were given in number, as follows:

April 5—Angenetta Mary, daughter of Natale and Mary Farraro Fusalo.

April 5—Agnes Catherine, daughter of Wilbur Earl and Edna Vincent Earl.

April 6—Ralph, son of Nicholas and Rosa Pascendo Verzillo.

April 8—Ethel Amy, daughter of Alfred and Amy Ethel Palmer.

April 9—[illegible], daughter of Sam and Dorothy Tozier.

April 10—Rodolfo Alfonzo, son of Nicholas and Immacolata di Agostino.

April 13—Guiseppe Santo, son of Angelo Paola and Rosolia Lombardengi.

April 16—Elsie Mae, daughter of [illegible] and Lillian G. Greene.

April 17—Gertrude Edith, daughter of [illegible] and Elsie Lepper Schwab.

April 18—Constance, daughter of [illegible] George and Lydia Cruickshank Wright.

April 22—Grace May, daughter of James and Margaret McGrogan Tellow.

April 24—[illegible] Roland, son of Frank [illegible] and Leonie Ferrigno.

April 25—Chester Raymond, son of [illegible] and Mable E. Baker York.

April 26—Marion Louise, daughter of Alfred Thurman and Mary Emily Thornton Potter.

April 27—Lawrence, son of Lawrence and Muriel Tatoon Wilcox.

MYSTIC

The meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Madge Nickerson, on Pearl Street, was in charge of Superintendent of Parlor Meetings, Mrs. Gurdon Allyn. The opening song, "The March of Allegiance" was followed by devotional exercises. A solo, "Some Glad Day," was sung by Mrs. Elwood Lathrop, and preceded a recitation, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," by Miss Marguerite Nickerson. After a solo, "For You," sung by Mrs. Margaret Harrison, accompanied by Mrs. Elwood Lathrop, Mrs. Augusta Cutler gave a report of the meeting of the Women's National Law and Enforcement League, held in Washington, D. C., April 10 and 11, which she attended as a delegate from the Connecticut W. C. T. U. Various speeches of speakers at this gathering in Washington were read as follows: Mrs. W. L. Rollinson read the speech of Harlan P. Stone, the new attorney general. Mrs. Cutler read the address of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Boston; and Mrs. W. H. Lamb read part of the address of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general. Mrs. W. H. Lamb gave a report of the meeting held in Norwich last week, at which Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, of Iowa, national director of Christian citizenship, was the speaker, and spoke of the address of Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, of Hartford, state president of the W. C. T. U., in which she urged the members to purchase the book, "Save America," which was recently presented to the Community House. Additional copies of this book have since been presented to the Mystic Oral School for the Deaf and the Mystic Academy. A short address relative to the work of the W. C. T. U. past and present, and the possibilities of the future, was given by Rev. J. C. Sallis, pastor of the Methodist Church. The program closed with a solo, "Beautiful Land of My Dreams" by Mrs. Margaret Harrison. A social hour followed and refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter, Miss Marguerite Nickerson. There were 21 present.

Mrs. Jennie Ryley has been the guest of the Misses Denison on Broadway for several days.

Rev. J. F. Beauchamp has returned from Philadelphia where he attended the convention of Episcopal clergymen.

Miss Jessie Smith has returned to her home in Westerly after a visit with Miss Edith Gaskell.

In the death of Benjamin F. Burrows, Mystic has lost another of her leading business men. He was actively interested in the commercial life of the village and has helped many a man to get ahead in a business way, and in the conduct of his own business he was very considerate of those who were unfortunate or possessed of only a small portion of worldly goods many a poor family having been kept warm in winter weather through his generosity. Mr. Burrows was a member of Union Baptist Church, Charity and Relief Lodge, No. 75, A. F. and A. M., Stonington Lodge, No. 26, I. O. O. F., and Mystic Hook and Ladder Co.

The date of the annual field day meet of the Broadway School and Mystic Academy has been set for June 13th, and those who are to participate in the events on that day are now in training.

The bearers at the funeral of Christopher Morgan Wednesday afternoon were: Active bearers, Henry B. Noyes, George B. Greenman, Frank Bindloss and Arthur Berry of Mystic, William Brooks of New York, Matthias Baker, Providence and Raymond M. Holmes of New York; Honorary bearers, George Wilcox of Meriden, George Rockwell of Waterbury, Walter Hayden, Waterbury, W. N. Feeler, Waterbury, William Palmer, Hingham, Mass., William Beckwith, Judge F. H. Hinckley, John W. MacDonald, C. E. Wheeler, Frank Buckley and A. W. George, of Mystic. Another case of scarlet fever has developed here, the patient being Gordon Grimes, brother of Dorrance A. Grimes, who already has the fever. While no general quarantine order for the village has been issued by the health officer, Dr. C. F. Congdon, a number of parents are keeping their children home from school, and it has been deemed best to discontinue the sewing classes at Mystic Community House.

GALES FERRY

A very attractive party and dance was given in the Country club house Saturday evening, under the direction of Mrs. Avery Main, in honor of the approaching wedding of Miss Jessie Ruhler, formerly of Troy, N. Y. and Samuel L. Lester, of Ledyard. The clubhouse was artistically decorated, the color scheme being pink and white. Festoons of pink and white crepe paper were draped from the center of the room, falling from a large bell of pink and white. Laurel added to the effective arrangement for mantel and gardinieres.

Mr. Lester is the son of Edward E. Lester of Ledyard and the late Mrs. Lester, and served in the World war first at Fort Wright and afterwards he joined the 68th regiment, and went to France, where he served as lieutenant and instructor for six months.

Miss Ruhler is the sister of Mrs. Louis Jennings of the Stoddard district and recently came to Mrs. Jennings home from Hartford. The surprise fair was arranged as a miscellaneous shower for Miss Ruhler by Mrs. Main. Dancing was enjoyed until 10 o'clock. Then the guests were seated and Mr. Lester and Miss Ruhler were escorted by Mr. and Mrs. Main to the center of the room near which a table had been placed laden with gifts of linen, cut glass, aluminum ware and numerous other articles. A string from the bell was pulled and they were showered with confetti from the bell. Sandwiches, pickles, cake, macaroons and coffee were served. Dancing was then resumed until 11.45 o'clock. One hundred and twenty-five guests were present, coming from Troy, N. Y., Providence, Norwich, Mystic, Ledyard, Poquetanuck, Fort Point and Gales Ferry. Those assisting Mrs. Main in the decorations were Mrs. Nelson Parker, Mrs. Alton Stoddard, Mrs. Wallace Norcross and Mrs. Joseph Davison. Music was furnished by a four-piece orchestra from Norwich, with Charles Fish, also of Norwich, prompter.

The business meeting of the Village Improvement association was held on Monday evening in the Country club house, the president, Rev. Allen S. Bush, presiding. The minutes of the last meeting, as read by the secretary, Mrs. Everett Noyes, were approved. Walter M. Buckingham, treasurer, reported for the chairman of the landscape gardening, D. R. Povey in the absence of the latter, that some work had been accomplished along that line, shrubs of sweet fern and also of forsythia, had been planted and places for trees staked out. Attention was called by Mr. Buckingham to the fallen condition of the fence, on the embankment east of the railroad station, and as a matter of protection from accidents, Mr. Buckingham was asked to write the New Haven Railroad company and call their attention to the need of repairs.

Miss Laura A. Perkins asked for the continued interest of the association in the work of the Juniors. It was voted to hold these meetings on daylight saving time for the summer season. Miss Perkins and Fletcher Wilson of Montclair, N. J., were named a committee to decide the matter of a quotum for the meeting.

Mrs. Merritt Skilton of East Northfield, Mass., and her sister, Miss Mildred Scranton, of Durham, arrived on Tuesday, to visit their aunt, Miss Susan Mathewson.

Mrs. Minor Moxley entertained Mrs. S. H. Wright and Mrs. Ryan of Groton, Tuesday.

There was no afternoon session of the Gales Ferry school Monday as the teacher, Mrs. Winifred Crepeau, attended a meeting of the teachers of the town at Ledyard Centre.

Mrs. Franklin H. Brown of Norwich was a guest at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Aplin, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George James and sons, Vincent and Lester, and a friend motored from River Point, R. I., and spent the week end, with Mr. James' brother, E. A. James at Allyn's Point.

Mrs. W. D. Allen and daughter, Miss Gertrude Allen, of Allendale, Long Cove, accompanied by Mrs. R. Irving Collins and children of Groton motored Sunday to Saybrook where Mrs. Collins and children visited her brother's family, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Allen, and the remainder of the party went to New Haven to visit Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth M. Allen.

Dudley C. Perkins was a guest on Tuesday night at the home of his brother, Rowland H. Perkins in New London.

Amos P. Gray of New London is a guest for a few days of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Woodward, at the M. E. parsonage.

Miss Lucy Lester, teacher, at Pendleton Hill, is home to attend the dance given at the club house here for Miss Jessie Ruhler, soon to become the bride of Miss Lester's brother, Samuel L. Lester.

Robert Miller, radio operator on the S. S. Newton, left Tuesday evening to resume his duties, after a few days' visit at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Andrew P. Miller.

TEST OF VIBRATION OF PLANE WHILE SPEEDING

New Haven, May 1.—The vibration of a speeding airplane is one-half that of an automobile travelling 30 miles an hour on concrete, according to tests made here by Lieutenant F. L. Parks, of the United States tank troops, now studying at Yale university, who has announced the result of a recent flight to test the amount of vibration and the severity of "bumps" that an airplane must withstand while in the air. The measurements of the vibration were made with the aid of a seismograph adapted for the purpose by Professor E. H. Lockwood, of the Mason laboratory of mechanical engineering, at Yale.

The plane, sent from Mitchel field by the war department, especially for the tests was piloted by Lieutenant L. M. Elliott. The plane left Naugatuck field for Boston bucking a headon wind and under these conditions the seismograph registered a greater vibration than it had while circling over the field protected from the wind. This was caused by the greater force of the wind blowing in puffs against the wings of the plane, making it up suddenly between gusts and then abruptly lifting it on another puff, explained Lieutenant Parkes. The flight to Boston was made in ninety minutes.

The return trip made with the wind from behind, showed that the vibration was one-half that of the first lap of the trip or one-quarter the normal vibration of automobiles.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically, from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents and instead, following the advice often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 1—Led by the oil shares, stock prices moved to higher ground in today's curb market under the stimulus of a reduction in the local federal reserve rediscount rate. Buying of the oils was also influenced by more encouraging quarterly earnings reports.

Standard Oil of Indiana, the leader in point of activity, closed 1 1-8 points higher at 59 1-4. Prairie Oil and Gas jumped six points while gains of about a point or more were scored by Standard Oil of Kentucky, Vacuum, Salt Creek producers and several others. Woodley Petroleum established a new high record for the ... of current trading.

Industrial shares closed irregularly higher with most of the popular issues such as Glen Alden coal, Kresge stores, Lehigh Power securities and Gillette Safety Razor showing signs of a point or more on the day.

Activity of the copper shares was again the feature of the mining list, Kay standing out in that group.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 1—With purchases of wheat here for mills the best in some weeks and with new private crop estimates bullish, the wheat market today scored a moderate advance. Prices closed firm, 1-4 a 3-8 to 3-4 a 7-8 net higher, May 1.03 7-8 to 1.03 7-8 a 1.04 and July 1.05 7-8 to 1.06. Corn finished at 1-8c off to 1-4c gain, oats at 1-4c decline to 1-8c advance and provisions showing a rise of 2c to 10c.

Notwithstanding that deliveries on May contracts today, 3,851,000 bushels were a good deal heavier than had been expected, the market displayed an upward tendency soon after the opening, and although prices then for a while became easier the advance was resumed in the last hour, with considerable buying of July here against sales in Winnipeg. Sentiment was more or less influenced by word that millers buying in Chicago aggregated 400,000 bushel and by gossip that 1,000,000 bushels of the wheat delivered in Chicago on May contracts would be shipped to eastern mills.

Besides, according to a leading crop expert, the domestic spring wheat acreage this season has been reduced to 16,400,000 acres, the smallest total since 1897. Other unofficial crop figures issued today suggested a domestic winter wheat yield of 560,000,000 bushels about 12,000,000 bushels less than was harvested in 1923. Moreover reports were at hand that Canadian and Argentine offerings at Liverpool were dearer, that Germany was in need of much wheat, and that the 1923 wheat crop in France had been greatly over estimated.

In corn as well as in wheat, large deliveries on May contracts failed to have much effect, as the grain went into strong hands. Oats met with good demand on all setbacks.

An advance in hog values gave the provision market a lift. Provision deliveries were considered small.

AMENDMENTS TO POSTAL SALARY BILL

Washington, May 1.—Increased compensation would be granted third and fourth class postmasters and rural mail carriers under amendments to the postal salary bill adopted today by the house post office committee.

One amendment approved would give third class postmasters numbering 10,900, a flat increase of $100 a year in salary and would provide for a scale of clerk hire allowances ranging from $240 to $1,600 a year, based on receipts of the office and the pay of the postmaster.

An aggregate increase in pay estimated at $1,900,00 would be authorized for fourth class postmasters under another amendment, the amount to each to be based on the amount of stamp cancellations. Each postmaster would be entitled to 160 per cent of the cancellations instead of the present 145 per cent.

In addition to their flat salary of $1,800 a year, rural carriers, the committee decided, should receive an allowance of four cents a mile. This, it was estimated, would average about $300 increase for each carrier. The house and senate sub-committee which framed the bill recommended an allowance of three cents a mile.

The house committee today also voted to increase the annual pay of first grade messengers, laborers and watchmen in the postal service from $1,400 to $1,500 and to fix the pay in the second grade at $1,600.

The committee hopes to complete redrafting of the bill tomorrow.

Provisions dealing with railway clerks remain to be disposed of as does an amendment by Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, to provide a time differential for night work. It also is probable he will seek another vote on his amendment to increase to $400 the additional compensation for clerks, carriers, supervisors and inspectors, as against the $300, carried in the bill.

Robert E. Hughes, 26, magazine writer and former publicity man for William S. Hart, motion picture actor, shot and killed himself in his room at a Hollywod hotel.

Barrel apples are moving along rather slowly on most markets at present, with prices well sustained. Boxed apples are in moderate supply on the markets here and are working out at lower figures. Celery is ruling a little higher at present, the outlet for this product is satisfactory. Lettuce is also moving along well, especially the supply of native, which is increasing daily. A slight decline in the price is beginning to prevail. At present a stronger feeling is prevailing along the potato markets and a higher market is expected. New onions are inclined to lower the price of the old stock.

Lard markets are steadier this week as well as the lamb markets.

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF ATTACHED AS TRAITOR

Berlin, May 1.—(By the A. P.)—Count Von Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States, who is a candidate for re-election to the reichstag on the democratic ticket, is being violently attacked by his opponents as having been a traitor to the German people. It is declared that von Bernstorff showed unwillingness to support harbor strikes in American munitions ports during the war, fomented by a German agent, Herr Jahncke, who is a nationalist candidate for the reichstag from the Halle-Merseburg district of Saxony.

One Of Foremost Canadian Women

COPYRIGHT KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Mrs. Arthur Murphy, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, who is one of the foremost women of Canada, being an authoress, a justice and a well-known leader in different activities. She is the first Canadian woman to occupy a judicial post, being the Magistrate of the Juvenile Court, Calgary. Her writings are published under the nom de plume of "Janey Canuck," and have received widespread approbation. She is one of the few Canadian women to wear the decoration of Lady of Grace of John of Jerusalem, presented by King George, for her war work.

60,000 BOYS PARADE DOWN FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

New York, May 1.—Sixty thousands boys, in non-descript attire, some on bicycles or on roller skates, paraded down Fifth avenue today in celebration of Boys' week. It was the greatest boy parade in the city's history.

Augmented by floats, flags, a troupe of mouth organists playing "Hail, Hail the Gang's all here," and 25 bands, the youthful demonstration of loyalty to city, state and nation passed the reviewing stand of Mayor Hylan and city officials. Crowds lined the avenue and cheered the antics of the paraders.

Heading the procession were Grand Marshal Colonel Byrne, of the Ninth Coast Artillery, his aides and John D. Mitchell, Jr., 14 year old boy marshal, who was recently voted New York's typical boy.

FRANCE NOT STRONG FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Paris, May 1.—Only two parties have seen fit to mention woman's suffrage in their programmes for the approaching elections.

The republican democratic and social party, one of the leading elements in the national bloc, wants the right to vote to be extended "progressively" to women, while the Christian socialists, who had but one deputy in the last chamber, have come out for female suffrage unditionally.

Judging from the strength of the parties the last chamber and the chances in the present campaign, the women are likely to have less than 40 votes out of 584 in the new parliaments for "progressive" suffrage, and only one in favor of granting the franchise unconditionally.

A request that President Coolidge direct the attorney general to defend th suits brought by M. S. Daugherty, against members of the senate committee investigating the department of justice was made in a resolution adopted yesterday in the senate.

WORCESTER CONCERN GETS $1,000,000 CONTRACT

Worcester, Mass., May 1.—The Osgood Bradley Car company has been given an order for 125 all-steel cars for the Pittsburgh Railway which operates the trolley system in Pittsburgh, Pa. The contract totals nearly $1,000,000.

The cars are of the central entrance and exit type which has been adopted as standard by the Pittsburgh company.

This order means a continuance activity at the big works at the S... mit for several months.

HARVARD MAN NOMINATED FOR CAMBRIDGE SCHOLARSHIP

Cambridge, Mass., May 1.—Russell S. Hubbard, Jr., of Milton, has been nominated by the president and fellows of Harvard college for the Charles Henry Fiske, 3rd, scholarship for study at Trinity college, Cambridge university. Hubbard came to Harvard from St. George's school in Rhode Island. He has been active in the glee club and was a substitute tackle on the varsity football team last fall.

RUSSIAN CATHEDRAL QUARTETTE

One of the greatest musical events ever given in Connecticut will be the concert of the famous Russian Cathedral Quartet which will sing in Norwich on May 4th in the afternoon and evening in Community hall. This quartet is recognized as one of the finest in the country and their singers sang for President Wilson in the White House as well as at the inaugural exercises for Governor Smith of New York, Senator Francis and other prominent Americans. The quartet comes with the recommendation of the country's foremost critics and the Norwich Chorus is the first of a series of four or five in this section. Program will consist largely of Russian church and folk music. Singers are Nicholas Wasilevsky (first tenor); L. P. Pavloff (second tenor); A. N. Grigeroff (baritone); and M. P. Bataeff (bass-profundo).

All of the members of the quartet have voices of ma... range. Don't miss it!

Tickets $1.15, including tax, at Cranston Co., and Talking Machine Co.

LEGAL NOTICES

THE GROTON AND STONINGTON STREET RAILWAY COMPANY

To Holders of the First Mortgage Twenty Year Five Per cent. Bonds due July 1st, 1924, and the First Mortgage Five Per cent. Bonds, Mystic Extension, due July 1st, 1926:

Your attention is called to the fact that the bond interest due January 1st, 1924, has not been paid, and that the Company is now in actual default under the terms of the mortgage securing these bonds. It seems advisable that the interest of the bondholders should be protected by placing these bonds in the hands of a Committee, and such action is especially important due to the fact that the principal upon the bonds secured by mortgage on the main line falls due on July 1st 1924.

At a meeting of sundry bondholders, the undersigned were appointed a Committee to take such action as may be necessary to properly protect the interest of the bondholders.

Arrangements have been made with the National Tradesmen's Bank and Trust Company of New Haven, Church Street, New Haven, and the Windsor Trust Company of New London, to receive the bonds of deposit accompanied by a proper order duly signed by the bondholders, and to issue therefor negotiable receipts. It is important that all the bonds with all coupons attached be deposited as promptly as possible.

Copy of order of deposit to be signed by the bondholder may be obtained from the National Tradesmen's Bank or Trust Company of New Haven, the Windsor Trust Company of New London, or from any member of the Committee.

The other, ... to limit capital loss deductions to 12 1-2 per cent., was rejected by the finance committee, which action was sustained by the senate without a record vote. Both had been approved by the house.

The Walsh inheritance tax amendment would allow exemptions from the tax for estates left to husband or wife of $50,000; to parents, children, grandchildren or adopted children of $10,000, and to others of $5,000.

WOMEN'S INTERN'L LEAGUE FOR PEACE AND FREEDOM

Washington, May 2.—A resolution demanding that all universities be endowed with special departments and chairs of "international relations and world peace," in addition to the existing ones of international law, was discussed today at the congress of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom but was referred back to the resolutions committee.

After opening speeches Miss Jeanette Rankin, who was the first woman representative in congress; Dr. Ethel Williams, of England, and Dr. Sarasowova, all advocating legislation making wars illegal, Miss Gildays Rander of England spoke in favor of abolition of conscription, capital punishment and militarist propaganda, and for the establishment of free trade.

Dr. Anita Augspberg, of Germany, favored a United States of Europe, but was opposed by Miss Dorothy Evans of England, who said that the United States of the World, and not merely of Europe, must be the ideal to be striven for by the Women's League.

Dr. Rosika Schwimmer, of Hungary, attacked the press of all countries as the prime movers of wars, saying "No war is possible if the press does not work up the people."

EMBARGO ON SHIPMENTS OF WAR MATERIALS TO CUBA

Havana, Cuba, May 2.—(By The A. P.)—The action of President Coolidge in forbidding shipments of arms and ammunition to Cuba, except such as may be authorized for sale to the Cuban government, was described by President Zayas as a great aid in breaking up the rebellious movement in Santa Clara province, and he predicted an end of the movement within three or four days. He then referred to President Coolidge's action as an "evidence of friendship for the Cubin government which is deeply appreciated."

At the war department, General Herrero, chief of staff, also expressed gratification and declared that the embargo "will be of great aid in suppressing the movement."

Both General Herrero and President Zayas declared the rebel activities are at present confined to a small mountainous zone near Cienfugos. The president confirmed reports that the government is using its warships to patrol the coasts in an effort to prevent possible smuggling of arms and ammunition to the rebellious elements and that he has taken up with Washington the question of ... airplanes.

RELIGIOUS BASIS FOR MEMBERSHIP IN Y. W. C. A.

New York, May 2.—The question of church affiliations as a basis of membership in the Young Women's Christian Association considered the most important problem before that organization was taken up at the eighth national convention today and resulted in a long debate between conservative and radical factions of the national body. A final vote was postponed until later in the session. Many delegates expressed a desire to ... at that time.

The issue centered around a report presented by a commission appointed two years ago which favored a constitutional amendment making ... affiliate or national basis of membership. The report would retain the present status, embodied in the constitution when the Y. W. C. A. was organized in 1906 limiting membership to those active in ... affiliated with a Protestant Evangelical church, but would permit associations to admit members on a declaration of loyalty to the Christian fellowship of the association and profession of desire to uphold the purpose of the ...

Older members of the association, who are the leaders in the movement against any change in membership requirements, opposed the report on the ground that the lowering of the religious barrier would eventually place the organization ... LANDIS TESTIMONY TO DAUGHERTY COMMITTEE

Washington, May 2.—The senate Daugherty investigating committee today heard Kenesaw Mountain Landis former federal judge and at present "the czar" of baseball, criticize the granting of a federal pardon in a liquor case, and accumulated another law suit.

The legal action was taken by former Attorney General Daugherty, who through his counsel filed an injunction suit in the District of Columbia supreme court to prevent the committee from obtaining possession of telegrams he had sent and received in Washington.

The Landis criticism was directed at the release of Philip Grossman, a former Chicago saloon-keeper, from a year's imprisonment for violating the prohibition law.

Former Judge Landis, with habitual unconventionality and emphasis, told the committee that he "couldn't understand," how Grossman obtained his pardon from President Coolidge last December, and said that if that were ... criticism, he ... would have to be ... the record stand." He mentioned Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the republican national committee, and other Chicago political leaders as urging Grossman's release, and put in a statement that politics ought to have no more place in pardons than in convictions.

He also had some moments of discussion with the committee about prohibition, telling them the "pre-war" stuff had remarkable "holding out qualities," for dinner party dispensation. But Grossman, he contended, was running a saloon up to the time he got his pardon."

COOLIDGE FOR COURTEOUS EXCLUSION OF JAPANESE

Chief Executive Approves the Exclusion of Immigrants Ineligible to Citizenship—Hopes That Exclusion Provision in Immigration Bill Will Be So Framed as to Avoid Any Deep Offense to the Japanese People—Senate and House Conferees, in Heated Session, Fail to Reach an Agreement on the Major Points at Issue Between the Two Houses.

Washington, May 2—President Coolidge announced to white house callers today his endorsement of the proposal that immigrants ineligible to citizenship be excluded from the United States.

Efforts to obtain alteration of the immigration bill's provision in this respect were explained by spokesmen for the president as being designed merely to phrase the new policy in the most courteous manner possible. White house officials were said to view as certain the eventual enactment of Asiatic exclusion into law and desired only that it give that least practicable offense to friendly nations.

Information still was withheld, however, both at the executive offices and at the capitol as to what steps were contemplated by the state department if congress approved the suggestion that exclusion be deferred for a period after the other sections of the bill are in operation. House and senate conferees today took up the Japanese provisions as the first of the major items in controversy but when adjournment was taken after nearly five hours of ... broken discussion, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, head of the senate delegation would only say that "no decision had been reached."

W. M. BUTLER CLAIMS 860 DELEGATES FOR COOLIDGE

Washington, May 2—William M. Butler, selected by President Coolidge for the republican national chairmanship, announced tonight his withdrawal from the contest for the republican nomination for United States senator in Massachusetts.

Mr. Butler made public a revised list of convention delegates as selected up to and including today. It shows the Coolidge campaign managers claiming 860 delegates who have been instructed to vote at Cleveland for Mr. Coolidge or have endorsed his candidacy. This total is 314 more than necessary to bring about Mr. Coolidges nomination.

Senator Johnson of California is given 15 delegates on the list, and Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin is conceded 13 delegates.

John T. Adams, the present chairman of the nation committee, visited the white house today and afterward said that his relations with the president were most cordial but that he desired to retire as chairman and said so indicated at his conference yesterday with Mr. Coolidge. Inquiry at the white house during the day also ... the president to make plain that there absolutely was no reason for the selection of Mr. Butler other than that given in last night's white house statement. This statement spoke of chairman Adams having indicated he wished to retire.

The retirement of Chairman Adams having indicated he wished to retire.

The retirement of Chairman Adams is expected to involve also the retirement of George B. Lockwood, of Indiana, as secretary of the republican committee. Mr. Butler said today that no decision had been made, however, with respect to a New secretary.

Agreement among advisers of the president and republican leaders generally on selection of Senator Wadsworth of New York as permanent chairman of the Cleveland convention developed during the day and it was disclosed that his selection was considered at the meeting Wednesday in Cleveland of the sub-committee on arrangements. Senator Wadsworth had a conference today with Senator Slemp.

COOLIDGE ON FRONT PORCH OF WHITE HOUSE

Washington, May 2.—The front porches of houses in Northampton, Mass., the home city of President Coolidge, are regarded as useful as well as decorative adjuncts, and the president sees no reason for considering any differently the north portico, or front porch, of the white house.

Returning from a walk taken in the balmy spring air after his day's work, Mr. Coolidge conceived the idea today of sitting out on the north portico for a while. He directed a chair be brought out and a big arm style chair was placed on the portico. The president sat down, crossed his legs and remained there until time for dinner, or rather "supper" as he prefers to call it in the New England way.

White house attaches could not remember any president who had thus used the north portico, previous chief executives having generally retired on spring and summer evenings to the more secluded and awning-shaded south portico.

RELAXING FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE QUARANTINE

Washington, May 2.—Complete removal of the foot and mouth disease quarantine in California for Marin, Sonoma, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties, and from all except a small area in Napa and Solano counties, in which territory the disease first broke out, was announced today by Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry.

A portion of San Joaquin county also was freed from quarantine and the quarantine regulations modified in portions of Alameda, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, Merced, Mariposa, Madera, Kern and Los Angeles counties. Only the parts of those counties where the disease has not existed within 30 days are affected by the modification.

NEW PLAN TO CURB RUM RUNNERS ON ATLANTIC COAST

Washington, May 2—Treasury officials took further steps today in developing the program to curb rum running. Conferences between all units of the treasury engaged in prohibition enforcement brought about a closer cooperation between the prohibition forces under Commissioner Haynes, the coast guard and the customs service, and provided for a "central control" of coast guard work in its efforts to stop the landing of contraband on American soil.

Commander Henry G. Hamlet, long a coast guard officer, was selected to maintain the general headquarters of the coast guard and navy and has left for Philadelphia to take charge of the coordinating of the seven destroyers turned over by the navy department. He will supervise the operation of the vessels ... investing the rum runners along the Atlantic seaboard.

REDRAFT OF THE POSTAL SALARIES BILL COMPLETED

Washington, May 2.—Redrafting of the postal salaries bill ... today ... committee ... unanimously ... the house. An effort ... house ...

The conference ... adopted ... differences ... proposed ... Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota, would ... workers ... daily between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m. the same pay credit for ... minutes work as is accorded day workers for an hour. It was estimated that 70 per cent of the clerical force and most of the railroad mail clerks would be benefitted.

Another feature of the bill would provide for six classifications of railway mail clerks, instead of seven as proposed in the bill, the maximum salary which would go to clerks ... class would be $1,800—an increase of $400 over the present ... There would be a flat increase of $300 for other classifications.

The committee recommended that the yearly pay of rural mail carriers who are in two classifications, should be increased from $1,200 to $1,400 and from $1,100 to $1,200 with substitutes receiving 50 cents an hour.

The bill provides for a flat increase of $300 a year for clerk carriers, inspectors and supervisors. Mr. Keller making no attempt today to call for another vote on the amendment defeated several days ago which would make the increase $400.

A deadlock continued in the carpenters' strike situation in this city Friday. The master builders are still holding out on their compromise of 80 cents an hour and the journeymen carpenters still set their minimum wage at one dollar an hour. At a meeting of the union laborers held at Central Labor Union hall Friday forenoon the matter was carefully gone over. The strikers seem confident of victory. Organizer Sullivan stated Friday that the report was incorrect that the strikers had agreed to compromise at 92 1-2 cents an hour. The master builders deny making an offer over 90 cents an hour, and Mr. Sullivan states that the carpenters will hold out for their demand of one dollar an hour, which he claims is the minimum wage about the state.

JEWETT CITY

Finn's Opera house had no empty seats Thursday night at the K. of C. minstrels. The twenty-one young men in the cast presented a very classy appearance, and sang the choruses with volume and harmony. The drop curtain of purple velvet with the American flag and K. of C. emblem as centerpieces proved a rich, effective background. The end men's costumes were purple and gold, while tuxedos and white flannel trousers for the chorus gave the members a natty appearance. The interlocutor was William J. Duggan, and no one is better fitted for the part especially because of his dignified appearance and in enunciation. Every song was finely given. The specialties in the second part were excellent. That all the performance had been well rehearsed was very evident. Herb Smith's orchestra from Norwich played splendid accompaniments, and were seated on the stage. The piano solos by James Olson and vocal solos by William Dealtrey in the second part got a great hand. The programme follows:

Opening—Easy Melody, Tennessee
Chorus Ensemble
Overture—Take, Oh Take Those Lips Away, Bones and Tamboes
End song—Dancin' Dan, William Marshall
End song—You May Be Fust But You Won't Last, Herbert Thompson
Sentimental—Pal of My Dreams, Charles Harrington
End Song—She Wouldn't Do What I Asked Her To, Wilfred LeClaire
End Song—Maggie, Everett Hiscox Jr.
Sentimental—Where the Morning Glories Twine, Thos. Ainsworth
End Song—Venice, Earl Hiscox
End Song—Oh! Min, John LeClaire
First Part finale, Louisville, Chorus Ensemble

Part 2.

Kokomo, It Ain't Gonna Rain No More, Herbert Thompson and Everett Hiscox, Jr.

Old time harmonies, by the gang that sang Sweet Adeline—First tenor, Thos. Ainsworth; second tenor, Wilfred LeClaire; baritone, Robert Burdick; bass, Earl Hiscox.

Selections—Piano, James Olson; vocal, William Dealtrey

Ill Treated Trovatore (a satire on foreign opera). Scenes: the prison of Zenda. Time: Any old time.

Manrico, a political prisoner, William Marshall
Leonora, his lover, John LeClaire
Cruel captain of prison guards, Earl Hiscox
His first lieutenant, Wilfred LeClaire
The sentry, Herbert Thompson
Grand finale—In the Evening, Chorus Ensemble

The cast included: Tamboes, Earl Hiscox, Wilfred LeClaire, William Marshall; bones, John LeClaire, Herbert Thompson, Everett Hiscox, Jr.; interlocutor, William Duggan; soloists, Thomas Ainsworth, Charles Harrington; chorus, Harry Paul, Chester Dudkowski, Robert Burdick, William McGovern, Eugene Ouillett, Alex Powers, William Symington, Edmond Dudkowski, Homer Gagnon, Theodore Eoule, Leo Gagnon, Uderic Jodoin. Specialties: James Olson, William Dealtrey.

The committee of arrangements comprised John LeClaire, chairman; Earl Nichols, James Morey, Charles Harrington, Peter Flynn. Stage manager, Gilbert Miner. The grand piano was loaned by the Plaut-Cadden company of Norwich. The show was staged under the direction of Herbert Thompson and William Duggan. The costumes and stage settings were from Boston.

A dance in Rioux hall followed the minstrel.

The list of fire calls for April shows: District 45, Greene avenue, still alarm, chimney, 13 gallons chemical.

COLUMBIA

The lawns at the center are very handsome now, and some early shrubs are beautiful, being in full bloom, especially a large pond lily magnolia, also a tulip magnolia.

Painters were engaged last week on the house and barn of Charles K. Hitchcock, and this week they are painting the town halls.

Mrs. Anna Belle Squier is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Utley at the Center for a few days.

Little Lois Clarke has received a collection of beautiful shells from Mrs. Edith Little, who is in Florida.

John Demeska who was graduated from Windham High school last year and has spent the past year in New York and New Jersey, is at present at his home on Chestnut Hill.

The body of Miss Mary D. Little, 88, was brought Thursday afternoon to Columbia where she was born, for burial in the cemetery at the Center.

In a monthly circular issued by E. S. Russell, school supervisor for this district, he states the results of various tests in his district, the United States standard being 100.

Columbia's schools have a standing of 104 in fundamentals in arithmetic, 98 in problems and 98 in spelling, while other towns have as low as 95, and as high as 110.

Regarding the general talk about high taxes and the excessive cost of education, he states that for every $100 spent in 1914, for [illegible] $145 was spent in 1923, while the amounts paid for [illegible] building materials, labor, highways, government expense and national defense were from $164 to $1,000 per $100, as compared with the expense in 1914.

He states that the percentage of illiteracy is greater in those states whose per capita for education is the least and Connecticut is an average in each respect. The cost of education in 1923 in the United States was $1,500,000,000 while the cost of tobacco was $2,111,000,000, and the cost of joy riding $3,000,000,000.

The total amount deposited in the savings bank to date by the 140 children in the Columbia schools is $246.67, an average of $1.76 per pupil, for the school and a medium average of total depositors and deposits in all the schools in the district.

ADOPTED CHILD GETS EASTERN POINT LEGACY

A decision handed down in New York by Supreme Court Justice Davis awards $225,000 to Mrs. Helen Marcellite Kelsey, who was a poorly dressed barefooted child when she was adopted by George H Watson and his wife of Eastern Point in 1899. Mrs. Kelsey, who is now the wife of Major Harold E. Kelsey, United States Marine Corps, won this sum in a legal contest with the heirs at law of Mr. Watson, who died at Groton, Conn., Oct. 28, 1921.

The suit was brought by William Harrison as executor under the will of Mr. Watson, against the United States Trust company, as executor under the will of his first wife, Mrs. Anna J. Watson, who died in 1878, for an accounting of his acts as trustee under the will and to determine what should be done with half the principal of a trust fund left to Mr. Wason for life by his wife, with directions that upon his death it should go to his legal heirs. The question before Justice Davis was whether an adopted child was a legal heir.

The facts of the dispute stated in Justice Davis opinion are; that Mr. Watson married again sometime after the death of his first wife, and when he died his only blood relatives were two sisters, three nephews and two nieces. They contended that the provisions of the will of the first Mrs. Watson in referring to legal heirs meant blood relatives and did not include the adopted child.

Justice Davis states that in September, 1899, Mr. Watson and his second wife, Mary Augusta Watson, made an agreement with William G. Woodbury and his wife, Robina M. Woodbury, of Providence, to adopt their child Helen, who was then 18 years old. Mrs. Watson's attention had been drawn to Helen Woodbury by an elderly Scotch woman engaged in charitable work, when the Watsons were considering the adoption of a child because several of their friends had done so. When they saw Helen Woodbury, the testimony showed, she was barefooted, was very poorly dressed, but was a pretty child." They notified the parents that they would consider adopting the child and in the meantime Mrs. Watson provided clothing and shoes for the little girl.

Mrs. Watson testified that the home of the Woodburys was shabby and dilapidated and that they appeared to be in want, the father being then ill of a disease from which he died shortly afterward. Mrs. Watson testified that when she told the father that she and her husband would take the little girl for the summer, he "cried and said he hoped they would eventually adopt her, because he did not think he could provide for her and she would have to be put in a home if she were not adopted." The legal adoption was executed in the probate court at Groton, in September of that year.

The chief contention of the blood relatives of Mr. Watson in attempting to take the $225,000 share of the trust fund established by the first Mrs. Watson was that the parents of the child were living in Rhode Island and the Watsons were residents of Connecticut and that the adoption did not become legal for that reason. Justice Davis ruled that the place of domicile of the child was not involved in the validity of her adoption.

SIX DIVORCES GRANTED, MOSTLY FOR DESERTION

Six divorces were granted by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin at the short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday morning, most of them for desertion.

Frances Coon Ricci of Stonington secured divorce from Anthony Ricci, formerly of Pawtucket, now of parts unknown, whom she married June 15, 1920. She alleged desertion Nov. 1, 1920, and was given the custody of a minor daughter.

Marja Reho Falvey of Norwich was granted divorce from Cornelius Falvey. They were married Sept. 28, 1920, and she was deserted Oct. 15, 1920, according to the allegation in her complaint.

Mary Barber Perkins of Stonington who married Clarence W. Perkins of the same place March 7, 1914, secured divorce from him on the ground of intolerable cruelty from March 15, 1916. She was given the custody of a daughter 8 and a son aged 4.

Carl E. Small of Hartford, formerly of New London, was given divorce from Margaret Yost Small of Philadelphia. They were married Feb. 21, 1913, and desertion was alleged Dec. 1, 1918.

Emma Maynard of Groton was divorced from Elbert S. Maynard. Desertion was charged Jan. 15, 1921, and intolerable cruelty before that time. She was given the custody of three children from 18 to 14 years old.

Alfred J. Saindon of New London secured divorce from Dorothy Meade Saindon of Narragansett, R. I., on the ground of desertion Oct. 12, 1918. They were married in August, 1916.

STRAND THEATRE

Every hotel ha its Peacock Alley. Sometimes by other names—in the Fairmount, San Francisco, there is Rainbow Lane, for instance. And in the new photoplay at the Strand theatre is a scene which shows one of these gorgeous "parade" grounds of a fashionable caravansery. It is constructed of a material resembling a green marble and in its original colors is exquisite. On the screen it takes different shades of black and white and is most effective.

This is a small town and a big city picture. It has a great cast headed by Bryant Washburn and Mabel Forrest, with Kathleen Kirkham, Wheeler Oakman, Sidney deGrey, Martha Franklin, and others in support. Ben Wilson directed.

The story centers about a girl whose father has always treated her in a tyrannical manner until finally she breaks through the rules he has laid down and goes to the city. There she runs into her exemplary father, the pattern of decorum, the big man of the town, staid and respectable—cavorting about with ladies of the genus "chicken" in the parlance of the day. How this strange situation works out can best be learned by a visit to the theatre which will repay by offering real entertainment. The story is by Evelyn Campbell and was adapted by Frank Sullivan.

BROADWAY THEATRE

A big cast and a big story go hand in hand in Sam Wood's latest production for Paramount, The Next Corner, which opens at the Broadway theatre Tomorrow night.

Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney, Dorothy Mackaill, Ricardo Cortes and Louise Dresser are the featured players. The story, adapted to the screen by Monte M. Katterjohn from the novel of the same name by Kate Jordan, is one with a moral for every young married couple—the lesson we derived was one of satisfaction with our lot in life and — well—discretion.

It has been a long time since we enjoyed a picture as we did The Next Corner—and that's praise indeed, for we're mighty hard to please.

One of the greatest comedy acts on the vaudeville stage today will be seen at the Broadway theatre Monday. Stan Stanley & Co. is the name referred to. The tired business man and that class of theatre-goers who supposedly insist upon having their cares and worries floated upon their shoulders by a sea of laughter or a hydraulic of merriment are some of these days going to proclaim Stan Stanley their administering angel.

Stan Stanley seems to preside at the locked gates of humor and at his will, the flood of wholesome comedy that washes every form of depression from its hinges, is set free. If laughter is a tonic Mr. Stanley disperses the most beneficial remedy procurable. In his efforts to lubricate the world with smiles he is a sort of Ajex who starts the axle that he may supply his comedy lubricant. Mr. Stanley's antics are so effective that they would even put a professional mourner out of a job? He is a comedian par excellence and is fortunate in his relationship.

PALACE THEATRE

A motion picture based on important historical events of the settling of the west interwoven with a love story of the younger pioneers is to be offered at the New Palace, four days beginning tomorrow, Sunday evening and twice daily there after at 2:30 and 8:15, in The Covered Wagon, the movie epic made from the late Emerson Hough's novel of the same title.

The subject recalls some of the most romantic events in American history, particularly the progress of the prairie schooners from Missouri river points westward to the occupying of Oregon and other regions on the extreme frontier back in 1848. Their path was the vague, obscure and as yet almost unknown Oregon Trail, 2,000 miles of it, stretching away to the northwest through eastern Kansas, mid Nebraska, Wyoming, the northern edge of Utah, Idaho, the southeast corner of Washington, and Oregon "Twas little more than the nearly obliterated trackage and debris of two score seasons of occasional hardy explorers, trappers, traders and scouts. Two prior covered wagon expeditions had tried it, but had come to untimely deaths.

Dating back to early in the last century when the government officers, Lewis and Clark, first pushed across the prairies and over the Rockies, it was made a bit more definite by the celebrated journey of the Congregationalist missionary Whitman, who reached Walla Walla one hundred years ago last summer and founded there a Christian settlement and college among the barbarous Indians.

Followed the rapid filling of free lands, the building of shacks, the getting ready for spring and the planting of the seed that the settlers had brought with them. Within a comparatively short time Oregon was admitted to the Union as a free soil state. Though all the pioneers had been sure that railroads would never penetrate the wilds they had traversed, soon after the Civil war the bright lines of steel grew and grew and extended apace until they stretched from the Missouri river to San Francisco and from Ogden, Utah up to Portland, Oregon, following roughly the California pioneer trails.

This brief sketch would convey misunderstanding if the reader gathered That The Covered Wagon production were an historical chronicle. It is really a love and adventure story, but it follows the Oregon Trail most faithfully.

MOST PASSENGER CARS FOR NON-BUSINESS PURPOSES

The passenger car usage of the Connecticut highway system is largely for non-business purposes, according to the traffic survey completed by the state highway department in co-operation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. This condition is revealed by an analysis of the statistics gained by the survey, which show that 23.5 per cent. of the passenger mileage in for business purposes with 76.5 per cent. for non-business usage.

As a result of the survey, sufficient information has been obtained to clearly indicate to the major traffic routes which require constant supervision of construction, maintenance and policing to insure service and safety to traffic.

The greatest density in traffic in Connecticut is between centers of population, production and distribution. Motor truck traffic is a considerably larger proportion of the total traffic on the Boston Post road from New Haven to New York city, Hartford and Springfield, than on the lighter transportation highways.

At New Haven the survey shows that fifteen per cent. of the total traffic is motor truck and eighty-five per cent passenger car, and at Hartford ten per cent. is motor truck and ninety per cent. passenger car.

High school and other school athletes will meet this (Saturday) afternoon at 1.30 at Connecticut Mills field to compete in the High school Y. M. C. A. preliminaries for the county field meet to be held later at the Windham County fair grounds in Brooklyn. Principal E. R. Warren, of Killingly High school has begn receiving the entries for the meet today and the number of such seems to warrant the belief that all the events will be closely contested. The public is privileged to witness the trials.

PUTNAM

The new Putnam Savings Bank is ready to receive tenants. Three professional men are moving to the second story and over the week-end the savings bank will remove from Main street into its new, permanent quarters. Workmen have left the building and it is completed.

While the public will have an opportunity to drop into the new bank Monday, the formal reception will be held Wednesday evening, between 7 and 8.30 o'clock, when the bank ordinarily is open for business, business will be suspended and the time will be used for officials of the bank to escort visitors over the new bank, its rooms, pointing out the various conveniences and special appointments.

The new building is one of the most imposing structures, built of tapestry brick with terra cotta trimmings. Its exterior and interior trim is colonial in design.

In the basement of the new building is a fire-proof room for the storage of valuables and off this room is a large fireproof vault, for the same storage. The oil heater is also installed in the basement and is fed automatically from a thousand-gallon tank. There is an automatic equipment for pumping water, should the basement ever become flooded.

The banking rooms are on the first floor. The rooms are light and airy and finished in quartered oak, ornamented in Colonial style. Back of the counter the floor is covered with battleship linoleum and in front of the counter is rubber tiled, the walls finishing being of marble. The paneled walls are tinted buff.

There is a roomy enclosure for use of the treasurer and in the front of the building is a beautifully appointed directors' room handsomely finished and beautifully carpeted. The furniture is of quartered oak.

In the southwest corner of the banking room is the safe. This has a large section for the bank's current, separated by a steel grill from the safe deposit box section. The door weighs eight tons but is so hung that it may be swung to and fro by the slightest pressure. Everything known to the safemaker's art has been departed in its construction to make it burglar-proof. The least interference here will set the burglar alarm on top of the building to ringing. There are two coupon booths near the safe.

Just off the lobby is a handsomely appointed ladies' room, a door leading into a white tiled retiring room with dressing table and large mirror.

The lobby is equipped with wall counters for use of depositors, over each being an electric light. Above on the wall, nothing being visible except the hands and ornamental numbers, is a Western Union controlled clock.

At the left of the entrance is a large room for use of the public, to be known as the community room.

On the walls of the vestibule, above the wainscoting, has been created an imitation of cairn stone (Scotch), each block being of a different hue, the six colors blending perfectly.

On the second floor are eight offices finished in birch and having hard wood floors. Three of these were receiving tenants, Friday.

Louis Cloutier has returned home after a visit in New Bedford and Providence.

Dr. H. L. Pease is in Worcester attending the twentieth annual convention of the New England Osteopathic Association, at Hotel Bancroft.

The third well baby conference will be held at the high school next Wednesday. Local physicians give their services and examinations are performed without charge.

John Salvas and family, just arrived from Miami, Fla., where they spent the winter, are spending the week-end in the city. Monday they will leave for Nantucket, where Mr. Salvas has a barber shop during the summer season.

While Harry Morse was driving Mansfield & Co.'s truck northward on School street about noon, Friday, a car driven by L. P. Sanderson drove out from a gas filling station and the cars came together. The truck's fenders were damaged but the other car, a brand new one, was badly scratched and dented. Both cars were moving slowly at the time.

Mathewson Angell, who has been spending the winter in the south, has returned to Putnam for the summer.

Miss Jessie Macdonald has returned from a visit with her sister in Wyoming, N. J.

The engagement is announced of Kenneth C. Sharpe, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dwight Sharpe, of School street, to Miss Natlies E. Cutting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Cutting, of Edgewood R. I. Mr. Sharpe is an overseas World war veteran and is employed at the mill of the H. K. H. Silk company.

Miss Sylvia Wheelock, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock, Church street, has been chosen advertising manager on the staff of the Simmons College News, published by the student body of the college at Boston.

Pomfret school baseball schedule as announced by Manager Otis includes the games listed below. All except one are slated at Pomfret: Saturday, May 3, Holy Cross Freshmen; Wednesday, May 7, Plainfield High school; Saturday, May 10, Boston Latin; Wednesday, May 14, Assumption college; Saturday, May 17, Thayer academy; Wednesday, May 21, Putnam High school; Saturday, May 24, Milton academy at Milton; Wednesday, May 28, Worcester North High school; Saturday, May 31, Taft school.

The Pomfret crew schedule has five dates; three of the races are at Pomfret and two away. The schedule follows: Saturday, May 3, Cambridge latin first and second crews at Pomfret; Saturday, May 10, Exeter first and second crews at Exeter; Saturday, May 17, Harvard Freshmen at Pomfret; Saturday, May 24, Rindge first crew; Saturday, May 31, Middlesex first and second crews at Concord, Mass. The Pomfret course is on the Quinebaug river, near Cotton's bridge.

Chandler Morse, Putnam high school, 1923, a freshman at Amherst, has made the Amherst varsity baseball team and is one of the hardest hitters of the aggregation. In the game with Yale, Wednesday, Morse got two hits, the only hits of the game. He was first put in as a sub but on account of his excellent work in left field and especially at bat, he has become a fixture.

It is an unusual honor for a freshman to make the varsity team and Morse is the only freshman on the present team. He is the son of Attorney and Mrs. Ernest C. Morse of Putnam. His father, during his four years at Amherst, took an active part in athletics. Morse was captain of last year's Putnam high school team.

PLAINFIELD

The April meeting of the Woman's Guild was held in the vestry of the Congregational church Friday afternoon, the meeting having been postponed to that date from Wednesday of last week. SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas. — "Words can not express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine." — Mrs. J. B. HOLLEMAN, 2214 E. Marshal St., Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

NOTICE

I want to thank my friends and customers of Dayville and Goodyear for the liberal support they have given me in the last years that I have sold milk in their village.

I have now sold my farm to dairy people that will carry on the business and keep up the high standard of milk that I have always tried to do. I extend my good will to them and hope my customers will continue with them. Where as you know they are equipped much better than anyone else in the vicinity to supply you with sanitary products.

Thanking you again for your loyal support, I remain

Yours truly,

C. E. KEMPTON.

NOTICE

I, wife Amelia Leone, having left home without just cause or consideration, I herewith desire to give notice that I will not be responsible for any debts she may contract.

GASOLINE RAILROAD CARS.

The putting on of gasoline cars to replace steam trains in this part of the state simply marks another response to the changing conditions. It simply means that the time has come when the patronage of certain short steam lines has fallen off so that it does not pay to operate them upon the basis of the past. There must be an effort made to reduce the expense if the service is to be continued at all, and electricity or gasoline is the natural substitute for steam.

For a number of years electric cars have been run over the Norwich & Worcester rails between Taftville and Central Village, giving much more frequent service than the trains did and rendering it at less expense. That is a short distance compared with the plan of the Central Vermont to operate storage battery cars between New London and Palmer, but there are numerous branch lines in this part of the country where the gasoline car has been introduced with favorable results to all concerned. It permits of satisfactory service at more frequent intervals. Cars that will carry all that will patronize the line seem likely to mean the restoration of services that have had to be curtailed, and this applies not only to the transportation of the public but the mails. When the former is cut off the postal service is obliged to suffer.

The gasoline cars, or the electric cars, operated on steam lines, have passed the experimental stage. They are not the means of overcoming the competition offered by the steadily increasing number of autos, but they permit of the rendition of service for those who are still dependent upon public service lines. They are filling the gap that has been created between the railroad service of the days before the auto and the changing form of transportation.

Communities which have faced the alternative of no railroad service or the substitute service furnished by the gasoline cars have certainly excellent reasons for being gratified at the substitute. If it should spur them on to giving the patronage which was denied the steam lines it would not be surprising. Upon it will depend whether the substitute becomes permanent.

DEALING WITH JAPAN.

From the attitude which has been taken by President Coolidge regarding the exclusion of the Japanese, it would appear that it is his purpose to have congress avoid giving the impression that it is flying off the handle in dealing with such a matter, and to deal with this particular provision of the immigration bill in a more diplomatic manner.

There isn't any question but what this country has a right to exclude the Japanese if it desires to. It is known that the Japanese have restrictions that might not be considered pleasing to the subjects of other nations, but there is no justified excuse for creating a lot of unnnecessary ill feeling and arousing retaliatory plans. The longest way 'round is the surest way home is an old saying that is frequently brought into use. It is what the president would have applied in this instance.

There is in existence at the present time the so called "gentlemen's agreement." Naturally Japan is desirous that it will be continued, or if it is not continued that Japan will be treated the same as other countries as regards immigration. Japan is a nation whose friendship is desired rather than its enmity. Thus if the time has come when we desire to terminate the agreement which has been in operation for a number of years it is preferable that it should be done in manner that will create the least friction.

Without any question the communication by the Japanese minister made it possible to obtain the almost unanimous vote for Japanese exclusion. It was a case where the "veiled threat" was unquestionably overworked and exaggerated. Japan isn't prepared to and doesn't want to do anything desperate, and wisdom directs that the course that we follow be such that there will be no groundwork laid for any such feeling. The purpose of the president is to dispose of the matter in a manner that will create the least ill feeling. His view is that which inclines toward a peaceful rather than a warlike attitude.

MINE DISASTERS.

As mine disasters continue to occur there can be no escape from the fact that underground mining operations are attended with dangers which cannot be ignored if explosions and fatalities are to be prevented.

It is no secret that there are dangers connected with mining. A careful study has been made of them. Those who operate mines and those who work in them know what they are. They know either from their own experiences or those of others. They are in fact accustomed to observe certain precautions in order to protect themselves. There are the safety lamps, the ventilation systems, the inspectors who are searching for gas and the weak points in the mine's walls, ceilings and supports. There are restrictions which miners are expected to observe and there are safeguards which the operators are supposed to maintain. There are times when accidents happen in spite of all that is done to prevent them, but there are probably more instances where they are the result of the disregard of some important provision or the neglect of some vital need.

If the search of the West Virginia mine, where 114 men were entombed this week, results in the finding of none alive there may be difficulty in determining just what was responsible for the explosion, and even if some were found alive it might not be possible to learn what the immediate cause of the blast was. And yet an exhaustive inquiry is needed. The recurring disasters show that there cannot be too much emphasis laid upon the causes of mine losses and the means of preventing them.

In connection with mining, quite the same as in other lines of work, it is to be presumed that there are those who become hardened to the dangers and grow careless in the protection of themselves as well as others. Whether negligence on the part of anyone figured in the latest disaster may never be known. For the warning that it might be to others it is always desirable that the responsibility for such deplorable losses of life be fixed as closely as possible.

BROADCASTING MUSIC.

An interesting point has been raised in regard to the broadcasting of a copyrighted song, and while an Ohio court has decided that it can be done without the payment of royalties, there is certainty that there will be much more litigation before a final decision is reached.

Under the court's decision the broadcasting is held not to be a public performance for profit. When a musical composition is broadcasted it is used for the entertainment of millions. It is on a larger scale than when the same composition is used for the entertainment of a crowd of theatregoers. In both instances, however, the composition has to be purchased by the person who uses it for entertainment, and any others who desire it for their own entertainment and edification must likewise invest in it. When it is broadcasted such a composition is not made available to those who hear it. The hearers may be delighted with it, may want to own it and may purchase it. The broadcasting would seem to be giving it a big lot of free advertising, and there is no charge for the entertainment which is the case at the theatre.

What the situation will be if the day ever comes when there is a charge made for the programmes broadcasted is another question. That would alter the basis of the court's opinion under the provision of the law as interpreted. But if the law that is being advocated in congress permitting the broadcasting of music without the payment of royalties should be adopted all question would be eliminated, provided of course the decision that has been rendered is sustained.

THE LOST AVIATORS.

New evidence of the hazards which surround the aviators who are undertaking a flight around the world is furnished by the experiences of Major Martin of the United States army, who is commanding the globe circling flight.

Engine trouble was the cause of his first setback. What the trouble was during the 400-mile hop on which he had started no one knows. What happened to his machine or its occupants is a mystery.

That he has fallen victim to the gales which were sweeping the northern part of the Pacific is indicated and in this connection it seems a bit strange to those at a distance that any such flight should have been attempted under gale conditions.

It is in a wild and little frequented quarter that it is believed he has been forced down, but inasmuch as he has not been seen since he left Chignik there is a wide area that must be searched before it can be determined whether he is safe or has been lost with his mechanician.

Driving airplanes under favorable conditions and over thickly settled territory is in marked contrast to the plotting of a route around the world in wild sections and over seas. There was no minimizing the fact that the world flight meant the facing of many real dangers. These have developed before the fleet has really left American territory, and while all possible efforts will be made to locate the missing men it simply illustrates the sacrifice which they made in their willingness to undertake this world-girdling trip, surrounded though it has been by all possible safeguards.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Isn't it about time to get a spring initiation into the joys of a new rhubarb pie?

There wouldn't be any interest in the contest for the championship if the favorite ball team didn't lose a game once in a while.

If it is true that orders for goods in this country by the Japanese are falling off no surprise can be felt. It is only a human reaction.

From the first quarter's collections gratifying debt reductions and tax cuts might be made this year if congress were so disposed.

The man on the corner says: Putting off until tomorrow what ought to be done today is just as easy in the spring as any other season.

With the bobbed-haired bandit of New York deciding to stick to her plea of guilty, the special commission will have to admit that she is sane.

Some people seem to get a brief bit of satisfaction out of trying to beat a locomotive to a railroad crossing and then leaving others to mourn over it.

The per capita wealth of Connecticut is rated by the census report as the highest in New England, something over $3600. Have you got yours?

Governor McCray of Indiana resigned before being sent to prison. Indiana would have been relieved of much embarrassment had he resigned before he ever took office.

With the British government disposed to spend less money and to keep on with the debt reduction, it is to be hoped that this invigorating bit of good sense will not go unnoticed at Washington.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There seems to be in many parts of the country today a revival of the old World war question of pacifism. Students in some of our colleges have banded themselves together as a protest against war in any form and under all circumstances. That war is a horrible thing all rational people will admit. They are quite within the bounds of truth and reason to say that it is on the whole the greatest curse that ever came to the world. It ranks with intemperance as causing the greatest amount of innocent suffering. And yet have there not been causes worth fighting for? Would any man with one red drop of blood in him stand idly by and see wife and children slain by an assassin? Would any nation with one spark of patriotism see their country overrun and looted without some show of resistance? Let it be granted that diplomacy, if it had been honest, could have prevented many terrible wars. But isn't it going too far to say that war is never justifiable?

We sometimes run across people in the street who carry a discouraged, disconsolate look in their faces as though life were a bore, or a complete failure. If so I think the following lines of a modern poet will be helpful to them:

"If you are done to the death, what then?
If you battled the best you could;
If you played your part in the world of men,
The Great Critic will hold it good.
Death comes with a crawl or comes with a pounce,
But whether it's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you are dead that counts,
But only how did you die?"

While we are reasonably happy, and ought to be more thankful than the majority of us are, on this May 3, 1924, let us not forget the serious national outlook on May 3, 1863—just 61 years ago today—when the battle of Chancellorsville, Va. was fought. It is useless to deny that there were jealousies that contributed to the defeat of the Union troops lead by the brave and able Gen. Hooker. Just previously Gen. Burnside had not been supported at Fredericksburg as he ought to have been. It seems to be true that some officers preferred to be led to defeat, if they could not be led to victory by General McClellan. There were four causes of the defeat 1. The stampede in the Eleventh Corps on May 1; 2. The injury to Gen. Hooker on the 3rd; 3. The failure of Gen. Sedgwick to fall on the rear of Lee's troops, and 4. The entire failure of his cavalry.

What sort of a summer are we going to jump into? is the question on many tongues. Will it be cold or hot, wet or dry? will sunshine or shadow conditions largely prevail? Of course we do not know exactly, but we are assured that "while the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest, and cold and heat and summer and winter and day and night shall not cease." (Gen. 8:22). According to an accepted chronology this promise was made nearly four thousand and three hundred years ago, and not for once has it failed and it is not very likely to now. Let us not worry about the weather, then, but if we are going to live in the coming days of cold and hot, wet and dry, provision will be made for our existence—we have only to do our part.

The above is really an idea of far-reaching importance. We may well drop all thought about the weather and consider what sort of lives we are going to live in the months ahead. The real question in these days is not, is the weather going to be wet, but are we going to be "wet"? Politically that is a question of no little importance. In fact the welfare of the state in no small measure is going to depend on whether the people are going to abide by the constitution and uphold its temperance provision; or, shall we identify ourselves with those who sympathize with the law-breakers? It is not a question of what you and I as individuals think about it, for it has passed that stage. An overwhelming majority has said what shall be the organic law of the land, and you and I must abide by the law. If the people who believe in righteousness would drop their lukewarmness and "let their light shine" there would soon be a change for the better.

People generally, we believe, will indorse the sharp rebuke of The New York Herald-Tribune when it says: "The senate's authority to investigate is a public trust. It cannot be intrusted to outside "muck-rakers" employed by individual senators. The counsel to a senate committee ought to be responsible to it and be on its pay roll." Now "muck-raking" has become a profession, and the man who is slick enough at the business as to be able to rip up a public man's character commands a great price in the market, and there are men enough in congress to pay the price. If skilled at the trade you can find much in a public man's life which, when twisted and distorted, looks bad. The "muck-raker" does that thing. It is one way to dispose of your opponent. Some congressmen are not forgetting that there is to be an election next November.

In that most excellent address delivered April 22 in New York city by President Coolidge appeared this sentence: "The danger to America is not in the direction of the failure to maintain its economic position, but in the direction of the failure to maintain its ideals." That is its greatest danger does not lie in the direction of its industrialism. That seems to be well established. Our geographical position and the variety of our climate seem to point to the perpetuity of this country as a producer of the world's necessities. This stronghold will not easily be taken from us. From this very fact we may become "of the earth earthy." We may lose that fine sense of political freedom and equality that hitherto has been our boast. The idealism of our democratic institutions may be made to bow "to the mess of pottage." The fineness of our moral and intellectual power since the days of the Mayflower must be kept inviolate.

There was a time when people, especially those who lived in the small country towns, swore by the newspaper but now they swear at it. Fifty years ago you could silence any doubter by proving that your statement appeared in the newspaper. It made no difference what newspaper it was or what your statement was. What the newspaper said was unerringly law and gospel. In those palmy days the newspaper was the final court of appeal for all disputed questions. Today if you try to clinch an argument by saying, "I can prove it by the newspaper," the reply is likely to be "That's enough to kill it for time and eternity!" Do you doubt this view of the case? If so write some inspired article on (let us say) theology. Then be foolish enough to publish it. Immediately the whole kennel will be snapping at your heels, yelping, "It's all a pack of lies!" Isn't that swearing at the newspaper? Oh, for the good old times when the public press, like George himself, couldn't tell a lie!

The late Lord Salisbury, former prime minister of England, found his chief relaxation from cares of state in his scientific laboratory.

WATER POWER AVAILABLE FOR NEW ENGLAND

"The estimated amount of undeveloped water power available in New England, if developed for complete utilization of the flow available 60 per cent of the time, is about 4,830,000,000 Kw. H. in an average year.

"Of this total, it is estimated that nearly 3,000,000,000 Kw. H. (nearly all of which would be generated in Maine) would be delivered to industries taking large amounts at a cost from 0.7 to 1.5 cents per Kw. H., but the Maine laws prohibit the export of power."

This is the nub of conclusions reached by the fact-finding committee of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts in its survey of power requirements and power possibilities for New England. Close to 5,000,000,000 Kw. H. of steam power was used in New England in 1922 and it is estimated that within a reasonable time the requirements will grow to 6,000,000,000 Kw. H. per year.

The report shows where the new power could be developed, and what industries need it. It presents maps and charts and an abundance of information on the subject of power development, both in New England and Canada. The committee, which was appointed by the Associated Industries to make the survey is composed of Charles T. Main, chairman; Henry L. Harriman, president New England Power Co.; Dugald C. Jackson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, also of the firm of Jackson & Moreland; George L. Finch, power superintendent, Hood Rubber Company, Watertown; B. Preston Clark, vice president Plymouth Cordage Co.

What New England Has

The total capacity of all central station plants in New England is 2,047,000 kilowatts, of which 1,461,000 kilowatts, or 81 per cent are fuel plants, and the remainder waterpower plants. The total installed horsepower capacity of the industries in Massachusetts (1922) is about 1,790,000. Of this, 986,000 horsepower is fuel burning, 177,000 horsepower is water power, and 678,000 horsepower is supplied by purchased power.

The consumption of fuel for industrial purposes in large quantities is concentrated in a small portion of New England, the three outstanding centers being Providence-New Bedford-Fall River, Lawrence-Lowell, and the vicinity of Boston. The industrially owned fuel-consuming horsepower capacity in these centers alone is nearly 40 per cent of the total for New England.

The total undeveloped water powers in New England, including only the powers which would have 1,000 horsepower available for 60 per cent of the time on 100 per cent load factor, amount to about 600,000 horsepower. If all these could be developed by adequate pondage for a market having 50 per cent load factor, this would require an installed capacity of about 1,720,000 horsepower, and the cost of such developments would vary from about $50 to $500 per horsepower for land and water rights, changes in roads and railroads, and the power plant and structures, that is, up to the outgoing lines. These costs of the development of the waterpower plants would be less than $100 per horsepower for about 45 per cent of the total available power, and between $100 and $150 per horsepower for an additional 25 per cent. of the total.

The Important Water Power Sites

The total water power on the St. Lawrence and the principal rivers in Quebec is estimated at about 15,000,000 horsepower. About one-third of this is in northern and eastern Quebec, and on the watershed tributary to Hudson Bay, over five hundred miles from Boston.

There are three important waterpower sites on the St. Lawrence, within 250 miles of central Massachusetts, totalling about 5,000,000 horsepower, which could deliver 20,000,000,000 to 35,000,000,000 kilowatts hours, yearly. The development of these powers is tied up with the proposed canalization of the river, and cannot be undertaken until suitable international agreements have been carried out. Several years would be required for the preliminary work and the construction on developments of such magnitude, so that after the necessary agreements have been made, no large amount of power should be hoped for inside of eight or ten years.

The other principal rivers are the Ottawa, St. Maurice, Saguenay and St. Francis. The total power on these rivers is about 5,000,000 continuous horsepower, of which about 700,000 is now developed, and 600,000 under construction. A considerable portion of this will be used locally.

Sixteen principal undeveloped sites on the Ottawa, St. Maurice and Saguenay rivers, have an estimated possible continuous output of about 2,500,000 horsepower, including those now under development. All of this 2,500,000 horsepower is within 450 miles, and about 600,000 horsepower of it is within three hundred miles of the center of the power demand in Massachusetts.

Cost of Canadian Water Power

Sufficient studies have been made to show that it would not be economical to bring power now to Massachusetts from so far except in large quantities, such as 1,000,000,000 kilowatt hours per year on a load factor of 50 per cent or better, with the market open for its absorption within a year or two after the project would be able to deliver power. There are so many elements entering into the cost of doing this, including cost of production and transmission, carrying charges during the period required to build up the market, tariff on power exported from Canada, resultant increased operating costs of the steam operated portion of the system caused by decreased load factor on the steam stations, and distribution costs, that an exact figure cannot be sold. However, it is safe to say that, after making all proper allowances, the cost of Canadian power will be such as to justify its importations, in spite of the expected efficiencies and decreased labor costs of future steam stations at tide-water. The steam stations are needed to establish assured reliability of the power supply, and to secure the necessary high load factor for the imported hydro-electric power.

Depends on Canada and Quebec

Before it is possible to finance the development and transmission of 1,000,000,000 Kw. H. of power annually, some important questions, aside from the physical problem, must be settled. To determine whether 1,000,000,000 Kw. H. per year can be marketed within a reasonable time it is important to note that about 3,835,000,000 Kw. H. of steam power was produced in 1922, in the section centering on Worcester, Framingham and including Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and southern New Hampshire. The increase in annual demand for central station power in this area will be approximately 199,000,000 Kw. H. in the next ten years. If Connecticut is added, being already tied in to Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the 1922 steam power figure is nearly 5,000,000,000 Kw. H.

Considering the growth in demand, replacement of steam-power plants due to obsolescence, and the uneconomical equipment still in use, it would appear that 1,000,000,000 Kw. H. could be absorbed within a reasonably short period.

The question, whether Canadian and provincial government will give assurance that this amount of power will be allowed to be transmitted for a sufficiently long term of years, cannot be answered until the problem is specifically presented to the Canadian and Quebec parliaments and action taken by them.

Two Power Alternatives

Some additional water power can be obtained from the small undeveloped powers, and used either locally or as feeders to larger systems. Some additional surplus power can be supplied at Lawrence, Holyoke and Turners Falls. A greater amount of power can be obtained from some existing properties by redeveloping and getting greater efficiency and capacity. The total from all such sources is relatively small compared with the total power requirements for New England's growth although important to individual plants.

In view of the above, it appears that the great bulk of the power for New England's additional requirements, particularly in the district centering about eastern Massachusetts, must come from the following:

(a) Large public service steam plants, located not far from the load centers and so as to obtain coal at the lowest rates, and containing large units and interconnected so as to run on high load factors at minimum operating cost; or

(b) A supplementing of such steam plants in New England by large water powers in Canada, if proper agreements can be made for the export of electric current.

Broadly considered, the development of water powers as fast as the load is greater to absorb their output is highly desirable as a measure of conservation of irreplaceable fuel resources. Nevertheless, they must be justified economically before they can attract the necessary capital.

Taking a broad view of the demands that will be made in the near future upon every available resource for transportation and power, it is merely a question of time before the St. Lawrence canal will be constructed. It is possible that permanent power from this source may be available for New England by 1934 or 1940.

In the meantime, it is to the mutual advantage of both New England and Quebec to promote for their joint use the early development of some of the water powers on the tributaries of the St. Lawrence. The crowded industrial centres in southern New England need this water power which now runs to waste, and the domestic plants and paper industries of Quebec look to this side of the border for their essential coal, the cost and difficulty of securing which is continually increasing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Correction

Mr. Editor: I trust that all your readers know—but if any do not, they may be assured that it was the Connecticut legislature that was in session on the Dark Day and that it was my intention to compliment our state and the name Davenport, a name long identified with our Norwich fire-arms industry.

In a long experience with the press, I have faced many typographical errors, and can bear to see, even a grammatical one pumped into my copy, but a historic error I naturally shrink from, in behalf of the readers as well as my self.

When the linotype machine came into use, it was remarked by one, that its prime virture lay in the fact that it did away with the proof-reader.

Newspaper, being night work, is a hard trade, and mistakes are often excusable, but I will bear no ill will if this correction only comes out straight.

With many thanks for past courtesies, yours

Why Not Use Long Society School?

Mr. Editor: Just now there is expression of considerable interest in the housing of our school children. "Children are the hope of the nation" so we have been gravely assured upon divers occasions. Quite a number of our civic and other leaders appear not to believe the saying, perhaps because it is used so frequently. But please excuse the divergence, Mr. Editor, and let us call to the attention of those citizens of us who are particularly interested in children—the empty school—housing in the Long Society District. Our light and airy school house over here on Smith and Hamilton avenues has two empty school rooms, up only one flight. The two empty school rooms are steam heated. They have slate blackboards, all therein placed before the darkened days of consolidation so direly fell upon all Norwich. These empty, light and airy, steam-heated school rooms will comfortably accommodate 80 pupils, 40 in each empty room. And, Mr. Editor, if you will permit me to venture the statement, I will say that the distance from either the Greeneville or Bridge districts to these light and airy, steam-heated, empty school rooms are no greater than the distances are from this Long Society district to the Greeneville and Bridge districts.

Couldn't these airy rooms be brought into use somehow? Please remember, Mr. Editor, that they are only one flight up.

DUSE'S LIFE OF SORROW

Trouble almost as deep as that of characters she portrays, has been the lot of Signora Eleanora Duse almost since her birth.

Daughter of strolling players in Italy, she endured hardships and privations while traveling with them and others during her childhood that seriously impaired her health.

First appearing as Cosette in Les Miserables when seven years old, she was star of the little troupe in Francesca da Rimini when 13. Her Juliet, played when she was 14, was praised but recognition did not come before she was 20.

When Turin approved of her, then Florence, then Rome, and America, England and the rest of the civilized world acclaimed her art and her "magnificent personality." Crowds applauded and royalty honored her.

Then to Paris. Invited by the "Divine Sarah" to occupy Bernhardt's own theatre, she allowed her rival to persuade her to play Camille. As this was Bernhardt's most successful role, Duse's portrayal met with indifference.

Wedded before she was 20 years old to Signor Checchi, an Italian actor-journalist, she was unhappy and they were separated.

In the height of her career, she met Gabriel D'Annunzio, the poet. For years she inspired him to great things and presented his plays in a way that made them more than their merits deserved. He tired of her, they quarrelled, and he betrayed, in a novel the miseries of her life that she had told him in confidence. The shock was so great that for a time it was feared she would not live. She retired to private life and helped girls who aspired to the stage, and soldiers wounded in the World war.

Finally her fortune vanished and she was compelled again to appear before the footlights. In Turin, students enthusiastically took the places of the horses and drew her to the hotel, London audiences cried "Brava," and New York paid $30,000 the opening night to see her, at 64, prove that hardships, sorrows, disappointments, ill-health and disillusionment had not killed her powers as an actress and as a woman.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Richard Strauss, in honor of whose sixtieth birthday anniversary a great celebration is to be inaugurated today in Vienna, is one of the most eminent of living composers. Contrary to popular belief, he is not related to the great "waltz king" of the same name. Richard Strauss is a son of a noted musician of Munich, a pupil of Meyer of the Munich opera and a protege of Von Buelow. He received his first piano lessons from his mother when he was four years old. At the age of six he gave a remarkable example of precocious aptitude for music. While still in his early thirties his compositions and his work as conductor of the Berlin royal orchestra had won for him an international reputation. A large part of his fame rests upon his interpretations of Mozart and Wagner. His most serious original works are Don Quixote and Don Juan, though he has been a most prolific writer of high class music. In 1904 Herr Strauss made a tour of America and was everywhere enthusiastically received.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

OUR REFUGE

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge, and my fortress; my God; in him will I trust. Psalms 91:1-2.

That God is everywhere and knoweth all things may be held by the intellect coldly and vaguely, or it may be so set by the Holy Spirit before the conscience as to fill the guilty soul with terror, or it may be held by a humble and believing heart that the divine presence and omniscience shall fill the soul with comfort and strength. The child of God so realizes his relation to Him that the divine presence makes the whole universe a home, every mountain an altar, every song of the birds or voice of the winds or tumult of the waves a psalm of praise, every event of life a divine manifestation. The soul that has a perpetual consciousness of God can be calm amid all circumstances. Even the great objects of nature have a soothing influence on the spirit. The mountains bring peace. The perturbed spirit is quieted by the majesty of the ocean or the sublimity of the midnight sky. When He that made the mountains and gave the sea its bounds, He who welded the invincible belt of Orion and loosed forth Arcturus and his sons, when the infinite creator, the everlasting Father, is the supreme fact in our consciousness, how the sense of His greatness, His nearness, His love, comforts and strengthens us. The soul that stayed on God may be as little unshaken by storms of trouble or by the follies, inconsistencies and oppositions of men as are the mountains by the mists that gather around their summits or by the zephyrs that make all the leaves of the forest tremble. If a man's heart is right with God, all the forces of goodness in the universe are on this side. All things lend to the development of his spiritual manhood, and even the craft of his enemies will turn to his good, to be pure and unselfish, that is real living. The weakest of the true hearted children of God is strong enough to triumph over the worst that the world can do. The Lord is his refuge and his fortress. He that lives unto God become

Mr. and Mrs. P. Murphy, Miss Annie McCaffery, Mrs. M. H. Donahue and John P. Corcoran, were guests of Mrs. John McWilliams at Narragansett Pier Wednesday.

Mrs. A. J. Twomey and daughter Rosemary, of Westerly, were visitors with Mrs. Toomey's sister, Mrs. Joseph Lynch of Hinckley street Friday.

Friends of Mrs. James J. Donahue, wife of Commissioner Donahue, are pleased to learn that she has returned from the W. W. Backus hospital where she underwent a serious operation, and is now at her home on Perkins avenue.

SUFFIELD ALUMNI PLEDGE SUPPORT TO CAMPAIGN

The alumni of Suffield School, Suffield, Conn., residing in Norwich and vicinity held a get-to-gether supper Friday evening at the Wauregan Hotel, being one of the hundreds of similar gatherings held in many cities and towns throughout the country in connection with the opening of the drive for the sum of $350,000 to provide sufficient funds for Suffield School to carry on the great work, which has characterized the aim of the school during the many years of its existence.

The supper and meeting in this city was in charge of John B. Stanton, chairman of the Norwich district and a bountiful repast was provided. Following the supper the alumni gathered about the table enjoyed themselves by telling many happy experiences they had while attending Suffield, the stories oftentimes recalling to mind similar times enjoyed by members of various classes at the school.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Manford W. Schuh of Hartford who represented the campaign organization. In his talk Dr. Schuh pointed out the many advantages offered by Suffield, over those offered by high schools. Let us consider the present needs and situation, what Suffield needs to measure up to the greater responsibilities of today, he said. Suffield has only $90,000 in permanent funds and needs a larger endowment and we all realize this. We are not making this appeal from choice but from necessity, but the prospects are bright. Tonight we are on the eve of the great nationwide start. Headmaster Truesdell with the Glee club is in New York tonight at a similar gather, and throughout the country the alumni of Suffield are gathered to make the campaign a success.

We felt assured of the success of the campaign and already $120,000 has been received in pledges towards the goal of $350,000. The spirit is fine, there is loyalty and enthusiasm, but we must not lag and wait for something to happen. I want to take back from Norwich word that you are back of us in the campaign, that Norwich will help raise the funds which will give Suffield the chance to carry on her great work far into the next century, make it safe for centuries to come.

At the close of Dr. Schuh's address Mr. Stanton, as spokesman for Norwich, gave him the word that Norwich would do her share. A telegram from Headmaster Herbert Truesdell of Suffield was received during the evening and read as follows: Suffield School Endowment Dinner, Wauregan Hotel, Norwich. Suffield school sends heartfelt greetings to its loyal Alumni and friends. Your efforts and ours, shoulder to shoulder, will place the old school on a firm basis for all time.

Those present at the dinner who pledged themselves to support the campaign of the school were Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Noyes, Judge and Mrs. Lucius Brown, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Tarbox, Howard S. Arnold, James M. Young, Jr., Jabez S. Bailey, and Charles B. Davis. Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church, was also present as guest and spoke briefly on memories of school days.

The campaign director, Mr. Stanton, in closing the meeting said that although the campaign opened May 1st and would continue until the 22nd, Norwich hoped to finish the campaign in one week and go over the top. The quota of $350,000 in the nationwide drive means approximately $175 per alumnus but the fine spirit shown thus far indicates that more than the required amount will be raised.

SPECIAL TRAFFIC RULES FOR TEMPLARS' PARADE

Anticipating the crush of automobiles that will be in this city Monday at the time of the parade of the Knights Templar, Chief George Linton has promulgated special parking rules covering the parade hours from 3 to 4.30 p. m.

No parking on either side of Main street will be allowed between Washington square and Burnham square, as the parade is to move east as far as Burnham square and countermarch and the full width of Main street will be needed for this maneuver. The southerly side of Church street from the Roman steps to the Otis library has been designated as the parking place for one section of the Templars' machines, but otherwise the street is to be kept clear, and Union street, Willow street and Broadway from Bath street to Willow are to be kept clear of machines.

In order to view the parade as it is passing along Washington street and Broadway, the usual parade parking rules will be in force, viz: parking on the westerly side of Washington street for its full length and on the easterly side of Broadway from Chelsea parade to the foot of Broadway hill.

The chief expects the cooperation of every driver of a car to assist the police in the difficult task of handling the traffic and making everything pass off as smoothly as possible.

Miss Canty an Honor Student

Miss E. Fennessey Canty of this city is one of thirty-four students at the Boston University College of Business Administration, who have been elected to Delta Mu Delta. This is an honorary scholastic fraternity which corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa in the College of Liberal Arts.

Attended Lutheran Conference.

The pastor, H. Hunzinger, has returned from Hartford where he attended the meeting of the Lutheran Conference of Connecticut together with John Seidel, who was the delegate of First German Lutheran church to the conference.

DECLARES NORWICH GRAND LIST SHOULD APPROXIMATE $50,000,000

A definite step towards equitable taxation for Norwich was taken at a citizens' tax meeting Friday evening in the town hall, when the meeting adopted a resolution forming the nucleus of a committee of fifteen to analyze the prevailing tax assessment method. The six organizations back of the movement, the Norwich Rotary club, Norwich Lions club, Norwich Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers Association, Norwich Building and Loan association and the Merchants Bureau, have through their joint committee, secured enough signatures to have a special town meeting called for the purpose of approving the committee of fifteen and authorizing them to make an investigation of the local tax method and report back to a town committee with recommendations.

The meeting brought together an interested audience of about 250, with Herbert M. Lerou, of the organizations' joint committee presiding. Equitable taxation is a subject many towns in the state are giving careful consideration, said Mr. Lerou. There is no question in our minds that our system has been radically wrong, he said. Our combined grand list is about $19,000,000. It should be at least $50,000,000. I know of one piece of property which sold for $69,000 and which is in the list for $16,000; another piece in the list for $35,000 sold for $120,000 and another in the list for $6,000 sold for $27,000. It is high time we took some action.

Naming the six organizations back of the local equitable tax movement Mr. Lerou said they had decided to hold a citizens' meeting to discuss the matter. Mr. Lerou announced that T. M. Russell, Middletown manufacturer, who started the equitable tax movement in Middletown and who was to have spoken on taxation at the meeting had wired from New York that it would be impossible for him to get here.

Mr. Lerou said the plan in mind is to have a committee of fifteen citizens appointed for the purpose of making an investigation of the local tax system and report with recommendations to a special town meeting. The work, he said, may take some months before the committee will be ready to report. Mr. Lerou said the present high tax rate is not an inducement for manufacturers to come to Norwich.

State Tax Commissioner Speaks.

State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett of Hartford was then presented by Mr. Lerou. In every place where they have overhauled their tax lists it has been found that the small property owner is paying a higher proportionate tax than the large property owner, said Commissioner Blodgett. That isn't a criticism of anyone. It is a fact. It is easier to arrive closer to a fair valuation for a small piece of property than for a large piece of property. Thus the small fellow, as a rule, is bearing more than his share of the taxes.

Norwich is collecting something like $730,000 a year for the support of the town. Isn't that worth thinking about? Your tax situation has come about through the years. As the years go on the people demand better roads, better schools, etc., and this means more taxes. This is your town. Your town has a right to respond to the majority sentiment. Mr. Blodgett said that although there is prospect of a decrease in federal taxes he could not see how the people of Norwich are going to get relief from their present taxes, through decreased taxation. I think you will see a slight increase each year, he said.

Winchester Committee Report.

Commissioner Blodgett told of how Winchester started a movement to equalize its taxation through the appointment of a committee of citizens to investigate and report back with recommendations. He then read the report of the Winchester committee which he said covered many situations which the Norwich committee might expect to meet in their work.

The report was as follows:

The committee to investigate the methods of assessment of taxable values within the town of Winchester appointed by the selectmen by authority of a vote of a special town meeting held on Feb. 11, 1924, beg leave to report as follows:

The investigation of the present methods employed to determine values for taxation required but little research to show that flagrant inequalities and consequent injustice have resulted. There is not, nor has there been, in the history of the town, as far as your committee has been able to ascertain, an adequate system used by means of which the taxing officers may have found relative values of real estate.

The law which requires owners of real estate to file lists annually and imposes the obligation to describe the several parcels of property owned by them respectively has been observed in but comparatively few instances. It has not been observed in taxing officers to insist that this rule of law should be obeyed, and no records are available in the office of the assessors which show accurate acreage and description of land situated outside of the more densely populated section of the town, or that show front feet, square feet or depth of lots within that portion of the town where land is divided into building lots. No records are maintained in regard to buildings, and no system of ascertaining values is applied. The time of the assessors is taken up with receiving lists, performing the necessary clerical work and filling out lists for taxpayers. Many taxpayers though ready and willing to discharge their obligations to the community in this respect, are not well informed concerning the law relative to local taxation. In many cases the lists are made by copying from those of the previous year, and is done by the assessors at the request of the taxpayers. The system in use in Winchester may have been adequate in times when comparatively small amounts of money were needed to carry on the activities of the town, but with the constantly increasing requirements of the community the condition will become intollerable if the revenue-raising function of the local government does not receive the necessary attention. As each year passes with the present system in operation, injustice becomes more aggravated. The correct principle of taxation is that every dollar of taxable value within the town should be an equal share of the expense incident to the town's management. This principle being accepted, it follows that it is the duty of the town to inaugurate a system by means of which taxable values may be accurately ascertained. To do this, it will be necessary to discard the present unscientific method of estimating areas of the parcels of property to be taxed to eliminate the practice of guessing at values of buildings and arriving at conclusions by compromising among the assessors and with the taxpayers. There is no disposition to criticise the assessors or members of the boards of relief. In common with members of taxing boards in many other towns, they have been working under conditions which tend to prevent fair and equitable assessment of property. We believe the assessors are of the opinion that the present system and methods do not permit of a just determination of relative values. Unless we have a scientific system by means of which to determine values, no board of assessors, however, painstaking its members may be, can determine values so as to equitably distribute the tax burden among the taxpayers of the community. The law requires that all property shall be set in the list by the assessors according to its true value, which is its fair market value, and not the value which would be found at forced or auction sale.

The committee has found that many pieces of property are being listed at a small percentage of the amounts which they would sell for. There is property also which is being valued for as much as could be obtained for it, and some at more than this, in a fair market.

The installation of an adequate system of taxation, so that each taxpayer will bear his proportionate share of the burden should have no effect whatever with the amount of money to be raised annually for the conduct of the town's business. The rate of tax, as now, will be determined by the voters in town meetings, and the amount which each person will pay will depend on the rate so fixed.

The committee has found controlling reasons why the regularly appointed assessors should not be chosen to install an adequate system of valuation in the town of Winchester. For reasons of equal or greater force, the committee believes that it would not be for the best interests of the town to have the work attempted by other local citizens. The alternative is for the town to employ for the work some well-known company whose personnel is familiar with modern scientific methods of impartially appraising all kinds of property for taxation purposes. By this means alone will the results be satisfactory and complete. This is the method used by many towns and cities which have effected equalization of property values for purposes of taxation.

We recommend:

1—That the town in town meeting authorize the selectmen to appoint a committee of citizens of the town to equalize the tax values for the purpose of taxation, and that this committee be empowered and directed to secure the services of some responsible appraisal company for the purpose of obtaining a true and relative valuation of the taxable property of the town, and that a sum not exceeding $11,000 be appropriated for this purpose.

2—That a system of records be installed which will enable the assessors to have at their command at all times data and information relating to each parcel of real estate, with buildings thereon, if any, by means of which to determine its value. That a system of building permits be devised and adopted and town ordinances in support of same be enacted, which will serve to furnish records of any and all changes and additions to existing buildings and of any new buildings within the limits of the town.

3—That the records of properties and values be kept by the town clerk and that he be afforded, by the selectmen, such clerical or other assistance as will be required.

4—That better attention be given to the assessment of taxable personal property. We believe that by the installation of such a system as is recommended the assessors will have more time and opportunity to find and list items of taxable personal property.

5—That as part of the work of revaluation, the committee be empowered and directed to employ the services of competent surveyors so that complete maps of the city and lake district may be provided which will serve for use by the committee in its work of revaluation. Such maps are indispensable to the proper administration of the law by assessors and may be used advantageously in locating water mains, hydrants, street lines, sidewalks and for other purposes.

Refers to Middletown

Commissioner Blodgett also referred to the tax situation in Middletown and of the method they took to remedy condition. He said he would leave the Winchester committee's report and the Middletown committee's report with the local committee as they may prove of value in working out the local situation. There can be no objection to a committee of good reputable citizens inquiring into the tax system. If there should be objection then it might be a good plan to find out from whom the objection comes and then take a look at his tax list and see what is wrong with it.

Norwich Worst In Tax Lists

Of all the towns in the state I think Norwich leads them all in bad tax lists, the commissioner said. Every dollar invested in property should bear an equal share with every other dollar invested in property in the town's expense. That is the rule. Stick to it. With a fair valuation of all property I believe you would have a tax rate of 15 to 20 mills. If your personal property doesn't get into the tax list all the burden falls on the real estate.

Resolution Adopted

Following Commissioner Blodgett's talk H. H. Gallup offered the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

That it be the sense of this meeting that the following gentlemen be nominated to serve as the nucleus of a committee of fifteen: James L. Case, Grosvenor Ely, Arad Manning, John F. Rogers, and Daniel T. Shea, the committee to be approved and authorized by a special town meeting to analyze the prevailing tax assessment method.

A rising vote of thanks was given Commissioner Blodgett for his address.

J. P. Egan of the state tax commissioner's office, briefly addressed the meeting on valuations. He said that New London has had a revaluation and as a result increased its grand list nine millions of dollars. The New London list is now $38,000,000 while the grand list of Norwich is still $19,000,000. The tax rate in Norwich should be about 20 mills. A revaluation of the property in Norwich won't cost you one cent if you go about it the right way.

The meeting came to a close about 9.15 o'clock.

STATE POLICEMAN CHURCH SUFFERS SPRAINED ANKLE

State Policeman Robert Church of this city suffered a sprained knee Friday in Meriden, when the machine he was riding in crashed into a hole in the road, caused by a washout, throwing him to the ground. At the time of the accident Officer Church was riding with two other officers of the state force and they assisted him on his trip home. He will probably be laid up for several days before his injuries will be improved sufficiently to allow him to resume his duties.

RICKARD STILL HAS HOPES THAT FIRPO MAY HAVE CHANGE OF MIND

New York, May 2.—Behind the sudden announcement by Tex Rickard that he has clinched a world's heavyweight title battle between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills for September sixth at his big pine bowl, Boyle's thirty acres, is a final attempt on the part of the promoter to bring Georges Angel Firpo back to this country for another campaign.

This and the fact that Rickard has not yet abandoned his hope of staging an elimination test between Wills and Firpo to select Dempsey's logical championship opponent was learned today despite the promoter's announcement that he had abandoned all further negotiations with Firpo and was convinced the Argentine intended to quit to his retirement.

Rickard playing his cards carefully in the heavyweight game, believes that of the latest turn of events upon Firpo's part. DUNDEE READY TO MEET ALL CHALLENGERS

New York, May 2. Johnny Dundee, world's feather weight king, has agreed to place his throne in the event that he surrendered the state athletic commission selects. This agreement was reached this afternoon after a conference between Charles Johnston, Dundee's manager, and the state commission.

James J. Johnston, representing the National Sportsmen's alliance, sought permission to stage a bout between Sam Langford, veteran negro lightheavyweight, who is almost blind, and the commission countered with a plan to establish a permanent fund for such purposes and agreed to aid in such movement, stated by the association.

The Knickerbocker A. C. of Albany was suspended for three months. It was alleged officials of the club permitted smoking at bouts, general disorder, and that minors were admitted. The suspension goes into effect on May 7 and runs to May 21.

The suspension against the Queensberry S. C. of Buffalo was lifted when club officials explained that the advertising of the sale of tickets for the Dave Shade-Frankie Schoell match on April 9 was in error and not done to deceive or mislead the public."

A new rule was passed today making it mandatory for clubs in first class cities to place fifteen per cent of the seating capacity of the house on public sale for $1. This rule was made elastic, however, in the event of title fights when special permission would have to be granted by the commission to promoters.

SAINTS DECISIVELY TRIM BROADWAY SCHOOL TEAM

The St. Patrick's school team, his four pitchers of the Broadway school team hard Friday afternoon and won easily, 23 to 5. Tie game was featured by the hard hitting of the Saints who included two home runs in their barrage of hits. The Saints played almost errorless ball, Midget Eddie Hamill featuring both in the field and at bat.

For the Broadway team Vigilano and Yalen featured. The batteries were Blum Marx and Mingo for the Saints; D'Ati, Vitigano, Yalen, Foster and Vigilano.

PLANS FOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE ARE UNDERWAY

At a meeting at the state armory on Friday evening tentative plans for a twilight league were made by four managers representing four teams from various sections of the city. It is planned to have a six-team league, games to be played every other week during June, July and August. Already five teams have signed up for the league and the sixth team will be named this week. Another meeting will be held on next Friday evening when officers will be elected. The four teams represented at the meeting on Friday evening were: Armory, Nuggets, Harddigs and Swanson Kids. The Yantic Grain team is the fifth team in the league.

PHILLIES NIP DODGER RALLY IN NINTH AND WIN

Brooklyn, May 2. — Philadelphia staved off a five run rally in the ninth by Brooklyn today and evened the series, winning 7-6. Wilbur Hubbell held the Dodgers to six hits and one run until the ninth when they bunched five singles and triple. Nels was left on third with the tying run. Yarrison held the visitors to two hits in seven innings, but blew in the eighth. The Brooklyn club announced that it had secured Pitcher Osborne of the Chicago Cubs by the waiver route.

Ashland Opens Season Sunday.

The Ashland Pirates of Jewett City will open the baseball lid at Ashland park Sunday. For the opener, Manager Stanny Miss has booked the fast Inland A. C. of Versailles and as the latter club has already played a couple of games in which they gave a good account of themselves, the local club will have to keep on the jump to win. All the Ashland lineup will be seen, some of the familiar faces who have made a reputation in their line. The famous Liberto battery will again be in action, with Bill on the receiving end and Sabbo on the hill. Pete Rail, Nap Liberto and Leo Jarvis will also be in the lineup and these veterans should bolster up the new prospects in fine style. Among the newcomers are Ray Jarvis, George Jarvis, Lloyd Jarvis and Kaduda, all likely looking youngsters with ambitions.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Star, New York Giants

With runners on second and third bases, ball is hit safely to the outfield.

Where should the pitcher place himself?

Managers differ as to just how a pitcher should play under these conditions. Some have the pitcher stay near his box to cut off throws from the outfield. Others say the pitcher should always back up the catcher for fear of an overthrow.

WHITE SOX SHOVE INDIANS DOWN TO CELLAR POSITION

Cleveland, May 2. — The Chicago White Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 2, here today, shoving the Redskins into last place in the American league standing. Coveleskie held the visitors to five hits, but errors behind him gave the Sox their runs. Ted Lyons pitched shutout ball until the ninth when the Indians got two runs on two doubles and a single.

EHMKE SHUTS OUT RED SOX WITH 3 HITS

Philadelphia, May 2.—Howard Ehmke held Philadelphia to three hits today and Boston scored a shutout victory over the locals, 11 to 0.

Veach had a triple, two singles and two passes. The fielding of Clark at third base was spectacular. He made three splendid one-hand stops of grounders and caught the runners.

Amos Strunk, recently given his unconditional release by the White Sox today signed a contract to finish the season with the Athletics. Score:

BROWNS PULL OUT OF CELLAR BY BEATING TIGERS

St Louis, Mo., May 2.—Danforth allowed Cobb's men only five safeties and the Brown's pulled themselves out of the cellar by defeating Detroit again today, 4 to 1. It was the third straight victory for Sisler's men. Ken Williams tripled off Stoner in the fourth with two men on bases and then tallied on McManus' single.

VICENTINI GIVEN DECISION OVER PAL MORAN IN VERY CLOSE FIGHT

New York, May 2—Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, was given a judges' verdict over Pal Moran of New Orleans in a slow 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. The Chilean was the aggressor from the start, but Moran's body attack piled up a large total of points, according to newspaper men at the ring side and the decision went on the records as an unpopular one. For minutes after the announcement the arena resounded with the hoots of the fans.

Moran, always a hard fighter, seemed to be holding back for what was thought to be a knockout punch but his opponent and the crowd settled back to wait until he opened up on the Chilean. But Moran kept in his shell with his aggressiveness and only once or twice during the course of the bout did he exhibit any aggressive attack that might have put him across the wire first.

But Vicentini, while he forced the issue, missed on that one occasion while Vicentini never even showed Moran with a decisive blow. There was too much close infighting and too much covering up to to make the fight a thriller.

Moran and Vicentini entered the ring at 9.30 o'clock. The New Orleans boy, first in the ring, received a great hand. The Chilean was even more royally accepted by the crowded arena as he crawled through the ropes. Harry Wills, negro heavyweight matched to fight Jack Dempsey on September 6, was introduced. The lightweight principals posed for pictures while the crowd cheered their favorites. Moran's weight was announced at 134 1-2, Vicentini at 133.

The semi-final was a thriller under Carl Duane. New York featherweight, had the misfortune to break his jaw in the second round of his bout with Johnny Leonard, of Allentown, Pa. Johnny Leonard, of Allentown, Pa. Pluckily the New Yorker stuck to it was evident that he was suffering from some jaw infection. The club physician, upon examining the jaw at the conclusion of the fifth round, pronounced it fractured and the fight was stopped, Leonard being awarded a technical knockout.

In a four round preliminary Jimmy Russo of Grand Rapids, Mich., scored a judges' verdict over Dave Abad, formerly Midget Tonetta, of Panama.

The attendance was ten thousand. M. Bersac, Vicentini's manager was delighted with the verdict.

"Now for Benny Leonard and a crack at the lightweight title," said Bersac after the fight.

"Vicentini did not score as decisive a victory as I wished he had, nevertheless I think he had an edge on Moran. My boy hasn't really become acclimated to American ways and ideals yet but with more intensive training in America fight methods I believe the lightweight title will sail for Chile with Vicentini."

RICE'S HOMER IN NINTH WINS FOR SENATORS

New York, May 2.—Rice's ninth inning home run with Judge on base broke a tie score, and gave Washington its second straight victory over New York here today, the score being 6 to 4. Both Mogridge and Pennock were hit freely.

Everett Scott, New York's veteran shortstop, playing his 1153rd game, hit three doubles for the Yankees.

ACADEMY CLASHES WITH WINDHAM HIGH TODAY

The Academy team will get a real test today when Windham High will be the opponents. Windham played Bulkeley on Tuesday at New London and for the first few innings made a very good showing against the state interscholastic champions, but finally lost, 16 to 6. Windham has a hard hitting team and in the field they present a strong defense.

Coach Brigham put his men through a stiff batting practice on Friday concentrating on hitting cut-drops which is the main curve ball that the Windham pitcher uses in the Bulkeley game three out of every four balls thrown broke out and down. The Academy players also had some base running work in anticipation of stealing a large number of bases on the Windham catcher who has a very weak arm. The Academy team has won all of the four games played, piling up a total of 65 runs and expects to add a few more in today's encounter.

Ellie Segal will do the hurling with Mileski on the receiving end. Coach Brigham has put his heaviest hitters into today's game so that Windham will have plenty to do to hold down the score. Gee will play first, Tombari will be at second, McGowan at third and Busch at short. There has been a shift in the outfield which should work well. Phil McNamara has been shifted to left field, Kilroy will be in center and Perry Hollander will be in right, having been shifted from behind the bat.

The game will be called promptly at 3 o'clock (daylight time) and it is expected that there will be a large crowd at the game.

TRIANGULAR REGATTA ON THE HOUSATONIC TODAY

Derby, Conn., May 2.—Drawings for positions in the triangular regatta tomorrow between Yale, Columbia and Penn, today, yale led first place in the varsity race to Yale with Columbia second and Penn third. In the junior varsity race the positions will be the same and in the freshman race the positions will be Penn, Yale and Columbia.

In the varsity and junior varsity race Yale will have the position on the east bank of the Housatonic river with Columbia in the middle and Penn towards the west side of the river.

Positions are of no material advantage to either crew. There are no cross currents or grass patches in the stream to interfere with any of the shells and the drawing was agreeable to all three colleges.

The Penn and Columbia crews had two workouts on the river today and were put over a four mile row with a slow paddle towards late afternoon. Both crews came back to the Bob Cook boat house in excellent condition, after an hour and a half on the water.

The Yale crew, the last to take to the stream were given last minute instructions by Coach Ed Leader of the varsity and junior varsity, and Coach Mike Murphy of the freshman crew.

RIVERVIEW CLASHES WITH HARTFORD GRAYS TODAY

Practically the same infield that represented the Riverview club last season will take the field this afternoon, namely: Couillard 1b, Burns 2b, Moore ss, Mills 3b. This combination seems to have reached mid-season form, and Manager Bill Donovan has been sending them through the paces this week putting an edge on their batting eye. Paul Zemke, who has many a winning game left in his old right arm, will toe the rubber for the hospital club with Joe Belair on the receiving end of the battery. The outfield will be taken care of by Agosti, Hamnill and Zimmerman.

SARAZEN'S WINNING STREAK COMES TO ABRUPT END

New York, May 2.—Then winning streak, of Sarazen, Kentucky derby hope of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, II, was ended abruptly today when the renowned gelding, making his first three-year-old start under colors, was beaten by the Rancocas stable's Bracadale in the six furlong Lyndbrook handicap at Jamaica track.

Sarazen, ridden badly by Clarence Kummer, never was able to get beyond second place, and finished a length and a half behind the winner, Bracadale shot into the lead at the turn after Brainstorm, which finished third, had set the early pace.

The defeat of Sarazen, hailed as 1923 juvenile champion after an unbroken string of ten victories, gave a setback to the horse's Derby stock. At the same time it heightened the east's confidence for the Kentucky classic in St. James; George D. Widener's colt which decisively defeated Zev last Monday at Jamaica.

As a two-year old, Sarazen, a son of High Time and Rush Box and named after the professional golf champion, Gene Sarazen, surpassed the juvenile record of Man O'War, which won nine out of ten starts. Morvich won all eleven of his starts as a two year-old in 1921, while Colin, in 1908, hung up twelve juvenile triumphs. Sarazen's winnings last year totalled $27,380, including $15,000 for triumphing over the filly Happy Thought, previously unbeaten, in a match race at Laurel.

Eight horses started in [illegible] which had an added value of $1,500. Dr. Dave Harrington, Pierre of Bernbria, Lord Granite, Hephaistos and

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
MY SCHOOL BOOKS

My school books! Dear old school books! 'Tis years since last we met,
And many a milestone I have passed, and many a vain regret
Has filled my heart with longing, for days of long ago.
Since you, dear school books, were my pride, my friends thru weal and woe

Time was, when you were newly bound and beautiful to see
With dark and shining covers from spot or blemish free:
And each one had its thumbstall—of which there was great need—
And my name, in hieroglyphics, that few could ever read.

You recall the old gray school house and the teacher's kindly face,
As she calmly called the classes, telling each to take his place,
When I jostled for my place—at the bottom of the row—
And sang off my recitation, which was "Twenty Years Ago."

I can hear the noisy humming like the drowsy song of bees,
And hear the soft winds sighing thru the stately maple trees,
I can hear the faltering voices, faintly murmuring each line,
As we wept o'er "Faithful Fido" and "Bigen on the Rhine."

I can see the slanting sunbeams as they fell across the door
Where the carefully marked notches marked the hours of twelve and four
There the water-pail was standing, on a bench all smeared with ink,
And each one took his turn in asking "Please may I have a drink."

Old school books! These are memories which can never be effaced
Buried deep within my heart—nor can they ever be replaced
Still my treasures, unforgotten, on this shelf beneath the dust,
Shall love you, till I'm roaming where the gold will never rust.
—K. Blake McCloskey.

AUNT MARTHA'S KITCHEN

A low, dark-rafter, homely, cozy room,
Gay with long rows of polished pots and pans,
And quaint, blue-figured china jars and cans;
In the deep window sills stand plants in bloom—
Geraniums and musk and yellow broom
Whose fragrance filters through the spicy scent
Of juicy goodies, with the leisure blent
That knows no bustling city's stressful boom.

Here friendly neighbors drop in for a chat,
And favored children stop to beg a sweet
And stroke the drowsy, purring tabby-cat;
Who keeps herself so clean and sleek and neat.
Here all the village brings each grief and fear,
And goes home comforted with warmth and cheer.

THE SMALL BOY ON THE LAMP POST

The streets are glad with tossing flags and packed with eager life;
The trumpets blare a wild fanfare and bugle answers life;
The cymbals clash, and louder crash reverberating drums,
As down the way in proud array each brave battalion comes.
When all is bright with silken folds of crimson, white, and blue,
The Small Boy on the Lamp Post holds his Annual Review.

He hasn't washed his freckled face nor combed his rusty hair,
No patch upon his sitting place is quite beyond repair;
His manners—well, they're hardly good: he whistles through his teeth
And chaffs in youthful hardihood the marching hosts beneath.
Oh, better rob a tiger's den than face that imp of guile,
The Small Boy on the Lamp Post, when he doesn't like your style!

The Governor is bowing in the big reviewing stand;
The Mayor greets the multitude with glossy hat in hand;
Perchance a vagrant Money King is blandly smiling there
To see the brisk Drum Major fling his baton high in air.
Oh, let deluded Greatness pose and touch the silken brim!
The Small Boy on the Lamp Post knows the show is all for him!
—Arthur Guiterman.

GRATEFUL FOR RESPONSE

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am filled with gratitude at the generous response the Cornerites have made to my appeal for a coupon shower for my birthday. My dilemma has indeed been overcome and through your thoughtfulness and generosity I shall be able to indulge in a nice [illegible]

I assure you I shall not soon forget the helpful spirit you have manifested and I realize more than ever what a real blessing our Corner has become. I sincerely thank each one who has come to my assistance. With best wishes to all.

PLANS FOR THE ROLL CALL

Dear Corner Members: Our good editor informed me that he is heartily in sympathy with the idea of a roll call for our Social Corner and will gladly do his part. Now as he is the only one who has a complete list and is willing to print a certain number of pennames each week, let us not neglect our part, but make a real business of it by responding promptly. The plan I have in mind is to have a blank book ready and to copy the names from the paper as printed, and as each one responds hope they will give their birthday so that can be added to the pen name. Be sure to leave space for the real name and address so that may be added as fast as we find out "who is who" When the names are called of those who have passed, to the "Great Beyond" it would be very nice if some one who knew them would respond by informing us of their death so that could be recorded in our book. No doubt there will be many names which will bring no response, but even so it will be very nice to know that some writer used them, at one time and it also will bring back many pleasant remembrances to the older writers and a great surprise to those who think there are only two or three hundred writers.

Another way might be to have a large scrapbook in which to paste every roll call letter. As there are hundreds of names to be printed it will take a long time to complete the list, so let every sister and brother appreciate what the kind editor is doing for us and respond quickly to the call. No doubt but what all will enjoy a real houjness—like roll call and the opportunity will soon be on the way I think, but don't let others think their letters are not wanted or needed.

Rural Aunty and others in your vicinity: I heartily hope you will be successful in having a meeting at Moosup in June and then I think Club 4 will brace up and see what we can do up this way. It seems to me there are members enough in each place to have meetings quite often so as to give the other clubs a chance to visit with us.

Am always proud of our Corner page.

PRESENT DAY TENDENCIES

Social Cornerites: Spring is here and the flowers will peep up their heads soon from the cold earth.

Isn't it queer how some girls of today will fuss on their hair to get it just so and even spend one whole hour on it! Then go for the fingernails and scrape and polish for another long while. No wonder some good lady said she liked to see a girl as she really was and act the part. I am sure a good part of the time used for these extras might be used in helping tired mother in many little ways. Such small ways that would look real big to her. Then there is the business girl of course she must be neat and tidy. That doesn't mean at all that she has to wear crepe de chine or beaded georgette in working hours. Plain clothes neatly put on and in good taste and spotless are nowadays more looked for by the employer. One girl will say look at this old hat, a sight isn't it? If a hat is a sensible one when bought and not too elaborate it ought to stand a good deal of wear. Perhaps if brushed with care it could give a longer lease of life. A lady said once she couldn't stand a hat that was retrimmed or renovated in any way as it seemed to her the same old thing a funny remark to make, as the people with the fattest purses nowadays often have a hat remodelled. A certain woman of means was one day showing her new Paris hat. Everyone admired it and she said she would tell the secret. She wore it two winters as it was bought and the third winter I used the same frame and by studying the hats in the windows I finally found velvet enough in a box to steam out and recover the frame and make it look an entirely different shape. I also added some bunches of pretty buds. That hat was snowed on and sprinkled on and had a few bumps but still it lives to be renovated once more perhaps. This lady calls it her 'fail me never hat.'

Clothes can be sponged and pressed and sometimes slightly remodelled in their style and yet look up to date again. I once read, "Aren't poverty stricken clothes outside evidence of a poverty stricken inside? Instead of decrying the working girl's love of clothes and prettiles, reformers should busy themselves educating girls to wear the right sort of clothes and attaining for them a wage that will insure a pretty dress now and then. I am wondering how some of the girls that work in stores for $8 per week can pay board and exist.

DEARIE.

CARE OF BABY CHICKS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Much care is needed for baby chicks at this time of year. Our first hen hatched chickens but many times the first don't hatch very well being so cold the eggs get chilled if we put too many under the hen. So many times we only get a few and don't want to bother to keep them with a hen. I always have better luck to bring them up by hand. I put 15 eggs under one hen and she was a very large hen, but 13 would have been better. She got along well until they began to hatch, then being heavy she killed three. The rest weren't dry and two eggs hadn't hatched. I put them in an old woolen sweater often I had [illegible] of course taking care not too get them too hot. The other two that hadn't hatched I put in a little warm water to dampen a bit and they hatched out, one had a crippled foot so I put that one out of the way as it never pays to bother with crippled chickens. Even if they live to grow up they never will do any thing for they are weak and sure to fall to diseases, roup or colds. Chickens have to be kept warm. For a few, this is what I do. For one lot of five I took an old shoe box cut a little hole in one end and put in some hens feathers, set the box in the oven and let it warm and then put the chicks in it. In a short time they learn to go in it and the feathers keep them warm. If you don't have feathers I have seen some take a woolen cloth and tack on the inside of the box so when it is done it will be like the inside of an egg box. Have little slits cut in it and it is very good. They like to run in so often when they get cold. An old jug filled with hot water and covered over so they can't come in close contact with it, and then another cloth, or old rag, put over that makes a good thing to keep them warm. The most trouble we have with baby chicks is the first week. They never should have any drinking water during that time unless there is some diarrhoea remedy in it. This year I'm using Germicide; it makes the water purple. Most baby chicks are sure to get bowel trouble. Usually after the first week they are all right. I give them their water warm.

For hose that raise baby rabbits, try feathers for them to make their bed of. They make a very nice warm bed and keep the mother rabbit from pulling off her own hair to warm her babies in. She will always cover her babies with them when she leaves them so it keeps them warm and from getting chilled

To keep hen houses free from lice every week or two paint the roosts with one quarter of Pratt's poultry disinfectant to three quarters kerosene put on in the morning. Be sure to go all over the under side and all around the ends of the roost. Give the hens ashes to dust in and that worry will be settled. I buy the disinfectant in gallon cans as it is good for everything. If you have a sore put a little in water and soak it in it.

Foxglove: Many thanks for cards Was well remembered on my birthday. You see your card was the first I ever got from a Social Corner sister. So it took me quite a few minutes to think what it was all about. I see you have a sedan and judge by your letters that you go to the meetings down to Wilimantic, some drive. Well, I have a sedan too but never have been to any of the meetings but would love to. If I knew any sister who lived near me I would go down and take one or two with me. I will write soon and tell you how to find me.

Rosy Posy: Many thanks for birthday card it was another surprise for me. I'm wondering if you live near Hartford. Wish you had sent your address along with it. I live four miles east of Hartford.

My letter is getting very long so will stop. Hoping to hear from more of the sisters. With best wishes to all.

ANNA Z. (April 25.)

IN THE LAND OF FLOWERS AND ALLIGATORS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: In a letter recently written to you I gave an account of the memorial held at West Palm Beach for the unveiling of the head of Robert E. Lee at Stone Mountain, Ga. This mountain is 5,000 feet long, 7 miles around the base and one mile from summit on the sloping side. In this mountain are to be sculptured the commanding officers of the Confederacy, which will be in life size, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson and Jeff Davis are among the principal ones, and it is said Lee's will be as tall as a 18 story building and all other commanding officers in proportion. The distance is so great they will only look life size. At the left of the group of officers will be column after column of infantry in the grey, as the mountain gives the effect, it being grey.

There will be a memorial hall cut in the mountain and several incisions for windows. In this hall will be the records and relics of the war and names of those who contributed to the fund of the memorial. The hall will be underneath the central group of officers, an amphitheatre a huge structure and rivaling the Roman Coliseum. In a recess of the amphitheatre an organ will be placed being the largest in the world. This mountain has stood for ages unchanged. The sculptor, Gutzums Borlum, began this wonderful piece of sculpture on June 18, 1923. (The windows in the hall, 13 in all, will be dedicated to each of the Confederate states.)

Maine Lover it doesn't look now as though you would see me. I don't know when, as Al has charge of the building of a large hotel which may take six months. We have hot days but the breeze from the lake offsets the heat.

Wandering Jew: Card received. So many letters staring me in the face, (pardon it I do not acknowledge same by letter.) You can't imagine how much I want to run in as I used to do when in Connecticut and enjoy being in a drama and see you all. But alas! here I am 1500 miles away, and growing older every day.) There, I did not think I was making a rhyme. If Wandering Jew would like to be in Florida, come along. Wonderful land of flowers and alligators. Just had news of a dear friend in Brocton passing on. In the afternoon she was at work on patchwork and in the morning her daughter went to her room and found her gone. She had reached an old age, 90, but so smart! I always went to see her when I went to Brocton. We were the only two original Bible class members left in Sabbath school.

Kind thoughts for all sisters.

TROTTIE.

JELLY ROLL RECIPE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Have planned to write for a long time to help keep the Corner page full and will write a few lines now.

We are having so much rain lately, I can't do any housecleaning, but hope May will bring warmer weather. It has been very cold for April. I am thanking Hope Cobweb, Busy Bee, Whirlwind and Aunt Alice for the lovely birthday cards. It is good to be remembered.

Jelly Roll—Three eggs, 3 cups flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Best wishes for the Corner.

APRIL FLOWER 23RD.

SUNSET

Dear Social Corner Friends: I wonder how many saw the beautiful sunset Sunday night at 6:30, standard time. I think it the most beautiful I ever saw. The colors were wonderful, no artist could have touched a brush to canvas and yet got the same colors.

Two little boys, Paul and Dick, cousins, Paul six years, Dick four years old were invited to spend a week with their grandmother on the farm. Paul said, "Dick, what makes you go, you may have to go to bed early?" Dick replied, "How do you know but what Lmay want to go to bed early."

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Wonder if any one will be glad to hear from me so soon again. I enjoy reading the letters but there are so many that we don't hear from once in ages. I wish every one would write say one letter a month. It is nice out today. My washing is done. I have been raking to our yard. I bet we have the smallest yard ever. We can only drive in and back out no garden, no flower beds unless one puts up window boxes, which would be nice. I like to work out doors the year around almost. When a child of eight and for three years after, my parents lived with my grandpa on my mother's side. In this family were grandpa, grandma, father, mother, three brothers, one sister, a boy fourteen that came from the children's home, a bachelor uncle and two hired men and myself. We lived on a farm of 165 acres. About everything grew on this farm, apples, pears, peaches, grapes, strawberries, asparagus, a balm of Gilead tree. From this tree grandma would pick buds fill a bottle with them then fill bottle with alcohol. It was then used for a liniment. Our house was an old timer with 14 rooms, two pantrys, milk room, store room, wood shed and swill house. All these were attached to the house. There were five outside doors, ever so many clothes presses and cupboards and a large attic where we would play on rainy days. We would dress up in all the old finery we could find such as old silk dresses, hoop skirts, bustles, wigs, poke bonnets and such a fine time as we had. We older ones didn't find much time to play as we all had much to do. Picking strawberries was a tiresome job, building loads of hay was another bugbear and wash loads of dishes three times a day was another job we all loved and yet hated. We loved to ride miles and miles with Buck and Bright yoked to a large wagon. When we got to the woods we hated it. We had to pick up chips until the wagon was filled way above the wagon stakes. Our backs would ache as we gathered chips until we had a pile as high as our wood shed. This would require several trips to the woods. Grandpa had 30 cows, some young stock, five horses, the pair of oxen, a large flock of turkeys that slept in the trees the entire year if they lived that long, ever so many hens and some guineas hens that made so much noise when one went near them. I did not like them. Grandpa wouldn't have pigeons. He said they spoiled everything and that they were dirty. Grandpa's farm was six miles from a small town. While we stayed with grandpa some of us attended church every Sunday. Grandpa was deacon for years. He always, no matter how busy the day, held family prayers after reading the bible. How good we all were in those days. I never heard any fault finding or cross words spoken while there. Our school was three miles from our house we had to wallow over backs of snow and were really quite wet when we arrived at school and with little chance of getting dried out. All old timers know how cold our little red school houses were. We had school in summer. Such grown up men as come to school just learning their two and two is four. Others so small and young were so far advanced.

Twice a year was butchering time and that meant lots of work. We kept one hog for home supplies each time and sold the others to the market. We had our own smoke houses and the bacon and hams were very nice. How much pork we must have eaten. It was on the table in some form every day. Sundays for a change we would have chicken with biscuit which we all enjoyed very much. Sausage and buckwheat cakes made our breakfast in winter while berries were used often in the summer. We had our own bread, baking seven loaves at a time about three times a week beside bran bread and biscuit. We all loved steam bread eaten hot with our own butter. Once grandpa while eating steam bread said we children were all together too fond of butter, that he would just like to see all our bread thin once and see who had the most butter.

We all willingly showed our slices, of course. Grandpa had to too and wasn't it a joke on grandpa when he held up his bread. The butter was a little thicker than the slice of bread. We all laughed at this but he felt a little cheap. He loved us all so much he did not see how he could part with us. My parents soon moved to the city which we did not like.

We have never forgotten the good times we had. We liked to ride horse back up and down the road but soon tired of this if asked to ride the horse to cultivate the garden or to plow. Grandpa liked best to have one of us ride Bob when he plowed our garden for one had to be careful not to tear out the herbs, rhubarb and onions.

Grandpa tapped the long rows of maple trees that grew each side of the road past our place. It makes a lovely syrup after boiling it down. There were a number of unpleasant things we older ones had to do such as dropping potatoes and planting corn. After pushing a little dirt over the fertilizer with our foot we would drop five kernals of corn to a hill and two pieces of potato to a hill. These we had cut the night before, making sure to have two eyes to each piece of potato. Such long rows it seemed as though we would never get to the end.

Scouring steel knives and forks with scouring brick after each meal was a job no one wanted to do but it had to be done. We cut a potato in half and rubbed in the brick dust which had been scrapped off on a small board. With this they really cleaned easily and quickly.

Every spring our rag carpet in the living room had to be taken up. Such a dreadful job we had cleaning the floor and carpet. The carpet was laid over clean new rye straw. After making the straw as smooth as possible we would put down the carpet and all the kiddies would walk around and around on it to make it all of the same height. Sometimes the furniture only stood on three legs. Once our stove leaned over so far it had to be righted with a brick where there happened to be no straw. Imagine if you can the taking up of this carpet with a shovel. I am glad there is nothing like that today.

There were panel shutters of wool on the inside that we would slide over the windows at night in grandpa's house. Heavy wooden bars were used to lock the doors or rather barricade the doors.

Hoping the sick are gaining and all are free from trouble I am as ever

ANOTHER SISTER IN TROUBLE

Dear Editor Social Corner, Sisters and Brothers. I thought I better call on the brothers as I have a farm on my hands. The man we sold it to nine years ago ran away without paying for it, so I had to take it to get my money back.

I just read the Social Corner page and found one other sister in trouble, but not near so bad as mine. I wish I could send her some of those cousins. Will send a card for her birthday.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER, (Aug. 31)

CHANCE FOR NERVISTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Brothers: You know those people we call dentists, who have an office and a sign which reads "Painless Dentistry" and [illegible] have their teeth extracted one by one slowly and more or less painlessly and after the dentist has wrenched and twisted and yanked awhile, the teeth are all out and the dentist makes a bran-new set upper and under, and installs them for the small sum of $35 or more and we pay it gladly. Now what I wish to say is if there was a man and they called him a nervist and he had an office and when a person went there he (the nervist I mean) would pull all the old nerves one by one out of the person and then make them a nice new set with bumpers and shock absorbers, etc., and install them charging only the small sum of a couple hundred or so and send them back to their family well able to stand the ups and downs of everyday life wouldn't that man have lots of customers and make a lot of money? And though I am not as quick on my feet as I used to be I'll say that one of his first customers would be,

FREE AIR.

P. S. This was written after an attack of neuralgia, sciatica, lomoego and nuerlia. I'm still alive so please omit flowers.

SURPRISED INVITATION WASN'T ACCEPTED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank all those that sent me birthday cards and believe me I received quite a few.

I wouldn't dare write all the names for it would surely take up a whole column.

But I hope to have the pleasure of thanking each one personally if they are at the next meeting.

Rosy Posy: Will try to find you out before that time.

Cretia: Enjoyed your letter. Come again. Hope to meet you some time. You certainly had a narrow escape, didn't you? Ha. Ha.

Balsam Fir: You said it. Not much fun surely cleaning house with a stiff neck and in the middle of it all to have an auto party of six come to pay a visit of a few days. But nevertheless I survived and am still here on the same old job. Was glad to get a breath from the Maine woods. Have lots of relatives in Bangor and have been there twice.

Well sisters, I am disappointed in you all. I gave all a nice invitation to help me clean house and not one responded. That's the Social Corner spirit. I certainly expected to see you all come up the street like Old Dutch cleanser advertisements. Well enuf said for duty calls me in the form of more housecleaning.

My sympathy to those that have lost loved ones, especially to the ones that have lost their mothers.

A NEVERFAIL GINGERBREAD

Dear Social Corner Friends: As I have been accepted as a member of the Social Corner will try to do my bit toward helping to fill the page which is devoted to our use. I saw a request in the April 26th issue that a Reader of the Social Corner wishes a recipe for a neverfail gingerbread. She probably is asking for one which has been printed before, but if she would like a good soft gingerbread recipe, here is one I have used for twenty-three years and it has never yet failed to come out fine

Soft Gingerbread: One-half cup each of sugar and butter, one cup molasses, two and one-half cups flour, two eggs, one teaspoon each of cinnamon and ginger, two teaspoons of soda dissolved in one cup of boiling water. Bake in a shallow pan, in a moderate oven. Sometimes we like it with cream (whipped) over it.

How many of the sisters ever had the sewing on their brooms break and let the straws fly apart?

Here is what I do in a case like that. I take two rubber bands, such as can be bought by the bunch in the five and ten cent store, and slip them on in the place of the stitching and they work fine. Another thing which the rubber bands are very handy for is to put around a bunch of small parcels when you are out shopping. I always carry one or two in my hand bag in case of emergency.

Well, I guess I had better ring off, and leave room for some of the more interesting letters. With best wishes to all. I am

ANOTHER SOCIAL MEMBER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I have been a reader of the Social Corner ever since it started, I think. But no one ever happened to say, "I am a member and won't you come in too?"

But I find that I know several of the Corner sisters and have attended two or three of the gatherings and enjoyed them. Various ones say, "Have you written to the good editor to ask for admittance? The answer has been, "Not yet," and at last they tell me I'll be cut off soon if I don't write. So it now depends on the editor whether I am a member or not

Let me leave this thought with you in closing:

Dream of the lofty things in life
For it is the lofty peaks that
Catch the early morning ray.
It is peaks that are bright
Long after the foothills slumber
Wrapped in the folds of night.
Dream on the bright side of life,
on the certainty of reward for good,
and the ultimate triumph of right.

I will take for my pen name

DEAR SOCIAL CORNER SISTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Almost everything seems to have a use—even discarded envelopes. Large envelopes of exceptionally strong material are excellent for keeping clippings, recipes, jottings, even odds and ends of lace embroidery silk and the like. A strip of plain paper pasted over the address makes a suitable place for the inscription of its contents. I like them for garden seeds, since they may be compactly packed away in a tight wooden box safe from the ravages of mice and insects. With a paper knife open the side and two ends of used envelopes. When unfolded there is exposed a good-sized square of clean paper. These are good for the children to scribble on and teach them to preserve their good paper for more important use. Even the envelopes having a transparent insertion are useful. No label is necessary since the content is discernable, while the transparent strips are unexcelled for mending torn books, magazines and the like.

FIXING STOCKINGS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Family: I saw a scowl on my friend's face as I entered and from a pile of stocking she held up one and said, "Wise one, put a new toe and half a foot on for me with no seam and no darns."

I cut below the last hole. It would not ravel. I pulled some silk and wool from a sweater sleeve lying there, overcasted the edge of the cut foot fine with the yarn and put the knitting kneedle through the top of every overcast stitch using three needles. I knit with the fourth needle same as any stocking, narrowing when it was long enough and binding off at toe.

Nods came in today, kicked off her low shoe, held up her foot and said she had fixed mother two pairs, others in the family. She gave me a nice pie.

USES FOR MUTTON SUET

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I am sending you a good article on mutton suet as a household remedy. It is very vexing and annoying indeed, to have one's lips break out with cold sores, but, like the measles, it is far better to strike out than to strike in. A drop of warm mutton suet applied to the sores at night just before retiring will soon cause them to disappear. This is also excellent remedy for parched or chapped lips and chapped hands. It should be applied at night in the liquid state, and be well rubbed and heated in before a brisk fire, which often causes a smarting sensation, but the roughest of hands, by this treatment, will often be restored to their natural condition by one application. If every one could but know the healing properties of so small a thing as a little mutton suet, no housekeeper would be without it. Get a little from your butcher, try it out yourself run it into small cakes and put it away ready for use. For cuts, bruises, and scratches of any kind it is almost indispensable, and where there are children there are always plenty of cuts and bruises. Many a deep gash that would have frightened most women into sending for a doctor at once can be healed with no other remedy, than mutton suet and plenty of good castile soap. A wound should always be kept clean and bandages changed every day or every other day at least. A good drenching of warm soap suds from the purest castile soap is not only cleansing but healing as well. Then cover the wound with a bit of old white muslin dipped in melted mutton suet. Renew the drenching and the suet every time the bandages are changed and you will be astonished to see how rapidly the ugliest wound will heal.

Rural Delivery: What a sensation Rural Aunty's letter must have caused you! I thought surely you had started a quilting bee and was going to spring a big surprise in the Corner exhibition your pretty hand work. I am well aware of some of the things you have sent to you when the Corner just started, and the sensation in one home that was caused when your identity became known and oh! the laugh afterwards.

Savilla: Were you all tired out? And, oh! the weather next day! got your little fern started and will start the others you asked about by apple blossom time. Has Mrs. T. arrived yet?

Joan: Your card at hand glad to hear from you.

Lucy Acorn: Was very much pleased to receive your letter. Is this article in your kitchen range?

J. E. T.: You will be surprised to learn that Jetty is such a good scout never causes me a bit of trouble. A small youngster saw him the other day and thought him a real cute so you see it didn't hurt him any by transplanting him from the city life to life in the rural district. Take your little Rapid Transit and come out again soon. You will get plenty of free air here now at Hallcrest.

CRIMSON RAMBLER

WHEN LAUREL AND PEACH TREES ARE IN BLOOM.

Dear Editor and Sisters: I find it so hard to keep the resolution to write once a month that I have decided that I did my duty when the Corner was younger, and members fewer, so now once in a year or two is often enough to remind you I still claim a place in the Corner, but am willing to let the newer members do the work. To tell the truth I've nothing of interest to write about.

Iola: We used to have a candle mold like the one you describe, and once (when I was younger) my mother made a few just to show us how it was done.

To those of you who love wild flowers let me suggest a ride to Bolton Notch when the mountain laurel is in bloom, if you have not already seen it It was beautiful last spring. Also from Gilead to the Notch when peach trees are in bloom.

MISSED CORNER DURING ABSENCE.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I am sending a few coupons for Eveline Burr: Sorry I haven't any more, but hope these will help out.

This is the second time I have written to the Corner. The first was about six years ago. Have only recently returned to your state, and while absent missed your Corner very much. Would love to know some of the sisters. I am a member of the Women's Relief corps of Massachusetts and feel quite lonely here.

If Ma of Greene Gables will get a bolle of Schlotterbick's corn cure at the drug store and use it for a week instead of three days as it says on the bottle, I am sure she will get relief from her corns. Hope I have helped a little also hope you will admit me to your Corner. Would love to have some of the sisters write me.

I will take for my pennaeme

LONESOME.

PLEASED WITH PRIZE

Dear Corner Friends and Mr. Editor: Please accept my thanks for the prize slip you awarded me. Was very much pleased with it. I bought a very pretty jardiniere and in it I have a very handsome dicentra. Now perhaps the sisters would like my pie recipe, as follows:

Peach Custard Pie: Halve the peaches and place in pie plate after lining with pie crust. (canned or dried peaches will do if you haven't the fresh). Put a little sugar into the center of each half peach. Then make custard as for custard pie and pour over peaches, filling the dish (deeper the better). Bake as usual. I have never offered it to anyone who did not think it delicious and it can be made at any time of year as canned peaches are obtainable the whole year around. Whipped cream can be added when cold if desired. Hope to meet many of the sisters at next meeting. Best wishes to all. I remain

TRUE BLUE

THE BLOOM OF SPRINGTIME

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: The mantle of winter has vanished, Easter has come and gone.

Easter always greets us with a cheery cheer bringing sweet messages to us with music and flowers. Easter day is like a song of spring across the snow, bringing its message of resurrection in the perennial bloom of the springtime. I hope you were all able to attend the Easter services. Being a shut in, of course, I was confined to my room, but was cheered with cards, letters, and beautiful Easter lilies.

"For fresh from the earth's quickened bosom.
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin soft petals,
To carpet a path for our King."

PALMLEAF.

SPRING IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am having a lunch of corn flakes and milk. Come and join me; all are welcome.

Well I was sure surprised not to see our page full and overflowing when my courier got here yesterday. My nephew has a Pawtucket Times, and we also have the Portland Evening Express. So you see we don't lack for news.

But I am always glad to see the Courier as it comes in on the noon mail and it is a part of my dinner. Was pleased to get Mrs. B. B's address. Trust she will be better soon The wind is blowing a gale and it is quite cold. Plowing has begun at Lakeside but neighbors are unable to do any owing to frost in the ground.

Easter Sunday was superb—63 in shade—and we went for a ride into the Portland Match Company's woods There was so much snow we could not get any arbutus—roads all ice and such going! I cannot keep my balance on slippery ground and I had no sooner landed on the snow before down I went aslump.

No, never even shook me, we had a good laugh. Although there was so much ice and snow the sweet song of the birds was wonderful to hear.

I am trying to clean house but one pair of hands seems to work slow, especially when a body has to stop and cook and get meals ready for two healthy hearty men. And it is so pleasant to work with a sweeter on The wind blows cold all the time. But I will get through some time between now and Christmas.

Aunty No. 1: Was the fire at your place?

Many thanks to everybody for the Easter cards.

I am in hopes to meet with you some of your good times this summer Unless my plans fail I intend to

THE RETURN OF SPRING.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: The Easter and spring season is here again, bringing home and cheer to each heart. It is the time of new life everything showing life and vitality with the buds and blossoms. [illegible] songs and frogs' happy [illegible] each pond where they dwell. I agree with the sister who said it is strange that any one cannot believe in miracles. I am so glad our God is a miracle-working God and has power to do anything. There are so many wonderful things to see in nature and in life of every kind. Then the man who meets conditions little realizes the marvelous blessings ahead. I have seen those who have been healed when doctors said there was no hope, accidents prevented and many other marvelous answers to prayer. They say the proof of the puddings is its eating. I have proof for my faith in God and His Son which has been tested and tried and is true.

All nature says, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead and Christ shall give thee light." How abundant the vital forces of the season, how prodigal the gifts of the Creator, how every vessel and channel is the throbbing world around us is overflowing with redundant vitality. Let us take Him at His word who said, I am come that they might have life, and that more abundantly." It is the time of planting. What a wonderful things are hidden in a seed. It is planted, dies to itself, then new life comes from its grave, a nobler life Not planted, it is a dry seed, but placed in the soil where it has a chance and up it springs to new growing life. Everything depends its being planted. In the barn it will stay the same for centuries, but in the ground it is a living force. Thousands of folks have enough in their minds to revolutionize their lives, but they have never planted it. You believe in Christ, take Him as your Saviour and commit your heart and life to His keeping. He will be your Saviour We believing in prayer, begin to live a life of prayer and it brings fruit in our lives. Plant the right [illegible] seed. Plant thistles and we will [illegible] them, plant wheat and we will raise wheat. Let us be careful to plant the right kind of seed.

The time of migration is the [illegible] on when the swallow comes back to its old nest in the eaves, and the doves and the orioles gather in their old haunts. How delightful to have them back. We know by their warbling and glad notes they are glad to get back home. O, sinner, get back to God. O, Christian, get into your right place, get on to God's better place.

There is a beautiful story of a boy who when young ran away from home and went to sea. He was a Swedish lad, captured by a Moorish pirate and sold into slavery in North Africa. As

NEW LONDON'S FAMED OLD TOWN MILL FIGURES IN A THEFT STORY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 3—Edward J. Matthewson is held in the county jail here for a very serious offence, misprision of felony. He was in the police court this morning where he was accused by two boys, Spiro Nicholson and Herman Kaplan, of offering to buy goods from them when they were stolen. The boys are about 12 and they produced the goods which they allege Matthewson said he would buy. The case came to the court, when the police traced the robbery of the home of Mrs. Nellie Hislop, widow of John Hislop, which robbing was discovered when Mrs. Hislop returned after six weeks' absence from the city. The plunder taken was a string of pearl beads, a small watch, a pair of opera glasses, a matchsafe that was an heirloom, men's shirts, collars and a few other articles which only boys would steal. The police began working on the case with the conviction that boys did the job. Nicholson and Kaplan have been pupils at the Winthrop school, adjoining the old town mill. When they had done their job they told of the robbery to other boys and the latter in turn talked about it and the police got the information they sought.

Mrs. Hislop was in court this morning and described the property she had lost, identifying that taken from the boys accused which they later admitted having stolen. Nicholson and Kaplan told a straightforward story—so accurate that there seems no chance for Matthewson to escape the consequences if he is guilty. The boys declared that they went from the Hislop house to the old town mill in which building the accused sells candy and in which he rooms with a woman known as "Goldie" Rose, a woman not living with her husband or a divorced woman. There Matthewson is alleged to have learned of the burglary and to have learned that a string of pearl beads had been left in the Hislop house undisturbed. The boys say he questioned them about the beads and told them that if they secured them he would buy them. The boys went back to the Hislop house a second time and securing the beads and some men's shirts and collars they brought them to Matthewson. He and the Rose woman examined the beads and decided they were not of good quality and would not buy them. The shirts were likewise refused by Matthewson, the boys said, because they were not silk and he was accustomed to wearing silk shirts. The shirts, collars, etc., were burned to get rid of them and destroy evidence as to where the stolen goods were to be found. The Rose woman, the boys declared, after examining the beads and pronouncing them of inferior quality, broke the clasp and then advised Kaplan to take the beads home insist that he found them in the street and thus deceive his mother. Four boys told practically the same story to the court this morning and stuck to the recital in cross-examination. At the conclusion of the testimony the defense did not introduce any evidence asking for a continuance until tomorrow to decide upon a course. There upon the prosecutor asked that the bond on which Matthewson should be released should be increased and it was raised from $500 to $1,000. Attorney Cronin asked Probation Officer Mansfield to notify the school authorities as to the business it was alleged was conducted in the historic town mill. The prosecutor characterized the place as a joint and intimated that there was other business than what was ostensibly maintained there being done. A shake-up seems to be coming there whether the offense alleged is true or untrue.

Benny Ustach, was charged with a breach of the peace in attacking his wife. He was not penalized for there is a chance that Probation Officer Mansfield can adjust matters in a satisfactory way.

The parking of cars on both the north and south sides of Pearl street between Green and Bank streets is becoming a source of danger to automobiles driven through that street as the space between the parked cars is barely sufficient to permit a car to pass through.

Window cleaners who have heretofore found employment in cleaning at the stores and business places have extended their work to private residences and are getting increased patronage.

The funeral of Robert D. Taylor, held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his home 8 Bristol street was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, among whom were emptoyes of James Hislop & Co. Today the management of the Sells Floto circus that was to have exhibited on Clarkin field the 23rd inst., made it known that the engagement had been cancelled.

The New York police, through Inspector William J. Lahey, Chief of Detectives, tonight informed the New London authorities that Lawrence W. Easton, formerly of New London, who is being held a prisoner in New York on a warrant charging him with forging a check on the Old Colony Trust company of Boston, and purporting to be the issue of the Structure Oil company of New London, his former employers, will be held until May 6th and that if an officer with extradition papers does not arrive for the prisoner that he would be released. The matter was turned over to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, who had requested that Easton be held in custody 30 days. Attorney Conin will take the matter up with the New York police Saturday.

The U. S. S. Savannah, which comes to this port frequently has arrived in New York after several weeks' cruise and tonight many sailors from the craft arrived in New London by train. Supernumerary Policeman Dennis Murphy, ex-product of the prize ring and who is one of the five candidates for police work who recently passed an examination for the work, has been assigned to duty and will be kept on the force at least for the balance of the year. The officer is covering beats left vacant because of either the regular patrolmen being ill or being on their vacation.

About 50 children, many of them cripples, arrived in New London from New York this evening at 6.03 o'clock and then boarded an automobile bus that was in waiting for them at the Union station and were conveyed to property owned by Edward S. Harkness in Waterford, where they will remain several weeks in the hopes that the country air and plenty of exercise in the open will aid them in regaining their health. The expense connected with the visited of the children to the Waterford estate will be borne by Mrs. Harkness.

Because of the great effort being made by the Providence police to apprehend the youthful slayer of Clementine Cosmo, nine years old girl, who was brutally murdered and her body crudely burial several days ago by the murderer, after he had lured the child into an automobile, Sergeant of Police Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh early this evening apprehended two youths, one of, whom answered closely the description of the slayer of the girl. The two youths, however, were later released, when a telephone communication between the local authorities and the Providence police revealed that the suspects did not answer the description of the man wanted close enough to warrant either being detained. Patrolman Cavanaugh observed the two youths on the outskirts of the city and holding them up, caused Sergeant Murphy to be informed. The latter joined Cavanaugh and the suspects were brought to the police station. They gave their names as Walter Pasture, 18, of 2665 Deacon street, Philadelphia and John Bauman, 19, of 2523 Roberts street, Philadelphia.

A police dog, owned by Owen O'Neil 27 West street, died this morning as the result of poisoning. It is the belief of the owner that the animal was intentionally poisoned, but for what cause he is unable to determine. The dog was a pet and friendly with children and adults alike.

The condition of Samuel Whipple of Groton, a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a broken back, sustained Wednesday night when he was struck by an automobile owned and operated by Clifford W. Thurber, 39 Thames street, at the Groton approach of the Thames river highway bridge, is critical tonight. Because of the condition of the patient the state police this evening began an investigation to determine the facts connected with the running down of the pedestrian.

Albert Martell, connected with the L. & H. Motor company tonight lodged complaint with the police because of the reckless driving of an autoist on Connecticut avenue. Martell declared that he was driving his automobile westerly on Lincoln avenue and when the machine was about to cross Connecticut avenue, a machine bearing registration A-9457, and traveling south on that avenue, crossed Lincoln avenue at a rate of speed estimated at between 40 and 45 miles an hour, the speeding car just escaping collision with Martell's automobile and another machine. Martell speeded his car and overtook the Marmon machine at Garfield avenue, but the driver refused to stop that his identity could be established.

Charles H. Baldwin is confined to his home on Bank street by illness but not of a serious nature.

James Adams, 59 Colt street, Louis Vendetti, Groton and the Misses Josephine and Emma Azzinnaro of Westerly, patient sat Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Announcement is made of the marriage at Hartford April 12th of Miss Ethel Vincent Smith, daughter of Mrs. Sadie Smith of State street and Albertus B. Brown, son of Mrs. J. E. F. Brown of Mystic. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are making their home in Hartford.

WHERE THE BIGGEST SHOE SALE IS BEING HELD.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich people experienced "back to winter" weather for nearly seven days in 1874 and snow covered the hills around the city to the depth of nearly an inch. Parades were held in blinding snow storms and gardens were badly wrecked. Following the snow storm gales came upon the city nearly wrecking a circus which visited the town.

These items with others taken from the files of The Bulletin of that year indicate plenty of amusements for Norwich people in the old days:

Monday, April 27, 1874—The annual spring parade of the Greeneville Fire Department occurred Saturday afternoon, and, considering the weather, was a decided success. The procession was formed in the following order:

Chief Engineer George Johnson
Assistants, Robert A. France, David P. King
Fire Police, Jas. Kirker, Captain
Tubbs' Brass Band, 22 Men
D. R. Holmes S. F. E. Co. 30 Men

The line of march was a lengthy one and, during the time the procession was marching a driving northeast rain and snow storm was in progress, but as the firemen are proof against fire and water, it failed to bother them.

The New London Telegram comments on an article by The Advertiser which stated that there is a sequel to that centennial tea-party which a few months since stirred Norwich to its depths. The funds which resulted from the substitution of tea for whiskey as the favorite beverage of "The Rose of New England," instead of going 100 per cent. to the Norwich provident society for distribution among the poor, 25 per cent went to the "agent" of the concern and 75 per cent. to the association. The New London Telegram answers this article by saying that now there is widespread indignation among the hundreds who with charitable intent gave up their toddy for a week or more and flooded themselves with tea.

In answer there is more truth than fiction and not a few Norwich people are indignant over the way the funds were split after the tea-party.

Spearmint cigars, retailing at ten cents the dozen are selling fast at local tobacco stores, and there is no tax to pay.

Boys took advantage of the opportunities of the storm Saturday for reviving a real winter sport, as not a few "sore headed" citizens can vouch for.

Tuesday, April 28, 1874—Uncas Lodge celebrated the 55th anniversary of Odd Fellowship last evening at the hall and there was an attendance of over 200. Several fine talks were given, among them a talk on Odd Fellow history by John L. Devotion, who told of taking the lodge banner to Boston when 15,000 brothers gathered in that city. The celebrated banner was painted by Solomon Fanning.

The First National Bank has clared a dividend of 4 per cent and the Second National Bank one per cent. payable May 4th.

The entertainment given by Prof. Andrus in the new village hall at Taftville is spoken of as an exceptionally fine exhibition. The new hall, thus dedicated, will seat between seven and eight hundred people and is one of the best finished and most convenient structures in the state.

The City of New York, City of Norwich and the Continental made round trips on Sunday. Saturday the storm was so severe that the Continental was compelled to anchor off Sand's Point, 35 miles from New York.

The rainfall of the first storm measured 1.64 inches. Snow is still covering the hills about the city the fall being extremely heavy for this time of the year.

The City Hall square is receiving a necessary lot of repairs much to the satisfaction of people whose daily wanderings take them that way.

Wednesday, April 29, 1874—One hundred and thirty-eight people from various churches of the city expressed a desire to join Park Congregational church yesterday when the organization of the church was completed. The service was most impressive and a number of local clergymen took part in the program. The address to the church was delivered by Dr. Arms and gave the key note of the new church life.

Corporal Thomas Atchison was selected as the best drilled man at the competitive drill of Co. C., C. N. G., held last evening in their armory. The judges were Cols. Gale and Smith, and referee was Gen. J. J. McCord.

The wreck of the two cars demolished at Allyn's Point a few days ago were brought to this city yesterday and put in the repair shop.

P. J. Connor has begun the erection of an addition to his brick building at the corner of Main and Thames street, West Side.

The liberty pole on the square is melting away, the top portion bowing to the woodchopper yesterday.

Thursday, April 30, 1874—The largest bequest that has ever been given by a citizen of Norwich for any public object in the town, was that of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jedediah Huntington for the establishment of a home for the indigent, aged and infirm females. But little attention has been called to this charity but at present seven ladies who come into the class that the kind hearted donors aimed to benefit, find a pleasant shelter at the "Huntington Home." The latest gift to the home comes through the will of Mrs. Sophia Crufft, all her linen of every description in her house.

The third exhibition of Our American Cousin, given by Sedgwick Post, G. A. R. was witnessed last evening by another capacity audience at Breed hall. The attendance at the several exhibitions has exceeded that of any previous local entertainment.

Peleg A. Corey, an overseer at the Baltic mill shot a fish hawk yesterday that measures six feet from tip to top of wings, and with his crooked beak and cloven tongue it is a rapacious looking bird.

An ancient vehicle dropped a wheel yesterday and went down into the depths of Franklin square mud.

The white band of the elevator building, which is never allowed to turn black, was given a new coating yesterday.

Friday, May 1, 1874.—Lent's circus of New York gave a rather meager exhibition on the Osgood lot in Preston yesterday afternoon. The attendance was small due to the weather, and a gale tore the canvas tents in many places, several times endangering lives as poles were hurled to the ground. The athletic exhibitions were above the average and numerous thrilling stunts were performed.

J. Lamb opened up his new confectionery store last evening at the old stand recently occupied by F. L. Hammond on Main street. It is the only store of its kind in that vicinity and a good trade is assured.

The fancy horticulturist on Railroad avenue was seen yesterday, during the snow storm sadly watching his prize crop go to ruin.

The boulders are being extracted from the bed of West Main street, and if we do say it, there are plenty to be extracted.

Palmer Fenn's block in Putnam was entirely consumed by fire Wednesday night shortly after 9.30 o'clock. The fire broke out in E. E. Sawyer's furnishing store and he lost everything, as did Henry Burdick, druggist. Henry Armstrong and Mullan & Sen saved a small part of their goods but the families of Palmer and Charles Fenn saved practically nothing. Putnam had no fire truck, not even a ladder or a bucket to use for such an emergency, and had it not been for the hose run from the mills of the Putnam Woolen company the whole block would have been burned to the ground. The lesson learned will bring about the establishment of fire protection in Putnam.

Saturday, May 2, 1874—The church in which the Mohegan Indians have worshipped for years, has been repaired and considerably altered. The pulpit has been changed from the west to the east end, raised chancel seats having been built in where the pulpit formerly stood. The total cost of the improvements was about $2,000. The church was re-dedicated Thursday by Rev. Mr. Hurd of Montville. The singing was conducted by Mr. Fielding and Miss Whitney of Norwich. The society is now in a prosperous condition and expects to have a pastor soon.

Geo. W. Hughes of the Vogel & Hughes Organ Co., has invented an attachment for cabinet organs. It is called the piano, or more properly the bell attachment. Its superiority over other attachments consists of the liquid clearness and brilliancy of its tones, its perfect simplicity and ease of operation.

The store doors were thrown open last evening for the first time this season.

Poachers are making their nightly raids on the hen coops at East Great Plain.

Fishing for flatfish gives joy to many men in this city these days and crowds line the banks daily enjoying this springtime sport.

Radiant chapter, No. 11, O. E. S., of Willimantic, which received its charter several weeks since, held its installation of officers last evening. The exercises took place in Masonic hall.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Going Too Fast

When Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky reached the bridge that spanned Waterscrew river, they stopped the Lucky automobile to pay the tollman, a gray-haired water rat.

"How many tickets will you take?" cried Uncle Lucky.

"Come in," said the Water Rat Tollman, leading the two little bunnies into his little house. Then, pulling out an old stocking crammed full of pennies, they all sat down to count. They found there were nine thousand, and maybe a dozen or so over.

"I'll take nine thousand cents' worth of tickets," said the Water Rat. Put. Oh, dear me! By the time they had picked out the tickets, it was late in the afternoon.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed Uncle Lucky, "How time flies. We must hurry on to Bunnybridge!" and over the bridge he drove like a streak of lightning. Pretty soon he stopped at the store where Uncle John Hare sold groceries to everybody in town, there being no other grocery shop in Bunnybridge.

"Look here, Uncle John," said Uncle Lucky, after the Luckymobile was tied to the hitching post in front of the store. "You must get everyone who buys a pound of tea or coffee or a dozen eggs or a box of ginger snaps to take a ticket. For we must all do our part to help the Salvation Army."

"Give me all you have left," answered Uncle John Hare. "Anyone who won't buy a ticket won't get an egg or a lump of sugar," and, with a wink, he handed dear Uncle Lucky a cabbage leaf cigar with a gold band around it.

After filling an empty barrel with tickets, the two little rabbits drove off for home. But they went a different way for the old gentleman rabbit wished to make a call on the Tailor Bird.

Well, everything was going along as nice as you please, when, all of a sudden, just like that, a big turkey gobbler ran out of a barnyard and stood right in the middle of the road. Of course Uncle Lucky had to stop, because he didn't want to run over him, you know.

"What's the matter?" asked Little Jack Rabbit.

"You're going too fast," answered the Turkey Gobbler, his face growing dreadfully red.

"Turkey wings and drumsticks! You've eaten too many chestnuts! Get out of my way or I'll throw a gas bomb at you!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit holding up a red toy balloon.

Thinking it was really a gas bomb, the Turkey Gobbler ran away to get his gas mask. But when he came back, the two little rabbits were far away. And in the next story I'll tell you what happened at the Tailor Bird's Shop.

ka toiled under the blazing sun he often thought of his mother and her kind advice and his home and if he would ever get back. One day he saw a stork feeding close by and seemed to be a pet. He fed it some crumbs so it came near the boy and as it seemed to know him he suddenly remembered it was the old stork that used to come around his mother's garden in Sweden in the summer. Then he thought as the bird would go back again, for spring was coming, he would send a message. He tied a letter to its foot concealing it with leaves and grass, so not to be suspected, and committed it to God. A while later the mother noticed the stork around once more and fed it as usual. She noticed something tied to its foot and found the letter and soon had government officials on the way to rescue and bring home her boy. So we who naturally are captive of sin longing for help and freedom. God's message at Easter and spring time with a way of escape and invitation to come back to God and freedom and hope and love. It is also the time of hope and joy and His resurrection power. Please excuse long letter but a sermon I read helped me so much I wanted to pass on a little of it to others.

L. H. K.: Thanks, will try them all soon.

Triple E: Was glad to hear from you.

Cricket: How are you?

Best wishes to all the sisters.

STATE COULD HAVE THREE-WAY TRANSPORTATION

Development of combined motor truck, rail and water service transportation is a practicable possibility in view of the fact that the majority of industrial cities are situated within a maximum distance of forty miles from available water shipping points, according to J. Gordon M[illegible] Kay, highway economist of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads in commenting on the motor truck transportation census recently completed in Connecticut through the efforts of the bureau of public roads and the state highway department.

"Combined truck and water transportation between Connecticut points and New York city provides an overnight movement of freight as well as a pick-up and delivery service outside of port towns," his report points out.

"This modern correlation of highway transportation with rail and water agencies for the movement of freight is an economic function of motor transportation and offers an extensive field for developing, supplementing and extending the facilities of rail and water service. It is not competitive, provides a pick up and delivery service, allocates the short haul to motor transportation and the long haul to rail or water, and provides rapid transportation of less-than-carload-lots of freight from consignor to consignee, which is the aim of effective transportation.

"The volume of products shipped by New England manufacturers by motor truck is small when compared with their total less than carload lots and car load rail tonnage. It is largely a question of service [illegible] certain types of commodities [illegible] portation. In the majority of cases the character of the commodity, the volume regularly available for shipment, and the service offered, determine the method of transportation.

"Railroad freight congestion and rail embargoes force manufacturers to ship goods by motor truck in both the long and short haul. Rail embargoes result in an immediate increase in the volume of net tons of freight transported over the Connecticut highway system.

"The improvement of rail service in New England, particularly beyond the 30-mile haul, results in a decrease in the use of motor truck transportation in the long haul. Actual or potential competition of motor trucking companies with rail or water service is an incentive to both rail and water operating companies to provide effective transportation."

RUSSIAN CATHEDRAL QUARTETTE

One of the greatest musical events ever given in Connecticut will be the concert of the famous Russian Cathedral Quartet which will sing in Norwich on May 4th in the afternoon and evening in Community hall. This quartet is recognized as one of the finest in the country, and their singers sung for President Wilson in the White House as well as at the inaugural exercises for Governor Smith of New York, Senator Francis and other prominent Americans. The quartet comes with the recommendation of the country's foremost critics and the Norwich concert is the first of a series of four or five in this section. Program will consist largely of Russian church and folk music. Singers are Nicholas Wasilewsky (first tenor); L. F. Pavloff (second tenor); A. N. Grigaroff (baritone); and M. P. Bataeff (basso profundo).

All of the members of the quartet have voices of marvelous range. Don't miss [illegible]

The Quartette will sing in English, Russian and Italian languages.

Tickets $1.15, including tax, at Cranston Co. and Talking Machine Shop.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET IRREGULAR AT CLOSE.

New York, May 3. — The upward movement of stock prices were checked late today by wave of profit taking, closing prices displayed considerable irregularity. Trading was in relatively small volume the day's transactions totaling about 650,000 shares.

Easier money rates and the huge surplus of funds available for stock market and commercial purposes, together with the more optimistic tenor of a number of the commission house market letters contributed to the more cheerful speculative scentiment in evidence at the opening. Strength and activity of a number of specialities was generally construed as an indication of pool operations.

The so-called pivotal industrial shares closed lower. U. S. Steel common which touched par in the early trading slipped back to 98 1-2 and closed slightly above that figure for a net loss of nearly one point on the day. Baldwin closed 1-8 lower at 112 1-4 after having crossed 113 1-2. Studebaker which sold high as 84 1-2, closed 2-8 lower at 83 1-8, while American Can dropped more than a point to 102 1-4.

A bullish demonstration in the shipping shares was based on indications of expanding ocean traffic and higher earnings as a result of the recent increase in ocean freight rates. Marine preferred touched a new 1924 high at 35 1-4 and then eased to 34 1-2. Easing of the copper metal market had no effect on the copper shares, the stability of which is probably due to reports of unusually heavy domestic consumption and prospects for a brisk foreign demand, once the Dawes plan is put into operation.

A temporary burst of strength in Allied Chemical which spurted 1-3 points to 73 1-2 was predicted on the publication of the 1923 report showing a strong cash and working capital position. The stock closed 2 points below its top price of the day. New York Air Brake also made a good response to reports of improvement in the company's business. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe again fluctuated in an erratic manner, opening at 89 1-2, advancing to 92 1-4, breaking to 88 and then moving up to 90 5-8 for a net gain of 1 3-8 on the day. Colorado Fuel, American Smelting, Virginia Railway and Power and Manhattan Electric Supply were among the dozen or so stocks to sell at their best prices of the year.

Railway shares held relatively firm despite the publication of some additional disappointing March earning statements, including that of the Pennsylvania which showed a drop of nearly $1,740,000, in net below March, 1923, an a further reduction in car loadings. Pere Marquette established a new 1924 top at 48 and then dropped about a point while Norfolk and Western closed nearly a point lower at 123.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent, all day. Time money funds eased somewhat, maturities up to 90 days being available at 4 1-2 per cent, but lenders still held out for 4 1-2 for the longer dates. The commercial paper market was quiet with prime names ruling at 4 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates held steady on extremely dull trading. Demand sterling ruled around $4.38 3-8, and French francs were quoted around 6.40 cents. Spanish pesetas were again strong.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 2.—Profit taking, described as a natural result of the sharp advances in bond prices yesterday, today wiped out part of the gains which Liberay bonds and other standard investment bonds scored on the lowering of the rediscount rate. Some of the industrial and public utility liens, continued to move up under the impetus of easy money.

Price shading was prevalent throughout the entire U. S. government list today, although the first 4 1-4s established a new 1924 high record at 100 18-32nds before reacting. Trading was on a moderately active scale.

A substantial advance in Bolivian 8s which moved into new high ground for the year around 92, was seen as an indication that bankers were preparing for floatation of a new Bolivian loan. This is expected to total about $10,000,000 and to sell around 94. Serbian 8s, which recently have shown conspicuous strength, encountered inevitable profit taking today and yielded a point.

Lack of support for the Wilson and Company issues again was reflected in a drop to new low levels for the year, the losses ranging from 1 to 3points. Pierce Oil 8s were strong, despite the filing of a stockholders' suit to force the company into receivership and other litigation charging conspiracy of the old stockholders' group to regain control of the company.

The American Ice Company it was reported, would offer stockholders the right to subscribe to $3,375,000 15-year 7 per cent. convertible debenture bonds. Proceeds of the sale will be used for expansion.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 2.—With more buying orders in the hands of commission houses than for sometime, wheat prices today took a decided upward swing. Rapidity with which big deliveries on May contracts here were absorbed and higher quotations at Liverpool had much to do with sending values higher. Wheat closed firm at 1c to 1 5-8c net gain, May $1.05 1-4 to $1.05 3-8, and July $1.07 3-8 to $1.07 1-2. Other advances were: Corn 3-4@7-8 to 1 5-8c, oats 3-8 to 1-2c, and provisions 3c to 10c.

New deliveries on May wheat contracts today totaled 1,501,000 bushels, but from the outset the market showed a tendency to soar. Bulls had things virtually their own way, and there was an evident broadening of the general trade. Continued liberal European demand for Canadian wheat acted as a special stimulus here in connection with the fact that the Liverpool market closed strong and that indications pointed to a dock strike in Argentina tomorrow, shutting off exports perhaps from that country. Besides, predictions that the McNary-Haugen bill at Washington would be considered in the house before the end of the week were also given considerable notice.

Firms with eastern connections and elevator interests here were active purchasers of July wheat. Part of this buying was regarded as back spreading against Winnepeg transactions. There was gossip current, too, that reduction of domestic spring wheat acreage might prove greater than heretofore supposed.

Corn advanced briskly with wheat. Corn offerings were scarce, and it was said there was a good export demand in evidence at New York. No pressure to sell oats was apparent.

Packers were buyers of provisions, lard in particular.

CURB MARKET.

New York, May 2.—Except for the public utility shares which showed consistent strength, reactionary tendencies developed in today's curb market after an early period of moderate strength. Lehigh Power securities was one of the features of that group, closing 3 points higher at 61. American Light and Traction advanced 2 points to 126 1-2.

Standard Oil of Indiana fluctuated within an area of one point, the closing price at 58 1-2 representing a net los of 3-4. Prairie Oil and Gas broke from 228 1-2 to 224, off 4 1-2 while net losses of a point were recorded by Buckeye Pipe, Cities Service, Humble Oil, Imperial of Canada, Magnolia Petroleum and Swan and Finch. Woodley Petroleum established another new high at 10 1-2 on active trading.

Glen Alden Coal was active and closed 1 5-8 higher at 93. Dubilier and Hazeltine Radio touched new 1924 tops.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The speaking contest of the pupils of the school on the Green, Mrs. Edward Lovell, teacher, was held last Friday evening in the church. Twelve pupils were entered as contestants, and all spoke admirably. The various recitations with songs and a gymnastic exercise made up a pleasing programme. It was decided the three speakers deserving highest marks were Nelson Carpenter, first; Earl Carpenter, second; Lewis Safford, third. The judges were Mrs. Lucy Baldwin, chairman, Mrs. Henry Kearn and Mrs. H. E. Brown

The monthly meeting of the poultry club was held Friday evening in Grange hall. Various reports from different members were read. County Agent Davis, from Putnam, gave an interesting talk

Mrs. Elsie Linton who was taken ill last week went Friday to Backus hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. She is reported as comfortable and on the way to recovery

Tuesday the body of Joseph W. Beadle, 82, was brought from New Braintree, Mass., where he and Mrs. Beadle had recently made their home with their niece, Mrs. George Fawley. They were residents of Canterbury for many years, living on the place now occupied by Henry Davis. Mr. Beadle was an iron worker and had at different times been employed in Taunton, Mass., Providence, Norwich and Plainfield. On account of failing health he gave up active work and sold his farm a few years ago. His wife, who was Miss Florence Huntley, of Lyme, survives him. A number of relatives from out of town were present at the burial service which was conducted by the Masonic lodge of Moosup. Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield offered prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fawley of New Braintree, and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Graves of New London, also three sisters of Mrs. Beadle were among those attending the service.

The Ladies' Aid society met Tuesday at the church and tied two quilts. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Paetch

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willoughby of Scotland were visitors in town Sunday with Mrs. Sager, and attended church here

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Robinson of Hartford were at their home here over th week end

Washington Smith is employed in Norwich at the American Thermos Bottle works

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wiggins are moving from the place they recently sold to rooms in the old stone building.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller returned to their summer home Wednesday, after the winter spent in New York.

Nelson Lyon acted as host at a supper Tuesday evening, his eightieth birthday, to a party of friends who came to help celebrate the anniversary. The guests included his daughter-in-law and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lyon, Roy Parkhurst and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herrick of Canterbury. A birthday cake and other gifts with many congratulations and good wishes were received by Mr. Lyon.

PRESTON CITY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Adams of Fitchville, Mr. and Mrs. William Ortman of Norwich Town and Donald Hafner of Hedge avenue, Norwich, were recent visitors with Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Hetherington.

Wednesday Rev. Mr. Hetherington heard of the serious illness of Mrs. Harriet Spicer, aged 92, of Scott Hill, and called upon her. She was very ill. Mrs. Hetherington accompanied her husband as far as Fitchville, and called on several friends.

LEGAL NOTICES

THE GROTON AND STONINGTON STREET RAILWAY COMPANY

To Holders of the First Mortgage Twenty Year Five Per cent. Bonds due July 1st, 1924, and the First Mortgage Five Per cent. Bonds, Mystic Extension, due July 1st, 1925:

Your attention is called to the fact that the bond interest due January 1st, 1924, has not been paid, and that the Company is now in actual default under the terms of the mortgage securing these bonds. It seems advisable that the interest of the bondholders should be protected by placing these bonds in the hands of a Committee, and such action is especially important due to the fact that the principal upon the bonds secured by mortgage on the main line falls due on July 1st 1924.

At a meeting of sundry bondholders, the undersigned were appointed a Committee to take such action as may be necessary to properly protect the interest of the bondholders.

Arrangements have been made with the National Tradesmen's Bank and Trust Company of New Haven, Church Street, New Haven, and the Winthrop Trust Company of New London, to receive the bonds of deposit accompanied by a proper order duly signed by the bondholders, and to issue therefor negotiable receipts. It is important that all the bonds with all coupons attached be deposited as promptly as possible.

Copy of order of deposit to be signed by the bondholder may be obtained from the National Tradesmen's Bank and Trust Company of New Haven, the Winthrop Trust Company of New London, or from any member of the Committee.

CLARENCE E. THOMPSON
P. LEROY HARWOOD,

DOCTOR SUES FELLOW PHYSICIAN FOR LOSS OF SIGHT OF RIGHT EYE

New suits returnable for the May term of the superior court, which were filed Friday here at the office of the Clerk, Judge George E. Parsons, include the following.

Damages of $15,000 for alleged malpractice in the treatment of his eye sought in a suit brought by Dr. Anthony Crochichchia of New London against Dr. E. Oliver Winship of that city. The plaintiff alleges that he has been made blind in his right eye by Dr. Winship's use of Artropine in the eye since March 15, 1923, which produced a glaucoma and that the use of atropine was not warranted by the condition of the plaintiff's eye or sight. The plaintiff alleges that he has been totally incapacitated from following his profession as a physician.

Real Estate Partition

Partition or sale of real estate in Waterford on the Niantic river road, of which they are tenants in common, is sought in a suit brought by Charles P. Getchell of Waterford against Edward Conant of Killingly.

Judgment Lien Foreclosure

Robert Boisson of Norwich who secured a judgment for $700 damages and $67.08 costs in the superior court in January, 1924, against Santo Sammataro of New London brings suit for collection of the judgment lien on an undivided one-half interest in real estate on Ocean avenue. Gasperal Alfiero claiming a $1,000 mortgage and Angelo Sammataro claiming a $2,100 mortgage are named as party defendants.

Foeclosure of Mortgage

Foreclosure of a mortgage for $1,500, dated Jan. 2, 1924 on real estate on Lincoln avenue, New London, is asked by Max N. Abrams of that city in a suit against Edward Raymond and others. Party defendants named on claims of attachments on the premises are A. W. Holman, $75, C. J. McFarland, $100; Plaut-Cadden Co., $100, Simon L. Ewald $50, National Bank of Commerce $95 and costs and $200 and costs, Henry J. Howard $154.18, Mechanics' lien.

On $2,750 Note

The Piedmont-Mt. Airy Guano Co of Baltimore, Md., is the plaintiff against Clara M. and Julia K. Shay both of New London, on a suit to collect a four months note for $2,750 dated Nov. 26, 1923, made by the C M. Shay Fertilizer Co. and endorsed by the two defendants.

Mortgage Foreclosure

Foreclosure of a mortgage for $2,500 dated Aug. 12, 1921, on real estate in Crescent St, New London, is sought by the Mariners' Saving bank of that city in a suit against Amelia T. and Alfred Kuhn and others. Party defendants named are John K. Forar and others, executors, claiming a mortgage lien, Wm. Van Keuren, Jr. of Waterford; claiming a mechanics lien, Herman Vossnack, Jr., Inc., of Brooklyn, N. Y., claiming an attachment lien, the Sharaf Furniture Co. and the Howard St. Coal and Grain Co. claiming attachment liens.

Suit on Two Notes

Ellen A. Burke of New London, endorsees of a note of Alfred L. Rudd to John K. Foran, Frank L. McGuire and Arthur T. Keefe, for $1,400 dated Jan. 9, 1924, for two months, is sued by the three drawers of the note, which went to protest at the National Whaling Bank on March 9, 1924, and had to be paid by the three plaintiffs. They also sue her on a note made by her for $2,400, date Nov. 9, 1923, for three months, which went to protest at the Union Bank and Trust Co.

For Bill of Goods

Milton Herzog and others of East Orange, N. J., doing business as the Albert Buck Company, sues Ephraim I. Spitz of Newark, N. J., on a claim for a bill of goods amounting to $1,247.58.

WIFE OF JUDGE BREWER DIES AT WEST MYSTIC

The Bulletin's Mystic correspondent writes:

[illegible] record of previous years is [illegible] to the present year, 250 [illegible] people who are now living [illegible] the end of this year as the result of motor vehicle accidents.

By the first of last month, forsix had already been killed and an analysis of the motor vehicle department statistics by Professor J. G. Tracy of the Sheffield Scientific school brought him to the conclusion that "from present indications the number killed this year will be considerably over 300."

WILL ELIMINATE CURVES AT SUBMARINE BASE

Two dangerous curves on the military highway at the Submarine Base are to be eliminated by the state highway department, according to information made public by First Selectman Clark B. Whaley of Groton. The town of Groton as far back as 1895 registered dissatisfaction with the present road. At that time it was urged to have the road extend over the hill, thus avoiding many curves and proximity to the railroad. However, no definite action was taken on the matter. But now John Smith of Norwich, who is a division superintendent for the state highway department, is said to be completing arrangements for alterations in the military highway that will remove two very bad curves on the approach to the Sub Base. It is expected the construction work will [illegible] in the near future.

SETTLEMENT IN SUITS FOR $20,000 DAMAGE

Five civil suits for damages of approximately $20,000, resulting from an automobile accident on Fort Hill Groton, about a year ago, which were to have been tried at the present session of the superior court in New London, have been settled out of court.

Fred Barnes of Old Mystic was named as the defendant, the plaintiffs being William Phetteplace and his wife, Ms. Annie Burdick N. Henry Lanphear and Albert Phetteplace, all of Westerly.

The automobile truck of Barnes, in passing the machine of William Phetteplace, according to the plaintiffs complaint, struck the latter car in such a way as to turn it up against the bank at the side of the highway. The car was badly damaged and the occupants were all injured.

BRAND'S WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

Harold E. Brand of Waterford, who will be presented in the criminal superior court next week on a charge arising out of his alleged relations with a girl whom he is said to have maintained in a house in Groton, has been sued for divorce by his wife, Annabel Fox Brand of Waterford. They were married June 5, 1913.

In the papers in her suit which were filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court she asks alimony on the ground that he is worth $30,000. She alleges that he has been intolerably cruel to her since January 1, 1921 and has committed a statutory offense with an unnamed person since Jan. 1, 1923. She asks the custody of four minor children, from 8 to 2 1-2 years old.

BEQUESTS TO CHURCH AND UNITED WORKERS

A bequest of $500 to Trinity Episcopal church, of which for years he had been treasurer, and a bequest of $1,000 to the United Workers are contained in the will of the late Charles H. Phelps which had been filed for probate. The money left to the United Workers is designated for the use of the Sheltering Arms.

Several other cash bequests totaling $16,500 are made to relatives and friends.

MOTOR LAW VIOLATORS PAYING MORE FINES

Fines and trial fees throughout Connecticut for violation of the motor laws aggregated $37,404 for the first quarter of this year, an increase of $16,200 over the total for the corresponding period of last year, according to figures given out at the state motor vehicle department. The increase is said to be indicative of the tightening up in discipline in the face of an epidemic of reckless driving.

Drastic steps are contemplated by the department to combat the carelessness of automobile operators which has brought the accident rate up to a point where one car in every twelve registered is involved in an accident and more courts are co-operating by imposing jail sentences more frequently than ever before, and heavy fines [illegible] 40,000 more cars on the state [illegible] than there were at [illegible] last year, the traffic question is a source of considerable concern to the motor vehicle and state police departments.

The number of fatalities due to motor vehicle [illegible] was greater for [illegible] past two [illegible] than for [illegible] a total of [illegible]

NOMINATIONS MADE FOR COMMERCE CHAMBER DIRECTORS

Nominations for directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce were completed Friday by the acceptance of re-nomination by Frederick N. Belding of Rockville. The nominating committee met on April 16th and chose nominees for five directors representing General Welfare, and one director each representing the following business groups: Agriculture, Public Utilities, Banking and Insurance, Industries, and Trade and Commerce. Provision was made for the choice of alternates in case of the non-acceptance of any of the persons thus chosen. The nominees are as follows: General Welfare, Theodore Bodenwein, New London; Arthur Reed Kimball, Waterbury; G. Harold Gilpatric, Putnam; Winthrop M. Daniels, Yale university, New Haven; Frederick N. Belding, Rockville; Trade and Commerce, Henry M. Shartenberg, New Haven; Banking and Insurance, Ralph B. Ives, Hartford; Industries, C. B. Cook, Hartford; Public Utilities, Theodore L. Bristol, Ansonia; Agriculture, Leonard H. Healey, Hartford.

The Constitution of the Chamber provides that these names shall be sent out upon a ballot similar in form to the Australian ballot used at elections and the actual election will take place at the annual meeting in Bridgeport on the forenoon of Thursday, May 22. The ballot is sent out to all the members of the chamber several days in advance of the meeting, and opportunity is afforded on the floor of the convention to make other nominations.

SAYS HUSBAND'S DECEPTION INDUCED HER MARRIAGE

In a suit brought in the superior court for this county, returnable in May, Sophie Seidner Schwartschild of Stonington seeks divorce or marriage annulment from Max Schwartzschild of New York, whom she married at New London, September 10, 1923. she alleges that she first met him about six weeks before that time and that she never would have married him if he had not concealed from her the fact that he had been married Oct. 26, 1916, to Erna Bing at Chicago and had been divorced by her on Jan. 26, 1918. In January, 1924, she alleges that her husband deserted her in New York and she returned to Stonington. She asks to have her name changed to Sophie Seidner.

TWO DESERTED HUSBANDS SEEK DIVORCE DECREES

In a suit brought in the superior court, returnable in May, Elton R. Downs of New London seeks divorce on grounds of desertion since March 15, 1921, from Junanita Joll Downs of New Orleans, La. They were married Sept. 17, 1910, and have two children aged 10 and 7 years.

Frank W. Geer of Waterford asks for divorce from Jessie Brooks Geer of New London, whom he married Oct. 4, 1899 and who, he claims, deserted him July 1, 1919.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

The Daughters of the American Revolution, The American War Mothers and the Women's Overseas Service League are among the outstanding women's patriotic organizations which have expressed by letter to Brigadier General Lloyd M. Brett, their cordial sympathy and warm endorsement for the annual poppy day movement conducted by the Veterans of Foreign wars throughout the country as a tribute to America's war dead and as a means of helping war disabled. All the poppies used in the sale will be "Buddy Poppies," handiwork of disabled American ex-service men.

"The Poppy day plan as sponsored by the V. F. W. and other veterans orders," said Mrs. Charles White Nash, New York State Regent of the D. A. R., "seems not only a fitting memorial to those of the World war who paid the supreme sacrifice, but a most efficient help to those who through disablement and suffering are paying a continuous sacrifice for their country's preservation."

A similar spirit is expressed in the letters of Mrs. H. H. Metcalf, National President of the American War Mothers and Miss Louise Wells, President of the Women's Overseas League. "I shall take great pride in wearing a poppy myself, and I know that the Women's Overseas League will take pleasure in co-operating in your movement to the extent of their ability," the latter declared.

"The success of the V. F. W. Buddy Poppy' factory, manned solely by disabled men, is due in no small measure," General Brett declared "to the cooperation of the women's societies." "Their representatives have been in constant attendance at the factory, happy when they could be of slightest service to the workers."

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANIC

Buckingham Council, No. 14, met in regular session Wednesday evening at the Buckingham Memorial hall, with Councilor F. P. Shappee presiding. Action was taken on two applications for membership and one reinstatement, Bro. Dewitt was reported on the sick list, but the council is in hopes that his illness will not prove to be serious. It was reported that he had five applications for membership and eight other prospects. After the business session there were snappy boxing matches, the most interesting being between Brother J. W. Wellington, Jr., and Albert Donovan. The two contestants were very well matched in size but more so in ability than was expected. In the first round Wellington sent a sharp left hook to the jaw and a right to the chin. Donovan returned a fusillade of hard jabs to the body. At the opening of the second Donovan pumelled Wellington all over the hall, Wellington sending short left and rights to Kthe body which did not obtain the results desired. The third round was swift, but not so heavy. The bout was enjoyed by everyone present. There will be a large attendance of the members next Wednesday evening to witness the bout that is scheduled for the evening. The meeting will begin at 7 p. m. standard time.

GROTTO

Through a special dispensation from the grand monarch, the regular meeting of Nemrod Grotto which would come next Monday evening is to be postponed to Tuesday the 6th because of the Grand conclave of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, which is to be held here on Monday. At second session for May, which will be on the 19th, announcement will be made of several dates of Grotto activities which are to take place, during the summer in the New England realm.

ODD FELLOWS

The committee at Mystic in charge of the arrangements for the entertaining of the visiting cantons by Canton Aram, Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F., have been notified that the department officers of Rhode Island will be present in Mystic this (Saturday) evening, as will Col. Fred Williams of Willimantic, Lt. Col. J. B. Stinson of Mystic and Assistant Adjutant General W. E. Thompson of Willimantic of the department of Connecticut and Maj. Charles E. Hagberg of Norwich, of the third battalion.

At 6 o'clock the visiting cantons and the local members will form in line and led by Rollison's band will march through some of the streets, after which a panoramic picture of the men in uniform will be taken.

They will then be escorted to the banquet hall in the Odd Fellows' building where a supper of cold meats and [illegible] will be served during which Noyes' orchestra will play.

The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock during which Providence Canton No. 1, of Providence will confer the degree upon a class of candidates. Cantons Windham of Willimantic, Ommega of Norwich, Mohegan of Danielson and Providence of Providence, R. I., will be present to the number of about 200.

DANIELSON BOY OF SEVEN HALTED AT WILLIMANTIC

Special to the Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 2.—Taking $119 from his mother's pocketbook, seven year old Richard Stevens of Danielson set out bright and early Friday morning to get a glimpse of this old world. While his parents paced the floor in anxiety the urchin "bummed" a ride early in an automobile and started to deck himself out in new clothes. He walked into the shoe store of Jacob Cohen on Main street and orered a pair of low russet shoes. With great coolness he produced a bill of such denomination that Mr. Cohen became suspicious and began to question the boy. Richard said that he came from Hartford. Chief Allan MacArthur of the police department was called and cross-examined the boy. The youngster admitted that he came from Danielson and said that he was en route to Stafford Springs. He said that his mother had angered him by sending him to bed early Thursday evening when he wanted to stay up and punch slips at a whist party held at the home of his parents. Early Friday morning the boy got up, took the money and started off on a tour of adventure. The boys' parents were [illegible] and at noon they called for [illegible] and returned to Danielson. All [illegible] money taken by the boy [illegible] found intact in his clothes.

POETRY

Loss

Just for a fragment of morning we two were together.
Trail joined trail in the hills, and we rode to the west.
Chance-met comrades in youth and the upland weather,
Wasting our priceless minutes in banter and jest.

Short was the way, but I learned life's song from her singing,
Learned from her slow, sweet smile
and the gray in her eyes.
Saw with new vision the clustered yucca bells swinging,
Thrilled to the beauty of white peaks meeting the skies.

How could I know that the hills would grow dark with her going?
Laughing, I watched her ride into the south, and away.
Mine was a living gleam of the high
gods's bestowing;
Lightly I tossed it aside in the spirit of play.

I should have put aside all things unmade her road my road.
I should have followed her down to the ends of the earth.
Blind, I have followed the dim trail, missing love's highroad.
She could have led me to [illegible] glory and worth.

Mine was the folly of wisdom and the transgressing.
Now I must keep through time's blurring, and treasure for gain.
The grace of a white throat, formed for a man's caressing.
Brown hair, and a girl's wrist bent to the bridle rein.

By Elliott C. Lincoln, [illegible] the [illegible] West

I Envoi

The thousand things I could not say
Before I crossed the sea,
Dear love, the words I could not speak
And all you are to me.

The thousand dreams I could not dream
When life for gold did dance.
Are life to me, dear love, since death
Became a dream in France.

The thousand things I cannot write.
The things that I would do.
Shall all be yours, dear love, when God
Shall send me home to you.

A six weeks' course for prospective bridegrooms is given at the Central Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn. The course takes the form of lectures covering all aspects of married life, from the parts to be played by the relatives to the proper ages at which to marry and the sort of wife to choose.

Mexico is often referred to as the "storehouse of the world," because of the great fertility of its soil and almost inexhaustible natural resources. Humboldt, the German naturalist nearly 100 years ago spoke of Mexico as the "treasure house of the world." Although still undeveloped Mexico is one of the most richly mineralized regions of the earth.

The production of hand-knitted bead slippers has been recently attempted in Germany, but the cost has proved too high and the process too slow for practical purposes. However, a firm in Stuttgart is now experimenting with a knitting machine which will enable the production of such slippers on a large and profitable scale, and the machine-made bead slippers will be more evenly and perfectly finished than if the beads are strung and knit by hand. The production cost of a pair of machine-knitted bead slippers is estimated at $12.

SOLDIER BONUS BILL SURE OF PRESIDENTIAL VETO

Veto of the Bursum Bill by President Coolidge Removes All Doubt of Same Action on the Soldier Bonus Measure—In Message to Congress the Chief Executive Vigorously Proclaims the Need For Economy For the Reduction of

Washington, May 4.—Foreshadowing veto of the soldiers' bonus bill, President Coolidge yesterday solely on the ground of economy, vetoed the Bursum bill, which would have increased the pensions of all soldiers and widows of the Mexican, Civil, Indian and Spanish wars.

The bonus bill, backed by tremendous majorities of the house and senate, was brought to the White House the president's action within a few hours of this first swing of the executive axe. There is no doubt that he will disapprove of it.

"False economy," asserted the president in a vigorous message accompanying his veto of the pension bill. The message seemed written primarily for the house, but directed just as strongly to the McNary-Haugen bill carrying aside $200,000,000 for the farmers, to the bill increasing the pay of postal employes and to various other measures which would run up to billions, as the president pointed out in his New York speech, of $2,600,000,000.

"Every unnecessary payment is robbery of the taxpayers," the president said. "No public requirement at the present time makes such the necessity for the reduction of taxation.

"Such economy cannot be observed unless there is authority to cease to make appropriations which increase the permanent cost of government. The burden of taxpayers must not be increased.

The Bursum bill, which the president today also vetoed by Senator Harding. Like the soldier bonus, easing the pay of employees, and the McNary-Haugen measures it has a tremendous political appeal. Voters in almost every congressional district are affected by this pension measure. The largest number are interested, of course, in the increased bounties, and a considerable number in the increased pay of certain employees.

The relief bill which, many experts say, would have a disastrous effect if concentrated, so far as measured in terms of votes cast, but is more intense in the eastern section of the country, chiefly interested.

In explanation of why Congress, the individual members, in many instances, are facing criticism if the bonus message that cannot be secured unless they cease to pass laws increase the permanent cost of government, continues to put through bills which are allowed to become effective not only increase the appropriations, but instead of reducing taxes, have actually increased issues.

PARTY WEEK FACES SENATE AND HOUSE

Washington, May 4.—Although most senators and house members have schedules for the week filled with engagements, the first week in May is expected to be one of the busiest of the house session. Besides holding the floor, the question of a vehicle tax in the senate, but in addition forces an effort to pass the Johnson bill over President Coolidge's veto, and discussion of the Fines treaty, both set for votes, and a bare chance that the resolution for discharge of the special revenue investigation committee may be brought up for action some day.

Several of its open inquiries are expected to be brought forward to conclusion the senate will add a new one this week when hearings will begin in the Mayfield-Texas election case. Senator Reed, republican, Missouri, chairman of the special sub-committee, which has the inquiry in charge, announced public sessions would begin Tuesday, as formal reports were received from the Texas election clerks. The daugherty committee, the senate fraude committee, and the committee investigating into the indictment of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, are slated for activity during the week. The Daugherty committee probably will continue to delve into Chicago liquor cases and the Wheeler committee is expected to consider documents obtained from the department of justice relating to the grand jury proceedings in Helena.

While the house will push forward the minor appropriation bills remaining to be considered, its leaders were said to be practically marking time until an expression of attitude upon the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill could be obtained from the White House. If assurance is given that an executive veto would not meet the measure, it was said, it would be given precedence in the next few days.

Another house bill of interest to farmers is that designed to carry out the recommendations of the interior department's fact finding commission relating to reclamation. Hearings will be opened before the public lands committee during the coming week with Elwood Mead, the new commissioner of reclamation and Secretary Work scheduled as witnesses.

SENATE TO VOTE THIS WEEK ON TAX REDUCTION BILL

Washington, May 4.—Passage of the tax reduction bill by the senate before the end of the week was the goal fixed by leaders of both parties today as a decision on the income tax rates appeared in sight.

Disposition of the income schedule on Wednesday would leave but two other controversial provisions to be settled—corporation and estate taxes.

Although debate opened yesterday on the income tax reductions only two changes were made and Senator Simmons, North Carolina, in charge of the democratic forces, said he did not think it would be possible to reach a vote on these rates tomorrow because many senators wished to present their views.

Negotiations were undertaken by the party chiefs today in an effort to line up their forces for the vote. Republican insurgents were the center of attention, this group, as in the house, holding the balance of power. Many of the insurgents have declared against any reduction in the surtax rates. Steps have been taken looking toward a compromise with some of the insurgents and farm bloc members offering to support a slight reduction in surtax rates, perhaps to a point below that fixed by the democrats, in return for republican organization support of the McNary-Haugen farm bill.

In some quarters the insurgents were represented as willing to go lower than the rates adopted by the house, which received insurgent support. The house rates cut the maximum surtax from 50 per cent to 37 1-2 per cent, instead of to 25 per cent, as recommended by Secretary Mellon. This schedule also called for greater reductions in the normal rates than provided by the Mellon.

Democrats at a conference have endorsed the Simmons schedule calling for a maximum surtax of 40 per cent and normal rates about the same as agreed to by the house. All but three or four of the 43 democratic membership will support this plan leaders say.

ANOTHER FLIGHT BY THE WORLD CIRCLING AVIATORS

Cordova, Alaska, May 4.—(By the A. P.)—The three United States army aviators, continuing the round-the-world flight without Major F. L. Martin, yesterday flew from Dutch harbor, Unalaska island to Atka island, 330 miles towards Japan.

The air cruisers New Orleans, Chicago and Boston, commanded respectively by Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith, Erik F. Nelson and Leigh Wade made the journey in four hours and fifteen minutes despite a low fog the entire distance.

No word has been received of Major Martin, commander of the squadron, and his mechanic, Sergeant Alva Harvey, missing since Wednesday after attempting to rejoin their companions at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska island, from Chignik, Alaska.

The world flight from Atka island to Chagooff, Attu, Island, a distance of 530 miles, will be continued Monday, the same day the United States coast guard cutter Haida arrives.

Atka Island is in the Andreanof group of the Aleutians, the cruisers landed at Nazan bay, on the northeast side of the island. When the machines reach Attu Island final preparations will be taken for the longest flight of the entire 27,000 miles trip, a jump of 878 miles to Shimushu island in the Kurile group, near Japan.

PHOTOGRAPHIC OUTFIT FOR MT. EVEREST EXPEDITION

Darjeeling, India, May 4.—What is described as one of the most up-to-date photographic outfits that ever left England has been included in the equipment of the Mount Everest expedition which is now on another attempt to scale the world's highest peak. A cinematographic record is to be made of the entire trip.

"Our aim," said Captain Noel, one of the members of the expedition, "is to disseminate as much knowledge about the trip as possible. The photographic party will be responsible for the production not alone of first-rate photographs but also of pictures suitable for film production. Indeed, we hope that the cinematograph record will be particularly interesting to people in India. This year we hope by means of a little clockwork camera and also a high power telephoto lens, which we can use at a distance of two miles, to photograph the climbers high up on the mountain from the glaciers below. This would provide a thrilling, clean and unexaggerated film drama of what is one of the most important scientific expeditions of modern times.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN, THIEF SURRENDERS TO DETECTIVES

New York, May 4.—A request that he be arrested and returned to Canada to answer charges of stealing $7,000 from the Canadian customs service last September was granted by detectives who accosted Hugh C. McVean of Windsor, Ontario Saturday night. Today he was in jail being held for the Canadian authorities.

Penniless and shabby, McVean stood on an uptown Broadway corner. Three detectives walked up to him to question him.

"Are you men detectives?" the officers said McVean asked them. "Please arrest me. I have something on my conscience. I want to go back to Canada to my wife—I don't know why I did it."

He said he had been working in the customs service and last September ran away with the $7,000. He said he had served in the Canadian army and had been gassed in France. He lost the money on the races in Mexico detectives said he told them.

COOLIDGE IS THE ONLY CANDIDATE IN MARYLAND

Baltimore, Md., May 4.—Although President Coolidge is the only candidate in the presidential primary in Maryland tomorrow, by ruling of the state attorney general, a state-wide vote must be taken to conform to the election law. This provides that if the name of even one presidential candidate appears on the ballot the voters of the party in question shall also be allowed to express their preference for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention. Thus a one-man primary is established and the contest is presented between the candidate and an uninstructed delegation.

Irish Boundary Problem

Derby, England, May 4.—In a speech made today at a labor demonstration held here, J. H. Thomas, the colonial secretary said the Irish boundary problem could not be solved by abusing the Irish leaders. Mr. Thomas declared there must not be talk of another war or of another attempt, to coerce Ulster. Such a threat would not bring Ireland to a reasonable frame of mind nor induce her to make a contribution to a settlement of the situation which was desirable.

NAVAL BILLS ARE TO BE PRESENTED IN HOUSE TODAY

Washington, May 4.—Two resolutions will be introduced tomorrow in the house with the object of ascertaining the present strength of the American navy, particularly as compared with those of Great Britain and Japan.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking republican of the naval committee, announced today he would propose that the navy transmit to congress a report covering twenty-seven points, while Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, said he would offer a terse resolution of inquiry. Both declared they were acting as a result of the recent report of Admiral Coontz, commander in chief of the battle fleet, in which deficiencies in the navy were pointed out.

Outlining the resolution he will offer, Mr. Britten said it would "once more call to the attention of the country the shocking state of our unpreparedness in a naval sense."

"Just imagine," he declared in a statement, "spending $175,000,000 over a period of years for submarine construction only to find that we have not a single ship that is worth a darn. If it takes the government ten years to build a useless submarine, how long will it require to build a good one?

"I am certain our navy is not on a parity with England's and I am not so sure that Japan is very far behind us, notwithstanding our right under the Washington conference to be nearly twice her size.

"Our greatest necessity at present is appropriation to accompany the five year we are taking five or six years to build plane carriers which should be constructed in three.

The Britten resolution will not only touch on the strength of the American navy but will seek information from the navy department as to strength, in various particulars, of the British and Japanese navies.

Representative Rogers declared that "the friends of the American navy have recently become greatly alarmed at the disclosures concerning the physical condition of our war vessels, as well as at the inadequacy in the number of several types." If the navy really is being maintained at the strength agreed upon at the Washington conference, he added apprehension can be dismissed.

"But if we are not," he added, "it is incumbent upon the administration and congress to make good the deficiencies. It is as fundamental a policy of the American nation to maintain the 5-5-3 treaty navy ratio as it is to maintain the Monroe Doctrine. Inactivity by the administration and congress in this vital matter simply will not and will not be tolerated by the American people.

SUIT FOR ANNULMENT OF TEAPOT DOME OIL LEASE

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 4.—The government suit for annulment of the lease on the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve, held by the Mammoth Oil Company, is ready for assignment for hearing.

Counsel for the government did not file a rejoinder to the Mammoth's reply to the government bill in equity in which annulment of the lease is prayed, although Saturday was the final day of the period within which the government might file the issue, therefore, is joined.

The case may be set for hearing when the civil docket of the United States court for Wyoming is called May 13. However, the business of the court, it was indicted Sturday, may not permit a hearing before August 1.

PUTNAM MAN WAS SHOT WHILE ON HIGHWAY

Putnam, May 4. — While passing through a lonely section of the state highway from Mechanicsville to Putnam late last night Henry Austin was commanded to stop and throw up his hands. Instead, Austin broke into a run and a shot fired after him lodged in his shoulder. He applied for assistance when he reached a populated district and was taken to a physician's office and treated. His injury was not serious. Austin made no report of the shooting to the police but th eofficers did and a search was made for the assailant whom police believe they know.

80 YEAR OLD MAN HELD FOR ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL

New Haven, May 4—Dominick Fenaro, 80, is being held by the police without bond on a charge of assault with intent to kill and Loretta Fenaro, 30 his daughter-in-law, is in a serious conditon in St. Raphael's hospital as the ouctome of a quarrel at the Fenaro home today. Fenaro, according to the authorities, stabbed Mrs. Fenaro in the abdomen and in the shoulder during an argument ensuing from the woman's request to close a door in the house.

28 PERSONS INJURED IN COLLISION, ONE FATALLY

Joplin, Mo., May 4.—One person was injured fatally and 27 others were hurt, six seriously, when two Southwestern Missouri Railroad Company interurban cars crashed head-on late today on a curve near Lowell, Kans.

Both cars were extras, operating between Joplin and Picher, Okla., to accommodate heavy Saturday afternoon travel. The cause of the wreck has not been determined.

Wrongful Removal of Postal Employes

Charges Made by the National Civil Service Reform League—Politics in the Department.

Washington, May 4.—Charges of wholesale removal of postal employes in the classified civil service, inspired "by political motives" were made today by the National Civil Service Reform League.

In a formal statement the league asserted that after investigation had disclosed that recently nine postal employes in the classified service in Indiana had been removed following the "trivial" charges, the civil service commission took the matter up with Postmaster General New, asking that his department join in an investigation. The statement quoted Mr. New as declining to undertake an inquiry to determine whether complaint upon which the employes were removed was "actuated by political motives," or whether the person submitting the charges did so on account of personal or political prejudices.

METHODIST BISHOPS ARE FOR UNION OF NATIONS

Springfield, Mass., May 4—(By the A. P.)—The Union of Nations in the cause of peace and the Union of the Methodist Churches of America in the cause of Christianity were endorsed by the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church in their address to the quadrennial general conference in session here today. The report, the official pronouncement of the Episcopacy, was presented by Bishop Joseph F. Berry of Philadelphia, senior bishop of the church.

Limitation of the church's ban on amusements to those which cannot be enjoyed in the name of Jesus Christ was recommended by the bishops, who also suggested means of combatting the divorce problem, favored prohibition enforcement and restriction of immigration into this country. They reaffirmed the church's fundamental doctrines in view of present-day theological controversy.

Condemning war as "a law of the jungle" and "organized revenge," the bishops advocated the entry of the United States into the world court.

"The church of Jesus Christ," the report read, "must never again quietly acquiesce in national or international politics which promote warlike policies and preparations.

"Our position must be that international war-fare unless indisputably in the defense of humanity, is a monstrous crime of the pagan past which has absolutely no propert place in the program of the modern world. We respectfully remind the government of the United States that we expect the federal authorities to discover a method other than war to settle international disputes."

32 ARRESTS IN GAMBLING RAID IN DANBURY SUNDAY

Danbury, Conn., May 4—Thirty two men were arrested here early this morning when police raided an alleged gambling house on Elm street. Captain of Police George J. Schoen with another policeman secreted themselves in the building early last night and at two o'clock this morning broke down the door leading into the main room and covered the men with their revolvers. In the excitement that followed several men were cut in attempting to get out through the windows. Awaiting police outside rounded them up. The proprietor, Andrew Zelma, was released in bonds of $500 and the others in bonds of $25 each. It is understood a number of prominent men were among those arrested.

Daily Air Mail Service From Coast to Coast

Beginning July 1 Mail Deliveries Between New York and San Francisco Within 35 Hours.

Washington, May 4.—Daily air mail between New York and San Francisco, with deliveries within 35 hours, or from one morning to the following evening, will begin July 1, it was announced today by Postmaster General New. The time of transit will be cut to 24 hours probably within a few months, the postmaster general believes.

Not only will people of the two coasts benefit by the rapid deliveries but those of th country generally will be enabled to transmit their letters more swiftly as special air mail stamps will carry them from and city for transmission from coast to coast or to intermediate cities for further dispatch by train. Letters between New York and San Francisco now require 87 hours by train. The new service will cut that time down by three-fifths.

Special air mail postage has been arranged and special stamps in three denominations 8-cent, 16-cent, and 24-cent, will be distributed to all the principal cities of the country for use in specially designating letters to go by plane. Three zones have been designated for postage purposes, 'one between New York and Chicago, another between Chicago and Cheyenne, and the third between Cheyenne and San Francisco. An 8-cent air mail stamp will carry an ounce letter anywhere within one zone, a 16-cent stamp anywhere within two adjoining zones, and a 24-cent stamp anywhere within the three zones.

Letters from points not on the air mail route, if bearing proper air mail stamps will be transmitted to the nearest air mail field for dispatch without aditional postage. Any class of mail, including parcel-post packages, may be sent by air mail but only at regular air mail rates. Special air mail letter boxes are being installed in the larger cities along the route to expedite handling such mail.

Regular landing fields, where changes of planes will be made on both eastbound and westbound trips, are located at New York, Helfonte, Pa., Cleveland, Chicago, Omha [illegible] Platte, Neb., Cheyenne, Rock Spr[illegible] Wyo., Salt Lake City, Elko, Nev., Reno and San Francisco. Eleven places will be required for the single trip each way. New planes, with slower landing speeds, deemed necessary for night flying, have been advertised for and bids will be opened June 30.

The mail planes will fly by night over a thousand miles of lighted air between Chicago and Cheyenne, the pilots being guided by automatic acetylene lights placed every three miles. Every 25 miles of the night air lane has an emergency landing field provided with powerful searchlights, and at about every 10 miles there is a regular landing field with searchlights visible for from 100 to 150 miles when flashed by [illegible] existing daylight co[illegible] mail which has been in operation six years and which has been merely advancing service to speed up letter mail, will be merged with the new service. After July 1, no mail will be carried on planes except that bearing special air mil postage stamps

NEW YORK OBSCURED BY A CURTAIN OF VAPOR

New York, May 4—A curtain of vapor was dropped betwe[illegible] York and the sea, completely obscuring even the tallest buildings, by bombing planes flying at a speed of fifty miles an hour today. The test executed at the order of General Fries, chief of the chemical warfare division of the United States army, disclosed it was said, a method which may prove extremely valuable in the defense of New York and other seaports against invasion.

KILLED WHEN THROWN FROM TOP OF MOVING VAN

Danbury, May 4.—Marcello Palumbo, of Brewster, N. Y., was killed today when he was thrown from the top of a moving van as it was going under a railroad crossing bridging Lake street here. Palumbo was moving his family to this city and was sitting on the truck with two of the movers. The other men ducked when the truck went under the bridge but Palumbo failed to hear the warning. He was hit on the head by the steel girder and sustained a fractured skull.

ELECTION IN GERMANY FAVORS DAWES REPORT

A Parliamentary Coalition of Socialist, Democratic and People's Parties Will Be Able to Overcome the Opposition of Nationalists and Communists—The Ultra Reactionaries, Led by General Ludendorff, Failed to Develop Their Expected Strength.

Berlin, May 4—(By the A. P.)—A parliamentary coalition comprising the socialist, democratic and people's parties, which will command a sufficient majority to put the provisions of the Dawes report into execution, has been assured by the general elections held throughout Germany today. This was the conclusion reached late tonight at government headquarters after a competent appraisal of the returns already received.

Assuming that the people's party and the socialists continue to maintain their position in today's balloting, as reflected in the early returns, it is even probable that the four party bloc will have sufficient backing in the new Reichstag to enable it to carry through the constitutional amendments with only limited outside from the independent factions, of which there will be several groups.

While the nationalists and communists show decisive gains, it is not considered that their increases will constitute a menace to the policies to which the four coalitio nparties are pledged.

The ultra reactionaries led by General Ludendorff failed to develop their expected strength.

The count of the ballots is proceeding extremely slowly owing to the lateness of the incoming returns and the complications arising through the presence of twenty three party, tickets on the official ballot. Only 150 out of 2,000 precincts in greater Berlin had reported by midnight.

Despite the delays the government and political leaders are already convinced that the cross section survey afforded by incomplete reports from all sections of Germany, including the occupied areas decisively indicates the failure of the reactionary and radical parties to stampede the voters.

Both the German people's party, headed by Gustave Stresemann, and the united socialists have had never defections than predicted, and while the socialists are severely pressed by the communists in the Ruhr, Saxony and other industrial sectors, it is believed that their loss of mandates will be smaller than their leaders were inclined to expect three days ago. The people's party is also succeeding in keeping well to the front in districts where it was compelled to face nationalistic opposition.

The heavy turnout of voters in Germany presages an increase of at least fifteen deputies in the new Reichstag, advancing the membership to 475. While the newcomers will be credited to the extreme right and left parties they will be unable to strengthen the opposition to the solid middle bloc, which is expected to command 280 mandates. These will be amplified by the active cooperation or neutrality of the Bavarian peoples party, which is expected to return twenty deputies.

Whatever opposition will confront the four party coalition on its right and left wings, its active working majority will not be imperilled so far as concerns its ability to force ordinary legislative measures and old Reichstag leaders tonight predict that sufficient outside aid will be at its disposal to more than offset the intransigeant attitude of nationalists of all categories and the communists.

The task of allocating votes to more than a score of parties will require another twenty-four hours, and the federal election commissioner believes that a definite tabulation which will indicate the ultimate party lineup will not be available before tomorrow night.

The German nationalists, socialists and communists are running a close race in greater Berlin. The communists were leading all other parties in Cologne at midnight.

Frau Ruth Fischer, the German communists' firebrand, was elected in Berlin, which also returned Emil Eichhorn, the communist who received fame as police prefect of Berlin during the revolution.

The socialists in Hamburg elected Peter Grassmann, who is a newspaper man to the Reichstag out one of the most influential labor leaders in Germany.

BERLIN POLICE RAIDED RUSSIAN TRADE HOUSE

Berlin, May 4—(By The A. P.—M. Krestinskwy, the Russian ambassador, who was to have left Berlin for Moscow last night, has postponed his departure until Tuesday. There are indications that the political confusion caused by the entry of the German police into the building of the Russian trade delegation and searching it for the communist leader, Botzenhardt, is subsiding.

Since the Germans expelled M. Joffe and the entire soviet diplomatic mission in October, 1918, under the charge that the mission was carrying out communist propaganda, there has been no such excitement in Russo-German official circles. The communist newspaper Rote Fahne (Red Flag) says the German search of the trade mission's headquarters indicates that the government of Chancellor Marx is "kow-towing" to the capitalistic powers.

"Poincare (the French premier) cannot," says the newspaper, "stand to have Germany keep up relations with any power which openly opposes the Versailles treaty as does Russia."

The Vossische Zeitung says the Germans had a right to search the mission, but that they were a bit hasty and that the police should first have consulted the German foreign office.

M. Krestinsky claims that the Russian trade mission enjoys diplomatic immunity under the trade agreement signed before the Rapallo treaty. The German government, however, denies this. The Russian trade mission building is far removed from the Russian embassy building in Unter Den Linden, and seven hundred employes work there under Dr. Starkov.

The soviet government also has a medical mission, a political "laboratory" and several other missions in Berlin. Consequently its extra territoriality would be widespread throughout the German capital if it should gain it point for diplomatic immunity. European diplomats are watching the outcome of the situation with much interest, because of the bearing the question may have on negotiations in London between the Russians and British, and its effect on other countries which established trade relations with the Russians under the conditions that no communistic propaganda should be carried out.

M. Krestinsky insists that the trade mission will be kept closed indefinitely as a protest against the specific charges that a hundred police went through the records of the mission and that this clearly was more than a search for a fugitive.

TWO SING SING CONVICTS MADE THEIR ESCAPE SUNDAY

Peekskill, N. Y., May 4.—Two Sing Sing prison convicts escaped today from the state military reservation near here, and are being hunted by posses.

The two, John Coroski, 18 years old, of Middletown, N. Y., and Anthony Caski, of New York city, were members of a labor gang of 43 trusties who had been engaged in preparing the state military reservation for the coming summer National Guard encampments.

Coroski, serving a three-year term for burglary, had been in prison but six months, and Caski, serving a two and one-half year sentence for manslaughter, but two months. The fugitives held a several hours' start on their pursuers, as their absence was not noted until the prisoners were checked in for the night.

STATE POLICE ASK MOTORISTS TO STRICTLY OBSERVE VEHICLE LAWS

Hartford, May 4.—A personal appeal by Superintendent Robert T. Hurley, of the Connecticut state police to every motorist on the highways to drive carefully and observe the letter and spirit of the motor vehicle laws, thus aiding the police patrol, was read today by more than 25,000 people who were on the main roads in the midst of the Sunday afternoon traffic jams. So far as can be learned, the method employed by the state police head to enlist the aid and co-operation of every operator of a motor vehicles in his efforts to eliminate accidents and unpleasant delays on the road is unique.

More than 50 state policemen were out today on motorcycles road patrol. Each of these men had copies of a letter signed by Superintendent Hurley, and gave one to each driver who passed them from 1 p. m., until night. Every main artery in Connecticut was covered in this manner.

In all about seven thousand letters were placed in the hands of motorists at the critical moment, when they had before them an object lesson on the dangers of careless driving. Superintendent Hurley estimates that the seven thousand letters were read by more than 25,000 people.

The letter follows:

State Police Department, Hartford, To all Motorists:

The motoring season in Connecticut has opened with a rush. In some cases automobile driver have made the "rush" too evident. Dont rush

During the last two week-ends of the month of April there were 240 reported motor vehicle accidents and 12 deaths.

Isn't that an unnecessary toll to pay for your pleasure?

The state police motorcycle patrol is maintained for your safety. You owe it to yourself to cooperate with us in our efforts to eliminate accidents.

Obey the letter and spirit of our motor vehicles laws. Baro careful today and make future careful driving a habit.

Respectfully yours,

ROBERT T. HURLEY,

Superintendent, Department State police.

Superintendent Hurley said tonigft that he had been out all day observing the situation and at 7 o'clock had received no reports of accidents, an unusual record for a Sundal afternoon. In discussing his letter, he said, "My personal appeal to the motorists was a matter I have had under consideration for some time."

"I feel that the motorists will gladly assist the state police in doing away with the unpleasant traffic conditions if they know that their assistance is wanted. I do want the aid and cooperation of every automobile driver in the state of Connecticut. It is only with their assistance that accident can be eliminated and that is the function of the state police highway patrol."

WILLIMANTIC

Deputy Judge Curtis Dean showed signs of impatience and made a positive statement that he would grant no further continuances in the nine liquor cases, pending in the police court, and which were scheduled for hearings Saturday morning. All the cases were put over to Monday morning of this week when it is expected that each case will be settled.

Attorney King, who represented five of the accused, said that one of his clients was not in court as he had understood that all the the cases would be postponed. Attorney Harry S. Gaucher who represents seven of the defendants was out of town on important business. The gallery was filled with disappointed spectators. Officials interested in the case now on schedule include Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers William S. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs and County Detective William E. Jackson. Members of the local police headed by Chief Allan MacArthur also figured in several of the raids. It is likely that actual sale charges will be brought against all of the defendants today (Monday). The list of those accused includes Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rosek of 15 Main street, Mrs. Eva Goldstein of 49 Jackson Place, Joseph Kannell of 23 Bank street, Frank Afamee of 112 Jackson street, Mrs. Cecelia Chasen of 44 Union street, Arthur Boufford of 406 Valley street, Louis Brettschneider of Chapman St., and E. John Connors of Chapman St.

PLAINFIELD

At the Plainfield Community House the annual Ladies' night of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association was held Friday night in the auditorium. At 8 o'clock the Wingfoot Serenaders C. E. Ellison, manager, and M. H. Fish, director, pleased the large audience with a number of selections playing from the stage, which was artistically decorated with palms, and flowering plants, a large American flag being the background for the orchestra.

The concert followed, presented by a troupe of entertainers from the White Entertainment Bureau, of Boston. Their act comprised a two-man minstrel show, accompanied by a young lady who delighted her audience with vocal selections, accompanying herself with piano, Hawaiian guitar, and ukelele, and introducing a humorous strain in her excellent impersonations. The minstrel was represented by two performers, who made up in wit and versatility what they lacked in numbers.

After the concert there was dancing, to snappy music by the Winefoot Serenaders. Lunch was served at intermission by the dining room force from the inn. The favors were pink and blue tissue paper caps.

Plainfield tallied another victory on Saturday, when they overwhelmed the Stonington High school team, 13-1. Stonington never had a chance to win. Plainfield having the edge throughout the whole game. Belknap pitched the entire game, Bibeault having not yet fully recovered from his injuries, and held the Stonington batters to five hits, these being scattered. The local has ha da complete reversal of form since the game with Bulkeley, and played an almost airtight game, only one error being made—this on a difficult chance. Allard was easily the star batter for Plainfield, connecting safely five times, out of five trips to the plate. Tyler connected for a two-bagger. This game makes the outlook for the season all the more favorable, making two lost, and six won. The week will be a strenuous one for the high school boys, a game being booked with Pomfret school, one of the fastest teams in the state, which has games scheduled with such teams as Holy Cross freshmen, and meeting Plainfield at Pomfret Tuesday. Saturday, Bartlett High school team from Webster will come to Plainfield and try to loosen a game from Plainfield.

At the new salesroom and station built by Isaac Titus, there was a dance Friday evening, given by the Plainfield Military band. The list included both round and square dances.

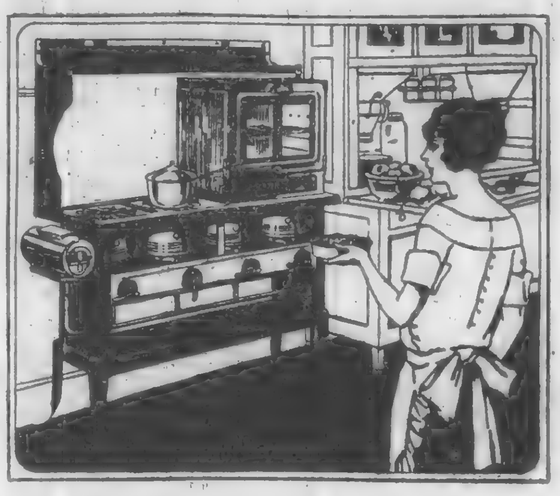
Rev. William C. Prentiss, of the First Congregational church exchanged pulpits Sunday morning with Rev. Mary F. Macomber, of Central Village Congregational church. Miss Macomber gave a very inspiring sermon. Mr. Prentiss officiated at the evening service, when a vocal solo was rendered by George Inglis, and a violin solo by Miss Thirza Taylor, was accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Heap.

Misses Catharine Dodd, Margaret Furdon and Mary Mahoney, instructers at the high school, spent the week end at their homes in Norwich.

Miss Marjorie Winsor was elected to represent the Congregational Sunday school at the Windham County Older Girls' Conference, to be held at Hampton, in the Congregational church and chapel, Saturday, May 10. Excellent speakers are to address the girls. The program was printed in the Danielson column Thursday.

Don't Be a Hog.

The Lord may help those who help themselves—providing they do not overdo it by trying to help themselves to more than their share.



By the turn of a lever she has just the heat she needs for stewing fruit

Does your kitchen stove take the starch out of you?

WHAT can wilt you more completely—your gown, your hair, your spirits—than a roaring fire in the cook stove? The moment you put a Florence Oil Range in your kitchen you will realize that it is quite possible to cook in real comfort.

With a Florence you get all the heat you want, but it goes into the cooking instead of into the metal of the stove or out into the room. You can bake, roast, fry and boil with this modern oil range. And, of course, you use it only when actually cooking. This means not only comfort but economy.

The Big Burners
The heat in the Florence burners is close up under the cooking where it is not wasted.

So easy to start

You just touch a match to the Asbestos Kindler. In a few moments you have an intensely hot blue flame, close up under the cooking. Turn a lever and you can regulate the heat to any degree desired.

The vapor from kerosene is what burns. It is not a wick flame. Kerosene is a cheap and plentiful fuel. You will find that the Florence cuts down your household bills.

See it at the store

Take a few minutes and examine this modern range in a store. (It is sold by leading department, furniture, and hardware stores.) Notice the quality of the porcelain enamel, the sturdiness of the whole range. The oil reservoir is metal. The oven has the famous "baker's arch" and our patented heat-spreader to distribute the heat evenly.

Florence Lowener
Attached to each leg of the stove, this device enables you to set the stove level on an uneven floor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY GROWS UP AGAIN AS DOROTHY VERNON

In Rosita, Mary Pickford appeared as a grown-up young woman, with the famous curls held in place by a baretta comb, and her admirers immediately accepted her with the same enthusiasm as they did when she was a child on the screen. As the street singer of Seville, Mary portrayed a characterization totally different from anything she has ever done in the past.

In Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall the United Artists release which opens at the Palace theatre for four days commencing Sunday night May 11th and twice daily thereafter Miss Pickford again appears as a grown woman, but instead of the rags of the street, she wears gorgeous clothes against a background of beautiful settings, and is a fashionable lady of Elizabethan England.

All tickets reserved for this engagement and seat sale opens Thursday morning at the Palace theatre box office. Mail orders accepted now. This production will positively not be shown in any other theatre in this city this year at lower prices.

Pneumonia Is "Catching."

Few people realize that pneumonia is one of the most prevalent of communicable diseases. Last year the reported incidence was greater than for any other diseases except influenza, measles and tuberculosis. For the first ten months of this year only measles exceeded pneumonia in prevalence.

BREED THEATRE

Love and charity are universal. They can be found in the most lowdry surroundings as well as in the most respectable of homes.

That is one of the theories propounded and demonstrated in "Lilies of the Field, a First National picture, directed by John Francis Dillon, which is the current feature at the Breed theatre where it began a four days engagement on Sunday. Corriaine Griffith and Conway Tearle are co-featured, supported by Myrtle Stedman, Sylvia Breamer, Alma Bennett, Crauford Kent, Charles Murray, Phyllis Haver, Cissy Fitzgerald, Edith Ransom and Charles Gerrard.

The picture of Lilies of the Field, which is based on William Hurlburt's Broadway success of the same name, is one that will tug at every heart. It depicts the groping for higher and better things of women who have felt the lure of the white lights and of artificial life, free of care and responsibility. Reversing the principle of "throwing a stone" it bares the souls of these butterflies and reveals them pulsating with love for their fellow men.

The story of Lilies of the Field is a fast-moving slice of real life, filled with dramatic action of a breath-taking nature and carrying an appeal to all classes of persons. Its colorful plot and vivid contrasts make one of the most gripping pictures of the season.

Other pictures on the bill include Lloyd Hamilton in the side-splitting comedy Killing Time and the Pathe News.

Broadway Theatre.

No matter what class of amusement you like, the Broadway theatre seems to be able to supply it. Here is the greatest theatrical bargain in Norwich. A bill of everything on one bill and everything exceptionally

A program arranged for the first half of this week has everything combined.

You'll smile, you'll chuckle, you'll laugh, you'll roar with Stan Stanley & Co., "nature's nobleman in the theatre." Here is one of the greatest comedy acts on the stage today.

For music we present Nais & Rizzo, the violinist and the accordeonist, who offer "an act with a kick."

Popular songs, eccentric dancing and more comedy will be offered by Kelly & Pollock.

Then a novelty will be se... China's representative actress, Princess Chin Chee Toy, in original bits of American and Chinese amusement. A wonderful act with a comedienne who ... her personality.

Last but not least is a spectacular dance revue. Albert Horleck & Co are specialists in public entertainment.

An exceptionally popular novel, a successful stage play and now a Sam Wood production for Paramount—"The Next Corner" by Kate Jordan which was shown for the first time at the Broadway theatre last night. Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney, Dorothy Mackaill, Ricardo Cortez and Louise Dresser are featured.

Perhaps you have read the novel or seen the play? But the screen version is ever so much more interesting. The word-pictures of the story are realities on the screen. It is a scene-for-scene adaptation of the most finished work the author has done to date. It appeals to all classes and has a lesson to unfold to all.

Strand Theatre.

How much liberty dare parents accord their children in this age of jazz?

Is too much restraint worse than none at all? And what is the remedy for the condition that exists in society—especially high society?

These are questions that are agitating the world today more than any others. Since the war, the liberty of human beings has been often misinterpreted for license according to great educators and reformers, and there are those who claim our young men and women are going to destruction at a high rate of speed in twin six cars and with hip pocket flasks of forbidden liquor to wash them along.

Other Men's Daughters, a new Ben Wilson production at the Strand theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday, takes up one phase of the question and elucidates it. Here is a stern father, a tyrant in his home, and the big man of town. He refuses his daughter even the liberty of going to small town dances and the like. She revolts and goes to the city—and there finds her sanctimonious parent cavorting with girls and living a double life. What does she do? To tell would be to spoil the enjoyment of the picture. Go and see. It is worth your while.

Bryant Washburn and Mabel Forrest play the leading roles in this excellent story of modern tendencies.

Charlie Murray's latest comedy riot, A Social Error, and a new Kinogram Weekly make up the short subjects.

Water Bags of Indian Army.

The water is carried in goatskin bags in the Indian army because the religion of the various soldiers interferes with the use of any other kind. The Mohammedans cannot drink from a bag made of pigskin, and the Hindus cannot drink from one of calfskin.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Amos H. Armington, 78, who as a stripling—one of the youngest members of the light artillery battery to which he was attached—stood in the Bloody Angle—the high point of the war of the Rebellion—at the battle of Gettysburg, died Sunday afternoon, peacefully, at his home on Main street after an illness of two weeks.

Veteran of the most terrific conflicts of the Civil war, never missing a day in three years of arduous service, he lived to a ripe old age, honored by those who knew something of their nation's history and worthy of emulation by the generations into whose hands the safety of the country is to pass on.

Mr. Armington was not one to boast of his war record. Only those who tempted him into talking ever heard much of his three years of valiant service and tempting him into civil war reminiscences was not an easy matter. There were times in his latter life when he went back to to Gettysburg and stood again at the Bloody Angle and gazed out, over what had become a peaceful scene, and pictured in memory that awful July day when men fell like wheat before a reaper, as General Pickett's famous charge was launched against the hail of destruction and death poured upon them by the Federal batteries and the hordes of infantry centered there by General Meade, the Federal commander. In turn, the Confederate batteries, stationed on the ridges across the valley, responded in kind. Mr. Armington once said in a moment when he did not realize that he was being interviewed that when the Confederate charges under General Pickett swept down off the ridges and across the open field toward the opposing heights—this after a terrific artillery battle—he stood beside one of the [illegible] to see that none of them [illegible] be [illegible] Confederates, appalled at the [illegible] of the [illegible] in [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] was being fought out he was called upon as one of the [illegible] members of Battery A, First R. I. Light artillery, to limber up and get other horses and drag the guns back to safety, that they might be replaced by another fresh battery, past which no Confederate soldier under arms ever stepped. With other brave troops the battery to which Mr. Armington was assigned had stopped the onrushing tide of the Confederacy. The troops that replaced them simply had to hold the ground.

Gettysburg, it so happens was only one of [illegible] Mr. Armington [illegible] He served [illegible] and the battle of Spotsylvania under General Grant. In the battle of Gettysburg he was under General Meade and in the battle of the Wilderness and on till the end of the war, under General Grant, at Appomattox Courthouse until the end of the war.

At the battle of Gettysburg his battery was stationed at the very apex of what has since become known as the "Bloody Angle", and according to records, his company lost more men than any other light artillery command engaged in the famous battle. Although [illegible] he was promoted from the ranks, [illegible] sergeant of a gun [illegible] corporal and sergeant during the three years of his service in the Civil war. He was never off duty for a single day for any cause, a record few men can boast of and of which he always was entitled to feel proud.

In 1879 he became a resident of Danielson, and has been one of the best known citizens of the town ever since. He was one of Danielson's successful merchants, ever alive to the needs of the public and ready to serve them at all times. Mr. Armington was for six years prior to 1905 an honored member of the court of burgesses and during his term of office many improvements were made to beautify the streets of the borough and Davis park. April 10, 1905, by a unanimous vote, he was elected warden of the borough of Danielson and served with distinction. He was twice a member of the legislature from the town of Killingly and served with the same distinction that marked all his business activities.

Mr. Armington was a member of McGregor post, G. A. R., and at the time of his death was quartermaster of the organization.

PUTNAM

Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows attended the Congregational church in a body, Sunday morning, in observance of the 106th anniversary of the founding of the order. The pastor, Rev. Simeon E. Cozad, preached a special sermon. Members of the lodge met at the lodge rooms on Pomfret street and marched to the church where seats had been reserved for them.

William Richardson of Mechanic street has been awarded a prize by a Providence radio broadcasting station in a competition in which a prize was awarded to the one who first got in communication with the station after listening in. Richardson was not only the first from Connecticut but the first in the country.

A new store opening for business in the Seder building, Saturday, makes every store in the two new business blocks on Main street tenanted. While there are [illegible] stores in the city there are plenty of offices for rent. The present business depression, while temporary, the optimistic believe, sees no immediate improvement. In a walk through the business section on Main street Saturday afternoon it was apparent that stores were not doing the business that is normal at this time of year. Two barber shops were noticed without customers, a very unusual sight on a Saturday afternoon and concrete evidence that money is being saved in all possible ways.

The third Saturday battle in the Putnam banana war was not as hard fought as the first and second battles. Apparently the belligerants are tiring and an armistice may be expected within a few weeks. When the war started, the yellow-jacketed, slipper-skinned fruit was being taken home by the consumers at 30 for 25 cents. This price was maintained [illegible] week ago Saturday. Last Saturday the bulls had got their work in, or the contestants were tiring, for the most that two bits would buy on May 3 were 29. In some stores only 16 bananas were delivered for a quarter, but one or two progressives kept the price down to 30 for 25 cents. The fruit was hard and firm in quality, [illegible] was a bit under-size as compared [illegible] other fruit being sold at 30 cents a dozen. The cheaper variety maintained its popularity during the day, [illegible] bunches being disposed of.

Announcements have been received in Putnam of the marriage in Webster, Thursday evening, of Miss Edith Robbins, daughter of Herbert Robbins of East Thompson, and Wilfred Leduc, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Leduc, of Webster. Miss Robbins at one time attended Putnam High school. After a wedding trip that will take them as far as Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Leduc will reside in Webster where both are employed by the Bausch Optical company.

Funeral services for George Page, were held from the Page home on the Putnam Heights road, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. John C. Stoddard of the Baptist church officiating. Burial was in Grove Street cemetery.

M. J. Page, who was born in Putnam suffered a stroke of paralysis a month ago and grew worse until death came Wednesday. He had been a farmer all his life and was widely known in this end of Windham county.

Besides his wife, Mr. Page leaves a daughter, Mrs. Marion Shaw of Dorchester, and seven sons, James, Charles, Edward, Lester, Robert, Herbert and Frank; also four grandsons.

According to the records of the police department and the court and legal department of the city government dealing with criminal offenses, a busy month during April has netted the city financially approximately $2,500.

The above amount was imposed as fines and costs in cases being disposed of. This record easily exceeds many months in prewar and pre-Volstead times. While there were a number of automobile cases booze was the direct cause of most of the business, either by its effect, or by the intent to dispose of it.

For a short time after prohibition went into effect, there was only an occasional case in court. For the past year or more the number has been steadily increasing. Whether this is [illegible] a reduction [illegible]

Deacon Henry Clapp.

(Contributed.)

By the death of Deacon Henry Clapp in his home on Hampton Hill, the town loses one of her life-long and much esteemed citizens.

Mr. Clapp suffered a shock last August and had gradually failed until the end came, Friday night.

His birth occurred June 5, 1847; and he was the last survivor of ten children born to Deacon David and Temperance White Clapp on a farm in the eastern part of Hampton, where David Clapp settled on coming from Norton, Mass., in 1833.

In 1868 they sold this farm and bought the Lucius Utley farm, in the Apaquag district. Upon the death of his father in 1873 Mr. Clapp became owner of the farm, and managed it successfully until he sold it in 1911, when he removed to the village.

He acquired his education in the common schools and a select school of which the late Dr. Rienzi Robinson was one of the teachers. At the age of 18 Mr. Clapp began to teach school and continued teaching one or more terms every year until 1896.

He served as a deacon of the Congregational church nearly forty years and at various times had been superintendent of the Sunday school. He had held the office of selectman and many other offices in the gift of his town, and in 1890-91 was republican representative in the legislature.

In 1874, when 27 years old, Mr Clapp was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Isabelle Kinne of Plainfield. One child was born to them, Nellie Frances, who became a teacher and musician and married Charles A. Sweet, now deceased.

Mrs. Clapp died in 1897. Mr. Clapp afterward married Mrs. Mary C. Webster, of Hampton, who survives him. He also leaves the daughter, Mrs. Sweet, and a stepson, Prof. Clarence Webster, of Michigan.

By his Christian living, his courage and perseverance and by his accomplishments, Mr. Clapp leaves a record which is an inspiration to many.

THREE HARTFORD BOYS, IN STOLEN CAR, ARRESTED SUNDAY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 4.—Edward J. Matthewson, about 30, in a cell at the city jail, where he will probably remain till the superior court comes in next week, will have an opportunity to reflect on a most foolish proposition he is alleged to have made to the boys, ages of 14, Spiro Nicholson and Herman Kaplan, that they should steal from the home of Mrs. John Hislop on Nathan Hale street and then [illegible] the plunder to [illegible] that he would help [illegible] The evidence against Matthewson comes from the boys concerned in the [illegible] They told the police and Probation Officer Mansfield after the [illegible] had learned from companions [illegible] that the lads were telling of the robbery and of the proposition made to them by Matthewson. Matthewson is a comparatively new comer to New London, being a product of the East Side of New York. The boys told their stories on the witness stand in the police court, and the testimony was so forceful that Matthewson did not set up any defense, preferring to take his chances in the superior court when he is placed on trial there. It was a sure thing that he was to be held for such trial. The story of the boys is that they went into the Hislop house and from it stole a pair of opera glasses, a small watch, a match safe that was an heirloom in the Hislop family, several shirts, neckties, etc. They also saw a string of pearl beads in the house, and it was these that Matthewson is said to have advised the boys to go back to steal and which he offered to buy from them if they were successful in securing it. Mrs. Hislop told the court, when she identified the beads that they were worth at least $25, for they had been bought at wholesale price at a cost of $18 and she had them for several years, having bought them at a time when goods were not selling at half what they do now. Matthewson was not a judge of pearl beads and he refused to give the boys more than $6 for them. He said they were not worth more than that and indeed did not offer to pay that price for them. The woman with whom Matthewson is alleged to be living and who is not his wife, broke the clasp on the chain and giving the beads back to the boys told them to tell their mothers that they found the beads in the street, the broken clasp being evidence that they had been dropped. The boys could not keep their experience to themselves and told the facts to their companions so, that the police finally became aware of what had happened. The boys also told that they stole shirts, but when they brought them to Matthewson for purchase he declared that he wore nothing but silk shirts and he refused to buy the plunder of the lads who robbed the Hislop house. The robbery was easily perpetrated for the house was vacant at the time, Mrs. Hislop being away from the city for five weeks. What the defense of Matthewson will be has not been divulged. The resort of Matthewson and his woman friend, is the old town mill, and the attention of the board of school visitors has been called to the facts that have been brought out in this case. That the premises will be taken from the control of the parties there is no doubt, for the property is regarded as little less than sacred in New London.

John Heffernan has lived many years in New London. He has now reached an age when he cannot do much labor and has rheumatism. So he has not been able to earn much. He was in the police court Saturday charged with being a vagrant—an idle person without visible means of support and a person who could give no good account of himself. He claimed he was unable to work because of his affliction. He was sent to the workhouse as a matter of charity for there he will be fed and will have some degree of care.

It cost Peter Reagon about $20 for taking a few drinks Friday. He had been arrested for intoxication, but on his promise to go to his work he was released without prosecution. Peter supposed he could deceive the court and he went right away and filled up again. Then he was arrested for a second time in 24 hours and was fined.

Several cases that have been pending, were disposed of as follows: Charles M. Taylor, druggist, charged with violation of the liquor phase of the drug act in making and having Jamaica ginger for sale in his store, nolled; Horace Slaughter colored, who was in a fight on Church street some months ago, and who was charged with assault, nolled; William Motzgermacher, non-support of his wife, nolled; Giuseppe Alfeiro, for a breach of the peace in attacking his wife, nolled, as the parties have settled their differences; Robert McDermott, non-support, nolled; Walter Jones, forgery, nolled.

Harry Brooks of Hartford and Mrs. Marie S. Couillard of New London, were married Friday afternoon by Justice of the Peace P. J. Hollander, [illegible]

The funeral of Louis F. Lougee was held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at his home, 475 Williams street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

A hearing was held in the probate court Saturday morning for the admission of the will of Annie M. Knowles, whose death occurred a few weeks ago. Annie S. Cottrell of Mystic, a niece of the deceased, who is an heir, and who was not a beneficiary, is contesting the admission of the document. Judge Arthur B. Calkins reserved decision. George S. Gorton of New London, is named in the will as executor. What the estate will inventory is not known, but it is understood that the value of the estate is not large.

There is a probability that a marksmen's association to be known as the New London Rifle club will be formed within a short time. A meeting for that purpose will take place Tuesday evening. Members of the local military units are fostering the plan to form the shooting club.

Alice M. Gaffney has sold a building lot on Coleman street to Cora B. Crandall.

Dr. Ralph H. Keeler has complained to the police that youths have been guilty of damaging property owned by him at 676 Ocean avenue.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel has suspended the operator's license of John Lyons of Jefferson avenue. Lyons was arrested by State Policeman B. W. Kenerson of the Groton barracks last Sunday at Montville, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and for operating a car without having registration to do so. The following day Lyons was before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy and was fined $100 on the first charge and $5 on the second count. The arrest of Lyons occurred following the automobile he was driving colliding with two machines at Montville.

Joseph Patterson, 57 Linden street, reported to the police Saturday that a spare automobile tire was stolen from his car during Friday night, while the machine was stored in the Burr garage on Willetts avenue.

An automobile, owned and operated by Albert M. Coolidge, 23 Sherman street and a car operated by Hugh McFadden, were in collision Saturday, corner of Thames street and Ocean avenue. Both cars were damaged.

Four drunks were taken into custody Saturday afternoon and evening and will be given hearings in the police court Monday morning. Elroy A. Stamand, was arrested by Patrolman Thomas Cavanaugh, corner of Crystal avenue and Lewis street. Kalli Koski, a sailor, stationed at the submarine base, was taken into custody by Patrolman James McKenna on lower Bank street. Thomas Little, a railroad employe was arrested by Patrolman Michael Dorsey and Patrick Doherty, a sailor, stationed on the U. S. Pequot, was apprehended by Traffic Officer John Courtney and a member of the naval patrol.

Hiram Johnson of Plainfield, Binney Gunnison of the Connecticut College for Women and Jeremiah Guinan of Garfield avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary E. Holmes, wife of William A. Holmes, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of David Ahearn was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John McGrath. The bearers were Charles McShane, James Cleary, Thomas Connell and Benjamin King. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Albert Odening, R. F. D., Gales Ferry, reported to the New London police Saturday afternoon that a tricycle was stolen from the yard of his home some time prior to last Christmas. Owing to the great lapse of time since the theft occurred and a report of it being made, the police will not exert themselves in an endeavor to recover the stolen cycle.

David Banks reported to the police Sunday that his summer cottage at Pepper Box [illegible] Waterford, had been entered by thieves and that ten [illegible] had been stolen. Mr. Banks says the cottage [illegible] and that [illegible] last, but [illegible] were [illegible] be discovered that the [illegible] been entered. Eight of the [illegible] were of the [illegible] variety, two of them were antique chairs.

The police signal box, corner of Bank street and Montauk avenue, is again out of working order.

Trolley traffic was interrupted a half hour on the city lines and between New London and Norwich this afternoon, because of weak power. Cars were stalled at various times along the several lines during [illegible] time that power was not to be obtained.

A Ford delivery car, owned by Albert Whipple, of Millstone, was stolen from Cannonball park, Waterford, on Saturday night when Whipple drove there to attend a carnival. Whipple reported the theft to the police and an hour later Patrolman Michael Dorsey in making his rounds through Bank street discovered the car parked near Golden street. Whipple was notified and later took charge of his property.

An automobile owned by Mrs. C. R. Butts, 270 Washington street, Norwich, and operated by C. C. Townsell, 170 Franklin street, Norwich, and a car owned and operated by Julius Lynn, 230 Coleman street, Norwich, were in collision Saturday afternoon, corner of Huntington and Chapel streets. Neither car sustained damage of consequence, due to Townsell bringing his machine, in which [illegible] ladies were passengers, to a quick stop. Lynn had been operating his machine but a short time.

Three Hartford youths were arrested here late this afternoon charged with [illegible] and that [illegible] car [illegible] Avon road, Harwinton, [illegible] wrecked while [illegible] prehension [illegible] car collided [illegible] and operated [illegible] Middletown [illegible] [illegible] are locked up [illegible] and will be returned [illegible] morrow when an officer [illegible] to New London [illegible] The machine was towed [illegible] garage to await [illegible] to owner.

The youths, [illegible] the machine through [illegible] 5 o'clock and the [illegible] became confused as [illegible] approached Traffic Officer [illegible] Corum on duty at the [illegible] street. The automobile [illegible] had [illegible] officer and [illegible] Bank street and collided [illegible] Middletown machine [illegible] continued against the [illegible] monument. The Season's One Distinctive Car at a Popular Price

Rollin H. White, one of the industry's most distinguished engineers, took the four, the most efficient of all motor types, and adapted to it all the scientific refinements that European engineers had proven practical.

The combination of 4-wheel brakes and balloon tires as standard equipment on a popular-priced car will be found only on the Rollin, and both are specifically selected for the car—harmonized with the general design.

"European type motor" is the popular term given the Rollin motor because of the incorporation of so many engineering refinements proved by extended use in French and English custom built cars.

Light weight, small displacement, high compression, high speed, elimination of vibration, force-feed lubrication, and carburetor and manifold changes are the technical developments that make the Rollin motor a revelation in efficient, flexible power generation.

A practically vibrationless motor is assured by a stiff, heavy crankshaft, four main bearings, special alloy pistons and connecting-rods of light weight and appropriate design, as well as extreme precision in manufacture.

Force-feed lubrication through drilled crankshaft is another big advantage, so it is incorporated in the Rollin.

Scientific design of carburetor and manifold insures the delivery of identical quantities of properly atomized fuel to each cylinder.

Twenty-five to thirty miles per gallon of gasoline is not unusual with the Rollin.

And this motor is most flexible at moderate every-day driving speeds.

The rear transverse spring suspension gives the car a surprising roadability, even associated with a much longer wheel-base. There is no uncomfortable side-sway when making sharp turns, or when driving at high speeds.

All bodies are low-hung with smart lines of pronounced symmetry. The car is distinctive and smart.

The Rollin's perfection of mechanical action, flexibility, and luxurious riding comfort will give you an entirely new sensation in four cylinder car operation.

Just try the remarkable Rollin!

Touring Car, $975; Three Seated Coupe Roadster, $1175; Five Passenger Sedan, $1275. Prices f.o.b. Cleveland.

A PROPER VETO.

When President Coolidge applied a veto to the Bursum pension bill he did no more than President Harding had done before. He objected to the fact that pensions had been revised in 1920 and he stressed need of economy in government expenditures.

In the opinion of the president there must arouse serious thought in regard to the use of federal funds. There is ever going to be a halt [illegible] the grounds. [illegible] the president [illegible] simply reflects the advance sentiment of the republican campaign because of the necessary number of delegates having been pledged to the Coolidge candidacy.

The choice of the national committee chairman has followed the selection of the convention's temporary chairman. Other details remain to be determined before the tenth of June including the choice of a president [illegible] for which position Senator Wadsworth of New York seems to have the pole, and the picking of the person to make the nomination speech, for which task it seems not improbable that Senator Borah of Idaho will be the man.

THE GERMAN ELECTION.

In view of the conditions in Europe today, the Dawes report was the chief issue in the election held in Germany on Sunday, and if early reports provide a basis for judgment it would appear that the Dawes report had [illegible] part in meeting the requirements. This means the abandonment of the costly and unsuccessful efforts that have been underway in that country since the reparation agreement. Instead of doing its utmost to dodge its responsibilities it is indicated that Germany has at last come to [illegible] and its expression is certain to have a good effect among the other countries.

THE MERCHANT MARINE ACT.

Features of the ever hard to regulate have bothered more than one administration. There have been delays in putting certain provisions into effect because of the effect upon [illegible] with other countries [illegible] is being urged by the president that congress pass the necessary legislation that would permit a year's delay in the carrying out of the requirements of section 37 [illegible] American vessels [illegible] part in meeting the requirements. NEW ENGLAND

[illegible] England [illegible] winds or heavy snow [illegible] chief topic of conversation for a week or more. There is more [illegible] section of property involved, trees down over wires and poles laid on the ground and shipping seriously affected. Train schedules have been put out of joint, mails delayed, crops damaged and certain supplies curtailed, but when consideration is given to the position of others and the severe conditions which they are used to undergo from time to time New England has nothing to complain [illegible] New England in fact contrasts [illegible] those states through the middle west where the broad expanse of uninterrupted plains gives the tornado full sweep, and while New England has some hard blows, destructive and unwelcome, its hills and mountains break up storms that might otherwise be more severe.

Whether it is from tornadoes or from earthquakes, New England has reason to feel that it has been well safeguarded. There may be certain climatic features which are not pleasing to everyone, since New England isn't Florida or California, but this lack of the country has reason, whether it is or not, to be grateful for the fact that each neighborhood does not have to have its cyclone cellar, daily fear does not exist over the possibility of an earthquake and the danger of whole deaths from floor or tornado is lacking.

Whenever the country is distressed by the tales of suffering and hardship, death and destruction, that come from other sections New Englanders have additional reasons for figuring that they have a pretty good place in which to live. The more we hear of other sections the better we like New England.

BUTLER FOR CHAIRMAN.

In the choice of William M. Butler of Boston as chairman of the republican national committee there are reasons to regard it as in keeping with expectations.

Ordinarily the selection of the chairman might be delayed until after the presidential nomination. In many instances the certainty that exists today regarding the republican nominee is lacking. It would therefore be impossible to make choice of the chairman, thought the various candidates for the nomination might have in mind the ones to be recommended because the convention put them in position to make recommendation for the national chairmanship.

William M. Butler has had charge of President Coolidge's campaign. He was selected by the president for that work because he knew Mr. Butler and Mr. Butler knew him. There was mutual confidence and understanding, requirements which are necessary under such conditions and it is for those very reasons that the president desires him to run the presidential campaign.

Mr. Butler is a man of ability, clear understanding of party affairs and the very person upon whom the responsibilities of the campaign might [illegible] simply reflects the advance sentiment of the republican campaign because of the necessary number of delegates having been pledged to the Coolidge candidacy.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says the lawn looks pretty good after its first cutting.

Why is this an opportune moment to call attention to the dandelion blossoms these days?

The reluctance which congress is showing in reducing federal taxes will require a long time to explain to those who have been waiting for it so long.

If there has been any shortage of flies and mosquitoes for the swatters, May ought to do much to supply the deficiency and pave the way to new records.

One doesn't have to guess at the feelings of those who anticipate a cutting of taxes, only to find out that instead of a reduction there has been an increase.

That is a strong bit of opinion which Mme. Youssouf of Turkey displays when she declares that the harem will be discredited and [illegible] marriages ended [illegible] in a year.

A district attorney in Massachusetts wants a reputable physician to examine all motorists charged with driving while drunk. But what will he think of the court that disregards the opinion of that reputable physician and the policeman making the arrest?

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A small piece of stale white bread [illegible] in the water in which cabbage is boiled will help kill the unpleasant odor.

Dried orange peel will revive a low fire at once if placed among the coals.

A good filling for a one-crust pie is grated pineapple thickened with cornstarch.

Always pare fruit with a silver knife.

To cut butter smoothly and cleanly cover the knife with oiled paper.

An inverted glass placed over a watch will silence the ticking without interfering with the watch in any [illegible]

Cardboard boxes such as eggs and cake come in, make good lunch boxes. Those of a larger size will be found useful for picnic lunches in.

Do not put pillows out to air on a very hot day or they will be found quite hard and heavy, as the heat draws all the goodness out of the feathers.

Small glass jars in which creams or ointments come are good for keeping small tacks and [illegible] pins, hooks and eyes and small snap fasteners, as, if the cover is [illegible] on, these contents will not rust.

Worn-out bath towels, if cut up into small squares, make good dish towels.

Keep lemons in a glass fruit jar with the top screwed on and they will keep [illegible]

Always keep a roll of wrapping paper and a ball of string with your kitchen supplies.

Use essence of coffee instead of vanilla for flavoring your ice cream if you wish a pleasant change.

Earthern crockery food containers [illegible] and they actually have a decorative value as well.

Leather that is kept cool, aired and oiled, does not crack and become unsightly.

Paper stuck fast to the polished top of a table may be easily removed by putting a few drops of oil on the paper and rubbing gently with a soft cloth.

CLEANS PAINTED WOOD

[illegible] painted wood, panelings and white-[illegible] be handily and effectually [illegible] But half [illegible] Water must be used [illegible]

NOVEL CORK PULLER

[illegible] you will be pleased at how little trouble saved by this novel cork puller.

HURTS PLANTS

Gas sent is most injurious to house plants, while sunlight is the most necessary ingredient in their lives. Aside from ferns, nearly all plants thrive best in a sunny window.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A sluggish circulation that shows itself in a sallow complexion and cold hands and feet may be safely stimulated to more healthy activity by a glass of hot water containing a bunch of salt taken before breakfast.

HOME MADE BRUSH

Papered walls are most conveniently cleaned with a homemade brush made of strips of cheesecloth, each one [illegible] and eight inches long, attached to a long light handle. It should be used about twice a month.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Buttons, today, are chic when they are mere thin disks of pearl sewn only at the top rim. Arranged so that they overlay one another and clatter pleasantly at every movement, these disks form glossy rows upon the front and sleeves of wool crepe afternoon costumes.

The new spring coats are slim and [illegible] A most unusual one is of black, with white pipings. A white Gardenia is embroidered upon one lapel.

Another fashion note of spring is the use of cream and black lace in alternate bands forming an entire frock. These are shown by several of the most important houses and have been very successful.

Sweaters today contrive to look as much like a man's waistcoat as possible. They have a V neck and three buttons, but their colors are more brilliant than a man's waistcoat dares to be.

That shade of brown tan known as bamboo, is being combined today, with a bright shade of red. Costumes in bamboo repp have vestees, belts and pipings of the red, which goes surprisingly well with this attractive brown.

The 12-year-old girl will delight in a frock of light blue flannel with collar and cuffs of white linen. A tiny pocket on the waist is finished with an embroidered tab that resembles the popular fob so much in evidence at present.

Many smart spring frocks are made in two pieces, the skirt being joined to a camisole top and the blouse which comes over the top of the skirt and may be belted or not according to one's taste.

The red hat, which returns as surely as spring itself, is redder than ever this year. It is one of the few hats permitted to be larger than a cloche, too, and its trimming of red poppies is dispersed around the brim edge.

The girl who likes to hike 'cross country in knickers and giddy wool stockings should try a pair of the [illegible] tasseling [illegible] on an elastic band, are worn around the knee.

SEWING HINTS.

When the buttons pull off and tear the material, place a small piece of muslin over the rent and mend neatly. Then place a small button under the material and sew the button back again. It will not pull through again.

To run ribbon through baby's dress or any casing use a small safety-pin, or better still a man's collar-pin.

Don't discard your husband's or brother's sailor trousers. By combining with silk they make a very serviceable and attractive one-piece dress. As they have only one seam in each leg they make a two-piece skirt. By scalloping the bottom the length is secured without facing.

Instead of using plain ribbon for [illegible] straps, take a narrow piece of [illegible] and stretch it out tight. Then sew the ribbon on it and the straps will not slip off your shoulders.

MAKING COFFEE.

The most delicious results are obtained by using fresh-roasted coffee, freshly ground, through which water of a temperature just below the boiling point is dripped for not more than two minutes. The rules to be followed to attain this most desired result are not hard to remember:

1. See that the coffee is not ground too coarse. A fine grind yields a richer flavor than a coarse grind because of the more rapid and complete solution of the flavor-giving substances.

2. Allow at least a tablespoon of ground coffee to a cup of water. The exact proportion depends upon the kind of coffee used and can be determined only by individual taste. In measuring the water always allow an extra cup to take care of evaporation.

3. Be sure the water boils, then pour it over the freshly ground coffee. Many types of coffee pots are provided with specially perforated containers. By means of these perforations the hot water drips slowly through the coffee. By pouring at the boiling point, the water in contact with the coffee falls to just the temperature needed to extract the greatest amount of flavor and aroma. If a coffee drip bag is used be sure it is kept clean and sweet.

4. The dripping process should not last longer than two minutes. Long contact at a lower temperature increases the bitter taste and decreases the flavor and aroma.

5. Serve at once. Letting coffee cool ruins it. If there must be a delay in serving keep the coffee piping hot, but do not let it boil.

6. Scour the coffee pot. It is necessary to have the utensil clean. Remnants of the old grounds will weaken the freshly ground coffee.

These are the simple rules for a better cup of coffee—proven by science and well worth a trial.

SILK FOR CHILDREN.

Be there child, ever so small, who does not dream and dream of frock of silk? So fashion has decreed that the correctly dressed girl shall have silk. The silks for spring and summer are delectable: they are charming and appealing and in addition they are serviceable.

CHARM OF BIRTHDAYS.

Some sort of celebration should be provided for children on every birthday. No matter how vigorously we may deny it, we all enjoy having a fuss made over us on our birthdays and no one is too old or too dignified to be susceptible to the charm of a birthday cake, especially when it is all decorated up with candles and pink roses.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Allen county, Ohio, has three women constables.

One out of every five women in Pennsylvania is employed.

Every municipal office in Columbus Junction, Ia., is held by a woman.

Hawaii women have banished advertising billboards from the island of Oahu.

On the average, Hebrew women are said to live longer than those of any other race.

Only 44 women in Spain have taken out licenses to drive their own automobiles.

More than 48 per cent. of the total stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad are women.

At the age of 100 years Mrs. Elizabeth Goodrich of Los Angeles, Cal., has just had her hair bobbed.

SOAP FOR YOUNGSTERS

The very small child will enjoy receiving a novelty wash cloth that is wrapped around a cake of soap in such a way as to form a rag doll. The soap is painted with an amusing little face.

DRIVES MICE AWAY

The smell of peppermint is most obnoxious to mice. A little oil of peppermint placed about their haunts will soon make them look for other quarters.

GRAY KID FAVORED

Gray kid shows more signs of strength than heretofore. Gray is usually a strong color in women's shoes in early spring and now there is every indication pointing to a good season this year. Black kid trimmings on some gray kid members looked very effective. Gray suede will be used extensively.

The patterns all lean to the sandal type. Colonial effects with oblong buckles and slashed sides are popular and this fashion is most popular in the choice of manufacturers when presenting their best bets. For the most part these shoes are front gores concealed by the large buckles of metal effect.

FOR THE NURSERY WALL

Painted walls for the nursery are desirable because they are sanitary. Marks from wee smudgy fingers are easily removed and they reflect nearly all the light that falls upon them and are durable. A nursery done in a pink and ivory two-tone finish, with a procession of familiar barnyard fowls and animals stenciled on it, will be interesting, or the stenciling may consist of quaint little Dutch boys at play, dancing figures or flowered designs.

FOR LITTLE GIRLS

Delightful clothes for little girls are made of English cut work in different pastel shades. A pink eyelet frock has plaitings of pink organdy and a most becoming hat is made of the same combination.

RECIPES

Cheese and Nut Croutons: Pound together one small cream cheese, one ounce of butter, and one teaspoonful of anchovy essence. Rub through a fine sieve. Cut some strips of brown bread. Spread these thickly with a mixture and sprinkle over one-half an ounce of chopped nuts.

Green Tomato Jam: Wipe some green tomatoes. Slice them thin and simmer with enough water to cover the bottom of the preserving pan. When soft add three-fourths pound of sugar to each pound of fruit, stir until melted, then bring to a boil and boil fast until it sets on being tested. Skim well.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Well Impressed With Norwich

Mr. Editor, [illegible] four months while doing some business with the busy people of Norwich I have observed you have five or six large, solid, stone bank buildings with solid financial resources and good records.

I have also been attracted by the fine city hall, three large hospitals, the large wholesale houses and the large number of churches.

There are fine solid buildings in which the children are taught, high and commercial schools.

Norwich being situated a few miles from the ocean its people have one of the most healthful climates.

In the suburbs of the city a large number of fine houses on the bungalow type are now being built, and those that have the grading done are beautifying them with ornamental trees, hedges and shrubs. As you get out into country a mile or so you will also see, located on beautiful hills many new buildings going up. By the faithful cooperation of all the people to be better in all ways I think Norwich will be one of the finest cities in the world.

A. B. RANDALL.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Eleazer B. Spice

After an illness of seven weeks Harriet M. Harrington, widow of Eleazer B. Spicer, died Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock at her home in Bozrah. Mrs. Spicer was 92 years of age, the date of her birth being April 27, 1832. She was one of the oldest residents of Bozrah and was highly respected by all who knew her.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gusta Chessebro, and two sons, Dwight W. Spicer and Byron B. Spicer, who tenderly cared for her during her long illness.

Mrs. Walter J. Milner.

After an illness of one week Emma Dobbrow, wife of Walter J. Milner, of Baltic, died Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic.

She was born May 23, 1877, at Alton, R. I., the daughter of Frederick and Augusta Dobbrow but much of her life had been spent in Baltic. In Baltic, January 9, 1915, at St. Mary's church she was united in marriage with Walter J. Milner the service being conducted by Rev. J. B. Belanger.

Surviving her besides her husband are two children, Walter J. Jr., and Marion Milner of Baltic; five brothers, August Dobbrow of Torrington, William Dobbrow of Plymouth, Mass., Charles Dobbrow of Piston, N. J., Frederick Dobbrow of Philadelphia, and Arthur Dobbrow of Oneyville, R. I., also four sisters, Mrs. Bertha Smith of Providence, Mrs. Julia Hippely of New York, Miss Anna Dobbrow of Hartford and Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Peacedale, R. I.

Mrs. Milner was a member of St. Mary's parish, Baltic, and during her years of residence in that town made many friends who will learn of her death with sorrow.

Henry S. Croker

After having been in failing health for the past few months, Henry S. Croker died Saturday evening at the home of his son, Henry L. Croker of 124 Orchard street.

Mr. Croker was born in Norwich, November 23, 1869, and the greater part of his life had been spent in Norwich Town. For several years he had been employed as dresser tender at the Glen Woolen mills, but was forced to give up work when health failed him.

In 1892 in St. Patrick's church, Mr. Croker was united in marriage with Miss Annie Kingsley. She passed away in this city in September, 1921.

Surviving Mr. Croker are three sons, Henry L., of Norwich, Charles J., of Indianapolis, Ind., and Lawrence W. Croker of Lafayette, Ind.; three brothers, John of Philadelphia, Thomas of Ware, Mass., and William Croker of New London; three sisters, Mrs. John Ryan of Philadelphia, Mrs. Amelia McCauley of Hartford and Miss Mary Croker of Norwich. There are also three grandchildren, Charles, William and Leo Croker of Norwich.

FUNERALS

John M. Gray

The funeral of John M. Gray was held from the Congregational church at Ledyard Center Saturday at 2 p. m. with a large attendance.

The services were conducted by the Rev. G. F. Goodenough, pastor of the church and Rev. A. E. Kinneth, a former pastor. The Glory Song was sung by a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Montgomery, Mrs. W. I. Allyn and Frederick Burton.

Among the many and beautiful flowers given by the family and friends were a large wreath from the Bill Library association, a spray from the Sunday school and a spray from the Ladies Missionary society of the church.

A committal service was conducted at the Ledyard cemetery. William I. Allyn, Calvin R. Main, Joseph Clark, Earl Gear, Everett Gallup and Charles Babcock were the bearers.

C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

WEDDING CEREMONY IN SALVATION ARMY CITADEL

In the presence of a congregation numbering about 150 Hawthorne H. Foster and Effie A. Allen, both of No. 20 Elm street, were united in marriage by Commandant E. W. Wilbur in the Salvation Army citadel, Cliff street, Sunday evening about 9.30 o'clock. It was the first wedding ceremony performed in the citadel which was completed some months ago. The marriage ceremony took place at the close of the regular Sunday evening service which was led by Commandant Wilbur.

Both Commandant and Mrs. Wilbur spoke of the conversion of the bride and groom through their efforts and of their expressed desire to lead a Christian life. The commandant announced that he hoped soon to enroll both Mr. and Mrs. Foster as members of the Salvation Army.

The marriage ceremony was performed on the platform with soldiers of the Salvation Army as witnesses. The congregation presented the bride a wedding gift in the shape of a silver collection amounting to about $8.

Mr. Foster is a native of Providence and was born 47 years ago, the son of Horatio J., and Louisa Mason Foster. He is employed as a laborer. Mrs. Foster was born in Montville, 47 years ago. This is her second marriage.

Driver Refused to Give Name.

Edward Risley of 311 Prospect street reported at the police station Sunday night that another automobile had skidded into his in Lisbon Sunday afternoon and that the driver of the other car refused to give his name. Mr. Risley also made complaint to the state police barracks at Groton and reported that the other car's registration was N-6782.

Flowers in Thanksgiving

The handsome floral decorations on the altar at Grace Memorial church, Yantic, Sunday were admired by those attending the several services. The flowers were placed there in thanksgiving for the recovery of Ellis Bentley, Jr., after a severe illness which made an operation necessary.

A new high chair seat is suspended from straps and hooked over the back of an ordinary chair.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR PARADE WILL MAKE BRILLIANT SPECTACLE

The Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, State of Connecticut, will be entertained in this city today (Monday) and Tuesday by Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., the occasion being the annual parade, banquet and annual meeting of the Templars. The parade will take place in the afternoon at 4 o'clock and in the line will be an escort from the submarine base at the navy yard, the officers of the grand commandery, headed by R. E. Sir James C. Macpherson, grand commander of this city, Columbian Commandery, No. 4, this city, Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, Westerly R. L. St. John's Commandery, No. 11, of Willimantic and Palestine Commandery, No. 6, of New London.

There will also be four bands, Swahn's Military band, this city, leading Columbian Commandery, the Westerly band leading Narragansett Commandery, Wheeler band leading St. John's Commandery and Kononoc band leading Palestine Commandery.

The visiting commanderies are due in Norwich at 3.15 o'clock. Narragansett Commandery will assemble at the open space near the New Haven railroad station, St. John's commandery on Union street and Palestine Commandery on Church street. The grand commandery will be met by an escort of past commanders and an escort of marines from the submarine base. Escorts will also meet the visiting commanderies. With Peter C. Wilson, acting captain general, as marshal, the parade will start from the Masonic Temple at 4 o'clock.

A change in the line of march has been announced. Instead of following the route as first announced the parade will proceed down Broadway to Main street, over Main street to Burnham square, counter march, over Main street to Washington street and from there to Chelsea Parade a review of the commanderies will be held by Grand Commander Macpherson and the officers of the Grand Commandery. After the review the parade will proceed to the state armory where the banquet will be held.

In view of the change in the line of march emergency traffic rules will be enforced by the police. Chief George Linton of the police department has announced that no parking will be allowed on Main street from Washington square to Burnham square. This has been made necessary owing to the fact that the countermarching will require the greater part of the width of the street. The entire police force will be on duty for the afternoon as all the men on duty Sunday night were ordered to report at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

At the banquet at the armory an entertainment programme will be provided. Band music and singing will enliven the occasion. The White Review Company, musical artists, will be seen in light opera offerings and there will be numbers by Jack Sydney, monologist.

The annual business meeting of the Grand Commandery will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at the Masonic Temple, at which time the annual reports will be heard and officers, elected for the coming year.

SUES TOWN OF SALEM FOR REPAIRS TO AUTO

Judge Charles B. Waller heard the case of Robert Goldstein vs. the town of Salem, at the session of common pleas court held Saturday in this city.

The plaintiff seeks to be recompensed for the damage he sustained on June 10, 1923, while he was traveling on the road in the town of Salem. On this day it is alleged that Goldstein and his brother-in-law were on a pleasure trip in the town of Salem and that the car was traveling at a speed of about 10 or 15 miles an hour. When on the Essex turnpike between Gardner Lake and Colchester the car hit a boulder in the road, and was damaged. Goldstein claimed that the road was in poor condition also and seeks the money he expended for repairs, which amounted to $71.

There were several to testify among them being Goldstein and his brother-in-law, Frederick B. Ames, first selectman for the town of Salem, and Frederick E. Burdick, Scoutmaster of New London, George O. Avery, second selectman of Salem, Mr. Dolbeare and Max Bloom.

Judge Waller reserved decision. The next session of the court will be held May 13th in Norwich at 9 o'clock, standard time.

MISS CANTY'S NEW HONOR A REAL DISTINCTION

In The Bulletin of Saturday, brief reference was made to the fact that Miss Fennessey Canty, of Norwich, was one of some thirty elected to membership in Delta Mu Delta, the honorary scholarship society of the College of Business Administration of Boston University. "Delta Mu Delta is to a college of business administration what Phi Beta Kappa is to a college of liberal arts. An invitation to membership in either organization is recognized as the highest distinction that a student can obtain," according to the college syllabus.

Miss Canty is also a member of Zeta chapter of Phi Theta Kappa Sorority, a national organization of women students in colleges of business administration; also a charter member of Epsilon Sigma, an organization of women degree students in the evening division of the College of Business Administration.

The class to be graduated from the College of Business Administration June 16 will be the largest ever graduated so far. It numbers over 150. Miss Canty is a former member of the faculty of Norwich Free Academy.

BATTERED THROUGH DOOR AT WATER STREET PLACE

Equipped with an axe and a search warrant, a squad of police Saturday night about 7 o'clock battered their way through the front door at Frank Levando's place at 26 Water street, seized a bottle of alleged wine and the fragments of a broken whiskey bottle and glass. Levando was arrested on the charge of violation of the liquor law and was brought to police headquarters, his second appearance there in about 36 hours. He gave bail of $2,000 for his appearance in court this (Monday) morning, at which time he will also be presented on a continued case against him on which he is out under $2,000 bonds.

The policemen making the raid Saturday were Officers Fenton, Dombrebis, Perry, Farrell, Coburn, Driscoll and P. Murphy.

CHARGED WITH USING MONKEY WRENCH IN FIGHT

With five deep gashes in his head said to have been inflicted with a monkey wrench in the hands of Peter Lieschitski in a fight near the footbridge at the Falls Saturday night, Felix Ciwoc, 35, is in the Backus hospital and will not be able to appear in court this (Monday) morning when the case against the two men for breach of the peace is called. They were arrested at their homes on Sherman and Yantic streets after the fight by Officers M. Founch and P. Murphy. Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was called to police headquarters to attend Ciwoc, who was then taken to the hospital.

The weapon has not been found.

Delegate to Methodist Conference

Guy B. Dolbeare of this city, who is one of the delegates from the New England Southern Conference to the Methodist world conference, is in Springfield for the conference sessions which make the Massachusetts city the world capital of Methodism for the time being. There are 856 delegates at the conference.

Eleven of the men of Trinity church are planning to go to Springfield next Saturday for a big men's gathering in connection with the conference. They will make the trip by automobile and will be accompanied by members of their families.

For Breach of Peace

Two Norwich young men who took a few passes at each other Sunday afternoon on Shannon's corner, while Officer M. Dewire was standing across the street, were arrested on breach of the peace charges and will appear in court Monday morning.

COVERED WAGON THRILLS BIG NORWICH AUDIENCE

That widely heralded movie epic The Covered Wagon, shown for the first time at the Palace theatre Saturday night, held a capacity audience spellbound as the scenes of the 2,000 miles of the Oregon trail in 1848 were enacted before them on the screen. The promise is for equally big houses for the remainder of the four day engagement.

The spectacles are almost continuous. They start with the assembling of the great wagon trains on the banks of the Kaw. They continue as the train laboriously lumbers along to the Platte where the oxen, horses and wagons plunge into the stream. The fight to reach the opposite shore is a remarkable scene in a long series of remarkable pictures.

The prairie fire is another scene which would be enough to carry any picture to success. The buffalo hunt is not only spectacular but unusual and the Indian fight is startling with the Indians swarming down the cliffs like madmen.

A great cast peoples the story with real human beings and memorable presentments of the men and women of those rugged days are given by Lois Wilson as the beautiful heroine, J. Warren Kerrigan, as the manly hero; Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall, Ethel Wales, Charles Ogle, Alan Hale, Johnnie Fox, Indians and Plainsmen, not to mention the great wagon train of 300 "prairie schooners."

The musical score was in strict keeping with the production and an augmented orchestra of 13 pieces, under the direction of Arthur Wedell, gave a program that was much appreciated by the big audience.

The Covered Wagon is now in the 58th week of its run in the Criterion theatre in New York city, and the only producing the picture in Norwich is the second in importance.

REV. JOHN F. RYAN, 52, DIES IN DANBURY

Danbury, Conn., May 4.—Rev. John F. Ryan, rector of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church here for the past 13 years, died today. Father Ryan suffered a stroke of apoplexy last September and had apparently recovered until last night when he was stricken while on the veranda of the rectory and lapsed into coma shortly after. He remained unconscious until death.

Father Ryan was born in Norwich, January 23, 1872, and was educated in the public schools of that city and at the Free Academy where he was graduated in 1888. He studied for the priesthood at Niagara university and was ordained in 1897. He was curate of St. John's church in New Haven for one year and later became a professor in Greek at St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford. For eleven years he was curate of St. Patrick's church, Hartford, and from there was assistant pastorate of St. Lawrence O'Toole church, the same city, where he remained until 1911 when appointed permanent rector of St. Peter's parish in this city, by Bishop John J. Nilan.

At the time of his death Father Ryan was president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Connecticut and for several years, while in Hartford, was a director of the Connecticut Child Welfare commission and chairman of the Hartford Juvenile commission. His nearest relative is a cousin residing in East Orange, N. J.

The body will lie in state in the rectory tomorrow afternoon and in the church tomorrow night. The funeral will be held from the church on Tuesday morning, when Bishop Nilan will celebrate the pontifical mass.

AUTOMOBILES IN SMASH AT MAIN STREET CORNER

A touring car driven by Donald H. Casey, 46 Tilly street, New London, registered in the name of James Saunders of 17 Jay street, that city, was in collision Saturday about midnight with a sedan driven by Thomas W. Casey of 77 West Town street, who was coming into Main street from the New Haven railroad parking place. The New London machine was coming along Main street easterly and Mr. Casey who was turning westerly charged that the speed at which the other car was driven was to blame for the accident.

The New London car had its right front mudguard smashed and right forward axle bent. The Norwich car sustained a broken headlight on the right, right forward mudguard damaged and glass broken in one door. A friend who was riding with Mr. Casey had his chin cut by a piece of glass.

SEDAN STOLEN HERE FOUND IN NEW LONDON

A blue Bay State sedan which was stolen from the place where it had parked in Commerce street some time between Saturday night and 7 a. m. was found abandoned on a street in New London Sunday morning. The car belongs to Edgar B. Russ of 280 West Main street, who went to New London to bring it home after he had been informed by the Norwich police of its recovery.

NEW MEMBERS RECEIVED AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Twenty new members were received into the Central Baptist church Sunday evening by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, their reception being followed by communion.

In speaking to those who were to be admitted into the church, Rev. Mr. Pitt said that the evening was one of rejoicing for him and also for the church, for of all the important happenings in the church year that bring joy and satisfaction, there is no time when it means so much as when boys and girls, men and women, accept Christ and confess Him before the world. We are happy, he said, that you have accepted Christ and that you have chosen this church for your church home.

There are some things [illegible] would ask you [illegible] You must keep [illegible] that this step [illegible] the first step, [illegible] Jesus Christ as [illegible] and confess Him before [illegible] is only the beginning [illegible] have done thus far [illegible] you continue [illegible] the second place you [illegible] manly, straightforward [illegible] Jesus Christ before the [illegible] expect to be ashamed, [illegible] hide your belief, [illegible] determine to live [illegible] the only way to [illegible] world that you are [illegible] You must also remember [illegible] world will judge [illegible] church or [illegible] by what [illegible] by what [illegible] carry this [illegible] also remember that you [illegible] found friends and that you [illegible] to enjoy a new friendship. You [illegible] give of your time just as you [illegible] other real friends of yours. It is the same with Jesus and although you cannot see Him [illegible] you [illegible] member [illegible] there is [illegible] Myself.

[illegible] members, [illegible] their [illegible] church members [illegible] the [illegible] which there was communion.

ACADEMY TEAM TAKES LOOSE PLAYED GAME FROM WINDHAM HIGH NINE

In a loose and free hitting game Saturday afternoon at the Academy Campus the Academy team won its fifth straight victory of the season when they defeated the Windham team 11 to 7. The Academy proved the better team in many branches of the game despite that fact that Coach Gallaghan, the curly sunburn haired baseball mentor of Fair Windham, had classified the Academy boys as no good before the game. It can be said without fear of contradiction that it was through no fault of Coach Gallaghan that the Windham team lost for he did all in his power to win. An Irish name coupled with curly red hair is a sure sign of a fighting spirit and Mr. Gallaghan amply demonstrated this. He crabbed the umpire upon the slightest provocation and some times without any cause at all. If he did not hear distinctly he crabbed and when he did hear he crabbed until it became monotonous. His disgruntled condition was reflected in the members of his team, especially Meikle, Heiler and little Dudley Burr, who appeared to be suffering from bad cases of inflation of the cranium.

Windham looked good in the first half of the first inning when they scored two runs. Heiler the lead off man for Windham hit a nign fly to Hinricks and Nichols chopped a short hit to left and was advanced to second when McGowan fumbled Meikle's roller. Burr drew a walk filling the bases. DeMarene hit for two bases scoring Heiler and Nichols. Wilmarth fanned and Grudarowsky was an easy infield out.

The Academy in their half of the inning scored three runs. Kilroy was safe when DeMurcne fumbled his slow roller. Kilroy went to third on McNamara's single and scored on a passed ball. Gee flied out and Busch was hit by a pitched ball. Hollequier advanced both runners with a sacrifice and both scored when Nichols dropped Hinrick's Texas leaguer which got away from the fielder. McGowan ended the inning when he flied out to Heiler

In the third Windham again went to the lead by scoring four runs, when they bunched hits behind errors. Nichols led off with a single and Meikle popped to Busch. Burr walked for the second time and Busch fumbled DeMarche's grounded in an attempt to put Burr at second. Wilmarth popped to Busch. Gardarowsky hit for two bases scoring Nichols and Burr. DeMarene scored when Hinricks threw out to Segal. Gardarowsky hit for two on Storrs single. This ended the scoring for Windham in this inning.

In the last of the fourth the Academy made it 6 all. Tombari hit safely after McGowan had been thrown out. Tombari was out when Smith threw to Wilmarth at second after Segal had hit safely to right field. Segal stole second and scored on Kilroy's hit. Kilroy stole and scored on McNamara's double, and McNamara scored on Gee's single. Gee stole and went to third on Wilmarth's error but was caught at the plate.

Windham again took the lead in the sixth inning scoring one run through errors by Busch and Hollander. After this they did no more scoring although they threatened in the ninth.

In the sixth inning the Academy showed some real inside baseball which helped by a costly error by little Dudley Burr netted them five runs and the game. The Academy boys launched a bunting attack that completely bewildered the up-country boys. Segal the first man up was safe when Gradarowsky fumbled his grounder. Kilroy was safe when Wilmarth mussed up his roller. McNamara hit filling the bases. Gee scored Segal and Kilroy on a single. Busch flied out to Dudley Burr. The squeeze play was attempted and McNamara scored when little Dudleyt Burr missed Hollander's easy pop fly Hinricks worked the squeeze play again scoring both Gee and Hollander. This ended the scoring for the Academy.

In the ninth after two were out two singles by Storrs and Meila and Heller's misfortune to stop one of Segal's in-curves with his nose filled the bases. Nichols who had hit safely three times came to bat but he proved an easy mark for Segal's curves and fell a strike-out victim and ended the hopes of Fair Windham.

Segal outpitched Miela at all stages and had his support been steadier Windham 5 or 6 have had about three earned runs. On the other hand had Windham been a little steadier in the field the Academy score would have been lower. Phil McNamara was the heavy hitter of the game getting two doubles and a brace of singles in five times to the plate. The score.

RIVERVIEW WINS CLOSE GAME FROM HARTFORD

The Riverview club won a hard-fought game from the Hartford Grays Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital diamond, the score being 8 to 7. Hartford took an early lead through Zemke's wildness and a few fortunate breaks of the game but the Hospital came from behind and were going strong at the finish. Moore's batting was the feature of the game, his home run in the eighth inning with two on base produced the needed runs to win. Moore also had a double and a triple to his credit.

Paul Zemke, old veteran Connecticut Leaguer, pitched a good game although he was a little wild at the start. During the last few innings he was going strong and the last man to face him was a strike-out victim. The score:

BULKELEY WINS CLOSE GAME FROM NAUGATUCK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 4.—An error by Foley on Hutchinson's rap to him in the tenth inning followed by Booth's fielders' choice and Gaetano's infielders' tap brough Hutchinson over the plate for the winning run of the Bulkeley-Naugatuck High school game at Morgan park Saturday afternoon. The final count which was 6 to 5 in the champions' favor, won for the Whaling City team one of its most important victories needed if the Orange and Black are to remain in the running for the state high school championship.

The game was a thriller from the very start, a breath-taking contest that had the spectators on edge throughout. Heavy hitting, at opportune time, good fielding, good twirling and the necessary punch to put over the winning counter in the extra inning by Bulkeley, all went towards making the game one of the best and most exciting ever witnessed on Morgan field so far this season in winning this game—the first ever time contest Bulkeley was scored on play in two years—Jackson pitched Black won their fourth [illegible] victory of the season and the fourteenth straight in the past two years. The victory is of more significance due to the absence of five of the regular Bulkeley players from the [illegible] up. The five regulars, who were absent from the lineup, were: Captain Walter Rice lf, George Shellott [illegible] Samuel Tuttle 1b, Edward Mansfield rf, and Joe Barry 2b. These players were not allowed to participate in the contest because they attended the junior prom at the Hotel Mohican on Friday evening, the night before the contest with Naugatuck. While the team as a whole did not play as brilliantly as the nine would with the above named in the lineup, yet the second string players gave a good account of themselves both in the field and at the bat. Montali especially was conspicuous in the limelight with good hitting and good fielding.

Out of the nine regulars left in the lineup, Coach Robert T. Aldrich bunched these hitters together, to make it possible to drive a run across the plate if one of the players got on the bases. The players, Hutchinson, Booth, Gaetano and Daniels each contributed their share of fancy fielding and batting to make the contest repose on the winning run in the Bulkeley ledger instead of the losing side. SILK MAKERS WIN FIRST GAME FROM PIONEERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Groton, May 4.—The Corticelli Silk Co baseball nine inaugurated its baseball season by giving the Pioneers a 19 to 10 trimming at Nelseco field this afternoon. The Pioneers used three pitchers in an attempt to stop the run-making of the silk [illegible] but to no avail. The silk [illegible] had things pretty much their own throughout.

Chappell, who occupied the mound for the silk makers, had the situation well in hand and let up only [illegible] his teammates secured a 14 run lead for him in the early innings. Shefflott and Barry, two Bulkeley players, appeared with the Corticelli nine. Bill Barry, formerly with the Durant automobile baseball team of Newark, N. J., appeared in a Corticelli uniform. He connected for three hits out of five times at the bat and scored a like number of runs.

Manager Charles Chester of the Corticelli team is anxious to secure a game with either the J. H. Martin Co. nine or the State Hospital

JOCKEY FOR EPINARD IS SERIOUSLY SICK

Paris, May 4.—Everett Haynes, the boy from the Bronx borough of New York city, who has ridden Epinard, M Ertheimer's colt in all his races, is seriously ill of lung trouble in the American hospital at Neuilly.

The condition of the little jockey is declared to have grown worse since he learned last week that he would not be able to have the leg up on Epinard when he meets Sir Gallahad III, in a match race May 17 or 19 at St. Cloud in order to determine which on these colts is supreme in the 4-year-old class on the French turf. The English jockey Beary will be in the saddle on Epinard for the race owing to the illness of Haynes.

Hardigs Win Double Bill.

The Hardigs over the week end took two games from Battery B, winning Saturday's game 4-2 and Sunday's encounter by the overwhelming score of 15 to 5. Lemieux pitched in Saturday's game for the Battery and Rankin worked for the Hardigs striking out 17 men. The Hardigs are playing a snappy game and will clash with the Yantic Woolen team next Saturday at Yantic. All challenges for the Hardigs should be addressed to Manager King, Box 195, Norwich.

Jail Hill Colonials Win.

The Jail Hill Colonials won an easy victory from the Valliants, Jrs., of Lake street on Saturday afternoon by a score of 12 to 1.

TWO NEW YORK TEAMS LEAD BUT STRONG OPPOSITION IS EXPECTED FROM THE WEST

New York, May 4. — Growing fat among their little brothers of the east while the stronger western clubs fought against themselves, the two New York teams ended the week leading their respective leagues.

The Giants fed heartily on Philadelphia which is as deep in the cellar of the National as McGraw's team is high on the roof. Washington checked the eight game streak of the world's champions with two defeats but the Yankees walked into first place in the American as Chicago and Detroit were pulled back by Cleveland and St. Louis.

Spurts by Boston and St. Louis in the American league and Pittsburgh in the National improved the position of these teams but the Pirates received a stunning setback today when their nemesis team, the Reds, took two games. McKechrie's nine, however, has been playing the steadiest game in either league since the season began, with the possible exceptance of the Giants.

Boston, which did not win a game during the previous week, went hitcrazy during this week and piled up 45 runs to win four and tie one of six games played. The renaissance of the Browns, who won four of five games, was simultaneous with and principally due to the return of Ken Williams.

Timely hitting and a stout defense excelled mere slugging as game-winning factors. McGraw's team scored 40 runs and won 4 of 5 games on 50 hits while holding their opponents to 15 runs. The cubs turned 71 hits into only 25 runs and 3 victories in 7 played. Although scoring only 5 more runs than their adversaries, the Pirates won 5 and 7 games by tight defensive work. They made only 3 errors in the 7 games.

In the American league only three and one-half games separate the two extremes. In the National the clubs are strung along loosely from the [illegible] to the Phillies with more than ten games between.

The Browns had 8 of the 23 runs in the American league. The National sluggers, with Hartnett of the Cubs making 4, made 18 homers.

MEEKER'S WILDNESS LOSES GAME FOR ATHLETICS

Washington, May 4.—Philadelphia lost its sixth straight game today, Washington winning 8 to 2. Meeker issued four passes in succession to force in two runs in the first inning and was knocked out of the box or three straight hits in the second. Johnson weakened in the eighth and was replaced by Marberry who fanned Miller with two runners on base. The score:

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

A BOY'S SONG

Where the pools are bright and deep,
Where the gray trout lies asleep,
Up the river and o'er the lea,
That's the way for Billy and me.

Where the blackbird sings the latest,
Where the hawthorn blooms the sweetest,
Where the nestlings chirp and flee,
That's the way for Billy and me.

Where the mowers mow the cleanest,
Where the hay lies thick and greenest;
There to trace the homeward bee
That's the way for Billy and me.

Where the hazel bank is steepest,
Where the shadow falls the deepest,
Where the clustering nuts fall free,
That's the way for Billy and me.

Why the boys should drive away
Little maidens from their play,
Or love to banter and fight so well,
That's the thing I never could tell.

But this I know, I love to play,
Through the meadow, among the hay;
Up the water and o'er the lea,
That's the way for Billy and me.

—James Hogg.

OLD IRONSIDES

Ay, tear her tattered ensign down!
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,
And burst the cannon's roar;
The meteor of the ocean air
Shall sweep the clouds no more.

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foes,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood,
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
The eagle of the sea!

O, better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave.
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave
Nail to the mast her holy flag
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The month of May is regarded by many nations as a month of merry-making. The Queen of the May has been a celebrated character for over 500 years. One of the prettiest customs that have come down to us from the people of long ago is that of the Maypole dance. Perhaps the reason May is greeted with merrymaking is because it marks the approach of Flora, the goddess of flowers, with her procession of blooming plants.

Flora was made the goddess of flowers by the Romans and this imaginary ruler of the sweet and beautiful in Nature is recognized as a pretty picture from the minds of the ancients. May, which was the third month of the Roman calendar, although the fifth month of our modern calendar, is supposed to have been named in honor of "Maia" who was the mother of Mercury. The Romans had a unique custom of making sacrifices to "Maia" on the first day of this month and it is thought that this accounts for the month receiving the name of "May." On May [illegible] the ancient Romans used to go in procession to the grotto of Faria. The first two days of the month of May were devoted to a festival in honor of Flora, the goddess of flowers.

In olden times May Day was a great public holiday in England. At dawn of that day all classes of people, rich and poor, young and old, used to go as they called it "a-Maying," in the woods near their villages.

They brought back great quantities of flowers and branches of trees to the village and gathered in a joyful throng about the Maypole. The Maypole, usually of birch, was brought in by the happy procession from the woods and set up near the center of the village. It was very gaily decorated with colored ribbons and wreaths. In London and some of the larger towns and cities of England the Maypoles were permanently erected and the same poles were used year after year for the May Day celebrations.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A NEW DRESS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you of one of my experiences in the following story. I had been given a new dress for my eleventh birthday. It was a blue one with little rosettes around the neck and sleeves. I asked my mother if I could wear it the day before my party. At first she said if I wore it then I wouldn't have it nice for the party but finally she gave me her consent. I put my dress on and then took my sewing and went out to the arbor where it was shady.

I was sewing for about fifteen minutes when my friends came up and asked me if I wouldn't go on a picnic with them which they had planned out for me. They said I'd better change my dress because I would tear it, but I wouldn't.

We started down a shady lane with its green rich carpet, carrying our lunch baskets with us. We selected a wide spreading maple under which to eat our lunch and plan some games.

We then went on a tramping journey. We were climbing up a steep rocky hill covered with ramblers when I gave a cry of pain. All my friends hurried over to me and asked me what the matter was. I told them to be careful of my foot for when trying to free myself from the briers I caught my foot under a stone. I got my foot out unhurt with the help of my friends but my dress was all torn.

A FOOLISH RABBIT

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you how Brer Rabbit lost his fine bushy tail. One day Brer Rabbit was going down the road shaking his long, bushy tail when whom should he meet but old Brer Fox ambling along with a fine string of fish! When they had passed the time of day, Brer Rabbit asked Brer Fox where he got that nice string of fish. Brer Fox answered that he had caught them down in the creek. Now in those days rabbits were very fond of minnows; so Brer Rabbit eagerly inquired of Brer Fox how he had caught them. Then Brer Fox sat down on a log and said, All you've got to do, Brer Rabbit, to get a big mess of minnows is to go to the creek after sundown, drop your tail in the water and sit there till daylight. Then you can draw up more minnows than you'll know what to do with."

That very night Brer Rabbit set out to go afishing. The weather was cold, but he picked out a good place, sat down, and according to directions, let his tail hang in the water. He sat there and he sat there until he thought he would freeze to death, but by and by day came. He gave a pull—he felt as though he were coming in to. He gave another jerk, and lo and behold! where was his tail? It had come off. That's what makes the little rabbits bob-tailed.

A TOAD AND HIS ENEMY

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the third time I have written to you. I am going to write about A Toad and His Enemy. A toad has few friends. Farmers are his only friends. He lives on insects which he gets in the gardens. People who are not farmers do not like toads. A snake is a very bad enemy to the toad. Last year I killed a snake before he would let the toad go. The toad was terribly bitten. I bathed him in warm water and he recovered. I am always watching the toads eat. The insects that one toad eats would surprise you.

AN INDIAN STORY

Dear Uncle Jed: Miantonoma, an Indian chief of a large tribe, was a rival of Uncas, an Indian leader of the Mohegans who lived in Norwich. His rival had a great hatred for Uncas and determined to destroy the Mohegans and all of the English whom Uncas had defended from being attacked by other Indians.

Miantonoma and Uncas made a treaty to live in peace with the English but it was not kept by Miantonoma. The English did not trust him and warned Uncas to watch out for them.

One time while Uncas was out, an Indian was hired to shoot him but he did not succeed and later another Indian tried to hit him with a sword while another time some of Miantonoma's relatives sent a shower of arrows after him.

At last Uncas decided that he and his warriors would fight the other tribe and when they were nearly ready Uncas asked the other chief to fight with him and not to have all the warriors killed, but the chief said, "I have come to fight against your warriors and not you alone."

The battle raged for a little while and at last Uncas captured the other chief. He was taken to Hartford and the people decided to let the Indians put him to death. Uncas and his brother were to do this. When the time came two English magistrates went with them to see that Miantonoma was not tortured. He was taken to the spot where he was taken captive and he also was buried.

Where Miantonoma was buried a pile of stone was placed. In 1841 a large monument was erected and later on a still larger and finer one.

A monument was also erected for Uncas because of his bravery, for being a fine warrior and because he was true to the English people and kept all of his promises.

A VISIT TO FLORIDA

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written you so thought I would tell you about my visit to St. Augustine, Florida, which is the oldest city in the United States.

Fort Marion is there. It was built in 1565 by the Spanish. When you are entering you cross two drawbridges. You meet your guide who will take you all around and tell you about it. We went through the dungeon, part of one of these had caved in but when being inspected it was found and dug out.

Then we came to the chapel and the museums. You can go upon the top of the fort. I went up in the lookout. The fort is made of coquina rock which is the only rock found in Florida. The fort is now well kept by the government and visited by many.

AN ACT OF KKINDNESS

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about Fred's kindness. Fred was recovering from a serious illness. He lay on a little cot in a large room, and was very cross. The nurse tried everyway to please him. She said she would tell him the story of The Little Red Hen, but Fred told her that he did not care to hear the story ten hundred times. Very well, then, said the nurse. I will tell you about another little boy who is very sick. Who is not so well off as you are. He has no pretty flowers to look at, he has no soft bed, no warm room. Not even a nurse to take care of him. Oh, but he is such a bright and happy little fellow! That evening Fred's mother came in he turned his head to the roses on the table. Mamma will you please take those roses to John tomorrow.

Very well, my child, said his mother. I shall be glad to do so. I will take him some other good things too. Each day a basket of fruit, cakes and jelly was sent to the other sick boy. Fred was so busy thinking of his new friend that he forgot his own sickness. One morning some weeks after the postman brought a letter. Fred opened the letter and read.

Dear Fred: I can sit up, can you! The flowers you sent me are beautiful and other good things are delicious. Come to see me when you can. Many thanks for your kindness.

Yours truly
JOHN.

When Fred's mother came to see him that evening he said to her Oh! mama this is the happiest day in my life.

Do you know why my child. Because you yourself have helped another boy to be happy.

A VISIT TO THE COURTHOUSE CLOCK

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to the Wide Awakes. I wonder how many Wide Awakes were ever in a clock. Well I have been in one and I will tell you how it happened. One day my friends and I, while walking down Broadway, looked up at the Court House clock; and said. It must be fun to go up there. We all started back, for the police station.

We saw nearby a policeman. We asked him if we could go up and see the clock, he said yes but he must call the janitor.

We started up to the clock and on reaching the clock we were ready to drop for we had gone up eight big flights of stairs.

On our way down, we went into a room which looked just like a school. This room is where the town meetings are held. Finally we reached the bottom tired by very happy. We thanked the janitor very much for his kindness.

SHOULD BE THRIFTY

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about Thrift. The people of the United States need to practice thrift. If all her people did not waste what a saving and succeeding important country it would be. Thrift is not only saving money, but time and many o ther things. People in foreign countries are very thrifty. Although their wages are small they save something each week, while in the United States where people get large wages many do not save a cent. By saving I do not mean that people should hord but should save a little out of their wages. They should only buy necessary things, not foolish worthless things. Then they should save as much as they can to help in future days.

Children should be taught to practice thrift. Then they will form the habit and will be likely to keep it. They should prepare their lessons thoroughly for then they will be thrifty in the use of time.

In play time they should play games that are going to make them healthy and strong. This is surely not wasting playtime and thrift means not wasting anything not even playtime for time is very important and every minute counts. The minutes that are wasted soon form hours and hours become days and before long waste will amount to years. So lets all try to save time and everything worth while.

THE NUTHATCH

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write a story to you and the Wide Awakes about the white breasted nuthatch. He generally is known in this locality as a "sapsucker," and is a common resident throughout the state of Pennsylvania. During summer it inhabits trees in groves and forests but in winter visits trees in orchards, yards and gardens in quest of food.

Nothatches, like woodpeckers, creep about the trunks and limbs of trees, searching for insects or their eggs, and various worms.

A nuthatch will descend the vertical trunk and limbs of trees head downward. A woodpecker cannot do this. The nuthatch lays five or six eggs in a warm bed of feathers, hair and leaves, placed in a hole in a tree. These birds also eat nuts, acorns, Indian corn and various seeds which they stick into the crevices of bark or in cracks of fence rails, and hammer away with their bills until the food stuff is broken so that it may be swallowed.

THE WATER LILIES

Dear Uncle Jed: This time I am going to tell you about some Water Lilies. Did you ever see a water lily? How beautiful it is! I know where to find some white water lilies. They grow in our river not far from the shore. Four lilies were there this morning. They were as white as milk. I went with Mary, Rose and Sophie to look at them. We four children stood on the shore. The four water lilies sat very still in the river. We tried to get them but could not. We stood on the shore and called to them.

We said, Pretty lilies, white lilies, water lilies, come to us. We love you, pretty lilies. Won't you come to the shore?"

The lilies sat very still. They did not hear a word that we said.

"Oh, lilies, beautiful lilies. We do love you so. Please come."

We called and called, but they would not come. At last we grew tired and went home. We left them in the river.

A STRANGE HAPPENING

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I ever wrote a story to you and I would like to tell you about The Gulf in the Forum. A strange thing once happened in the city of Rome. In the middle of the Forum, or market place, a great gulf suddenly yawned, so deep that no man could see the bottom. The horrified people gathered about it and tried in vain to fill it with earth and stones. Finally they went to the seers, or wise men, and asked them what must be done to appease the gods, for they thought the gods were angry with them. The seers said, "If Rome would live forever, there must be thrown into the gulf the most precious thing in Rome."

The anxious people then assembled and tried to decide what the most precious thing in Rome was. Some suggested jewels, some gold, and still others corn. But Mettus Curdius, a young soldier, stepped forward and said, "Jewels, gold and corn are indeed precious, but Rome hath something that is worth far more than these—valor and arms." So saying, he mounted his horse and, armed as for war, leaped into the chasm. The earth closed; the gulf was seen no more. The most precious thing in Rome had been sacrificed and the gods were appeased.

ON THE FARM

Dear Uncle Jed: As I have never written to you before I will now try. We have two large farms, which my sisters and I have to cultivate. Last year we raised watermelons, muskmelons, onions, parsnips, carrots, potatoes, corn and oats.

Summer time is full of fun for anyone who wishes to enjoy themselves in out-of-door sports. My little nephew enjoys the little baby chicks best of all. Hope you will be pleased with my true story about our farm.

HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a true story about a boy named John who was twelve years old. He loved to tease his little sister, Mary, who was only four years old. One day John's uncle gave him a gold dollar, which Mary admired very much. John told Mary that gold dollars grew on vines.

In the evening John wanted to look at his dollar. It was gone. John asked Mary, if she had seen it. She said "I planted it in the garden."

Then they went out into the garden to look for it. John could not find it. He was very angry so he told his mother.

His mother told him to always speak the truth and strange things would not happen.

GLAD SPRING IS HERE

Dear Uncle Jed: We know that spring is coming because the Pussy Willow buds are opening. The grass is getting green. The birds are coming here. They make a nest. The frogs are peeping. The ground is getting soft and the stones are sinking into the ground. The bleak terrible days are going by and the snow has melted. I am glad that spring is coming because we can play our favorite games. We can play, base ball, basketball, jump the rope and several others.

The boys are getting sap from the maple trees, and making clarified sugar. The farmers are industriously beginning to plow fertile fields and planting their crops.

SPRING IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my third letter to the Wide Awakes. I moved from Jewett City to Spartanburg and thinking some of the Wide Awakes would like to hear from me, I'll write about spring and her flowers.

The shad and boxwood are in bloom. Here they are called Sarvis and dogwood. Then there is a flower that grows on a shrub. It has a pink blossom like a small sweet pea. It is not good for bouquets as the clusters of flowers grow close to the branches. The violets have been blossomed for about a week. The dandelions are in bloom. In Connecticut we were very fond of a dish of greens so one day my mother said, "I've just got to have a dish of dandelions," so we started. By and by along came a couple of colored people and they stopped and asked what we were doing. My mother told them and they thought we were certainly queer. The greens were good just the same I wish you could all come down here just to hear the mocking-birds. I loved the birds in my old home, but they are nothing like these.

MY TRIP TO HARTFORD

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake Circle, and I hope that you will be interested in reading it. The story that I am going to tell you about is my trip to Hartford. I took the trip, April the 18th, this year, to visit my grandmother and uncle. I also visited the state capitol. I saw many beautiful scenes which I appreciated very much. On Easter morning I heard many beautiful church bells ringing. Hartford city is a beautiful city, and also a great tobacco section. When I arrived home I was very tired but I enjoyed my trip very much.

MY DOG

Dear Uncle Jed: On one of my birthdays my father brought forth a gift. It was a puppy. I admired it very much. As my father had to go to the city he left me in charge of the dog. I took good care of him until some of my friends came and asked me to play tennis with them as they had a set. My mater had a set but would never let me play because I was too young. As I liked the game I played with my friends. When I thought as much of tennis I t hough nothing of the dog. He ran down the road without me knowing anything about it. Very soon after my friends and I heard a squeal. My mind wandered toward the dog. As the sound came from down the road we ran that way. I saw that the dog was hurt. I took very good care of him, and never left him to play tennis with my friends since his narrow escape.

SPARROW WAS BUILDING NEST

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about a bird.

There was a sparrow in a maple tree, making a nest. A boy came with a gun and shot her breast and she died.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

A Welcome Member of the Family

A MOTOR car is never more appreciated than in the springtime. Its convenience and enjoyment are shared by all the family—and by speeding up the day's work, it provides more time for recreation.

A Ford Touring Car becomes a welcome member of the family. It provides every motor car essential at the lowest price for which a five passenger car has ever sold—a price only made possible by complete manufacture, in tremendous volume, in the largest and most economically operated plants in the automobile industry.

By controlling every step in manufacture, from the mining of the ore to delivery of the finished car, Ford eliminates waste and reduces vital costs to a minimum. One profit is made—hundreds are saved.

This efficiency of manufacture is accurately reflected in the quality and price of the Ford Touring car.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Crow and His Wisdom Book.

As the two little rabbits rode along in the Luckymobile they came to the Tailor Bird's shop, where Uncle Lucky stopped to be measured for a new suit of clothes.

"Be sure you have the pink waistcoat finished by the end of the month," said the old gentleman rabbit as he hopped in to the Luckymobile beside his bunny nephew. By and by, they came to a river. All of a sudden, a great big immense alligator opened his mouth to catch a fish.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit. "I should think he'd swallow enough water to drown himself!"

"Not a bit of it," answered a voice and there sat Professor Crow on a tree with his little Wisdom Book in his right claw.

"Let me read to you something about alligators," he said turning to page eleven-forty-four:

"This alligator has a valve in the back of his throat which completely shuts out the water, but leaves the passage to his nostrils free, so that he can keep his mouth open beneath the water without swallowing any, while he breathes at ease with his nostrils at the surface.

"You don't say so!" said Uncle Lucky. "I'm glad to know that. I won't go in swimming today."

"And don't go too near the edge of the water either," advised Professor Crow. "He's very fond of pigs and dogs and I guess he'd eat a rabbit, too, if he got the chance." And then that wise old blackbird closed his little book and flew away.

"Come along," said Uncle Lucky. "We've seen enough of alligators today," and pretty soon they were whirling along in the Luckymobile far away from the river.

Well, after a while they came to the Old Farm Yard where Ducky Doodles and Henny Jenny lived. So they stopped and began to talk to Ducky Waddles who was standing by the Old Rail Fence.

"Have you heard the news?" he asked. "Henny Jenny has twelve chickens as yellow as gold and old Mrs. [illegible] has nine in a fold. Black cat has five kittens, one white and nine gray, and the other three black—so all the folks say."

"Well, well!" exclaimed Uncle Lucky, "it is good news. What else have you to tell us?"

"Old Shotem has lost another tooth," answered Ducky Waddles. "I guess that's all." And just then the Weath cock began to sing

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

BUSINESS REVIEW

New York, May 4—(By the A. P.)—Two events which ordinarily provide a strong stimulus in one direction or another were received in financial and business circles during the past week with comparative indifference. These are the steel corporation's quarterly earning statement and dividend action, and the reduction in the rediscount rate of the federal reserve bank of New York.

The steel corporation's first quarter earnings were considered excellent, particularly in view of hot fact that the installation of the eight hour day had been completed. The net was the best recorded since 1918 and that for the month of March was exceptionally good.

Those in close touch with the corporation's affairs were confident, furthermore, that the results of the second quarter, while smaller than those for the first, will be distinctly good.

Nevertheless, the markets were disposed to pay more attention to the current reports from the steel industry, and to Chairman Gary's remarks regarding that outlook. Steel production, which declined gradually during the early part of April, fell more rapidly during the last week of that month. The present rate of activity for the industry as a whole is about twenty per cent. below the March peak. Steel prices are holding to the lower levels recently established, and pig iron prices have suffered fresh declines.

Mr. Gary, while optimistic in his remarks after the declaration of the extra dividend of 50 cents, stated that the volume of new business is falling off. He regarded this as a natural consequence of the remarkable rate of activity attained early in the year and expressed his conviction that business would revive by fall. At that time he expects business to be much better than at present.

Mr. Gary, in other words, was entirely confident of good business during the next two years but admitted a temporary recession. Meanwhile he reiterated the corporation's adherence to its policy of stable prices but hinted that competitors would not find the corporation indifferent to price cutting on their part.

The generally accepted explanation of the reduction in the federal reserve bank's rediscount rate is that it was made to bring the official rate more closely in line with the open market. It was stated that open market rates have declined, and that the official rate merely is following them. Actually, the change had little effect on the market, an easing in acceptance rates being the only distinguishable result. This supported the contention of those who claim that the reserve bank rates are not now an active factor in the market except as they affect the rate which member banks allow on deposits. Discounts with the reserve banks are too small, it is contended, to have their rates exert much influence.

Most observers considered that the change in rate would have relatively little influence in the business outlook. It was pointed out that the recent recession in business is not due to a shortage of credit or to a high charge for accommodation, but to excessive production during the early part of the year. As a general thing, however, the charge in rate was well received.

Maintenance of a relatively high rate of distribution of general merchandise was indicated meanwhile by the railroad car loading statistics for the week ended April 19. The total loadings were slightly less than in the previous week and some $1,000 cars below the total for the corresponding week of last year. Most of this decline was due to the slump in coal production. Teh movement of merchandise, and less than carload freight was slightly lower than in the previous week but exceeded that at this season in any other year.

Reports from the automobile industry indicated that the curtailment in production has continued, and now amounts to about fifteen per cent. as compared with March.

The commodity markets were comparatively quiet with cotton and wheat maintaining a firm tone.

side of the state highway, all the way from Morse avenue and Elmville.

Saturday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Mason, East Killingly, funeral services for Mrs. Viola H. Oatley, widow of Frank Oatley, were conducted by Rev. H. H. Concklin, pastor of the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the Bartlett cemetery at East Killingly. The bearers were Albert E. Sayles, Harry Sayles, Claude Morsn and Leonard Williams. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A state road repair crew was engaged during Saturday in filling in the innumerable holes in the surface of the state highway between Danielson and Elmville, a distance of two miles. What they did—and they turned out a good day's work, was really appreciated by the drivers of the hundreds of cars that went over the route at the week end. This old stretch of macadam has done valiant service. It has stood the test of a quarter of a century of travel. It was never built to stand the traffic tests of today. It it has broken down, it is because it has outlived its usefulness. The answer is that the proposed cement highway over that section cannot be built too soon to suit the people who register motor vehicles and enjoy riding over good roadways.

For the observance of the 50th anniversary of the organization of the Wauregan Congregational church tomorrow (Tuesday) the following program has been arranged:

Prelude, grand march from Lohengrin, Wagner; hymn, The Church's One Foundation; invocation; responsive reading; words of welcome by the minister, Rev. William Fryling; scripture lesson, Rev. Mary F. Macomber; solo, Thine Forever, Jerome, Mrs. Gertrude W. Tracy; historical address, Rev. Sherrod Soule; prayer, Thy Kingdom Lord, announced by Rev. G. Leon Wells; benediction; postlude, Festal March, Scotson Clark.

Evening service at 7 o'clock, prelude, Festival Fantasie, H. Jul Tschirch; call to worship, minister, choir and congregation participating; invocation, Rev. W. C. Prentiss; anthem, Onward Christian Soldiers, MacDougal; Scripture lesson, Rev. W. B Williams; solo, Hear My Cry, O Lord, Alfred Wooler, Jehu Downes; prayer, Rev. J. R. Pratt; hymn, Glorious Things of Thee are Spoken, sermon The Spirit of the Pioneer in the Life of the Church, Rev. William S Beard; prayer, Rev. Edward P. Ayer, hymn, O, Slow Haste; benediction, the pastor, postlude, Noel, Guilmont.

The officers of the church are Rev William Fryling, minister; deacons, Frederick T. Johnson, Wm. T. Burns; clerk and treasurer, Addison M. Tracy; deaconesses, Mrs. William Fryling, Mrs. John S. Westcott; standing committee, pastor, clerk, deacons, Mrs William Fryling, Mrs. John S. Westcott, Mrs. Gertrude Tracy, Miss Dorothy Atwood. Organist and chorister Rebert J. H. Rether; committee on flowers, Mrs. James Boyd.

The parish was founded in 1855 active being held in a hall until the church was constructed and dedicated in 1874. ev. Charles Ayer was the first pastor. Ten young people found ed the churRch which now has a membership of 76

MYSTIC

The Bridgeport Morning Telegram of May 3 had this to say of Rev. A B. Purdy, father of Dr. A. M. Purdy, of the place, and who was well known here: "Rev. Alvah Briggs Purdy, retired Methodist minister, died suddenly last night at his home, 6 1-2 Main street, Norwalk. Retiring in seemingly good health after spending the evening with his niece, he was found dead in his bed at o'clock today. Rev. Mr. Purdy was born in Round Hill, Greenwich, nearly 87 years ago and had been a clergyman for over 50 years. He held many pastorates, some of the principal ones being where he officiated for a number of years being Rockville Center, Long Island, Brooklyn, Roxbury, Silver Mine, Norwalk and Winsted, the last one being his last charge, the aged pastor spending the remaining years in Norwalk where he was often called upon to officiate at weddings of the children of men and women he had baptised in his early pastorates. He is survived by two sons, Dr. Alexander M.Purdy, of Mystic, and Calvin P. Purdy of Stamford.

"The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, Roxbury, at 2.30, Saturday afternoon. Burial was in the cemetery adjoining the church there."

The right hand of fellowship was extended to twelve new members at the Union Baptist church, Sunday, five being received by letter and seven by baptism

Howard Wheeler of Bridgeport was the guest of Wallace Phillips in Saturday.

Mrs. O. A. Wilcox entertained the Activities committee of the Mystic Community house Thursday evening, at her home at Groton Long Point.

Frank C. May of St. Mary's, Penn is the guest of John F. Noyes, he and Mr. Noyes were in Torrington and Danbury last week in the interests of a business system which Mr. Noyes is establishing ... various sections of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell Tompkins and daughter of Mount Vernon, N. Y., spent the week end at their summer home on Pequot avenue.

Mrs. Eldora Albert, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been the guest of her nephew, A. E. Noyes at the Hotel Clinton.

Osmond Kinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kinney, is much improved in health and is now able to be out of doors.

The May meeting of Fanny Ladyard chapter, D. A. R. is to be held Wednesday afternoon in Masonic Temple with the following committees in chrge of the programme and refreshments: Mrs. Mary I. Gray, Miss Lucy B. Kellogg, Mrs. Eunice A. Fish, Mrs. Emma B. Palmer, Mrs. Eliza D. Brown, Mrs. Florence A. Sherburne, Mrs. Carrie B. Denison and Mrs. Fannie H. Sinclair.

Auction bridge will be played as usual at the semi-monthly meeting of the Mystic Country club Thursday evening, the arrangements being in the hands of this committee Mrs. Walter T. Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Allyn, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn E Kinney and Mrs. Charles C. Dodge

The funeral of Benjamin F. Burrows was held Saturday afternoon at his home on West Mystic avenue with a large attendance of relatives, friends and business associates. The stores of the village were closed from 2.30 until 4 o'clock as a mark of respect. The service was in charge of Rev. J G. Osborne, pastor of the Union Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield. Burial was in the Burrows burying ground, near the top of Fort Hill.

WESTERLY

A chimney fire on the gable roof back of the store of Domenique Blanda, 135 Canal street, caused an alarm from Box 71 to be turned in Saturday afternoon at 2.45 o'clock. The Westerly fire department responded. Bricks were removed from the top of the chimney and the fire was extinguished by the use of chemicals. Mr. Blanda states that no fires connected with that chimney were being burned and that when a fireplace way was looked into the chimney began blazing. Ladders were placed on the roof and the firemen had the blaze out with slight loss.

Crude oil from the oil tank steamer Llewellyn Howland, stranded on Seal Ledge, off Newport about two weeks ago, has begun washing in on the beaches along the south shore of Rhode Island. Saturday the oily waste matter which had drifted out to sea had begun washing back as far to the westward as Noyes Beach breachway. Saturday afternoon automobile parties from Westerly visited Narragansett Pier, from which place they could see th eburning tank steamer, which had been fired earlier in the day under the direction of the United States army engineer, Virgil L. Peterson. As a spectacle the sight was rather disappointing as there were no flames but a great quantity of smudgy black smoke, which at times entirely concealed the tanker from view. At Newport, automobile parties crowded Ocean Drive and from that point the view was reported as no more spectacular.

Senior Senator James A. Read, of Missouri, was the principal speaker Sunday afternoon at the Democratic rally held in Bliven opera house. Arriving on a limited train in New London, the senator was delayed when the trip to Westerly had to be made by automobile. Reaching the theatre at a late hour his remarks were made on national issues. At the conclusion of the meeting he speeded by automobile to Providence, where he addressed another rally before ... turn to Washington.

An automobile accident occurred at the Cold Spring on the Potter Hill road Sunday afternoon, when a machine left the road with its occupants. When the Westerly police made an investigation no trace of the driver could be found.

WESTERLY FIRE APPARATUS COULDN'T FIND FIRE

Paper too near ... furnace in the basement of the house of William H. Clapham, 35 Spruce street, on Friday night became ignited and ... discovered a telephone call ... sent by Mrs. Clapham to the local operator who rang the Fire alarm bell for Box No. 26, corner of Park avenue and Spruce street. Mr. Clapham, who was attending a meeting down town, was called home and accompanied by several other men with other assistants, soon had the fire out. The apparatus of the Westerly Fire department responded and arriving at the fire alarm box were not informed as to the location of the fire and thinking the alarm false, a recall was immediately sounded. Later Chief Eger with several of the engineers visited the house to make sure there was no further danger. A large number of people and autos visited the vicinity of the fire box and expressed themselves as disgusted with the ringing of what they thought to be a false alarm. The fire damage was slight.

PARTY FOR MASTER LUCAS ON HIS SIXTH BIRTHDAY

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Crary Lucas, 26 Spring Garden avenue, Friday afternoon, fourteen children attended a party given Master John C. Lucas, Jr., on his sixth birthday. Those present were: Florence and Albert Smith and Richard Quinn of Norwich Town, Norma Woodmansee, Margaret Young, Dorothy Dean, Mary Dyon, John J. Herbert, Jr., Dorothy Ward, Evelyn Ward, Elliot Grieve, Alden Standish and Clifton Doak. One other child invited, little Helen Moran, was unable to be present.

During the hour for refreshments, the children were seated at an attractively decorated table, the centerpiece being a large birthday cake, with six lighted candles. Each child received a gainty May basket favor. Mrs. Lucas was assisted by Mrs. Edwin Woodmansee in serving sandwiches, fancy cakes, wafers, ice cream and fruit punch.

The children listened to selections on a Victrola for a time, the remainder of the afternoon being devoted to games.

In the Peter Rabbit game, Mary Lyon won first prize and Florence Smith was awarded second prize. First prize winner in the peanut hunt was Albert Smith, Margaret Young being awarded second prize.

Master Lucas' little friends presented him numerous pretty gifts.

HALF WAY POINT IN STORRS EGG LAYING.

The hens in the egg laying contest at Storrs have finished the first half of the year with a production to date of 81.295 eggs, or a yield of about 47 per cent. since the contest started last November. At the end of the first half of the contest last year the 100 hens had a grand total of 79,182 eggs. Thus the hens in the present contest are 2,103 eggs ahead of last year's total at the end of the twenty-sixth week and 11,153 eggs ahead of the record year average without lights. There has been a gradual decrease in egg production for the past few weeks but this should be expected owing to the heavy production during the fall and winter. Using last year's production as a basis of predicting the number eggs that the hens in the present contest will lay, one will find that at the half-way mark the hens have produced nearly 47 per cent of their yearly total. Consequently if one uses these figures for the present contest one may expect the hens to have an average of about 173 eggs each at the close of the contest next October.

The total production for the twenty-sixth week was 3265 eggs or a yield of nearly 47 per cent. Fernside Farm's Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., were an easy first with a production of 38 eggs. A pen of White Rocks entered by H. F. Barber of Dover, Mass., was second with a score of 55 eggs. C. T. Darby's White Leghorns from North Branch, N. J., were third with a yield of 53 eggs and a pen of White Rocks entered by A. T. Lenzen of North Attleboro, Mass., was fourth with a production of 52 eggs.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

VOL. LXVI—No. 109 POPULATION 29,685 NORWICH, CONN., TUESDAY, MAY 6, 1924 10 PAGES—80 COLUMNS PRICE TWO CENTS

SENATE HAS VOTED TO ADOPT THE ENTIRE DEMOCRATIC INCOME TAX SCHEDULE

Provisions Adopted Place 2 Per Cent. Tax on Incomes Below $4,000, 4 Per Cent. on Incomes Between $4,000 and $8,000, 6 Per Cent. on Incomes Over $8,000—Surtax Rate Would Be 40 Per Cent.—The Mellon Surtax Rates Met Defeat, 43 to 40 — Democratic Normal Tax Schedule Won, 44 to 37.

Washington, May 5—The much-discussed Mellon tax plan was laid to rest today with the adoption by the senate of the entire democratic income tax substitute.

The minority's schedule of surtax rates was approved, 43 to 40, while revision of normal rates was adopted, 44 to 37. The republican Insurgents joined with the democrats in supporting the entire program.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, said that when the bill came up on final passage he would propose a compromise as was done in the house after the democratic proposal had been approved there. He hopeful that the senate will accept the compromise as the house did.

The surtax rates written into the bill provided for a reduction of the present maximum of 50 per cent. with corresponding revisions all along the line. They are almost similar to those adopted by the house. The normal rates accepted were 2 per cent. on the first $4,000 of taxable income, four per cent. on the second $4,000 and six per cent on all above that amount. This compares with the present rate of four per cent on the first $4,000 and eight per cent above that.

Before adopting the democratic substitute, which was offered by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, the senate acted with startling rapidity. The first vote came within a little more than an hour after consideration of the tax bill had been resumed. Thereafter followed in rapid succession.

The conclusion of this, the heart of the proceedings, was in desultory fashion for about an hour when Senator [illegible], New Mexico, demanded a vote. There were less than a dozen senators present and leaders on both sides held hurried consultations. Apparent then was the fact that both sides were ready for a test of strength.

Eighteen senators were absent. Ten of these were paired, as follows: Gerry and Heflin against; Owen for, Pomerene against; Trammel for, Bayard against; Ralston for, Green against; LaFollette for, Bayard against.

Senators Couzens and Shipstead, Republicans, were absent and were without a pair.

The Simmons plan having thus been substituted for the Mellon surtax schedule came on the question of the democratic or the Longworth normal rate proposal contained in the house bill. The senate affirmed its approval of the minority rates by a vote of 44 to 40, with no change in the line up of senators.

The normal rate substitute then was offered and there was brief discussion with Senator Smoot alone defending the Mellon rates of 3 per cent. on incomes under $4,000 and six per cent on those above that sum.

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, was the only senator present and voting, he announcing that he voted as he did because he was not influenced by a personal pecuniary interest in the legislation. Fourteen senators were present. Ten of them were paired as follows:

Underwood for, Elkins against; La Follette for, Bayard against; Trammell for, Lenroot against; Ralston for, [illegible] against; Glass for, Cameron against.

Senators Owen and McCormick voted, but it was not announced as to their positions. Senators Hoyt and Couzens, were absent and were not paired.

Two republican insurgents joined the democrats and one farmer labor senator in supporting the substitute for the Mellon rates. Two democrats, those of Maryland and Edwards of New Jersey, voted against it.

Without a roll call the senate then reaffirmed its vote and the democratic surtax rates thus were substituted for those in the house bill which provided a 25 per cent. on incomes up to $6,000, five per cent. on incomes between $6,000 and $8,000 and six per cent on all above the last named figure.

Chairman Smoot said his first compromise proposal would provide for a maximum surtax rate of 30 per cent as against the maximum of 32 per cent. in the Mellon plan. If that is rejected, he will propose a maximum of 32 per cent.

Before there is a final vote on the bill senate republicans probably will hold a party conference to discuss and seek to agree upon a general compromise. This conference would not be binding, however, on those who participate.

With the preliminary fight over the surtax rates disposed of hurried-up Leaders expected that the bill could be brought to a final vote by the end of this week. Corporation and estate taxes are the only remaining big fighting points in the measure, but two score or more individual senators have offered amendments to various sections.

After the surtax substitute had been adopted and before the vote on the normal rate substitute, Senator Smoot estimated the Simmons normal rates would result in a loss of $38,000,000 to the treasury. Democratic senators contended this loss would be more than offset by the increased returns under the surtax brackets.

An analysis of the Longworth committee adapted by the house and the Simmons plan shows very little difference either in the surtax or normal rates. The Simmons surtax rates are slightly lower on incomes up to $60,000 and about the same on incomes between that amount and $80,000. On incomes above $80,000 they are a little higher.

The 37 1-2 per cent. maximum in the Longworth compromise applies on incomes of $900,000 and above, whereas the rate on these incomes in the senate plan is 32 per cent. The latter schedule, however, provides two additional brackets with the maximum rate of 40 per cent. applying at $500,000 and above.

The principal difference in the normal rates is a five per cent tax in the Longworth compromise as against a four per cent. tax in the Simmons plan on the amount of incomes between $4,000 and $8,000.

COMPARISON OF INCOME TAX RATE SCHEDULES

Washington, May 5.—A comparison of the various income tax rate schedules before congress this session with the Simmons plan approved by the senate today follows:

Simmons plan:

Normal rates: 2 per cent. of incomes of $4,000 and under; four per cent. on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000; six per cent. above $8,000.

Surtax rates: Start at one per cent. on $10,000 and graduate up to 40 per cent. on amounts in excess of $500,000.

Present plan:

Normal rates: Four per cent. to $4,000; 8 per cent. above $6,000 and graduate up to 50 per cent. on amounts in excess of $200,000.

Mellon plan:

Normal rates. Three per cent on incomes under $4,000; six per cent above $4,000.

Surtax rates: Start at one per cent at $10,000 and graduate up to 25 per cent. on amounts in excess of $100,000.

House plan:

Normal rates: Two per cent on incomes under $4,000; five per cent. on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and six per cent. above that amount.

ARREST OF ROBBERS OF BELLMORE, L. I., BANK

Mineola, N. Y., May 5.—With the arrest today of four men police believe they have rounded up the bandits who robbed the First National bank at Bellmore, L. I., and killed Ernest Whitman, a bond salesman, on April 4. Two of the men, Stanley Klvan and Ambrose [illegible] of Astoria, police said, were identified as having participated in the robbery.

The others arrested are John J. Slattery and his brother-in-law, George Hyer, both of Astoria. Slattery is proprietor of the Old Homestad hotel in Astoria and said to be a boxing promoter.

The arrests were made on information obtained from Ralph Herman, Jacob Cohen and Benjamin [illegible], all of whom were arrested in New York last Friday and, who are now being held as material witnesses.

CHARGED WITH KIDNAPPING AND ASSAULTING SCHOOL GIRL

Pittsburgh, May 5.—George Nyman, an artist arrested here upon charges of kidnapping and assault upon complaint of Miss Gertrude Hoffman, a student at Carnegie Institute of Technology, was taken to New York and turned over to his brother, Alexander Nyman of East Orange, N. J., after the charges against the young man had been withdrawn. Lieutenant of Detectives John Crouse declared tonight upon his return. Lieut. Crouse said he accompanied Nyman to New York at the request of his brother and added that Nyman went freely and willingly. The report that Nyman was to be deported, Lieut. Crouse characterized as an "exaggeration" and declared that the young man's future was now in the hands of his brother.

PROTEST INTRODUCTION OF AUTOMATIC LOOMS

Waterville, Me., May 5.—In protest against a plan to introduce automatic looms, four of which would be operated by one weaver, 400 employes of the Wyandotte Worsted Mills here declared a walkout today. Mayor Tebbetts was called into conference by representatives of the mill management and workers in an effort to settle the dispute.

Manager Nat H. Barows, of the mill said it was desired to test out the new looms for a month, all the weavers to be guaranteed full pay during the test period. He said if the weavers failed to return before Thursday of this week their places would be filled.

FAT MEN STAND HEAT BETTER THAN THIN ONES

Washington, May 5.—Fat men stand the heat better than lean ones, the bureau of mines has established through experiments in a specially constructed chamber at Pittsburgh.

The fat men, the bureau found, lost more weight when subjected to uncomfortably hot temperatures but they were less exhausted when they were released. In a state of rest and in still air, the experiments, disclosed, the human body cannot endure indefinitely a temperature higher than 90 degrees Fahrenheit with 100 per cent. relative humidity.

OUTPUT OF 74,248,292 GALLONS OF GASOLINE DURING MARCH

Washington, May 5.—Gasoline production continued to climb in March, figures issued today by the bureau of mines showing an output of 743,248,292 gallons, a new high record for all time, or an increase of 48,000,000 gallons over the previous top mark. Stocks on hand at refineries April 1, totalled 1,571,404,667 gallons an increase of more than 200,000,000 gallons on hand the previous month.

Would Probe Slump in Cotton Industry

Resolution Introduced in the Senate by Senator Walsh—Production Cut by 40 to 60 Per Cent. of Normal.

Washington, May 5.—Investigation of the "prolonged depression" in the American cotton textile industry would be made by the tariff commission under a resolution offered today by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts.

Asserting that the depressed condition of the industry is of "exceptional magnitude' and has caused a reduction in production of from 40 to 60 per cent., with consequent "want and distress in the communities in which mills are located, the resolution sets forth the following phases upon which a report is sought.

"Is the present depression in the cotton manufacturing industry confined to the United States or is it worldwide?

"To what extent and for how long a period has the present depression in the cotton manufacturing industry of this country been apparent?

"To what extent is the present depression due to the high price of cotton, particularly in curtailing the consumption of cotton cloth, and to what extent is it due to other causes?

"If there is a difference in the prosperity of this industry in different sections of the country, to what extent, if any, is it attributable to labor legislation of the different states?

"What is the quantity and value of cotton cloth imported into and exported from the United States under the present tariff act as compared with those under the acts of 1909 and 1913?

"What is the percentage of imports and exports as compared to the domestic production, of cotton cloth in the census years 1909, 1914, 1919, 1921 and 1923.

"What types of cotton cloths constitute the bulk of the import trade and are these cloths similar or different in character from those produced in this country?

"What are the main reasons for the importation of cotton cloths: in particular are such imports due primarily to price or to quality?

"To what extent has the domestic industry been affected by the post-war increases in the importation of cotton cloths?

"Would changes in the present tariff rates on cotton cloths be of material assistance in stimulating production and restoring prosperity to this industry?"

ROCKET DESIGNED TO ASCEND TEN MILES ABOVE THE EARTH

Worcester, Mass., May 5.—Dr. Robert H. Goddard, of Clark university will send up his test rocket late this summer.

"It is now being constructed, but will not be ready for its flight into the clouds until August at the earliest. It is designed to ascend 10 miles above the earth, perhaps a little more than that, perhaps a little less, but higher than any rocket has yet gone," Dr. Goddard said today.

"The contrivance will be about five feet high and six inches in diameter," he continued. "It will be loaded with a series of explosive charges, which will be ignited at pre-determined intervals in the flight of the projectile, each giving a powerful 'kick' to accelerate the rushing motion through the air.

"The rocket will be sent up in the immediate vicinity of Worcester, though not in the city proper. Its flight will be watched through the telescope of theodyvite, such as is used in surveying. The height attained will be measured by triangulation.

"The rocket will do on a small scale what one of the same type, but of large size, would accomplish in making a flight even to the moon. Upon the success of the experimental projectile may depend my effort to reach the Lunar Satellite."

His total vote in this city was 4,313 against 539 for an uninstructed delegation to the Cleveland convention.

Digest of Political Affairs in Germany

United Socialist Party Likely to Proceed With Organization of a New Coalition Government.

Berlin, May 5.—(By the A. P.)—Unless an official recount of the ballots deprives the united socialist party of its present rank as numerically the strongest party in the new reichstag President Ebert will in the course of the next few days commission its leaders to proceed with the work of organizing a new coalition government.

In that event the socialists will either promptly reject the assignment or summon the leaders of the clerical, the German people's and democratic parties for the purpose of discussing the formation of a big coalition, which [illegible] the basis of the present returns would definitely control a total of [illegible] mandates out of 448. Only 180 of these opposition votes, contributed by the nationalists, communists and Ludendorff party can be classified as a fixed oppositional factor; the remaining 30 votes are distributed among the Bavarian people's party and half a dozen minor political factions which are making their first appearance in the reichstag.

This is the parliamentary situation awaiting the coalition, composed of the socialists and the three middle parties, whose complete voting strength would ordinarily insure it a safe working majority.

While the nationalist press is obviously jubilant over the gains made by the nationalists and Ludendorff's communistic "freedom party," they are not yet thoroughly warmed up to a contemplation of taking over the new government on a straight bourgeois basis, and political leaders who ordinarily would not be disinclined to have the nationalists put on trial as an active government party, are of the opinion tonight that the Hergt-Westarp reactionaries will discreetly abstain from venturing forth with such a proposal, especially as they are not certain of the participation of the clericals and democrats, without whom a non-socialist coalition is inconceivable.

As the new reichstag cannot be convoked for another two weeks because the election commissioner cannot confirm the new mandates before that time, the parliamentary situation growing out of Sunday's elections will remain in abeyance for another week.

Sentiment, as it has been made public both in official and political circles, strongly inclines to the belief that a coalition reaching from the socialists to Stresemann's people's party will succeed the present government, and that its tenure of office will be firmly established, not only because it commands a working majority on the basis of its present line-up, but also through the scattering and unattached parties which nominally would be disinclined to join with the nationalists in their opposition. This refers particularly to the Bavarian people's party, which is not likely to desert the clericals in a crisis of [illegible].

[illegible] Stresemann has [illegible] the Heilbronn [illegible] speech [illegible] leaning [illegible] toward [illegible] Dawes report, which they now are disposed to designate as "unfulfillable" rather than "unacceptable." They rejected it on the latter basis [illegible] course of [illegible].

Until the [illegible] count are announced [illegible] of the party lineup in the [illegible] stag will be impossible although [illegible] election commissioner believes the present total of 445 mandates will undergo only a slight [illegible] probably [illegible] six deputies [illegible] Nationalists [illegible] parties [illegible] estimated [illegible] of these [illegible] The [illegible] big [illegible] represents [illegible] per cent. increase in the [illegible] of votes over 1920 and explains the shortage of eighteen mandates in the final count.

Resolution Adopted by the Methodist Ministerial Association Declares Dr. Butler's Speech Before the Missouri Society as "Beneath the Dignity of the President of a Great University"—Statement That It Was Impossible to Enforce Prohibition Laws Was Declared to Be "Radical, Superficial and Unfounded."

New York, May 5.—Characterizing Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's speech before the Missouri Society as "beneath the dignity of the president of a great university," the Methodist Ministerial Association today resolved to make formal protest to the board of trustees of Columbia university.

The resolution of protest, unanimously favored by 150 ministers attending the association's meeting described Dr. Butler's attitude as "not the right kind of patriotic example to set before thousands of young men and women training for citizenship at Columbia university." Dr. Butler's statements that it was impossible to enforce prohibition laws were declared to be "radical, superficial and unfounded."

TO SEARCH BERING SEA FOR MISSING AVIATOR

Cordova, Alaska, May 5 (By the A. P.)—An entire new aspect was today given to the hunt for Major Frederick L. Martin, whose United States army air squadron has gone on without him in a flight around the earth. The change was effected by a report that two men "felt certain" they had seen a plane yesterday near Port Moller, on the Bering sea coast of the Alaska peninsula.

The squadron, minus Major Martin's plane, was at Atka Island in the Aleutians, preparing to depart tomorrow for Attu Island, 530 miles from Atka and the last stop scheduled in American territory.

The report from Port Moller was received at False Pass, and caused immediate planning to extend a search of the Bering sea side of the peninsula that was set afoot soon after it became known that Major Martin had departed Wednesday from Chignik, Alaska, 730 miles east of Atka Island, but has not appeared at Dutch Harbor, where the other three planes of the expedition were then waiting for him.

The report said that two men at Port Moller, which is on the opposite side of the peninsula from Chignik, and 100 miles west of Chignik, noticed something circling in the sky above some hills in the Aleutian range yesterday evening. The men thought that they saw "between the wings" of an airplane although they estimated it to be 10 or 15 miles away.

Investigation of the south side of the peninsula had been considered complete until the Port Moller story opened a possibility that Major Martin had reached the vicinity of the eastern end of the Aleutian Islands, 220 miles from Chignik. The coast guard cutter Algonquin was tonight still engaged in the marine search south of the pinensula. Every cove from Chignik to the Shumagin Islands, 150 miles southwestward from Chignik, had been entered. It was reported without finding a sign of Major Martin or his companion, Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey.

A party of two natives is seeking the missing aviators north from Chignik to the Bering sea, actuated to undertake the expedition by the statement of a trapper that he had seen a plane over Lake Chignik 20 miles from Chignik, an hour after Major Martin departed for Dutch harbor.

Only meagre reports had come today concerning the weather between Atka and Attu, but those few indicated that storms which beset the aviators and which were believed to have caused Major Martin to go north instead of adhering to his scheduled route, which was southwestward, had been succeeded by pleasant weather.

CONVENTION SIGNED BY FACTIONS IN HOUDURAS

Washington, May 5.—A formal convention was signed by the two warring factions in Honduras Saturday at Amapala to compromise the differences which have brought about civil war in that country. The state department was advised today by Sumner Welles, personal representative of President Coolidge at the conferences.

EXISTENCE OF POLITICS IN VETERANS BUREAU

Washington, May 5.—Existence in the veterans' bureau of a "ring" which controls its policies and operation was charged in the senate late today by Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada, who declared "all the laws in the mind of man" would not make the bureau function so long as the present condition obtained.

The Nevada senator asserted that the six assistant directors now in the bureau should be "ousted forthwith," and that similar action should be taken in the cases of "every official brought over from the war risk insurance bureau." He declared appropriations made for veteran relief had been squandered and mis-spent," and that the bureau operated under a policy which "presumed a majority of ex-service men to be dishonest."

Senator Oddie, who is a member of the special senate committee appointed to investigate the administration of Director Charles R. Forbes, criticized the manner in which Major General John F. O'Ryan, the committee counsel, had directed the inquiry. Three months before it began he said, Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, the present director was given a complete set of the questions which could be asked.

"Officials of the bureau were thus able to prepare answers for the committee," he said.

The attack upon the bureau came late in the day when few senators remained from the strenuous hours devoted to the revenue bill. Senator Oddie launched into his vigorous denunciation of conditions after several amendments offered by him to a pending bill which proposed the codification of laws affecting the bureau had been defeated.

FAVOR $300 INCREASE FOR P. O. CLERKS AND CARRIERS

Washington, May 5.—An increase of $300 a year in the salaries of postal clerks and carriers was recommended in a bill favorably reported today by the senate post office committee as a substitute for the measure prepared by the joint postal conference.

The senate committee urged that action be taken this session to remedy the injustice under which employes of the mail service were said to be laboring.

Salaries of clerks and carriers would range from $1,700 to $2,100 a year under the substitute bill, five grades within the same limits were provided for clerks in first and second grade post offices, and rates of $2,200 and $2,300 were sent for special clerks. In the railway service seven grades would be established ranging from $1,900 to $2,700 a year.

No change was made in the compensation of rural carriers as now fixed by the committee recommended an allowance be made of three cents per mile per day for the upkeep of vehicles. This would amount to $220 a year for the standard route of 24 miles.

GOVT LOST $1,500,000 IN SALE OF SURPLUS LUMBER

Washington, May 5.—Special Assistant Attorney General John J. Parker, today outlined to a jury in a District of Columbia supreme court, the charges in the indictment against John L. Phillips, Georgia republican state committeeman and five others in connection with sale of surplus lumber from army cantonments. The government charges it lost $1,500,000 in the transactions.

Parker told the jury the plan of the conspiracy which is charged was, that Phillips and John Stephens of Jacksonville, Fla., another defendant, would get appointment to sell government lumber to the trade on a commission of 12 per cent.; that they would not actually market the lumber themselves but would turn it over to other wholesalers and brokers at a price less than its value in consideration of secret payments.

MOONSHINE NO WORSE THAN OLD TIME LIQUOR

Boston, May 5.—In the main, liquor sold today is no worse in quality than that sold prior to the enactment of the Volstead act, Charles D. Howard, chemist of the New Hampshire board of health, said in an address before the opening session of the New England Health Institute here today.

Mr. Howard asserted that the "moonshine' of the present time corresponded to the more than 90 per cent. of whiskey and gin sold before prohibition classed as "synthetic" or "blends." Attention, he said, had been called to deaths by reason of the fact that the deaths have become news where they formerly concerned only victim and undertaker.

ACTRESS ELSIE FERGUSON WEDS FREDERICK WORLOCK

Great Neck, N. Y., May 5.—Elsie Ferguson, actress and Frederick Worlock, an English actor, who had been in Miss Ferguson's cast during the past season, were married today at the bride's home near here.

Miss Ferguson formerly was the wife of Thomas B. Clarke, Jr., vice president of the Harriman National bank. She obtained a divorce last summer in Paris after having been married seven years. Her present husband has appeared in many important plays on the English stage and distinguished himself during the war while serving with the British forces.

SENATE HAS VOTED TO ADOPT THE ENTIRE DEMOCRATIC INCOME TAX SCHEDULE

Provisions Adopted Place 2 Per Cent. Tax on Incomes Below $4,000, 4 Per Cent. on Incomes Between $4,000 and $8,000, 6 Per Cent. on Incomes Over $8,000—Surtax Rate Would Be 40 Per Cent.—The Mellon Surtax Rates Met Defeat, 43 to 40 — Democratic Normal Tax Schedule Won, 44 to 37.

Washington, May 5—The much-discussed Mellon tax plan was laid to rest today with the adoption by the senate of the entire democratic income tax substitute.

The minority's schedule of surtax rates was approved, 43 to 40, while the section of normal rates was adopted, 44 to 37. The republican insurgents joined with the democrats in passing the entire program.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, said that when the bill came up on final passage he would offer a compromise as was done in the house after the democratic program had been approved there. He hopeful that the senate will accept compromise as the house did.

The surtax rates written into the bill provided for a reduction of the present maximum of 50 per cent, with corresponding revisions all along the line. They are almost similar to those adopted by the house.

The normal rates accepted were 2 per cent on the first $4,000 of taxable income, 4 per cent on the second $4,000 as per cent on all above $8,000. This compares with the present rates of 4 per cent on the first $4,000 and 8 per cent above that amount.

Before rejecting the democratic substitute, which was offered by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, the senate, which has been working with startling rapidity, for once came within a little more than an hour after consideration of the bill had been resumed. Then, encouraged in rapid succession, by the action of this, the heart of the proceeded in only desultory fashion for about an hour when Senator [illegible], democrat, New Mexico, demanded a vote. There were less than a quorum of senators present and leaders on both sides held hurried conferences. Announcement then was made that both sides were ready for a test of strength. Thirteen senators were absent. Ten of them were paired, as follows: Gerry and Wilkins against; Owen for, and Pittman against; Trammel for, and Ralston for, Green for, and LaFollette for, Bayard against.

Senators Glass, Couzens and Shipstead were absent and were without pairs.

The simmons plan having thus been rejected for the Mellon surtax schedules, the same on the question of adopting or the Longworth plan contained in the house bill. The senate affirmed its approval of the minority rates by a vote of 46 with no change in senators.

The normal rate substitute then was taken up and there was brief discussion with Senator Smoot alone defending the Mellon rates of 3 per cent. on incomes under $4,000 and six per cent on those above that sum.

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, was the only senator present and voting, he announcing that he refrained to vote because he would have a personal pecuniary interest in the matter. Fourteen senators who had voted with them were paired, as follows:

Reed for, Elkins against; La Follette for, Bayard against; Trammell for, Ransdell against; Ralston for, Overman against; Glass for, Cameron against; Owen and McCormick against. But it was not announced how positions. Senators Hoand Couzens, were absent and unpaired.

Seven republican insurgents joined with the democrats and one farmer labor senator in supporting the substitute Mellon rates. Two democrats, of Maryland and Edge of New Jersey, voted against it.

Before the roll call the senate then agreed to its vote and the democratic normal rates thus were substituted for those in the house bill which provided 2 per cent. on incomes up to $4,000, five per cent. on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and six per cent on all above the last named figure.

Chairman Smoot said his first compromise proposal would provide for a maximum surtax rate of 30 per cent, as against the maximum of 32 per cent. in the Mellon plan. If that is rejected, he will propose a maximum of 32 per cent.

Before there is a final vote on the bill, senate republicans probably will hold a party conference to discuss and seek to agree upon a general compromise. This conference would not be binding, however, on those who participated.

With the preliminary fight over the income tax rates disposed of hurried leaders expected that the bill would be brought to a final vote by the end of this week. Corporation and estate taxes are the only remaining big fighting points in the measure, but two score or more individual senators have offered amendments to various sections.

After the surtax substitute had been adopted and before the vote on the normal rate substitute, Senator Smoot inserted the Simmons normal rates would result in a loss of $38,000,000 to the treasury. Democratic senators replied that this loss would be more than offset by the increased returns under the surtax brackets.

Analysis of the Longworth compromise adopted by the house and the Mellon plan shows very little difference either in the surtax or normal rates. The Simmons surtax rates are slightly lower on incomes up to $60,000 and about the same on incomes between that amount and $80,000. On incomes above $80,000 they are a little higher.

The 37 1-2 per cent. maximum in the Longworth compromise applies on incomes of $200,000 and above, whereas the rate on these incomes in the senate plan is 33 per cent. The latter schedule, however, provides two additional brackets with the maximum of 40 per cent. applying at $500,000 and above.

The only difference in the normal rates is a five per cent tax in the Longworth compromise as against a four per cent. tax in the Simmons plan on the amount of incomes between $4,000 and $8,000.

COMPARISON OF INCOME TAX RATE SCHEDULES

Washington, May 5.—A comparison of the various income tax rate schedules before congress this session with the Simmons plan approved by the senate today follows:

Simmons plan:

House plan:

Normal rates: Two per cent. on incomes under $4,000; five per cent. on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and six per cent. above that amount.

Surtax rates: Start at 1 1-2 per cent. at $10,000 and graduate up to 37 1-2 per cent. on amounts in excess of $200,000.

ARREST OF ROBBERS OF BELLMORE, L. I., BANK

Mineola, N. Y., May 5.—With the arrest today of four men police believe they have rounded up the bandits who robbed the First National bank at Bellmore, L. I., and killed Ernest Whitman, a bond salesman, on April 4. Two of the men, Stanley Klvana and Ambrose Ross, of Astoria, police said, were identified as having participated in the robbery.

The others arrested are John J. Slattery and his brother-in-law George Hyer, both of Astoria. Slattery is proprietor of the Old Homestad hotel in Astoria and said to be a boxing promoter.

The arrests were made on information obtained from Ralph Herman, Jacob Cohen and Benjamin Chalrose, all of whom were arrested in New York last Friday and who are now being held as material witnesses.

CHARGED WITH KIDNAPPING AND ASSAULTING SCHOOL GIRL

Pittsburgh, May 5.—George Nyman, an artist arrested here upon charges of kidnapping and [illegible] complaint of Miss Gertrude Hoffman, a student at Carnegie Institute of Technology, was taken to New York and turned over to his brother, Alexander Nyman of East Orange, N. J., after the latter's request that the young man had been withdrawn. Lieutenant of Detectives John Crouse declared tonight upon his return. Lieut. Crouse said he accompanied Nyman to New York at the request of his brother and added that Nyman went freely and willingly. The report that Nyman was to be deported, Lieut. Crouse characterized as an "exaggeration" and declared that the young man's future was now in the hands of his brother.

PROTEST INTRODUCTION OF AUTOMATIC LOOMS

Waterville, Me., May 5.—In protest against a plan to introduce automatic looms, four of which would be operated by one weaver, 400 employes of the Wyandotte Worsted Mills here declared a walkout today. Mayor Tebbetts was called into conference by representatives of the mill management and workers in an effort to settle the dispute.

Manager Nat H. Barows, of the mill said it was desired to test out the new looms for a month, all the weavers to be guaranteed full pay during the test period. He said if the weavers failed to return before Thursday of this week their places would be filled.

FAT MEN STAND HEAT BETTER THAN THIN ONES

Washington, May 5.—Fat men stand the heat better than lean ones, the bureau of mines has established through experiments in a specially constructed chamber at Pittsburgh.

The fat men, the bureau found, lost more weight when subjected to uncomfortably hot temperatures but they were less exhausted when they were released. In a state of rest and in still air, the experiments, disclosed, the human body cannot endure indefinitely a temperature higher than 90 degrees Fahrenheit with 100 per cent. relative humidity.

FUGITIVE BANDIT FATALLY WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE

Columbus, O., May 5.—Joe Urbaytis, wanted for alleged participation in the million dollar post office robbery at Toledo, February 21, 1291, was probably fatally wounded in a gun battle with city detectives here today when they sought to arrest him.

Captain of Detectives McNeal said that the wounded man is Urbaytis, although he claims to be Alfred Walton, of Boston, Mass. Identification was made by Bertillon measurements and photographs.

WOMAN PERISHED IN NEW YORK TENEMENT FIRE

New York, May 5.—Fire in a tenement resulted tonight in the death of one, and injury of two women and a fireman.

Benjamin Beurley, 23, a negro, cut off from the fire escape, started for the front of the house to jump. Instead he suspended himself on the ledge by his fingers. He let go and fell on an iron picket fence. He died on the way to the hospital.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Edmund Beecher Wilson Honored.

Paris, May 5.—Edmund Beecher Wilson of New York, zoologist, today was elected foreign member of the Anatomical and Zoological section of the Academy of Sciences, succeeding Dr. Jacques Loeb, formerly of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, who died early this year. Dr. Wilson was elected on the first ballot, receiving 44 of the 47 votes cast.

SAYS SIXTY PER CENT. OF CONVICTS ARE DRUG ADDICTS

New York, May 5.—The drug traffic is cutting into the vitals of the country more than any other evil Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis today told delegates to the eleventh annual convention of the International Union of Gospel Missions, meeting in the Union Methodist church.

"Sixty per cent. of all persons in penal institutions are drug addicts," Commissioner Wallis said.

"The drug peddler is the most criminal of criminals," he asserted. "Five to nine to 36 times more drugs are consumed per capital in the United States than in European countries."

FIVE BANDITS ATTEMPTED TO RAID A ROADHOUSE

Chicago, May 5.—Five bandits [illegible] a woman, who attempted to [illegible] a roadhouse near [illegible] land, were shot [illegible] wounded Theodosius Faucher, a lawyer of [illegible], Ind., and also injured Jack Cochran, another patron of the roadhouse. The quintet fled in an automobile. A pursuit posse caught up with the bandits and captured three of them, including the woman who said she was Kate Murphy, of Chicago. Her companions said they were Tim O'Malley, and Frank McCabe, both of Chicago.

AUTHORS AND COMPOSERS TO OPPOSE THE NEWTON BILL

New York, May 5.—A delegation representing the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers went to Washington today to appear before a house committee in opposition to the Newton bill which would permit the broadcasting of popular music by radio without the payment of royalties to composers.

The delegation included Irving Berlin, Victor Herbert, John Philip Sousa, and Earl Carroll. Mr. Carroll went to Washington by airplane.

PROPOSE INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL CENSUS

Rome, May 5.—An international agricultural census, the first ever to be undertaken, will be compiled in 1930 if a proposal before the assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture is adopted. The proposal was presented to the assembly today and was referred to committee for examination.

The sessions of the assembly began Saturday with delegates of seventy states in attendance to discuss the agricultural problems of the world.

TWO ESCAPED CONVICTS CAPTURED IN THE WOODS

Hudson, N. Y., May 5.—Two Sing Sing convicts who escaped yesterday from the state military reservation near Peekskill, were captured today in the woods near West Ghent. They [illegible] ridden "blind baggage" on a freight to a point near this city and had gone about five miles north before they were captured by Sheriff Kline and deputies.

The convicts are John Coroski, of Middletown, and Anthony Caski, of New York city.

COUNTY CONVENTIONS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Columbia, S. C., May 5.—Five county conventions, of the 46 held in South Carolina today to elect delegates to the state democratic convention, instructed their representatives to support William G. McAdoo's candidacy, and 15 left their delegates uninstructed, according to reports assembled here early tonight by the state.

OUTPUT OF 74,248,292 GALLONS OF GASOLINE DURING MARCH

Washington, May 5.—Gasoline production continued to climb in March, figures issued today by the bureau of mines showing an output of 743,248,292 gallons, a new high record for all time, or an increase of 48,000,000 gallons over the previous top mark. Stocks on hand at refineries April 1, totalled 1,571,404,667 gallons an increase of more than 200,000,000 gallons on hand the previous month.

Would Probe Slump in Cotton Industry

Resolution Introduced in the Senate by Senator Walsh—Production Cut 40 to 60 Per Cent. of Normal.

Washington, May 5.—Investigation of the "prolonged depression" in the American cotton textile industry would be made by the tariff commission under a resolution offered today by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts.

Asserting that the depressed condition of the industry is of "exceptional magnitude" and has caused a reduction in production of from 40 to 60 per cent., with consequent "want and distress in the communities in which mills are located, the resolution sets forth the following phases upon which a report is sought:

"Is the present depression in the cotton manufacutring industry confined to the United States or is it worldwide?

"To what extent and for how long a period has the present depression in the cotton manufacturing industry of this country been apparent?

"To what extent is the present depression due to the high price of cotton, particularly in curtailing the consumption of cotton cloth, and to what extent is it due to other causes?

"If there is a difference in the prosperity of this industry in different sections of the country, to what extent, if any, is it attributable to labor legislation of the different states?

"What is the quantity and value of cotton cloth imported into and exported from the United States under the present tariff act as compared with those under the acts of 1909 and 1913?

"What is the percentage of imports and exports, as compared to the domestic production, of cotton cloth in the census years 1909, 1914, 1919, 1921 and 1923.

"What types of cotton cloths constitute the bulk of the import trade and are these cloths similar or different in character from those produced in this country?

"What are the main reasons for the importation of cotton cloths; in particular are such imports due primarily to price or to quality?

"To what extent has the domestic market been affected by the postwar increases in the importation of cotton cloths?

"Would changes in the present tariff rates on cotton cloths be of material assistance in stimulating production and restoring prosperity to this industry?"

ROCKET DESIGNED TO ASCEND TEN MILES ABOVE THE EARTH

Worcester, Mass., May 5.—Dr. Robert H. Goddard, of Clark university will send up his test rocket late this summer.

"It is now being constructed, but will not be ready for its flight into the clouds until August at the earliest. It is designed to ascend 10 miles above the earth, perhaps a little more than that, perhaps a little less, but higher than the rocket has yet gone," Dr. Goddard said today.

"The contrivance will be about five feet high and six inches in diameter," he continued. "It will be loaded with a series of explosive charges, which will be ignited at pre-determined intervals in the flight of the projectile, [illegible] a powerful kick to accelerate the rushing motion through the air.

The rocket will be sent up in the immediate vicinity of Worcester, though not in the city proper. Its flight will be watched through the telescope of theodylyte, such as is used in surveying. The height attained will be measured by triangulation.

"The rocket will do on a small scale [illegible] one of the same type, but of large size would accomplish in making a flight even to the moon. Upon the success of the experimental projectile may depend my effort to reach the Lunar Satellite."

WEDGE NOT CONNECTED WITH UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

Berkeley, Calif., May 5.—The president's office of the University of California today denied reports that "Fred R. Wedge of the University of California Educational Department," has been investigating activities of the Industrial Workers of the World for textbook purposes. The university authorities deny any knowledge of Wedge.

Wedge is believed to be the Reverend "Kid" Wedge, evangelist, stevedore, seaman, lumberjack and [illegible] worker, who has spent several [illegible] years in sociological work.

MISSING AVIATOR SIGHTED ABOVE ALASKA PENINSULA

[illegible] Pass, Alaska, May 5.—(By The A. P.)—That Major Frederick L. Martin, American flight commander, missing since Wednesday, was flying above the Alaska peninsula yesterday was the indication of a report received here at midnight.

The report was that two men at Port Moller, on the north side of the peninsula, saw a plane circle in the air near that place and then drop behind the hills in the Aleutian range to the south.

CONFLICT OF CLOCKS KEPT RELATIVES FROM FUNERAL

Stonington, Con., May 5.—As a result of the state law compelling public clocks to run on standard time, the funeral of John Denison was held here this afternoon without a single near relative being present, although they were within a few blocks of his home. The relatives came from Providence and knowing that the funeral was at 2.30 p. m. and not being familiar with the fact that the public clocks here are on standard time and the funeral was to be held on daylight time, they visited friends in the neighborhood and arrived at the Denison home in time to meet the automobiles returning from the cemetery.

MARYLAND PRIMARY WAS EASY FOR COOLIDGE

Baltimore, Md., May 5. — Calvin Coolidge, republican candidate for president, carried Maryland easily in the primary today over his shadow opponent, "an uninstructed delegation," early returns, which included the complete vote of Baltimore, and scattering returns from the counties, indicated.

His total vote in this city was 4,-313 against 530 for an uninstructed delegation to the Cleveland convention.

Digest of Political Affairs in Germany

United Socialist Party Likely to Proceed With Organization of a New Coalition Government.

Berlin, May 5.—(By the A. P.)—Unless an official recount of the ballots deprives the united socialist party of its present rank as numerically the strongest party in the new reichstag, President Ebert will in the course of the next few days commission its leaders to proceed with the work of organizing a new coalition government.

In that event the socialists will either promptly reject the assignment or summon the leaders of the clerical, the German people's and democratic parties for the purpose of discussing the formation of a big coalition, which on the basis of the present returns would definitely control a total of 229 mandates out of 448. Only 180 of the opposition votes, contributed by the nationalists, communists and Ludendorff party can be classified as a fixed oppositional factor; the remaining 39 votes are distributed among the Bavarian people's party and half a dozen minor political factions which are making their first appearance in the reichstag.

This is the parliamentary situation awaiting the coalition, composed of the socialists and three middle parties, whose complete voting strength would ordinarily insure it a safe working majority.

While the nationalist press is obviously jubilant over the gains made by the nationalists and Ludendorff's chauvinistic "freedom party," they are not yet thoroughly warmed up to a contemplation of taking over the new government on a straight bourgeois basis, and political leaders who ordinarily would not be disinclined to have the nationalists put [illegible] as an active government party, are of the opinion tonight that the Herut-Westarp reactionaries will discreetly abstain from venturing forth with such a proposal, especially as they are not certain of the participation of the clericals and democrats, without whom a non-socialist coalition is inconceivable.

As the new reichstag cannot be convoked for another two weeks because the election commissioner cannot confirm the new mandates before that time, the parliamentary situation growing out of Sunday's elections will remain in abeyance for another week.

Sentiment, so far as it has been made public both in official and political circles, strongly inclines to the belief that a coalition reaching from the socialists to Stresemann's people's party will succeed the present government, and that its tenure of office will be firmly established, not only because it commands a working majority on the basis of its present line-up, but also through the scattering ado of unattached parties which nominally would be disinclined to join with the nationalists in the opposition. [illegible] refers particularly to the Bavarian people's party, which is not likely to desert the clericals in a critical situation.

There is also a widespread impression in political circles that the nationalists since the [illegible] Heiffrich have [illegible] decidedly [illegible] Dawes report, and are disposed to [illegible] cooperate with the [illegible] parties. [illegible] be impossible [illegible] present total of 448 [illegible] drop only a few [illegible] ably show an increase of six deputies.

No less than one million votes bestowed upon numberless nondescript parties on the political ballots are estimated to have been wasted, as some of these parties succeeded in obtaining the requisite total of 60,000 votes. The futile balloting represents a five per cent. increase in the total number of votes over 1920 and explains the shortage of eighteen mandates in the final count.

OFFICIAL RETURNS FROM ELECTIONS IN GERMANY

Berlin, May 5.—(By The A. P.)—Official returns received up to a late hour tonight, which, however, are incomplete, give the provisional state of parties as follows:

Social democrats 59.
Communists 61.
Democrats 24.
Centre party 62.
Bavarian people's party 15.
German people's party 45.
German National party 59.
People's freedom party (extreme nationalists) 32.
Hanoverians 5.
Bourgeois and Bavarian, Agrarian League 10.
Land Union 9.
German Social 4.

ORIGINAL TABLETS BEARING THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Vienna, May 5.—What are declared to be remnants of the original tablets bearing the ten commandments, written by Moses, have been deciphered by Professor Hubert Grimme of the University of Munster.

It was taken out of the Nilus by the Egyptian queen, as the sentence written in the almost forgotten old Hebrew at the head of one of the tablets, which were found some time ago on the plateau Serabit El Chadaim, in the southwestern part of the Peninsula of Sinai by the English scholar Flinders Petrie. The tablets contain also the names of Joseph, Menassa and Moses.

In an article published in the Vienna Morgen Zeitung, Professor Grimme, who deciphered the tablets from Photographs, deplores the fact that so far only a portion of the tablets have been found and that no effort has been made to locate the remainder.

RUSSIAN GOV'T TO EXACT AN EXPLANATION FROM GERMANY

Moscow, May 5.—(By the A. P.)—The Russian government has instructed M. Krestinsky, its ambassador in Berlin, that unless the German government accords full satisfaction for the recent raid on the offices of the Russian commercial delegation in Berlin, the ambassador shall come immediately to Moscow to discuss with the government the question of what steps should be taken to deal with the situation.

PROTEST THE STATEMENTS OF DR. NICHOLAS M. BUTLER

Resolution Adopted by the Methodist Ministerial Association Declares Dr. Butler's Speech Before the Missouri Society as "Beneath the Dignity of the President of a Great University"—Statement That It Was Impossible to Enforce Prohibition Laws Was Declared to Be "Radical, Superficial and Unfounded."

New York, May 5.—Characterizing Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's speech before the Missouri Society as "beneath the dignity of the president of a great university," the Methodist Ministerial Association today resolved to make formal protest to the board of trustees of Columbia university.

The resolution of protest, unanimously favored by 150 ministers attending the association's meeting described Dr. Butler's attitude as "not the right kind of patriotic example to set before thousands of young men and women training for citizenship at Columbia university." Dr. Butler's statements that it was impossible to enforce prohibition laws were declared to be "radical, superficial and unfounded."

TO SEARCH BERING SEA FOR MISSING AVIATOR

Cordova, Alaska, May 3 (By the A. P.)—An entire new aspect was today given to the hunt for Major Frederick L. Martin, whose United States army air squadron has gone on without him in a flight around the earth. The change was effected by a report that two men "felt certain" they had seen a plane yesterday near Port Moller, on the Bering sea coast of the Alaska peninsula.

The squadron, minus Major Martin's plane, was at Atka Island in the Aleutians, preparing to depart tomorrow for Attu Island, 530 miles from Atka and the last stop scheduled in American territory.

The report from Port Moller was received at False Pass, and caused immediate planning to extend a search of the Bering sea side of the peninsula that was set afoot soon after it became known that Major Martin had departed Wednesday from Chignik, Alaska, 730 miles east of Atka Island, but has not appeared at Dutch Harbor, where the other three planes of the expedition were then waiting for him.

The report said that two men at Port Moller, which is on the opposite side of the peninsula from Chignik, and 100 miles west of Chignik, noticed something circling in the sky above some hills in the Aleutian range yesterday evening. The men thought that they saw "between the wings" of an airplane although they estimated it to be 10 or 15 miles away.

Investigation of the south side of the peninsula had been considered complete until the Port Moller story opened a possibility that Major Martin had reached the vicinity of the eastern end of the Aleutian Islands, 220 miles from Chignik. The coast guard cutter Algonquin was tonight still engaged in the marine search south of the pinensula. Every cove from Chignik to the Shumagin Islands 150 miles southwestward from Chignik had been entered. It was reported without finding a sign of Major Martin or his companion, Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey.

A party of two natives is seeking the missing aviators north from Chignik to the Bering sea, actuated to undertake the expedition by the statement of a trapper that he had seen a plane over Lake Chignik 20 miles from Chignik, an hour after Major Martin departed for Dutch harbor.

Only meagre reports had come today concerning the weather between Atka and Attu, but those few indicated that storms which beset the aviators and which were believed to have caused Major Martin to go north instead of adhering to his scheduled route, which was southwestward, had been succeeded by pleasant weather.

CONVENTION SIGNED BY FACTIONS IN HOUDURAS

Washington, May 5.—A formal convention was signed by the two warring factions in Honduras Saturday at Amapala to compromise the differences which have brought about civil war in that country. The state department was advised today by Sumner Welles, personal representative of President Coolidge at the conferences.

The convention was signed at the final meeting of the conference, called at the suggestion of the United States, to consider an adjustment of the internal situation in Honduras and its signing was witnessed by representatives of Central American countries as well as Mr. Welles.

The delegates of the Central American powers and Mr. Welles telegraphed President Tosta that their governments would accord recognition to a government constituted in accordance with the agreement which was drawn up. Mr. Welles, his work completed, left yesterday on the cruiser Milwaukee for Santo Domingo to resume his post as American commissioner to the Dominician republic.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY IN INDIANA TODAY

Indianapolis, May 5.—(By The A. P.)—Indiana voters, confronted with a host of candidates for public office will register their preferences at a state-wide primary election tomorrow.

The election offers republicans an opportunity to express their preference for either President Coolidge or Senator Hiram Johnson of California for the presidential nomination.

Democrats have a choice of eight candidates for the gubernatorial nomination while the republicans may choose from six aspirants to the governorship.

In addition both parties will nominate congressmen and county officers. Democrats will have no opportunity of expressing a presidential preference, no candidates having filed.

EXISTENCE OF POLITICS IN VETERANS BUREAU

Washington, May 5.—Existence in the veterans' bureau of a "ring" which controls its policies and operation was charged in the senate late today by Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada, who declared "all the laws in the mind of man" would not make the bureau function so long as the present condition obtained.

The Nevada senator asserted that the six assistant-directors now in the bureau should be "ousted forthwith," and that similar action should be taken in the cases of "every official brought over from the war risk insurance bureau." He declared appropriations made for veteran relief had been squandered and "mis-spent," and that the bureau operated under a policy which "presumed a majority of ex-service men to be dishonest."

Senator Oddie, who is a member of the special senate committee appointed to investigate the administration of Director Charles R. Forbes, criticized the manner in which Major General John F. O'Ryan, the committee counsel, had directed the inquiry. Three months before it began he said, Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, the present director was given a complete set of the questions which could be asked.

"Officials of the bureau were thus able to prepare answers for the committee," he said.

The attack upon the bureau came late in the day when few senators remained from the strenuous hours devoted to the revenue bill. Senator Oddie launched into his vigorous denunciation of conditions after several amendments offered by him to a pending bill which proposed the codification of laws affecting the bureau had been defeated.

FAVOR $300 INCREASE FOR P. O. CLERKS AND CARRIERS

Washington, May 5.—An increase of $300 a year in the salaries of postal clerks and carriers was recommended in a bill favorably reported today by the senate post office committee as a substitute for the measure prepared by the joint postal conference.

The senate committee urged that action be taken this season to remedy the injustice under which employees of the mail service were said to be laboring.

Salaries of clerks and carriers would range from $1,700 to $2,100 a year under the substitute bill, five grades within the same limits were provided for clerks in first and second grade post offices, and rates of $2,200 and $2,300 were sent for special clerks. In the railway service seven grades would be established ranging from $1,900 to $2,700 a year.

No change was made in the compensation of rural carriers as now fixed by the committee recommended an allowance be made of three cents per mile per day for the upkeep of vehicles. This would amount to $216 a year for the standard route of 24 miles.

GOV'T LOST $1,500,000 IN SALE OF SURPLUS LUMBER

Washington, May 5.—Special Assistant Attorney General John J. Parker, today outlined to a jury in a District of Columbia supreme court, the charges in the indictment against John L. Phillips, Georgia republican state committeeman and five others in connection with sale of surplus lumber from army cantonments. The government charges it lost $1,500,000 in the transactions.

Parker told the jury the plan of the conspiracy which is charged was that Phillips and John Stephens of Jacksonville, Fla., another defendant, would get appointment to sell government lumber to the trade on a commission of 12 per cent.; that they would not actually market the lumber themselves but would turn it over to other wholesalers and brokers at a price less than its value in consideration of secret payments.

MOONSHINE NO WORSE THAN OLD TIME LIQUOR

Boston, May 5.—In the main, liquor sold today is no worse in quality than that sold prior to the enactment of the Volstead act, Charles D. Howard, chemist of the New Hampshire board of health, said in an address before the opening session of the New England Health Institute here today.

Mr. Howarad asserted that the "moonshine" of the present time corresponded to the more than 90 per cent. of whiskey and gin sold before prohibition classed as "synthetic" or "blends." Attention, he said, had been called to deaths by reason of the fact that the deaths have become news where they formerly concerned only victim and undertaker.

ACTRESS ELSIE FERGUSON WEDS FREDERICK WORLOCK

Great Neck, N. Y., May 5.—Elsie Ferguson, actress and Frederick Worlock, an English actor, who had been in Miss Ferguson's cast during the past season, were married today at the bride's home near here.

Miss Ferguson formerly was the wife of Thomas B. Clarke, Jr., vice president of the Harriman National bank. She obtained a divorce last summer in Paris after having been married seven years. Her present husband has appeared in many important plays on the English stage and distinguished himself during the war while serving with the British forces.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

WILLIMANTIC

A grand total of thirteen cases came up for disposal at the session of police court Monday morning, with Deputy Judge Curtis Dean on the bench.

Starting shortly after 9 o'clock, the hearings lasted until 11.35. In seven of eight cases for alleged violation of the liquor laws demurrers were entered by the defendants' attorneys, which were overruled by Judge Dean, and the eighth case, that of Ida Goldstein of 49 Jackson place, was tried. All parties were found guilty and fined from $100 to $200 with 10 and 30-day jail sentences imposed.

Mrs. Goldstein was charged with selling a pint of liquor to Mr. Woodworth April 15, last. The court officials were disappointed when Mr. Woodworth was called to testify and was found absent. He could not be located but an officer got in touch with Glen E. Richards and Levi S. Upton of this city and they acted as the star witnesses for the state. Richards and Upton testified to going to the Goldstein place March 1 and purchasing a drink of liquor apiece. They paid 25 cents for each drink. Lieutenant Frank McLean and Officer Roderick Lariviere who conducted a raid at the Goldstein home April 15, stated that when they came into the house Mrs. Goldstein was approaching two men who were seated in the room and that she had a pint of liquor in her hand. It was taken away from her and displayed as evidence at the trial. Another pint of moonshine was found in the room and [illegible] a drop of liquor in her life, the last glass taken from her was just [illegible] Mrs. Goldstein, however, in explaining what happened to be carrying the pint around the house on the day [illegible] at her home.

Goldstein, her husband, testified that he kept a pint of liquor in the house to use as an appetizer but never sold any to his wife. It was said that after the officers had left the house Goldstein asked where he could get the pint and when told that it came from the officers told them that he had informed the officers he had nothing to do with booze that was in the house. In court Monday [illegible] was found guilty and fined $100 and 30 days in jail.

Following are the accused, the charges and the sentences:

Mrs. Ida Goldstein, 49 Jackson place, on March 1, sale of two one-ounce drinks of liquor to Glen Richards and Levi Upton, first offense, $100 and 30 days in jail.

Mrs. Goldstein, 49 Jackson place, on March 15, sale of one pint of liquor to Glen Richards and Levi Upton, first offense, $100 and 30 days in jail.

Arthur Bouffard, 408 Valley street, on April 12, sale of one pint of liquor to John Trudeau and [illegible] first offense, $100 and 30 days in jail.

Frank Bezaw, first offense. Fine $100 and 30 days.

All, including Mrs. Goldstein, took appeals to the superior court. Bonds were fixed at $500. Merrill H. Jones went surety for Mrs. Chasen, A. Bussman for Mrs. Eva Goldstein, Joseph Kannell and Louis Brettschneider, Clement Hurteau for Arthur Bouffard, Mrs. Frank Armes for her husband and Louis Brettschneider for Mrs. Caroline Kusek.

The R. H. Bridgeman Detective Agency was responsible for securing the evidence in the majority of the cases. Spotters did the work. Included in the large audience of spectators were Detective Bridgeman and Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church, chairman of the Willimantic Ministers' Union law enforcement committee, and Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

Fred Stewart Lohe, of Norwich, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of non-support of his child. Long was divorced from his first wife, the mother of a 4-year-old child. Long married again last December and when asked to support the child he agreed to do so, at the rate of $3 a week, but failed to do so. At the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Harvey, Judge Dean fixed a bond of $300 for Long to furnish $3 a week for the support of the child. Late Monday afternoon Long was still in the cell awaiting a Norwich party to furnish his bond.

Four cases of intoxication were heard in police court Monday. William D. Falvey and Alfred Atkins, of New London, pleaded not guilty through their guardian ad litem, Robert Fine, also of New London, was not present in court and his bond of $25 was called. Falvey and Atkins were found guilty and fined $15 and costs, amounting to $23.16. Friends called at the police station and paid the fines. John McNally, a cotton weaver, pleaded guilty to being drunk last Saturday night and was fined $15 and costs. He was without funds and friends and was taken to Brooklyn jail.

The village of South Windham was disturbed twice Sunday afternoon by automobile accidents. About 5 o'clock a Ford car occupied by five adults and three children overturned, opposite the Arthur Porter home, while making the hairpin curve in the village. The occupants escaped injury. The car was damaged to some extent and was brought to this city for repairs.

A few minutes later, on the Norwich road, near the home of Edward Backus, a Studebaker machine owned by Carl Herman, of New London, left the highway and went head-on through a fence. The occupants were unhurt but the car was slightly damaged. Constables Harry W. Avery and Alfred Abbe and State Policeman Harmon of Stafford Springs investigated the accidents.

Upon the completion of half a century of happy married life, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Potter of Church street were showered with congratulations Sunday. Beautiful bouquets, checks, gifts of various choice articles and cards were received by the couple. Their son, Arthur Niles Potter of South Manchester and their daughters, Mrs. James P. Mustard and Misses Eudora and Amy Potter of this city were their guests. Mr. Potter has been a shoe dealer in Willimantic since 1870, being one of the pioneer business men of the city. He has prominent lodge and fraternal organization connections.

Funeral services for Henry Clapp were held at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon at Hampton Congregational church, where Rev. A. Avery Gates, the pastor, assisted by Rev. Martin Brown of Windham read services. Hymns were sung by the Hampton quartette, Charles Burnham, Mrs. Richard Buchnell, Raymond Fuller and Mrs. Raymond Fuller. Mrs. A. A. Gates was at the organ. The bearers were A. C. Burdick, A. E. Sweet, W. W. Jewett and Haig S. Iskiyan. Burial was in the North cemetery. Hampton. Avery & VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

The death of Charles Thresher, 85, occurred at his home in Gurleyville, Mansfield, Sunday night. Mr. Thresher was born in Hampden, Mass., Jan. 27, 1839, a son of Thomas and Rachel Mixter Thresher. He had resided in Gurleyville for about 21 years. He married in Stafford 50 years ago last; Jane Mary Bloboy and she survives him.

Louis J. Matte who died Sunday at his home, 61 Spring street, was born in Lauzon, Canada, April 25, 1873, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Bonon Matte. He lived in this city for 28 years. He leaves besides his wife, seven daughters, Mrs. Arthur Gallant, Mrs. Albert Lussier and Misses Gilda Yvonne, Florence, Antoinette and Germaine Matte, and a son, Norbert Matte, all of this city.

Barnard Earl, infant son of Frederick E. and Ruth Tanner Chapman of 3 Meadow lane, died at the home of his parents, Saturday evening. The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Hurteau-Bosse Corp. funeral parlors with burial in Willimantic cemetery.

As a fitting closing of the textile class of the American Thread company an enjoyable supper and entertainment was held recently in the chamber of commerce rooms. The class, under the supervision of its organizer, David Moxon, superintendent of the manufacturing department, will be continued next fall and the same success is expected. Prizes for averages given by Agent Curtis went to Albert Caufield, first; William Rivlen, second and John Simpson, John Lutton and George Millhench. Speakers at the affair were Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, P. J. Hinds, C. W. Hill, Ward Bushee and Harry Tuzzar, the last named two of Holyoke.

The meeting of St. Anne's Charitable Society held at St. Joseph's hall Sunday afternoon was made additionally interesting through an excellent talk by Mrs. Helen V. Cooney, president of the society in Holyoke, Mass. Rev. John E. Clark also addressed the audience. Appearing in a musicale program were Misses Esther Portelance and Elinor Champagne and Miss Monica McKeon, soloist.

St. Paul's church school of Willimantic was awarded one of the four banners presented by the diocesan board of education of the Episcopal church, at a mammoth service held at the cathedral in Hartford Saturday. St. Paul's church in Windham received honorable mention, being third in the largest per capita offering.

At St. Mary's church, 7 o'clock Monday morning, Miss Agnes Gaudreau and Charles Roulier of Pittsfield, Mass., were married by Rev. J. F. Papillon who also sang the nuptial high mass. The attendants were Archille Gaudreau, brother of the bride, and Miss Marie Ange Roulier, sister of the groom. Mrs. J. F. Gaudreau was organist. The singing was by the St. Cecelia choir quartet, and Edward Rocheville soloist. The bride wore a gown of oakwood georgette and cream colored lace, with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of lavender and white sweet peas. The maid of honor was attired in a cream color crepe gown with hat to match and carried pink roses. Breakfast was served after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Roulier are in New York on a wedding journey. Going away Mrs. Roulier wore a blue and gray dress and navy blue traveling coat, lined with gray, with hat to match. The bride has been a popular employe of the Holland Manufacturing company.

At a bridge party given Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hardman of 137 Windham road the engagement of Miss Cecelia Morin to Francis J. Mahoney of Worcester, Mass., was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Morin, guests of the Hardmans.

Information leaked out Monday afternoon that at least two of the local contractors had granted the increase to one dollar an hour asked for by the journeymen carpenters in this city and that the men had gone to work.

BOLTON

A special town meeting was held Wednesday afternoon last, to see if the town would vote to expend $19,000 due Bolton from state as state aid money on Camp Meeting Woods road, and to further vote to expend all state aid money that will hereafter become due the town from the state on this same road until this highway is improved throughout its whole length, as far as it lies in the town of Bolton.

At the town meeting held last night it was voted to expend the $19,000 state aid money on the selectmen were instructed to recommend to the state highway department that it should be used on the Camp Meeting Woods road.

A representative from the state highway department who conferred with the Bolton selectmen, questioned the advisability of spending this sum on that road unless the town would, in the future, continue the improvement on that road, consequently the meeting. After much discussion of the subject the question arose, whether taxpayers in the town who are not voters could vote on the question or not. The meeting was adjourned until next Wednesday, in order that the matter could be answered by an unquestionable authority.

Now It's Spring Take Celery King

Three times a week for three weeks, brew yourself a cup of Celery King and drink it just before retiring. Give to the children, too.

Celery King drives out winter impurities and so fortifies the system against spring and summer illness.

Everyone needs a spring tonic.

Is Springtime Your Backache Time?

DOES spring find you all worn out—miserable with daily backache—tortured with sharp pains? Are you dull, tired and dispirited? Nerves "all unstrung?" Do you wonder why springtime is such a happy time for others, yet finds you so tired, weak and all played-out?

There must a cause! Likely your kidneys are not properly filtering the poisons from the blood. Nerves and blood are apt to be upset by these toxins. Then comes lameness, soreness and stiffness; constant backache, rheumatic twinges, headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities.

Don't risk serious kidney trouble! Begin using Doan's Pills today. Doan's are especially for weak kidneys. They have helped thousands. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Norwich Folks:

HIRAM U. NEFF, 465 E. Main St. says: "I have used Doan's Pills off and on for attacks of kidney trouble and rheumatic pains. The pains seem to settle mostly in my back and across my kidneys. I am hardly able to stoop or straighten on account of the pain. Doan's Pills always remove the pains and my kidneys become regular in action."

MRS. JAMES DOYLE, 42 Mt. Pleasant St., says: "I have sharp, darting pains in my back. Terrible dizzy spells came over me when I would have to sit down. A friend told me Doan's Pills would help me. A couple boxes of Doan's cured the attack and I haven't been bothered for some time."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Carried Off in Balloons

Well, the next day after Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit had seen the alligator and heard the good news at the Old Farmyard, as you read in the last story, they set out once more in the Luckymobile. By and by, after a while, they came to a little town where there was a circus. It was not a very big circus, you know. The tent was small and there were only one elephant and a lion, and maybe a bear or two, and three monkeys. But, just the same, every little boy and girl wanted to go to the show.

As soon as the little rabbits reached the big tent, they put the Luckymobile behind one of the big red circus wagons and hopped over to the ticket man to buy their tickets. But, Oh, dear me! There wasn't a single seat to be had. Not [illegible]

Up and up they went.

Just then, up came a man with a lot of toy balloons. So the old gentleman rabbit bought two, one for Little Jack Rabbit and one for himself. But, would you believe it? The next minute the two little rabbits rose high up in the air. Away went Uncle Lucky with one balloon and away went Little Jack Rabbit with the other. You see, they didn't dare let go the string for fear they would fall and break their hind toes.

Up and up they went, till at last you could hardly see them at all. And it wasn't the balloon man frightened? You should have seen him. But he couldn't do anything you know, only stand there loking up into the sky.

Well, pretty soon, Little Jack Rabbit said to Uncle Lucky.

"If I only had a little pin I'd stick it into my balloon."

"Here, take my Diamond Stick Pin," said the old gentleman rabbit. "But be careful you don't lose it."

Holding the pin between his teeth, the little rabbit climbed up the string until he was close to the balloon.

"Hold on to my coat, Uncle Lucky, because I won't be able to stick the pin in your balloon."

At once the old gentleman bunny took hold of the little rabbit's coattails, and, all of a sudden, out came the gas with a little whistling noise. Slowly the balloon began to settle and after a while it landed on the top of a great high mountain, many, many miles away from the place where the circus was.

"Oh, dear and a peck of troubles!" said Uncle Lucky. "I'm glad to be on earth once more, but how are we to get home?" And he sat down on a stone and scratched his left hind toe with the back of his ear.

"I know," said Little Jack Rabbit all of a sudden, just like that, taking a little wireless machine from his pocket. "I'll tell the next stork you shall see what the message was that the little rabbit sent out from the top of the great high mountain.

APRIL SET NEW MARK FOR AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Experienced operators were involved in over 87 per cent. of the automobile accidents reported to the state motor vehicle department for the month of April. Operators who have held Connecticut licenses less than six months, and many of these had never before been licensed to operate motor vehicles, figured in 12.3 per cent. of the April accidents.

The record for April proved to be the worst for that month of any year since the motor vehicle department was established. Although all of the accidents and thirty-one fatalities in April, putting the total of motor vehicle fatalities for the first four months of 1924 at 77, which is more than twice the number of fatalities recorded for the corresponding period of 1923. In Massachusetts, the total of 1924 fatalities is triple the number reported for the first four months of 1923.

About 1,700 operators were involved in Connecticut accidents during April. Accidents involving 1,127 of these have already been analyzed, showing that 988 of them had had more than one year's experience as licensed operators, and 149 less than six months' experience. This is taken to indicate that the responsibility cannot be laid to faulty examinations of applicants for drivers' licenses. More than 5,000 operators have been passed by the state police examiners thus far this year, and 49,619 were passed in all of last year. The majority of those examined had never held operators' licenses previously, but there were many of course, who had operated automobiles in other states and some who were required to be re-examined because more than a year had elapsed since they previously held a Connecticut license.

Operators 23 years of age are shown by the department records to have figured in a larger percentage of last year's accidents than those of any other age, and 25-year-old operators came second. As a class, the operators between 20 and 30 years old held the record, being involved in 31.8 per cent. of the accidents, for the year. Of all the operators registered last year 29.3 per cent. were between 20 and 30 years old. The following table shows the number of operators of different ages involved in accidents among the 16,170 of those occurring last year which have been analyzed:

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

Ben Wilson, producer and director of "Other Men's Daughters" now at the Strand theatre, chose an exceptionally good cast for the picture which was adapted by Frank Sullivan, brother of G. Gardner Sullivan, from the story by Evelyn Campbell.

Bryant Washburn plays Alaska Kid, a young mining man from the frozen north. Mabel Forrest is Dorothy Kane, a daughter who is taken temporarily over by her sanctimonious father till she rebels; Kathleen Kirkham is Lottie Bird a lady who lives by her wits. Wheeler Oakman plays "Winnie" a typical lounge lizard; Mrs. Kane is played by Martha Franklin.

This is Ben Wilson's third Grand-Asher picture, one of a series of ten. It shows class in every respect and is particularly well acted.

A Charlie Murray [illegible] and Kinogram completed the program.

LYCEUM THEATRE NEW LONDON

When Schemers the Oliver Morosco production of Dr. William I. Sirovich's new comedy-drama comes to the Lyceumm theatre, New London for two performances, matinee and evening on Saturday, May 10th, the cast will be headed by Selma Payley, noted leading woman, and Montagu Love, who has appeared in a list of films that would measure a yard in length if enumerated completely.

Among his famous pictures are Rasputin, The Gilded Cage, Stolen Orders, The World and His Wife, The Riddle Woman, Bought and Paid For, The Secrets of Paris, Little Old New York, Peter Ibbetson, The Lone Star, The Cross Bearer, Lovers Redemption and Hearts in Exile and The Eternal City. In the majority of cases he was cast in the leading role and the stars included Alice Brady, Clara Kimball Young, Norma Talmadge, Marion Davies, Geraldine Farrar, Betty Blythe, Emily Stevens, Elsie Ferguson and the late Wallace Reid.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATRE

Splashing merrily in her bathtub, little two-year-old Rose suddenly held aloft an object with an excited cry:

"Look, mama, daddy's."

Her mother glances in her direction. Clutched in the tiny hand was a briar pipe. At the sight of the object the expression on the face of the beautiful young woman quickly changed, horror was superseded by wistfulness and pain.

For "daddy" had left them. Where was he now?

This is the starting point of one of the strongest dramas that has ever been seen on the screen, and which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow. It is [illegible]s of the Field, a First National picture, directed by John Francis Dillon, and adapted from William Hurlburt's Broadway success of the same name.

Corinne Griffith, who is co-featured with Conway Tearle in this production, is cast as the young mother who finds her dreams of happiness shattered by fate. Dorothy Brock, a winsome little miss, is seen in the photoplay as Rose.

Other members in the cast of Lilies of the Field, which has been hailed as a cinematic classic are Sylvia Breamer, Alma Bennett, Myrtle Stedman, Charles Gerrard, Edith Ransom, Cissy Fitzgerald, Phyllis Haver, Charles Murray and Crauford Kent.

Lloyd Hamilton in the roaring comedy Killing Time and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

Palace Theatre

While Mary Pickford and her company were in San Francisco making exterior scenes for "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," a United Artists release, which comes to the Palace theatre for four days commencing Sunday night, May 11th and twice daily thereafter, more than 10,000 persons were present daily on the sidelines of the "sets" watching the little actress and her company at work.

"I said the time motion picture companies have been coming here for locations, never have I seen such crowds in Golden Gate park as when Miss Pickford was here," Corporal Hawkins, of the Park Police station, San Francisco, declared.

It is estimated that at least 40,000 persons watched Mary at work during her stay in the Bay city. They came at various times, brought lunches and made it a gala day. More than a score of policemen were detailed to control the crowds.

In "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," Miss Pickford is supported by Allan Forrest in the leading male role, that of Sir John Manners. Others in the cast include Clare Eames, Marc McDermott, Anders Randolph, Wilfred Lucas, Lottie Pickford Forrest, Estelle Taylor, Eric Mayne, Courtenay Foote, Malcolm Waite and Mme. Daumery.

Seats go on sale Thursday morning at the box office of the Palace theatre for entire engagement. All orders accepted now and filled in order of receipt.

Broadway Theatre

Never was there a more entertaining of bigger vaudeville show than that which opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday. Sparkling, alluring, corking, delightful best just, that's what everybody said coming out of the Broadway.

Opening the show was an act with a kick, Nano and Rizzo, the violinist and the accordeonist, who offered a very fine musical harmony act.

Kelly and Pollock, those eccentric comedians, mingle comedy, song and dance that goes over in great style.

Princess Chin Chee Toy proved a sensation bit. She is China's representative actress and with her personality, succeeded in capitivating the entire audience with her original bits of Chinese and American amusements.

Another act that was an outstanding hit was Stan Stanley & Co., "Nature's Nobleman in the Theatre." Several millions of people have laughed at Stan Stanley and judging by the way the audience roared at this great comedian he still retans the title of the great comedy act on the stage today. Come and laugh away your blues with Stan.

Albert Hortick & Co., closed this well balanced program with "A Spectacular Dance Revue." They represent the best dancing trio seen here this season.

"The Next Corner."

This bare statement might mean anything—directions to a street car conductor—where you said you'd meet the wife—anything in fact, but it doesn't. It's a Paramount picture which opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday—a Sam Wood production, featuring Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney, Dorothy Mackaill, Ricardo Cortez and Louise Dresser.

It's a story of every woman—her happiness and her husband. We name him last because he is the last person Elsie Maury thinks of in the mad whirl of Parisian night life in his production. He's away in the Argentine—she, left behind, is having the time of her young life when—but we know you'd rather see the picture for yourself.

HEADACHE GONE TIRED NO MORE

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Hopes Other Women Will Benefit by Her Experience

Skowhegan, Maine.—"I was sick most of the time and could not get around to do my work without being all tired out so I would have to lie down. One day when I was reading the paper I saw the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertisement and saw what it did for other women, so I thought I would try it. I have taken three bottles, and cannot begin to tell you what it has already done for me. I do all my work now and keep up the whole day long without lying down. I have no more headaches nor tired feelings. I hope every woman who takes the Vegetable Compound will get as much benefit out of it as I have."—Mrs. PERCY W. RICHARDSON, R.F.D. No. 2, Skowhegan, Maine.

You have just read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped Mrs. Richardson. She gave it a trial after she saw what it had done for other women. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been doing good.

ENDING UNFAIRNESS.

... the city of Springfield the 12- ... franchises of the jitneys have expired ... and they will not be renewed. It has ... been decided to end the unjust rivalry ... and competition. It has been rec... ognized that the transportation company serving the community before the day of the jitneys should have the ... opportunity to render that service ... and that transportation should be under one responsible head. Inasmuch as the jitneys cannot be dispensed ... with and a large proportion of the people demand them, it is felt that they should be given a fair chance.

Springfield is going to do this by ... giving the trolley company the whole transportation franchise. That service may not be confined solely to electric cars. The company may run busses, but it has been figured that the company has gone to such a heavy expense to render the service required that it is an injustice to permit others to come in and get the cream of the business. If new demands for transportation come forth they must be met by the company, and the belief is that it is a move based upon public welfare.

What Springfield has done is only what other cities have come to. They have had their experiences without trolleys, with curtailed trolley service, with jitney competition and with efforts to replace the trolleys with jitneys. Invariably they realize the justice of eliminating the unfair competition.

In Springfield as elsewhere the placing of transportation service in the hands of the trolley company means that the company is expected to meet requirements. It gives it a chance to show what can be done in serving the public and demonstrate that it is prepared and ready to provide bus service on lines which are not served provided there is a public demand for it. Under the new system any city is justified in expecting as good if not better service than it has been getting.

MILITARY TRAINING CAMPS.

The question of what to do during the vacation period is one that confronts and puzzles many a young man. There may be plenty of means of diversion but that doesn't satisfy. There is a desire for something different than spending the summer at the seashore, sticking about the home grounds or putting in the time catching up with a lot of delayed reading.

There's a desire to do something, to get out with a crowd of active companies for some real constructive work and a fair amount of pleasure. Under such conditions it will be surprising if there is not a large number who will recognize the opportunity that is presented in the citizens' military training camps, which are run by the government and intended to meet the requirements of those who are seeking instruction and self improvement.

These camps are not maintained solely for those who are inclined to a military career. Much of the movement is the idea of furnishing training for young men along military lines that would be of advantage to them and to the nation in case a crisis should ever arise when it would be required. It is a bit of foresight, a matter of preparedness, with the hope that there will never be use for what is to be the knowledge that is obtained, but with the realization that all such instruction will be advantageous to whoever gets them, since they will mean much in the matter of good citizenship and physical well being. From this state it is to be expected that there will be a representative quota during the coming summer. It means a vacation out of the ordinary, paid for by Uncle Sam, which will strongly appeal to many young men.

DEAN WORCESTER.

... hardly ... one has made a closer ... study of the conditions in the Philippines than did Dean Worcester whose death has just occurred in the islands ... where he had been governor general and ... where he had subsequently located and was in business.

Mr. Worcester was a thorough student of the islands. He understood the natives of the various islands and ... had clear views as to the best method of governing them. His knowledge of Filipinos and the problems of the islands was recognized by the government and the utmost confidence was placed in his administration. Only a political upset was responsible for changes, and through those changes there were contributions to the unrest which is to be found there today. Administration of the islands subsequent to his term encouraged a larger participation by the Filipinos. Opinions of other advisers were followed only to result in the reestablishment of the Worcester principles when General Leonard Wood was sent to the islands as governor general after the harmful results of the relaxation of such methods of island government had been developed.

Dean Worcester had devoted much time to the exploration of the islands and more thought to the responsibilities which were shouldered by this country when the islands were taken over. The islands have received years of constructive government under his guidance which must have a lasting benefit in spite of the attempts which are being made to get a short cut to complete independence. His efficiency in the guidance of the island government was made complete by the use of his devoted service and understanding.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Now then Music week is with us, what contribution are you going to make?

Germany may be short on funds but it takes a long view in regard to the Dawes report.

If you cannot make a thorough clean up, it is a good thing to do just as much as you can.

The man on the corner says: The ease with which the bonus was voted by congress ought to inspire talk about another war.

From the way in which ships are searched for Bergdoll there's more than a suspicion that he would like to sneak back home.

A French airman has gone from Paris to India in 88 1-2 flying hours, covering six days. How this old world is shriveling up!

One speaker thinks that the reporters of court cases should be lawyers. Does he believe these writing stories of crimes should be criminals?

That those German parties against the Dawes report are determined to make as much trouble as possible is an outcropping of that old spirit to which Germany's present condition is largely due.

The president may not be able to stop the wild orgy of expenditures by congress but he is making it plain that he will have no part in it when the need is for economy and the demand is for reduced taxes.

Predicting when the dry amendment will be repealed has been indulged in since before it went into operation. Dr. Butler thinks only five more years will be needed, but five was the limit many fixed when the country went dry.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., May 5.—In the tentative selection of Congressman Burton of Ohio, former senator from that state as the keynote sounder of the republican national convention at Cleveland, and of Senator Borah as the man to present the name of President Coolidge to the convention, the republicans have made a bold stroke that will draw praise from two wings of the republican party.

They are, in the minds of Washington leaders, the two strongest men to be found for those two important assignments.

Both Burton and Borah are born orators, and also trained speakers as well.

They represent the two prominent wings of the republican party not including the insurgent wing. Personally Borah is by far the most magnetic speaker in the senate. He is of fine physique, his voice carries well, his enunciation is perfect, his gestures few but effective. His heavy black hair is worn a trifle longer than custom and fashion dictates; it is brushed smooth and parted in the middle.

But when Borah gets warmed up to his topic, he runs his fingers through his hair, shakes is head vigorously until that black mane is tossed out of its smoothness into a shaggy disorder, that somehow fits his heavy dark face and never looks unkempt.

Borah is not always regular in his vote and his views but is never with the so-called insurgents, sometimes he speaks and votes with the party leaders and sometimes jumps in reservation and votes according to his personal views regardless of leadership.

Borah was too strong a man to be left out of the convention programme, but he is too fearless and impulsive to be trusted to outline the party policy as the keynote speech-maker. The introduction of Coolidges name will suit him to a tee, for he agrees with the policies of the president and wants to see them carried out and continued.

The presentation of Coolidge's name will give him a chance to let loose the flood gates of eloquence and oratory, and will help swing into line many men who are less conservative than Coolidge but who are not of the La Follette type. It is a safe guess that when Borah gets started on that convention speech he will make the rafters ring, should he be the man agreed upon to present the name of Mr. Coolidge.

Senator Burton—as he is usually called, although he retired from the senate and is now in the house—is a close friend of President Coolidge and was invited to enter the cabinet as attorney general a few weeks ago. He declined the honor saying he wanted to remain on the house floor and represent his old Ohio district.

Burton is older than Borah and what he doesn't know about politics isn't worth knowing. But all through his many campaigns the breath of slander hasn't touched him. He is intense and persistent when presenting his views and hammers them into the minds of his audience.

He runs true to party and his keynote speech will represent the views of Mr. Coolidge and the party leaders. He can always be trusted not to run amuck, but as fearless and staunch, Borah can arouse great enthusiasm with his dramatic manner—and Burton can be trusted to set forth to the country, without doing off the target, the policies the republican party intends to make as its campaign issues.

The child labor constitutional amendment got its hardest blow from states like Pennsylvania, which argued for state rights through Representative Graham, Virginia, by Montague, South Carolina, by Dominick, and Weller of New York. Those four men are said to be the strongest opponents of the proposal to make it unconstitutional to employ children under 18 years of age except with age limitations as to where, how, and how many hours per day they may work. The other members of the judiciary committee of the house favored the majority report which sustained the amendment.

The strongest points urged against the measure were that it would federalize the control of industry. No one ventured to say what was the meaning in the cocoanut, and that is true certain states can now undermine the output of certain industries through the employment of children under suitable age for such work.

Felix Rackemann of Boston gave interesting testimony when the matter was before the house committee of existing conditions in New England. As president of a cotton mill corporation he said he knew the facts, and that New England had such a small per cent. of child labor that it would not be appreciably affected by such an amendment but that the south and other sections of the country used child labor to such an extent that the north must suffer unless some steps were taken.

While the supporters of the measure were able to quote many mothers as desiring the adoption of such an amendment, the opposition did not bring out a single witness against it.

The first effort to secure federal regulation of child labor was begun nearly twenty years ago, when in 1906 Senator Beveridge of Indiana, introduced the first child labor bill in the senate.

That bill was to prevent the undue labor of children in mines and factories and at the same time Senator Lodge introduced a bill to prohibit child labor in the manufacture of articles intended for interstate commerce. Mr. Lodge had hoped to overcome any possible unconstitutionality in the law by the injection of the interstate commerce clause, but the supreme court found the bills unconstitutional. Since then several further attempts have been made to put through such a measure, but if adopted by congress, the court still found it subject to the ban of unconstitutionality. Finally the attempt was given up and the way cleared for a constitutional amendment to do what congress cannot alone accomplish. Congressman Rogers of Massachusetts has been one of the most diligent workers in the house for the passage of such an amendment and introduced the measure this session in practically the form under which it finally passed the house.

The child labor bureau states that in Europe many countries have recently adopted child labor laws which limited child labor in mines under 14 years of age. Our laws will reach the age of 18 years, if the proposed measures are ratified by states.

HIS OLD SUIT

"Didja send that suit to be lined and cleaned and mended up?" asked the irritable man who was poking about in his clothes closet because he could think of nothing else to do. "The one I spoke to you about last week? It was a sort of greyish suit or maybe it was a blue striped—"

"Yes, I sent it," the efficient wife told him. "I came right upstairs after you left and got it out of the closet—"

"Hey, what's that?" demanded the irritable man in great excitement. "Whaddaguh mean got it out? I took that suit off the hanger myself before I came downstairs and I laid the suit out on that chair all ready."

"I don't understand you, Hobart," the efficient wife complained in some amazement. "There was no suit in sight except a quite good one which I brushed and hung up again."

"I wish women wouldn't try to think!" stormed the irritable man, diving headon into the closet and throwing things about tremendously. "Here I take my valuable time to sort out clothes only to have them looked over and put back and now I'll never find which suit needs fixing."

"And you didn't send the suit I told you? Will you please tell me, for Pete's sake, what you did send? I'll bet it'll turn out that you gave 'em my new dinner coat and trousers, and they are taking out the nice soft lining while I particularly like, and are putting in some strong, stuff guaranteed to withstand an earthquake and I'll take it a dinner party and shall take off my coat and you'll be ashamed to death, and it's across our light! Was it a pinstripe you sent or that pinkish one or the black one with stripe—"

"I have heard such a fuss over nothing!" declared the efficient wife. "I took a few stitches in the lining of the suit I was going back and then looked over your clothes and found one suit in a really scandalous condition! It was good cloth, but it was all spots and grime and the lining hung in shreds and altogether it was just dreadful! If a suit ever needed attention that one did, so I sent it."

"Where's what's-his-name?" gasped the irritable man, dropping toward her with murder gleam in his eye. "Why, I'll—I'll—I'll make a pincushion of him!"

"Mr. Jones has taken it away," replied the efficient wife calmly. "He promised to have it back by Thursday."

"Thursday!" shrieked the irritable man, dancing a jig of rage. "Thursday! Why, I'll be dead by Thursday! I'll be in my grave by Thursday! I'll—I'll—I'll—"

"Don't be silly, Hobart," the efficient wife advised. "Mr. Jones is very careful and he will do it beautifully. He has a wonderful reputation for fine work. And I'm sure you'll be glad to have it back when it is done."

"Glad!" shrieked the irritable man, dancing a jig of rage. "Glad

OBITUARY.

Mrs. James A. Utley.
(Special to The Bulletin.)

Columbia, May 5.—Carrie A., 67, wife of James A. Utley, died suddenly at her home on the Green, Monday morning at 5.15 o'clock. Mrs. Utley was apparently in good health Sunday, going to church and eating her meals as usual. Upon retiring for the night she complained of a pain in her chest, and a physician was called. She seemed to sleep well, but in the morning she did not answer Mr. Utley when he spoke to her, but turned over and expired immediately.

Mrs. Utley was born Sept. 20, 1856, at Montville, and was living in Hebron in 1878 when she married James A. Utley. She was one of a family of 12 children, four of whom are now living, John Bogue of California, Frank Bogue of Columbia, Mrs. Alice Verrington of Lebanon and Mrs. Edith Cox of Greenfield. She also leaves besides her husband, two children, Mrs. Juna Belle Squier of Mansfield and Mrs. Allen Lyman, of Plainville.

Mrs. Utley was an active worker of the Congregational church and grange here and the news of her death was received with sorrow by a large circle of friends.

FUNERALS.

Funeral services for Rebecca Holmes, wife of Judge Frederick H. Brewer, were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at her home in West Mystic, and were private. Rev. John P. Beauchamp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, read the service.

The body was brought to Norwich for burial in the Brewer family plot in Yantic cemetery, where the committal service was by Rev. Mr. Beauchamp. Relatives from Norwich joined the family and other mourners at the grave. There were choice floral forms.

Mrs. Victoria Zachar

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends present Monday morning at 8.30 o'clock when funeral services for Mrs. Victoria Zachar were held from her home 151 Maple street, Rev. Peter Sroka conducting the service. Requiem mass was celebrated at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. J. J. McCabe of Jewett City. There were many beautiful floral pieces, sent by loving relatives and friends.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Sroka and Rev. Father McCabe. The bearers were Antony Mitrnick, Frank Gory, Joseph Franzak, Frank Simenski, John Wiczerek and Justin Zachar.

Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

WEDDING
Burns-Keenan

William J. Burns, son of Peter D. and Emily Griffin Burns of 107 Boswell avenue and Miss Katherine Ann Keenan, daughter of Officer Bernard Keenan and Mrs. Keenan of St. Fifth street, were united in marriage Monday morning at St. Mary's Memorial church by Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of the church.

The bride was charmingly gowned in blue romain crepe and wore hat to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Keenan, sister of the bride, wore a gown of cocoa romain crepe with hat to match. Both wore corsage bouquets. The best man was Peter Burns, brother of the groom.

The bride received many gifts of silver, linen, cut glass and household articles. Following the wedding a breakfast was served to a number of guests at the Wauregan Hotel. After a wedding tour the couple are to reside in their newly furnished apartment at 107 Boswell avenue.

The groom is a member of the Norwich Fire Department, being stationed at Greeneville, and the bride was employed at the U. S. Finishing company. The couple are popular in this city and their many friends wish them joy in their married life.

J. HAROLD COBB IS STATE VICE PRESIDENT

Officers of the Young Peoples Christian Union of the Universalist church were elected as follows at the 36th annual state convention at Hartford: President, Ronald L. Brown, Hartford; vice president, J. Harold Cobb, Norwich; secretary, Miss Doris Barnard, Hartford; treasurer, Allan Spink, Meriden; trustee, two years, Arthur Litchfield, Bridgeport; one year, Alice Hallworth, New Haven; Paula Cobb, Norwich; the Rev. G. H. Leining, Danbury.

The Meriden delegation extended an invitation to hold the next convention in that city.

No Path to the Movies.

In endeavoring to secure a girl to characterize Molly Wingate and ride in the covered wagon now being used on the streets, the manager of The Covered Wagon, now playing the Palace theatre, was moved to say Monday night that no girl should mistake this for a chance to get into the movies. As the movies are overcrowded at the present and the conditions at Hollywood deplorable on account of many girls being out of work there away from home, it is well to be guided accordingly.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hough and Miss Florence Hough of Collinsville were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin C. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith, who have been passing several months at their winter home in Eustis, Florida, returned to Norwich the latter part of last week, and have been guests at the home of their son, Sidney F. Smith, of Washington street.

WHERE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR HELD BANQUET

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN PARADE AND ANNUAL CONCLAVE HERE

The Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, of the State of Connecticut opened its 93th annual conclave in this city Monday with a dinner for the past commanders of the state organization at the Wauregan House at 2.30 o'clock followed by a street parade at 4 o'clock and a banquet at the state armory in the evening. During the conclave the members of the Grand Commandery are guests of Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., Eminent Sir Harry B. Ford, commander. Tuesday morning the annual business meeting of the Grand Canmandery, S. E. Sir James C. Macpherson, of this city, grand commander, will be held at the Masonic Temple at which time the annual reports will be heard and officers elected for the coming year.

The past commanders were served a dinner at the Wauregan House at 2.30 o'clock for the transaction of the regular business of the organization the programme was an informal one. The attendance, numbering about 35, included R. E. Grand Commander Sir Charles H. Hunt of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, representing the Most Eminent Grand Master of the Grand Encampment of the United States of America, E. Sir H. Stanley Swift, Grand Warder and V. E. Sir H. Wales Lines, Meriden, Conn.,

R. E. SIR JAMES C. MACPHERSON
Grand Commander

grand treasurer of the grand encampment.

The menu was as follows:

Grape Fruit a la Wauregan
Queen Olives Sweet Gherkins
Puree of Southern Tomato au Croutons
Roast Swedesboro Chicken Stuffed Cranberry Sauce
Potatoes en Surprise
Stewed Sunbean Corn en Crantado
French Bread
Seaman's Neapolitan Ice Cream
Cafe Noir

Parade in Afternoon

The Grand Commandery, four commanderies and four bands headed by an escort from the Submarine Base participated in the parade at 4 o'clock. In all there were approximately 600 in line. The three out-of-town commanderies, St. John's Commandery, No. 11, Willimantic, Narragansett Commandery, No. 12, Westerly and Palestine Commandery, No. 6, New London, arrived in Norwich about three o'clock and were met by escorts provided by Columbian Commandery. The machines in which the Westerly Commandery made the trip to Norwich were parked in the open space at the entrance to the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad station, Main street. The New London machines were parked on Church street and the Willimantic machines on Union street.

In forming for the parade Palestine Commandery of New London assembled on Church street, Narragansett Commandery of Westerly on Union street, St. John's Commandery of Willimantic on Willow street and Columbian commandery on Broadway in front of the Masonic Temple. With Past Commander Peter Wilson, acting captain general, as marshal, the parade started promptly at 4 o'clock from in front of the Masonic Temple. The parade formation was as follows:

Past Commander Peter Wilson
Acting Captain General
Escort from Submarine Base
Under command of Lieut. Rosenrens
Grand Commander J. C. Macpherson
Representative of Grand Commander of the United States and His Associate Officer
Associate Officers of the State Commandery
Swabb's Military Band
First Division
Columbian Commandery, No. 4
Wheeler's Band, Willimantic
Second Division of Columbian Commandery
St. John's Conmandery, No. 11, Willimantic.
Westerly Band
Narragansett Commandery, No. 12 Westerly
Kanomoo Band, New London
Palestine Commandery, No. 6, New London

Thousand of people crowded the streets along the line of march which was as follows: Masonic Temple, down Broadway to Main street, left turn into Main street to Burnham square, countermarch, through Main street to Washington square and up Washington street to Chelsea parade where a review was held: Chelsea parade down Broadway to Broad street, through Broad street to McKinley avenue, and down McKinley avenue to the armory, where the parade disbanded.

Arriving at Chelsea parade the two divisions formed in open rank near the center of the parade and facing each other. The commanderies were then reviewed by the grand commander, R. E. Sir James C. Macpherson and the Grand Commandery with the four bands combined, furnishing the music for the review. After the review which was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, the parade again formed and marched to the armory.

Made Impressive Appearance.

The knights made a very impressive appearance. All were in full uniform with plumes and swords. The task of handling the crowds and keeping the line of march open during the parade hour fell to Chief of Police George Linton and Captain D. J. Twomey. Details of police were posted throughout the central part of the city and along the line of march to direct automobile traffic. No parking was allowed on Main street from Burnham square to Washington square during the parade hours. The police service was excellent and the emergency traffic rules were carried out with the usual efficiency of the local force. Every available police officer was on duty from 3 o'clock until after the parade. Automobile drivers caused the police little or no trouble as they were polite and cheerfully obeyed instructions from officers.

Main street and the line of march and side streets. Hundreds of machines were parked on Washington street, Broadway and around Chelsea parade during the procession. Special traffic officers were stationed about Chelsea parade to prevent traffic congestion and to keep the streets open for the marchers. All along the line of march stores, business houses and public buildings were gaily decorated with the State and Stripes, buntings and the Knights Templar emblem. Private residences in many cases were also decorated for the occasion.

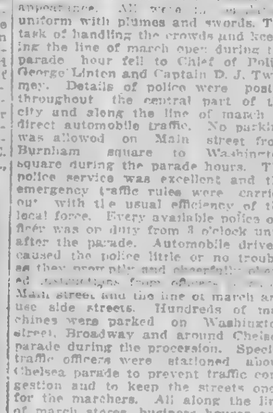
Banquet at the Armory.

About 6.30 o'clock the annual banquet was served at the armory which was beautifully decorated. The large drill shed was most attractive in its decorations of black and white, the Templar colors. The walls and ceiling were completely covered in the general color scheme and the national colors. Suspended from the center of the ceiling was a large electrical display which received universal favorable comment. The decorations were in charge of George E. Zimmerman, chairman of the committee, who was assisted by Otto F. Ernst and others. The banquet was complimentary to Grand Commander Right Eminent Sir James C. Macpherson and his associate officers and members of the Grand Commandery, K. T., of the state of Connecticut. A New Haven company of caterers provided the menu which was as follows:

Grape Fruit Supreme
Celery Olives Salted Nuts
Lobster Patties Clam Fritters
Broiled Spring Chicken
Browned Potatoes String Beans
Biscuit Tortoni Assorted Cake
Coffee

With Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury as chairman, 75 members of Sachem Chapter, No. 57, Order of the Eastern Star acted as waitresses.

E. Sir Harry B. Ford, commander of Columbian Commandery, was toastmaster for the after dinner program which was as follows:



E. SIR HARRY B. FORD
Commander, Columbian Commandery
Toastmaster

Greetings, Sir Arthur M. Brown, past grand master of the state of Connecticut; The Grand Commandery of Connecticut, Right Eminent Sir James C. Macpherson, grand commander; The Grand Encampment of the United States, Right Eminent Grand Commander Sir Charles R. Hunt, of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhods Island; remarks, Sir Alexander H. Abbott, prelate of Columbia Commandery.

An excellent entertainment programme was provided by White's Revue Company of 1924. The personnel of the company included:

Janet Hersey, The Sunshine Girl; Vincent Vincent, soprano; Ruth Norris, contralto; Grace Deeran, violinist; Betty Wilson, pianist; Jack Sydney, baritone.

Their programme which delighted the large assembly of knights follows:

Make a Little One-Step (From Lolli-pops) ... Company
Carmencita (Violin) ... Miss Deeran
March of The Soldiers (From Chauve Souris) ... Company
Ben O'Connor ... Sydney
Piano and Xylophone ... Miss Wilson
Mandolin ... Miss Hersey
Spanish song ... Miss Vincent
Waltz of Love Age (From Music Box Revue) ... Company
O, Promise Me ... Miss Norris
Dollar Street Song (From Naughty Marietta) ... Trio
Gypsy Airs ... Miss Deeran
Barefoot Days ... Company
Misses Hersey and Vincent
Dialect Stories ... Sydney
Pie Crust Stepping Stones ... Company
Deep Sea Vamp ... Miss Deeran
Impersonations ... Miss Hersey
Close (From "Lady in Ermine") and "Up She Goes") ... Company

During the evening the Wheeler band of Willimantic furnished an excellent concert program. The entertainment program came to a close about 10.30 o'clock when the commanderies formed in line and with Wheeler's band leading, paraded from the armory to the Wauregan hotel where the Grand Commandery officers and members were registered for the night. Columbian Commandery paraded to the Masonic Temple where they disbanded. The visiting commanderies left for home by automobile about 11 o'clock.

Grand Commandery Officers

Following is the list of the officers of the Grand Commandery of the State of Connecticut:

R. E. Sir James C. Macpherson, grand conmander, Norwich; V. E. Sir F. Ward DeKlyn, deputy grand commander, Danbury; E. Sir Angus H. Mackenzie, grand generalissimo, Bridgeport; E. Sir Samuel H. Williams, grand captain general, New Haven; E. Sir James P. Mustard, grand senior warden, Willimantic; E. Sir Thomas Wood grand junior warden, New London; R. E. Sir Josiah Lang, grand treasurer, Norwich; R. E. Sir Eli C. Birdsey, grand recorder, Meriden; E. Sir Clayton W. Rowley, grand prelate, Hartford; E. Sir Hadlai Hull, grand standard bearer, New London; E. Sir John L. Scott, grand sword bearer, Waterbury; E. Sir Frank E. Sands, grand warder, Meriden; E. Sir Franklin G. Turner, grand captain of the guard, Middletown; R. E. Sir Thomas W. Morgan, grand inspector, Hartford.

All in all the day was a most successful one and the officers and members of the Grand Commandery and visiting commanderies were more than delighted with the royal welcome given them and the splendid banquet programme provided for their entertainment.

The Columbian Commandery committees in charge of the arrangements for the day's programme were as follows:

Arrangements—Harry S. Ford, R. C., Albert S. Comstock, P. G. Cs; Alexander Mackenzie, William H. Oat, Charles A. Gager, Jr., Clinton E. Lane, Peter Sellas, John A. Ferguson, E. LaRue Bliven, Louis A. Wheeler, William G. Park, Howard L. Stanton.

Columbian Commandery Officers

The officers of Columbian Commandery are as follows:

Eminent Sir Harry Ford, Commander.

Sir George E. Zimmerman, Generalissimo.

Eminent Sir Herbert R. Kind, Captain General.

Sir Paul H. Zahn, Senior Warden.

Sir Herbert E. Laurence, Junior Warden.

Sir Alexander H. Abbott, Prelate.

R. E. Sir Albert S. Comstock, Treasurer.

Sir Fred W. Lester, Recorder.

Sir Aubrey W. Jarvis, Standard Bearer.

Sir Robert Cochrane, Sword Bearer.

Sir Herbert Stetson, Warder.

Sir John A. Ferguson, 3rd Guard.

Sir Kirk Ricketts, 2nd Guard.

Sir Avery Gallup, 1st Guard.

Sir Hans Carlson, Assistant Guard.

Sir James C. Fitzpatrick, Sentinel.

Alfred G. Bliven, chairman of the parking and transportation committee, expressed himself as more than pleased with the way in which the traffic situation was handled by the police. He also expressed his appreciation to the following automobile owners for their kindness in loaning the use of their machines to convey the Knights who were unable to march: Louis M. Carpenter, Bruce F. Rogers, A. C. Swan Co., Charles A. Saxton, E. La Rue Bliven Wilbur S. Williams, Louis T. Maples, Julian L. Williams, Star Garage, Robert McBurney, William R. Frisbie and Charles D. Noyes.

Because of illness Captain General Herbert R. Kind of Columbian Commandery was unable to take part in the parade. He appointed Past Commander Peter Wilson as acting captain general and marshal of the parade plans and conducted a great part of his duties by telephone from his home.

One of the prominent guests was Very Eminent Sir H. Wales Lines, grand treasurer of the Grand Encampment of the United States. Mr. Lines whose home is in Meriden and who is blind entered into the spirit of the day in his usual cheerful manner. He had with him associate officers who told him of the features of the big parade which he was unable to see. He has taken a prominent and active part in Masonry for many years and is among the best known Masons in the country.

This (Tuesday) morning at 9 o'clock the annual business meeting of the Grand Commandery will take place at the Masonic Temple. Appointment of committees will be followed by a reception for the distinguished guests. Grand Commander Macpherson will deliver his annual address after which the various reports of the officers will be heard and conclave committees will make their reports. The election of officers will then take place after which the newly elected grand commander will make his appointments for the year. The installation of officers will conclude the conclave and dinner will be served at the Wauregan House.

CITY DECORATED TO WELCOME KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

No finer city from a festive standpoint could have been provided than that which greeted the Knights Templar Monday with bright sunshine and a balmy spring air that was invigorating to the marchers in the parade. Business houses in the principal streets were generously decorated with the national colors and the Templar emblems in welcome to this annual conclave and many residences along the line of march on Washington street and Broadway displayed decorations.

No finer spot than Chelsea parade could have been found in New England for the review. The wide expanse of greensward, rimmed around with stately trees, providing a rarely beautiful setting for the marching knights in their sashes uniforms, the national colors and the Templar emblems.

TRAFFIC DURING PARADE WAS EXCELLENTLY HANDLED

Police regulations that were put into effect for the parade hours handled the traffic without a flaw and the force under Chief George Linton and Capt. D. J. Twomey covered themselves with honor for the smooth way in which the regulations were enforced. The officers themselves had a good word to speak for the fine cooperation which they were given by motorists in clearing the orders that were given.

As the parade was to move over Main street in Burnham square and countermarch, the order had been issued that no parking on Main street from Burnham square to Washington square was to be allowed after 2 o'clock. At that time a large detail of officers were on hand at headquarters to scatter along Main street and see cars looking that were found parked there. This work was thoroughly accomplished and at 4.55, three minutes before the parade time, all motor vehicles were directed off into side streets so that Main street was one clear unbroken expanse by the time the parade was to start.

The same smooth co-operation was in effect on Washington street and on Broadway and around the Chelsea parade at the time of the review so that nothing occurred to interfere with the paraders and there were no accidents to mar the day.

PROPOSE SIGHT SEEING TRIP ABOUT WASHINGTON

Lieut. Tracy B. Burdick of New London, formerly of this city, has started a movement for a sight seeing trip about the city of Washington for the men of the 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., on the return journey from the annual encampment at Camp Eustis, Va., this summer. Lieut. Burdick conceived the plan in the hope that it would stimulate recruiting in the various units of the regiment. Officers and men of the regiment who have made previous encampments at Fort Eustis undoubtedly will appreciate the plan of Lieutenant Burdick. The plan consists of arranging a stop-over in Washington of from six to eight hours for the purpose of enabling its members to visit many points of interest there, and, if it can be arranged, to have a picnic or luncheon at some park of suitable resort, in or near Washington.

The plan meets with the full approval of the commanding officer of the regiment, Col. Mogens J. Mogensen of New Haven and the senior instructor of the regiment Maj. Kenneth P. Lord, U. S. A., D. O. L. of New London. The plan is now being taken up with Headquarters, First Corps area, Militia bureau, by Major Lord for approval.

Should the plan go through, the organization must build up its battery funds to an amount large enough to cover the expenses incidental to the stay over in Washington. Men interested in making the summer encampment with the local units of the 192nd Field artillery can join the organization by applying for enlistment to either Capt. H. F. Burdick, 1st Combat Train, or Capt. W. E. Denison of Battery E at the armory. The Combat Train covers a great many branches of work including instrument details, surveying and mapping, radio details, radio signalling and broadcasting, operation of and setting up field communications, scouts and agents, mapping and despatch riders, signal semaphore, truck details, and chauffeur details.

They meet once a week every Thursday night and are paid for all drills the same amount as the regular army. The men whose enlistments are expiring have all signified their intention of reenlisting to see the big trip at Washington, so there is at present room for just eight more men.

Battery E meets for drill every Monday night. The same conditions exist there as to room for more enlistments as does in the Combat Train, so men who want to make the trip should step up now. The work is somewhat different, comprising instrument details, gun crews, telephone details, truck drivers and tractor men.

Battery E has vacancies in some of the gun crews which provides very interesting work and they are taking only men of calibre.

SPRING ACTIVITIES HAVE STARTED AT Y. M. C. A.

The spring activities have been started at the "Y" and judging from present accounts, many of the Y's men and thier friends will find the "Y" a lively place this spring and summer. One of the features in the gym has been installation of a handball court. Handball is a very popular game among business and professional men and courts are found in most associations and athletic clubs in the country. The playlot in the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building is also being pressed into service and various games and tournaments are being scheduled. A quoit tournament is now in progress. Most of the gymnasium classes are still running in the gym and swimming classes and activities are being added to the schedule.

TANGLED TAX METHODS CONFUSE BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, May 5.—Twenty-five citizens, appointed by Mayor F. William Behrens to assist city officials in settling the tax question met this afternoon and after a lengthy discussion adjourned without forming even a skeleton plan for relieving the tangled situation.

Adjournment came after most of the members acknowledged that they did not know much about taxation and that they would have to be enlightened before taking action. William J. Linder, tax expert of New Britain, who studied the conditions here will outline the subject at a meeting next Monday.

CHAPMAN TECH DEFEATS STONINGTON HIGH IN TRACK MEET AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 5. — Stonington High was easily outclassed by Chapman Tech in a dual track meet held at Morgan park this afternoon. Out of the ten events run off during the course of the afternoon, Chapman Tech took eight first places, while Stonington High took only two. The final score of the meet was 58 to 28 in the favor of the Red and Black. Chapman Tech had the upper hand in every event but the pole vault and running broad jump. Both these events went to Stonington as predicted. If Stonington expects to come out anywhere near the first three in the Eastern Connecticut track meet which is to be held soon, the track athletes will have to show more than they did in this afternoon's performance.

The outstanding performer of the afternoon was Hollowell, Tech junior, whose efforts were good. In the events he entered in, the 100 yard dash and the 220-yard run, he not only started New York off to a three run lead. Shawkey held Philadelphia to two hits in six innings, but eased up in the closing stages. Score:

BULKELEY SECONDS BEAT WHEELER HIGH, 12 TO 4

(Special to The Bulletin.)

North Stonington, May [illegible] the stealing to home [illegible] and "Mother" Murphy, [illegible] second team defeated the Wheeler High school nine on the town field here this afternoon. Although it was the first contest for either [illegible] seconds or Wheeler High, [illegible] played fairly good baseball. The score was 12 to 4 in the Bulkeley seconds' favor.

The high wind continually played [illegible] trick upon the fielders and [illegible] a ball that was [illegible] so far to one side that [illegible] course of the sphere completed [illegible] the early innings the Wheeler [illegible] players showed better judgment in catching the ball.

Coach Robert T. Aldrich used three pitchers for the Bulkeley second team Montali, Locke and Phillian. Each of these twirlers worked three innings and had little or no trouble in disposing of the home players. Wheeler High used up two twirlers and these were found with little difficulty.

KENTUCKY DERBY DRAWS INTEREST OF LOVERS OF FAST HORSES

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—Kentucky derby candidates and famous runners of previous campaigns are to face the barrier together at Churchill Downs Saturday in the Clark handicap at a mile and a furlong, for three year olds and upwards. The Clark, carrying $10,000 in added money, will be the feature race on the opening day of the spring meeting and the fact that [illegible] candidates for the derby, to be run May [illegible] have been nominated, has [illegible] considerable interest.

Sarazen, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's derby hope, has been given 112 pounds, according to the weights announced today. The Vanderbilt colt is considered by Judge Charles F Price and "Tony" Wallace, official handicappers, the best of the three year olds for the Clark. Colonel E. R Bradley's Beau Butler, also a derby candidate, considered next to the Vanderbilt cripples. The colt goes in the [illegible] with 109 pounds aboard.

In the four year old and up Grey Lag Baltimore stable crack, has been given top weight of 122 pounds. His stable mate, Zev, winner of the Kentucky derby last year, has been assigned 120 pounds, while In Memoriam the Weidemann colt, who lost by a scant nose to Zev in the special race last year, drew two pounds less than his conqueror. Chacolet, Hal Price Headley's imported mare, winner of the $25,000 Dixie stake at Pimlico last Saturday, will carry [illegible] pounds.

ACADEMY PLAYS AT WESTERLY THIS AFTERNOON

The Academy baseball team engages in the second league game of the season this afternoon at Westerly when the Red and White tackles the fast Westerly High aggregation. Westerly is reported as having a strong team this season with Smith, a port sider, doing the bulk of the hurling. Joe Sherman, who was quite some hurler in the old days of the Connecticut league, is managing the Westerly squad and knows baseball. Westerly knows all the league ball. They are [illegible] hitters and [illegible] the Academy team that the Academy has met so far this season.

The Academy team put in a stiff afternoon of batting practice against the portside flingers and the boys showed up fairly well. They also put some time in the sliding pit and on the paths. Coach Brigham will work Segal in the box with Hollander behind the bat. The remainder of the team will be the same as trimmed Windham on Saturday.

CHAPMAN TECH PLAYS SAYBROOK TEAM TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May [illegible] Chapman Tech baseball team will begin its fourth week in baseball Tuesday afternoon by opposing Old Saybrook High at Morgan park in New London at 3 o'clock. Out of the six games played to date by Chapman Tech but two have been won and the other four found the Red and Black on the short end. It is one of the poorest records the local high school institution has made in its early season games for the past four years. What chance the Tech had for the championship of the Interscholastic league of Eastern Connecticut went up in smoke it seems in the game with Westerly High on Saturday. Even though Westerly will play the Tech outfit at New London the next game, the outcome of the game is not so very much in doubt, because it looks as though Westerly is nine runs better than the Red and Black.

ITALIAN OLYMPIC TENNIS TEAM FAILS TO WIN

Rome, May 5.—The Italian Olympic tennis team did not win a single match in the third day's play of the international match against Germany today. Davalos, the neapolitan champion, displayed the best tennis of the Italian players in his encounter with Rahn, but lost, two sets to three.

Colombo, the former champion of Italy, after winning the first set, 7 to 5, against Kleinschroth, lost badly. Playing against the German champion, Rahe, the Italian champion, Sabaddini, won only four games in the first two sets. He appeared from then on to have settled down to his usual steady game, but Rahe's play was superior, and he lost the third set, 12 to 10.

In the mixed doubles the German couple, oelling and Frau Nepach, won easily in straight sets from Countess Giannuzzi and Sabaddini.

FAMOUS HORSE WILL NOT BE DESTROYED

Lexington, Ky., May 5—Battle Creek, A. R. Coe's Kentucky Derby candidate, previously eliminated as a contender for the $50,000 race due to a severed tendon, may be saved for breeding purposes. The injury, first regarded as incurable, gave rise to reports that the colt had been destroyed. Instead, an announcement today stated efforts would be continued to make him serviceable and added that when they proved fruitless plans would be considered for his destruction.

The colt, a son of Sweepon-Munition, recently was purchased from Phil Chinn, for $40,000.

Plainfield Swamps Stonington.

Plainfield High School baseball team on Saturday easily defeated the Stonington High School team by the score of 13 to 1. The hitting of Allard and Tyler featured, Allard getting four hits for as many trips to the plate while Tyler got three hits, one a double.

Plainfield showed a great improvement over former games and have now hit their stride, so it behooves teams booked to play them to play ball all the time in order to win. Belknap was at his best and Stonington was very lucky to score at all. Belknap allowed only five hits, well scattered, while Plainfield collected thirteen.

Pupilo started on the mound for Stonington, but after the third inning he retired in favor of Emmett, who showed a little better.

Mohigan Store Team Wins.

At the N. F. A. field the Mohigan Store team won its first baseball game of the season by defeating the Dare Devils of Norwich by the score of 4 to 2 Monday evening. It was a seven inning game full of excitement and real baseball. The battery for the Mohican Store was Carbary catch and Budnick pitch. The remaining stars of the team are: Murphy 1b, Illinger 2b, Whitey 3b, Wolfe ss, Bowers cf, Dennis rf, Morris lf.

The Mohicans are going to play the fast New London Mohican team, and are also out to play other amateur teams.

Thomas' Homer Wins For Brassecos

Waterbury, May 5.—First Baseman Thomas broke a pitching duel between Braxton of Springfield and Bishop of Waterbury when he cracked the ball far over the head of Right Fielder Obere, with the bases loaded in the last of the ninth here today, the Brassecos winning 1 to 0.

There was a dispute as to whether the four runs counted, as Thomas made the circuit of the bases, but the official scorer ruled in favor of the 1 to 0 score. The score:

Three base hit, Duffy.

Hartford Wins Lucky Game.

New Haven, May 5. — Leete outpitched Sloan but Hartford got all the breaks here this afternoon, the champions winning from New Haven by a 3 to 2 score. A rally in the ninth should have won the game for the Profs but Sloan speared Goff's line drive with one hand and doubled Gallagher off first base. Score:

Hartford ... 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 1 0—3

New Haven ... 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0—2

Two base hit, Wilson; three base hits, Cosgrove, Martin.

Carpentier Sails Wednesday.

Paris, May 5.—Georges Carpentier, accompanied by his manager, Francois Descamps, and Paul Fritsch, the European lightweight champion, will sail for the United States from Cherbourg on the steamer Majestic next Wednesday. Charles Ledoux, the European featherweight champion, was to have sailed with the party but was detained by business matters. He will leave for New York on board the steamer France next Saturday.

Crandall Blanks Coal Heavers.

Bridgeport, May 5.—Bridgeport hit hard behind Crandall's superior pitching and defeated Worcester, 8 to 0, here this afternoon. The Coal Heavers performed raggedly afield, making seven errors. Smith and Lucas garnered three hits each while Emmerich played well in the outfield. Score:

Worcester ... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

Bridgeport ... 0 0 0 4 0 0 4 0 x—8

Two base hit, Cousineau.

Wesleyan Net Stars Win.

Middletown, Conn., May 5. — The Wesleyan tennis team defeated Trinity six matches to nothing here today. This is the first time since October, 1920, that Wesleyan and Trinity have met in any branch of athletics. At that time there was a dispute over a football game between the two colleges.

Tigers Defeat Yankees.

The Tigers defeated the Yankees Sunday afternoon by a score of 9 to 4. The battery for the Tigers was Scoop, "Bullet Bush" and Cuno; for the Yankees, Compt and McLaren. The Tigers would like to arrange games with any baseball nine averaging 15 years of age. Address through this paper or call 866-15.

Postponed Game Record.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5.—A record for postponed games in the International League was believed to have been established today when the Buffalo club was kept idle for its seventh straight day, due to wet grounds. Last Tuesday the Bisons were halted at Newark by the rain and six straight games here have been postponed.

The Norwich Town Sluggers challenge any team under 12 years of age for a game on the Norwich Town green Saturday or Sunday afternoon at 2.30, daylight saving time. Answer through The Bulletin.

Broadway vs. Hobart Avenue.

The Broadway Sixth grade will clash with the Hobart Avenue Sixth grade team for the second game of the series at the Mohegan Park grounds on Thursday afternoon.

Kelleher Released to Kansas City.

Pittsburgh, May 5.—The Pittsburgh National league club announced today the outright release of Infielder Jack Kelleher to the Kansas City club of the American association. The Pirates obtained Kelleher last week from the Boston Braves by the waiver route.

Elizabeth St. Seventh Graders Win.

The baseball team representing the seventh grade of the Elizabeth street school defeated the seventh grade of Broadway school, 5 to 2, at the Lucas lot on Monday afternoon. The lineup for the winners was as follows: Mullins p, Rankin, Porthler c, Harris 1b, Petrowski 2b, Murphy 3b, Way ss, Porthler lf, Rochell cf, Smelts rf. The seventh graders would like to hear from other teams in the city for games call the Elizabeth street boys.

Dartmouth Smothers Columbia.

Hanover, N. H., May 5.—Dartmouth smother Columbia, 24 to 4, in a slow and losely played game here today. The Green batsmen hammered out 22 base hits. Seven errors were [illegible] up against Columbia, and three against Dartmouth. The score by innings:

Columbia .. 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 1— 4 7 7

Dartmouth 4 4 0 6 3 5 1 1 x—24 22 3

Price, Taft and Blattels; Lyon and Stevens.

Umpire Banishes Bancroft.

New York, May 5.—Manager Dave Bancroft and Outfielders Stengel and Powell, of the Boston Braves, were banished from the game with Brooklyn at Ebbets' field today after protesting the decisions of Umpire Fowell on strikes. The game was delayed five minutes by the argument, which occurred in the second inning.

Pitt Wins at Tennis.

Pittsburgh, May 5.—The University of Pittsburgh tennis team defeated West Virginia university five matches to one in a dual intercollegiate contest here today.

SPORTING NOTES

Pitcher John Wilson has been farmed out to the Bay City Michigan-Ontario team by the St. Louis Browns.

Shortstop Ray French has been obtained by the White Sox from Brooklyn. He was claimed when waivers were asked.

Pitcher Earl Whitehill, who appears to be the ace of the Detroit pitching staff, hit four Cleveland batters in the game of April 18.

In the first five games that Pittsburg participated in each was decided in the ninth inning.

A memorial tablet is to be erected for Pat Moran, late manager of the Cincinnati Reds at Redland Field. Baseball players and scribes are financing the tablet.

Kenneth Hogan, recruit outfielder, has been farmed out by the Cleveland Club to the Hamilton Club of the Michigan-Ontario League.

Babe Ruth was presented with [illegible] week-old chicks after the opening game in Boston. The Rambino is somewhat of a farm at Sudbery, Mass., and is a chicken fancier.

Mike Sagalowski, a young giant from the sand lots of Indianapolis, is the latest addition to the White Sox pitching staff. He is a right-hander, six feet tall, and weighs 190 pounds.

Mike Gazella, former Lafayette College star, has been sent to Minneapolis by the New York Yankees under an optional agreement. Gazella, who gained fame on the gridiron, came directly to the Yankees from college, the latter part of the season.

Bill Jackson, of the Browns, has started hitting earlier this season than ever before. Jake is the first player in either major league to hit for the cycle, getting a single, double, triple and home run in one game.

Four persons were crushed and trampled when a portion of the bleacher gate at Fenway Park, Boston, gave way under pressure of the crowd waiting to gain admittance to the Philadelphia-Red Sox game of April 19.

The Syracuse Club has released Catcher Jack Schmidt to the Harrisburg Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Eighth inning. Score 5-5. Men on first and third. Home team at bat. One out. Reliable hitter is batting.

How should team in the field guard against a double steal?

The team in the field should play back for a double steal and the signal should be for a short throw from the catcher towards second base with either the second baseman or shortstop covering the bag. A man who takes this throw should catch the ball between five and ten feet in front of second base. Then, if the runner attempts to score from third the ball should be thrown low to the catcher so he will not have to make any unnecessary movements to get it and tag this runner.

In case the runner on third doesn't attempt to score the man taking the short throw still has a chance to catch the runner coming from first to second by tossing the ball to his teammate covering the bag.

Co-operation

—the REASON WHY BEECHAM'S PILLS aid Human Beings to Get Well and Keep Well

Beecham's Pills work with the working parts of the digestive system. Beecham's Pills are purely vegetable—composed of natural vegetable ingredients that co-operate with Nature in helping the stomach, liver and bowels to function healthily. This is the simple reason why Beecham's Pills are so universally successful in cases of bad digestion, sluggish liver and constipated bowels. They not only gently stimulate these organs to activity but, even more important, they train them to act normally as Nature intended. Beecham's Pills are not habit-forming, they do not gripe, are pleasant, always effective, and harmless.

NEW LONDON MEN CAUGHT AT CLINTON MIXED UP IN NEW HAVEN LIQUOR DEAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 5.—Mrs. Richard Bump, 19 Stoney Hill, and daughter, Rosie, 14, who were reported to the police late Sunday afternoon as missing from their home, were located today at the home of a relative in Hamburg and since then have returned to their New London residence. After reporting the absence of his wife and daughter to the police Bump started out to endeavor to locate them and inquiry early this forenoon at the home of the relative of the woman in Hamburg revealed that the woman and girl were there. Mrs. Bump and the girl left home Saturday afternoon and went to the home of Walter Palmer, 104 Lincoln avenue, where they remained until 10 o'clock. Instead of going to their home the mother and daughter went to Hamburg. No reason was given by Bump as to the mysterious staying away of the woman and girl from their home.

The criminal session of the superior court, which was scheduled to convene in New London Tuesday morning, will not take place for it became known this forenoon that acting Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows will be unable to conduct the prosecution of the thirty cases. Because of Mr. Burrows' illness court will not open until a week from tomorrow.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Noyes, widow of Irving H. Noyes, a former well known resident, died this morning at her residence, 47 Truman street, death coming from a shock Mrs. Noyes suffered recently. Mrs. Noyes is survived by one son, Leo R. Noyes, ironworker clerk at the New London post office and by a granddaughter, Miss Gertrude Noyes, a student at Connecticut College for Women.

Mrs. Noyes apparently was in sound health until last Tuesday when she went to go to the home of her [illegible] Catherine C. Connor, [illegible] occurred two days before. As Mrs. Noyes was going to the street she was stricken and since that time her condition gradually declined until the end today.

Albert Saunders, 52, died Saturday at his home, 92 West street after an illness of about two months. He is survived by his wife and one daughter and was a member of the [illegible] Episcopal church. Mr. Saunders was a veteran employe of the New England Steamship company having been with that company 33 years and for many years had been employed on the pier of the New London line.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller have removed from Pearl street to Hartford.

William Prescott, Jr., residing at Bean Miner lane, Waterford, was arrested Saturday night by State Policeman Bernard W. Kenerson, charged with non-support of his wife and four children. He will be given a [illegible] Waterford town court Thursday morning. Prescott was released upon furnishing a surety on its bond of $250 in Richard Smith of Waterford.

Miss Martha Moon of Harrison's Landing, Waterford; Mrs. Thomas McNamee and infant son of Groton; Mrs. George Smith of Harrison street, Mrs. C. Barrett Foley and infant daughter of Colver street, Mrs. John O'Connell and infant daughter of Terrace avenue, Harold Eldridge of Hempstead street, Miss Ella Houlihan of Garfield avenue and Mrs. Dominick Capizzano of Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

James Staley of 31 Hempstead street, will be in the police court Tuesday to answer to Ada, his wife, for punching her. Staley was complained against Monday and the police sought and looked him. Mrs. Staley was to have appeared in court today, but she didn't keep her appointment as a subpoena that will bring her there tomorrow was issued. If she had reason to complain to the police she was in duty bound to appear in court and tell what happened, that the husband may be disciplined, but she shirked this duty and the court was without a witness to tell just what happened. The probability is that she will not disclose to the court tomorrow all that she might tell of the cruel conduct of her husband.

Tom Little, a painter, now that he has grown big and strong, owes considerate of leniency shown to him in the past when he has been in the court for intoxication. But he was disposed to show any appreciation of kindness and appeared Saturday to answer a complaint alleging intoxication. Tom said he was drunk and then set up the usual plea for leniency from the court. Judge Prince looked over Tom's record and decided it was not such as entitled him to any consideration, so fined him $10. He went to jail to work out his fine and costs. Somebody in court wanted to know whether it was not an outrage upon persons who hire painters to pay such fellows as Little a dollar an hour for work. Nobody attempted to answer the question.

Patrick Doherty, a sailor on one of Uncle Sam's ships, was found drunk Saturday and was arrested. He was in court today when he declared that his term of enlistment would expire on the 6th of May. That date will be here tomorrow so Judge Prince decided that it was worth giving Doherty a chance for he believed the sailor would make good. Judgment was suspended for 24 hours.

Seven youths were in the Groton town court this morning, charged with vandalism, being apprehended by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas of the Groton barracks. The cases were not disposed of today, because Judge Cornelius G. Costello ordered them continued a month for the purpose of determining the conduct of the accused. The boys purchased revolvers and blank cartridges recently and last night went to Fort Griswold where they discharged the weapons and there they are also accused of committing acts whereby damage was done to entrances of magazines, where war relics are stored.

Harold Bliven of Mystic, arrested April 29th by State Policeman Fred Lerou upon complaint of C. J. Rockholtz of Hartford, who charged Bliven with breach of the peace and evasion of responsibility, was adjudged not guilty on both counts by Judge Costello. Bliven's arrest occurred following the automobile he was driving collising with Rockholtz's car at Nelsonville field where a baseball game was in progress. Rockholtz alleged that Bliven used abusive language when the former remonstrated with the latter for striking the Rockholtz car and then drove away without offering to settle for the slight damage resultant from the collision.

Clifford W. Thurber, 39 Thames St., this city, was arrested this morning charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Samuel Whipple, 20, of Thames street, Groton, who died Saturday at Lawrence hospital from a broken back sustained last Wednesday night when Whipple was run down on the Groton approach of the Thames river highway bridge by a machine operated by Thurber. In the Groton court this morning the case was continued to Friday by which time it is believed, Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, will have concluded his investigation to determine whether Thurber was criminally responsible for Whipple's death.

Trioni is well known in New London, being reputed to be one of the largest dealers in liquor in this vicinity. A boat seized nearly a year ago while carrying liquor and of which Trioni was a part owner, is now tied up among other seized liquor craft at the customs house pier here. The Stravzra brothers are also well known and it is claimed are prominent in the trafficking in liquor whereby it is brought into New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Little of New Orleans, La., have arrived at their summer home on Woodward Hill.

HAS BEEN RELEASED FROM STATE HOSPITAL

Without the necessity of a habeas corpus hearing to secure the release of Frederick Ettinger of New Haven from the Norwich state hospital, the man has been given his freedom and is no longer a patient at the hospital. An application that had been brought for a writ of habeas corpus had been put down for a hearing today (Tuesday) before Judge Leonard J. Nickerson in the superior court at New Haven.

Some time ago Ettinger's wife visited him here at the state hospital and was given permission to take him out for a walk. She did not return him to the institution, which constituted an infraction of the law, and the hospital authorities accordingly sent after him and brought him back to the hospital. Since then he has been released as his condition had so much improved that his condition warranted the hospital authorities in giving him his freedom.

WESTERLY

Leonard Rosa of Mystic, the driver of the Studebaker automobile which collided with a Packard touring car of a Springfield man, Saturday evening on Lord's Hill, Stonington appeared in Stonington town court Monday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox. Bogue was presented by Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna on two counts, reckless driving and operating an automobile with defective brakes, following an estigation by state policeman, No. 12, Henry J. Albright. The court session was delayed by Judge Hinckley, who appeared for Bogue, being detained in Groton. Reading of the complaint was waived and a demurrer overruled. Judge Wilcox nolled the reckless driving charge but found the defendant guilty on the second count and fined him $5 and costs of $13.88 amounting to $18.88, which was paid.

A dance is to be gvien Thursday evening, in the ball room of the Rhode Island hotel by the H. V. D. sorority.

THREE LOCAL MEN ARRESTED FOR THE NEW HAVEN POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 5.—Andrew Trioni of Belden street, and Joseph and Albert [illegible] West street [illegible] and William [illegible] Haven [illegible] police of the Center brook barracks at Clinton [illegible] evening upon the request [illegible] New Haven police, who wanted [illegible] of the gang with pulling [illegible] on Detective Sergeant Healey [illegible] this afternoon. The three men were taken to New Haven and locked up pending a hearing in the city court tomorrow morning.

From the facts obtainable here Trioni and the Stravzra brothers, were mixed up in a liquor deal at New Haven last week and it is alleged that the New Londoners robbed a New Haven man of several thousands of dollars. They came to New London, but remained in hiding until this afternoon, when they returned to New Haven, making the trip in an automobile bearing Connecticut registration N-238, a Hupmobile touring car, said to belong to Trioni. The party arrived in New Haven late this afternoon and when espied by Detective Williams, who was driving an automobile the officer attempted to halt them. The driver of the automobile refused to stop and Healy was covered with two guns. The Hupmobile speeded away but Healy followed them, only to be compelled to stop when the car developed a flat tire. Healy immediately communicated with police headquarters and a general alarm for the fugitives was sent out. New London and the Centerbrook barracks being requested to be on the lookout for the trio wanted. The police speed auto and a squad of officers was sent to the city line and the Groton barracks of the state police department was notified. Within a short time the entire highway between New London and Saybrook was covered by New London and state officers. In the meantime the Centerbrook barracks officers had been sent to Clinton, where a detour is made necessary because of road construction and hardly had the officers arrived there than the Hupmobile containing Trioni and the Stravzra brothers appeared.

OLD-fashioned women know they can wash floors finished with "61" Floor Varnish with plenty of soap and water, and that no damage will result. Modern housewives can use a mop if the old-fashioned way is too strenuous! Try all of the water tests on "61" and know that it is waterproof. And "61" Floor Varnish, is just as wear-resistant as it is water-resistant, on furniture, woodwork and linoleum, as well as floors. The beautiful "61" colors stain and varnish in one operation, without streaks, laps or brush marks. Come in and get a color card.

MRS. ISABELLE HARDING GAINS 35 POUNDS ON THE TANLAC TREATMENT

Well-known New England Lady Gives Medicine Full Credit for Saving Her Life.

"My case had been given up, as hopeless, so I do not hesitate to give Tanlac credit for saving my life," is the far-reaching statement of Mrs. Isabelle R. Harding, retired resident of 23 Lynwood St., Brookline, Mass.

"Furthermore" she continued, "Tanlac did not simply save my life, for it increased my weight from 87 lbs. to 122 lbs. and left me enjoying the best of health.

"Two years ago while living in Seattle, Wash., I was taken so ill that no one thought I could live. Complications resulted, and for nine months I was confined to my bed and could not even walk two steps. In fact I was so far gone that I thought my end had come, and I even went so far as to bid my husband and children good-bye. Nobody will ever know what I went through, for words just simply cannot describe it.

"One day, after I had been in bed 6 weeks, my husband brought me a bottle of Tanlac. I finished this bottle feeling some better, so I got more and kept on improving until I had used 10 bottles and then I was a well and happy woman. My recovery was so miraculous as to astonish those who knew how bad off I was. I am now enjoying the best of health and while I am 63 I really don't feel over 40. I will be glad to have anyone, who is looking for something to bring back their health, call on me or write me. To me Tanlac is the grandest thing in the world."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold.

JEWETT CITY

The following account by mistake, appeared in the Willimantic news Monday:

Mrs. Arthur Green is in Backus hospital with a broken leg and other injuries cuased by being knocked down by an automobile. Late Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Green were walking on the sidewalk in front of the home of Prentice Farrell. An automobile going north driven by Cleophas LaFlamme of North Grosvenordale, it is said, in attempting to pass another car saw still another car approaching and cut in, swerving so quickly that the machine up set on the other side of the road knocking Mr. and Mrs. Green down. Dr. G. H. Jennings found Mrs. Green so seriously injured that he took her to the Backus hospital. Mr. Green was badly bruised and one hand was cut. Officers Negiard and Maynard were investigating the case Sunday night and said the driver would be charged with reckless driving. A state policeman also came to the location of the accident.

La Flamme was to appear in the town court Monday morning at 8. But as he did not come until 10, both judge and prosecuting attorney had left town, and the case was put over until Thursday. Mrs. Green was as comfortable as could be expected Monday. Besides the broken leg her face was cut and her whole body was bruised painfully.

Pachaug grange, No. 96, held its meeting in the town hall Thursday evening, Worthy Master Edwin Lewis presiding. The first and second degrees were conferred on a class of 20. The degree teams of the older and excellent work. At the business meeting preceding the initiation, it was voted that the past masters with the present worthy lecturer, Miss Mabel L. Kanahan and Worthy Master Lewis should act as a committee for making arrangements for the rally meeting and dedication of the new Grange hall at its meeting of July 7th. At that time it is expected that H. P. of D. Charles D. Gardner of Massachusetts will attend. There were visitors present from Norwich, Preston City, North Stonington and Brooklyn. After the meeting light refreshments were served.

The following scores were shot on the Voluntown Rifle Club range. Geo. Sheldon made the high score for the Edmond medal, 97 out of a possible 100.

50 shots on the one inch bull's eye:

George Sheldon	97
John Kaufman	93
Arthur Burlingame	48
Jim Hopkins	479
Gerald Welsh	480
Vlarence Kahn	410

50 shots on the N. R. A. target:
Geo. Sheldon: 91, 97, 94, 95, 96—473
John Kempman: 94, 92, 94, 95, 95—470

At the meeting of the Congregational C. E. society Sunday evening, Harry Bond was appointed delegate to the state convention, 16th to 19th. Five dollars were voted to both the Parker's and Miss MacClure's work.

Herbert H. Tift has returned to the office of the American [illegible] New York, after spending the week end at his home in Glasgo.

The application of Mrs. Bessie A. Scates, who was appointed postmaster at Norwich Free Academy, has been accepted and she has appointed the children Nathaniel Woodworth.

Rev. W. C. Clifford, pastor of Windham Center Congregational church, was the speaker at this week's meeting of Willimantic Rotary club, held Tuesday noon, with all but five members present. With Law Enforcement as his subject, Rev. Mr. Clifford delivered an inspiring address in which he appealed to the conscience of the people as the basis for obeying the law. "Laws were not made to make men good" said the speaker; "they were made to establish a standard of living, but do not reach the hearts of men. It is up to the people to realize that laws were made for the benefit of the population in general and to abide by them for their common [illegible]."

As the meeting came to order Judge Frank H. Foss, who has just returned from Texas, was given a rousing welcome. Judge Foss will relate his experiences in the Lone Star state next week. While the members enjoyed a sumptuous dinner John [illegible] rendered the following members of the [illegible] quartette to warble through Annie Rooney and Old Black Joe: Charles B. Pomeroy, Dr. M. Famous Aster in Mary Pickford Film

The villain, in Mary Pickford's stupendous production, Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall—Sir Malcom Vernon—is convincingly portrayed by Marc MacDermott, one of the first of the "old timers" in pictures.

MacDermott is one of the oldest screen actors—from the standpoint of service—in the industry. He has appeared in the silent drama since the inception of pictures.

Coming to this country as leading man with Mrs. Pat Campbell, MacDermott shortly thereafter joined the then famous Edison Photoplay company, where he remained six years, appearing in many of the first photoplays made.

In this time he was a member of the first American company to make a tour of the British Isles for the purpose of filming actual scenes "on location." Later, becoming a member of the Vitagraph stock company, he remained with them two years. He appeared in Fox pictures for two years and will long be remembered for his portrayal of the paralytic in While New York Sleeps. Another two years' service was spent with Famous Players.

"My first trip to California," said MacDermott, "was last year, when I made a tour in vaudeville. Then and there I decided that California is the country really to live in. This engagement with Miss Pickford is my second on the coast. I hope it will not be the last."

Mary Pickford in Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall taken from the romantic novel by Charles Major will open a four days engagement on Sunday night, May 11th, and twice daily thereafter. Seat sale opens tomorrow morning at the box office of the Palace theatre. All seats are reserved for the entire engagement. Mail orders filled now in order of receipt.

PALACE THEATRE

If you were an attractive athletic young woman—

If your aunt had left you a fortune on condition that you marry within 24 hours—

If the provisions of the will would not allow you to marry your present fiance—

And if you wanted the cash, but were not keen for the matrimonial proviso, how would you go about getting the spondulike?

Blanche Ingram, the heroine of Her Temporary Husband, to be shown at the Palace theatre this Thursday, Friday and Saturday was faced with that problem.

But she got an idea. She married a decrepit old man who had but a few hours to live.

The marriage was performed, but someone else was the happy bridegroom—a plotter had made up to look like the intended husband.

Then complications and more complications before the strange mix-up is finally straightened out.

Her Temporary Husband, a First National picture directed by John McDermott, is a farce comedy with a guaranteed laugh in every foot of film. It has been interpreted to the film with a cast of the screen's best known funsters, including Owen Moore, Sidney Chaplin, Sylvia Breamer, Chuck Reisner, Tully Marshall, Charles Gerrard, George Cooper and others. What a wonderful combination for this side-splitter.

APPEAL MADE BY FAMILY WELFARE DEPARTMENT

Surely this is the time of year when every housekeeper and many other of our friends will warmly welcome an opportunity to help the needy of Norwich; and at the same time find a useful disposition for many articles of clothing in closets and storerooms which can be spared. This is an urgent appeal and calls most earnestly for garments of all kinds, especially for men and children. There is a great and constant demand for all these things. A great good may be done if a generous amount of wearables and useful articles of clothing is put into the hands of the committee who will distribute it in the wisest way. Please remember that it doesn't matter if the articles sent are considerably worn, if they are clean and neatly mended and if they are not so much out of date as to make the wearer an object of ridicule at school or elsewhere. The family welfare department of the United Workers hopes for a very generous response to this appeal and can assure our friends that such will be most thankfully received. Please send your packages to 9 Washington street and if that is not possible telephone 879-2 and they will be called for.

ROMANCE FOLLOWS ADV. FOR "COVERED WAGON"

To give an idea of the results that follow advertising in The Bulletin, the manager of The Covered Wagon reported Tuesday that there were just 138 girls who answered the adv. for a girl who looked like Lois Wilson to ride with the Chief in the Covered Wagon Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday. However, by a curious circumstande which verges strongly upon the romantic, he was unable to select any of the applicants; that is Dan Cupid stepped in and forbade him. To explain more carefully it seems that Chief Manobozho, who is driving the wagon had met and begun to woo with more or less success a young princess of the Mohicans, namely Oyahawa or in English, the girl with the sunlit eyes and raven hair. His wooing had to him progressed without great success for the reason expressed by the princess that she was of pure bred Mohican and did not desire to mate her noble blood with one of another tribe no matter how noble he might be. But along comes the want adv. in The Bulletin and unwittingly and to the delight of the chief it comes for him a most delightful and smiling emissary. The princess gets the paper, reads the adv and at once causes it to be known to the chief that, not with her consent shall he allow any other girl to ride with him. The chief sought out in much consternation the manager of the Covered Wagon who advised him, after looking at the girl, that he would be perfectly well pleased to hire the princess instead of any of the other applicants. This did not set well with the other girls of course, but the manager says that the greatest success is generally attained in the mouths by disappointments coming thick and fast when one first starts. After a while the aspirants for motion picture honors grows more determined and start to study and prepare themselves so earnestly that they really become acceptable and the road is easy. If you doubt any part of this story ask the Princess Oyahawa and Chief Manobozho who will be seen about the streets today in the Wagon that Is Covered.

BREED THEATRE

John Francis Dillon, who gave to the motion picture fans of the country last sensational success, Lucky Youth, is the director of Lilies of the Field, a First National picture which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today. Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle are co-starred in this production, and are supported by an exceptionally capable cast, which includes Sylvia Breamer, Alma Bennett, Myrtle Stedman, Crauford Kent, Charles Murray, Phyllis Haver, Cissy Fitzgerald, Edith Bergen, Charles Gerrand and Dorothy Bach.

Lilies of the Field is adapted from the stage play by the same name, written by William Hurlbut, which played for a year [illegible] Broadway. Its startling [illegible] an especial appeal to [illegible] made it the most discussed [illegible] New York during its long [illegible]

Director Dillon won [illegible] by his masterly interpretation of Warner Fabian's Haunting Youth. Although he had made many successful pictures, never before had a vehicle offered him such an opportunity, with the result that the picture became the outstanding one of the year. Its popularity was due largely to the originality of treatment with which Dillon handled the story, and he was rewarded immediately by a contract to make five more productions for Associated First National Pictures, Inc.

Dillon's masterly touch is again evident in Lilies of the Field, a film which is now breaking records all over the country.

Lloyd Hamilton will also be seen in a roaring two part comedy titled Killing Time and the Fox news will complete the bill.

Strand Theatre.

Two great trains coming together in a terrific crash, piling upon one another with a rending of iron and hissing of steam, crashing of timbers and a general holocaust of fire—such is the great thrill scene in By Divine Right, Elliott Dexter's first Grand-Asher picture, produced by R. William Neill, which comes to the Strand theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This scene is one of the pivotal points in the picture because from this wreck emerges the hero to change places with one of the victims and return under an assumed name to right the wrongs to which he has been subjected.

Never has there been a more effective train wreck in a picture, say the producers. It fairly lifts the spectators from their seats and brings out a gasp of astonishment and horror.

Broadway Theatre.

One of the finest orchestra ensemble on tour on the big time vaudeville is coming to the Broadway theatre the last half of this week.

They call themselves the Ten Knights of Jazz. Victor Oliver presents his Southern Illinois Recording Orchestra, which is a riot of syncopation, melody and steps.

In addition to this extraordinary attraction four other feature acts will be seen with a feature photoplay.

The Broken Violin, which comes to the Broadway theatre on Thursday, is said to be one of the most unusual pictures of the year, a picture woven around a beautiful story, with plenty of heart interest, in addition to furnishing one of the greatest thrills ever filmed.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

An unusual case, pertaining to the loading of motor trucks, was up for consideration before Judge W. Fenner Woodward, in the town court, Tuesday morning. Peter O. Johnson, the driver of a motor truck owned by a Willimantic corporation, was presented to answer to a charge that his machine was so loaded that less than 20 per cent of the weight of the truck and its cargo was on the forward axle. Attorney W. A. King appeared for Mr. Johnson, who was ordered in[illegible] by State Officer Rens Urquhart of the Danielson barracks. After detailed consideration of the matter the case was nolled, upon payment of costs.

There is a section of the general statutes that specifies as to how the load of a motor vehicle shall be distributed in order that the provision that not less than 20 per cent of the weight of the truck and its cargo rest on the forward axle shall not be violated. In repeated instances trucks are loaded so that the bulk of the weight comes on the rear axle, thus tending to break down the roads more than would be the case if the load were more even[illegible]. PUTNAM

Recruits continue to be received for the headquarters company, infantry, of the Forty-third division, to be stationed in this city. Evening meetings this week have brought in more men and about 40 enlistments have been received, the majority of the men also having also undergone the required physical examination. More recruits are needed to bring the company up to the required minimum strength of 50 men, this for recognition, or, better still, to have the roster show 65 men, or what is known as maintenance strength.

Captain J. J. McGarry is very much encouraged by the interest being displayed, but hopes that more recruits will present themselves in order that the company organization may be completed at an early date.

Tuesday, Captain McGarry received an official communication in which the personnel of the proposed organization is set forth. In addition to a captain and first and second lieutenant there is to be a first sergeant, a mess sergeant, a supply sergeant, a stable sergeant and a messenger sergeant; three corporals, including a company clerk and messenger; 42 first class privates, including a bicyclist, bugler, cooks, horseshoers, mechanics, messengers, orderlies, runners, saddlers and wagoners.

Captain McGarry says that no appointments of non-commissioned officers or other special places in the command will be made until after the recruiting is completed and the company organized, that all may have a fair chance to obtain special ratings.

Only a few men who have seen overseas service during the World war have yet enlisted in the new command. The majority of those who have enlisted are without prior military experience of any degree.

The material is very promising nevertheless and the prospect is for Putnam to have a fine company in the not distant future.

Records at the offices of the town clerk show the transfer by deed of the old Morse mill property—the stone mill—by Radding and Aldrich to Leon J. Harley, of Springfield, Mass. The mill and some surrounding property was one of the parcels disposed of at auction a few months ago when the Nightingale-Morse interests, having stopped manufacturing, proceeded to sell their property, some of it subsequently being offered at auction. At the auction Mr. Harley bid for the Morse mill and it was struck off to him by the auctioneer. No announcements have since been made as what is to be done with the property, though there have been rumors afloat.

A road building crew is again at work out on Killingly avenue near the Putnam-Killingly line, on the job of completing the concrete highway contract that was undertaken early last fall and continued until cold weather. Starting where the new roadway, ends, the crew is engaged in digging out the old roadbed for the foundation for the new concrete road. The present operation will carry the concrete well over the line into the town of Killingly and within about a mile of Attawaugan. Several weeks will be required to complete the work. Traffic will pass through under about the same arrangement that prevailed last year, at least for the time being.

There was a session of the city court Tuesday morning to dispose of a case in which a man was charged with having been intoxicated.

Delegations from towns in this section left Tuesday to attend the democratic state convention that is to meet in New Haven to name delegates to the democratic national convention to be held in New York next month to nominate candidates for president and vice president.

A meeting of the directors of the Windham County Farmers' association is to be held at Grange hall in Scotland, on the afternoon of May 13. In the evening an agricultural program will be presented. Among those who are to speak are: Dr. G. P. Perley, president of the Farmers' association; Whitman Danielson, secretary-treasurer of the organization; Charles F. Breen of Scotland, County Agent L. J. Davis, A. H. Gallup of Scotland, A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, and R. E. Jones, poultry specialist, at Connecticut Agricultural college.

Announcement that the plant of the Putnam Worsted Manufacturing Co. here is to close down indefinitely and that the Beachmont plant of the Guerin interests at Mechanicsville is also suspending operations for the time being, marks further depression in textile activities in this city and vicinity. Generally depressed conditions in the textile field are responsible. The Putnam Manufacturing company makes cotton goods, while the Beachmont mill, formerly the French River Textile company, is engaged in the manufacture of worsteds.

Comparing present registrations with those of last year, it is indicated that there are about one hundred dogs in the town of Putnam that have not been registered, though the time for doing so expired the first of the present month. Dogs may be registered now with Town Clerk Lewis Clapp, though there is a penalty attached for not having attended to the matter prompt. An unlicensed dog may result in the owner being presented in court, an experience that is usually much more expensive than paying the registration fees.

Miss Lorena Gallant, student nurse at the Hartford hospital has visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gallant of Church street.

Only routine business was transacted Monday evening at a meeting of the town school committee.

Placed in the custody of the man from whom they stole $275, three boys ranging in age from 12 to 15, living in Quinebaug in the town of Thompson, will have to walk straight and behave themselves, if they wish to keep out of the Connecticut School for Boys. Because they are being given a chance to make good the names of the three youngsters are withheld.

The $275 was stolen from the safe of Mathew Dart, a Quinebaug store keeper, last week Thursday, but it was not until some days later that Deputy Sheriff William N. Ross of Thompson, succeeded [illegible] confession from the lads. As [illegible] result of this confession he [illegible] the deputy to the cellar of a home in Quinebaug where they had buried $240 of their booty and this was recovered. As a part of the court proceedings the mother of the boys promised to make good the missing $40, so a sentence to the reform school, imposed by Justice Thomas Ryan of Thompson, was suspended and Mr. Dart was appointed special probation officer in the case.

According to the story told by the officers, Mr. Dart went to his store last Thursday morning and after opening the safe he went home to breakfast, leaving a young woman clerk in charge. The three boys were in the store when Mr. Dart left to get his breakfast. The clerk being obliged to go into the cellar to get a pair of rubbers, one of the lads stationed himself at the top of the cellar stairs as a guard, while the other two ransacked the safe.

When Mr. Dart returned he noticed two $5 bills on the floor near the safe and spoke to his clerk about it, asking her if she was getting careless. When she told him that she had not dropped any money Mr. Dart became suspicious and went to the safe. Here he discovered that a money bag that had contained about $[illegible] was missing.

Mr. Dart went to the home of the three boys, but they and their parents denied that the boys had taken any money. The next day Mr. Dart notified Deputy Sheriff Bates of the affair and the officer went to work on the case, telling Mr. Dart to do nothing, but to let the lads go to school that day as usual.

A day or two later [illegible] deputy sheriff assembled [illegible] in front of the [illegible] They confessed [illegible] of the money, [illegible] fleeting stone [illegible] questioning lasting [illegible] boys finally broke [illegible]

Much has been said in regard to the need of planting more trees in order to offset the drain upon the woodlands of the country and thereby provide for the future. This is brought on by the dwindling supply of timber in states which formerly furnished a large part of their own requirements and by the mounting rates and freight charges.

[illegible] other needs for trees [illegible] services which they perform in supplying the lumber demand. Trees are our friends and [illegible] asset. They play such an important part in the scheme of beautification that there can be no [illegible] them. Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must be Done and Done Darn Quick, Too.

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are easy to take as candy, and if any person don't gain at least 5 pounds their druggist will [illegible] back—and only [illegible] Lee & Osgood [illegible] druggist anywhere. [illegible] natural and gen-[illegible]

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Hook and Ladder

"Come and help us, S. O. S.,
We're many miles from home, I guess.
On a mountain's tiptop crown

Our toy balloons have settled down
Send us help or we will die
On this mountain bleak and high
Send us nything but money
Uncle Lucky's nephew bunny."

[illegible] wired the little rabbit [illegible] his radio machine in the last story.

Well, pretty soon [illegible] very long [illegible] came an answer from the Policeman Dog in Rabbitville.

"Keep up heart and don't grow sadder,
We'll soon be [illegible] Hook and Ladder."

"He's coming with the Hook and Ladder Company [illegible] the Fire

"Here they come!" he shouted

Engine," shouted Little Jack Rabbit. "You look on this side of the mountain and I'll keep watch on the other."

And would you believe it, no sooner had dear Uncle Lucky put on his spectacles and looked through his spyglass than he saw the Hook and Ladder come tearing along way down in the valley below.

"Here they come," he shouted, almost dropping his opera glasses. I mean his telescope, so dreadfully excited and trembly was the old gentleman rabbit.

On reaching the foot of the mountain, some of the firemen put up the ladders, one on top of another, while others uncoiled the fire hose in case the mountain should turn out to be a Vesuvious or a volcano. At last the foremost fireman, a little squirrel with a red helmet on his head, reached the two frightened little bunnies.

First they helped Uncle Lucky down, then the little rabbit. After that they slipped the ladders back into the long wagon and started home for Rabbitville. And it didn't take them long to get there, either, for they had eight billy goats hitched up to that Hook and Ladder, and the way those goats galloped home was perfectly wonderful.

Well, as soon as Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky were safe again in Rabbitville, they hopped back to the circus grounds to get the Luckymobile. There it was, behind the red circus wagon. In they hopped and drove off for home, and just as they reached a road that led to the old gentleman rabbit's house they heard a voice singing:

"Oh, tell me where you've been today
You've been so very long away;
It seems to me you should not stay
Out quite so late to romp and play.

"Who's that speaking?" asked Uncle Lucky, stopping the Luckymobile and looking all around. But he couldn't see anything, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

A Trying Period through which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Phila., Pa.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I was weak, nervous, dizzy and had headaches. I was troubled in this way for two years and was hardly able to do my work. My friends advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am very sorry that I did not take it sooner. But I have got good results from it and am now able to do my housework most of the time. I recommend your medicine to those who have similar troubles. I do not like publicity, but if it will help other women I will be glad for you to use my letter."—Mrs. FANNIE ROSENSTEIN, 882 N. Holly Street, Phila., Pa.

Detroit, Michigan—"During the Change of Life I had a lot of stomach trouble and was bothered a great deal with hot flashes. Sometimes I was not able to do any work at all. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your little books and took it with very good results. I keep house and am able now to do all my own work. I recommend your medicine and am willing for you to publish this testimonial."—Mrs. J. S. LIVERNOIS, 2051 Junction Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia. Heat flashes or waves of heat appear to pass over the body, cause the face to be very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suffocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is an inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is liable to make a woman lose confidence in herself. She becomes nervous, avoids meeting strangers and dreads to go out alone.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women at this time. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. Let it help carry you through this time of life. It is a splendid medicine for the middle-aged woman. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

WESTERLY

Westerly tax assessors began their work earlier this year than last, for [illegible] Tax Assessors Walter C. Hiscox, Howard B. Thorp and Willard H. Ledward began their rounds to note changes in valuations. Willard H. Ledward is the new member of the assessors' board, succeeding Samuel M. Sharpe, resigned also had been a member of the board for many years.

On Monday the public schools of the town of Westerly began the spring term after a vacation of one week. The final period of work for the school year is broken only by one holiday, Memorial Day, Friday, May 30th, and a day of school observance, Arbor Day, which is Friday next, May 9th. The next holiday is Independence day, which falls May 4th, was observed in the schools on Monday May 5th.

Mrs. Ann Coulborne, manager of the Westerly branch of the Western Union Telegraph Co., is the guest for two weeks of her mother at New Church, R. I.

The special teacher in domestic science, Miss Marguerite Whitney, of the Westerly schools, has returned from a week's vacation with relatives and friends in Wellesley, Mass.

Fred A. Davis of Providence was a business visitor in Westerly and Pawcatuck, Tuesday.

Miss K. Marie Lloyd has returned to resume her duties as a teacher in English at Westerly High school.

Clarence A. Vars of Westerly attended Monday at the state house, Providence, the regular meeting of the Rhode Island State Board of Pharmacy, of which he is a member.

Miss Mabel R. Comstock of Medford, Mass., returned the first of the week to resume her duties as a teacher in commercial subjects at Westerly High school.

Former Congressman Lonergan of Hartford was a Westerly visitor Monday. Last November Mr. Lonergan purchased the home of W. Ward Sherman, on the Shore road.

Returning from a week's visit at her home in Woburn, Mass., Miss Ethel M. Frizzell has resumed her work as instructor in mathematics in Westerly High school.

To many residents of Washington and New London counties, who come to Westerly during the summer months or do business at the shore resorts of the town the Itinerant Venders' ordinance passed by the Westerly town council after a lengthy discussion and at the May meeting Monday has much of interest. Hereafter it is ordained by the town council of the town of Westerly as follows:

Section 1—Every itinerant vender who shall sell or expose for sale at public auction or private sale, any goods, wares and merchandise without a license as hereinafter provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred, nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment not less than ten nor more than thirty days.

Section 2—All persons, both principals and agents, who shall by circular, handbill, newspaper, or in any other manner, advertise any such sale referred to in section one before proper license shall be issued to the vender, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or be imprisoned not more than sixty days.

Section 3—It shall be the duty of every itinerant vender, whether principal or agent, before commencing business, to take out a license in the manner hereinafter set forth.

Section 4—Every itinerant vender desiring to do business in this town shall upon application in proper form, and upon said application being approved by the chief of police, be granted by the town clerk an itinerant vender's license authorizing him to do business in this town in conformity with the privisions of this ordinance for a term not to exceed four months from the date thereof, on the payment of the following license fee: For selling or offering for sale cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, confectionery, soft drinks, newspapers, periodicals, souvenirs and toys, for the term of one week, twenty-five dollars; for the term of two weeks fifty dollars; and for the term of more than two weeks but not more than four months one hundred dollars; for selling or offering for sale all other kinds of goods, wares and merchandise; For the term of one week, fifty dollars; for the term of two weeks, one hundred dollars; and for the term of more than two weeks but not more than four months, two hundred dollars. Every license shall set forth a copy of the application upon which it is granted. Such license shall not be transferable nor give authority to more than one person to sell goods as an itinerant vender either by agent or clerk or in any other way than in his own proper person; but any licensee may have the assistance of one or more persons in conducting his busines, who shall have authority to aid their principal but not to act for or without him.

Section 5—All applications for license shall be sworn to, shall disclose the names and residences of the owners or parties in whose interest said business is conducted, and shall be kept on file by the town clerk; and a record shall be kept by him of all licenses issued upon such applications All files and records of the town clerk shall be in convenient form and open for public inspection.

Section 6—No itinerant vender shall advertise, represent or hold forth any sale as an insurance, bankrupt, insolvent, assignee, trustee, estate, executor, administrator, receiver, wholesale or manufacturer's or closing-out sale, or a sale of any goods damaged by smoke, fire, water or otherwise, or in any similar form, unless he shall, before so doing, state under oath to the town clerk all the facts relating to the reasons and character of such special sale so advertised or represented, including a statement of the names of the persons from whom the goods, wares and merchandise were obtained the date of delivery to the person applying for the license, and the place from which said goods, wares and merchandise were taken, and all details necessary to exactly locate and fully identify all goods, wares and merchandise to be sold.

MYSTIC

The new dormitory of the Mystic Oral school for the Deaf is to be erected on a site west of the original school building and will face toward the south. The building is to be of brick construction on a stone foundation and is to be fireproof, three stories. A force of men in the employ of the T. J. Pardy Construction Co. of Bridgeport has been at work the past week assembling equipment for the work of erecting this building. A steam shovel has been set up and the work of excavating for the foundation is well under way.

Owing to excavating which is going on at the upper end of Broadway, that section of the street is closed to travel and the bus which runs to Old Mystic now goes up East Main street from the manument and then up Denison avenue. At a town meeting held some time ago in Stonington, it was voted to cement Broadway from the monument north; this section has always been very muddy and at times almost impassable on his account and when cemeted it will greatly facilitate travel for Broadway is a part of the main thoroughfare from the railroad freight station to Greenmanville and Old Mystic and much heavy trucking goes over this road.

The quarterly conference of the Methodist church which was to have been held Tuesday evening in the chapel was postponed.

Another case of scarlet fever has developed here, Mrs. Grimes, mother of Dorrance and Gordon Grimes, of Mistuxet avenue, who already have he ditsease, bei gnthe patient. Other cases reported in the town of Stonington this week are: Merton Koelb, Elm street, Stonington, a student in Stonington High school; John Hopwood, 3, of Mechanic street, Pawcatuck; Lillian Perry, 3 years old, 69 Moss St., Pawcatuck; and Felix Long, 8 Race street, Pawcatuck, has membraneous croup. n account of the fact that so many students from here and from Pawcatuck attend Stonington High school, which is the only high school in the town of Stonington, the cases of scarlet fever in Pawcatuck and Stonington are being watched with special interest.

The exhibit of relics of the World war arranged by Richard William Morgan Post, American Legion, in the show window of the Mechanics Clothing Co., in connection with the membership drive of the Legion which began Monday, is attracting much attention. These momentoes of the war bring poignantly to mind the service rendered by the men who brought home these trophies.

Grip, or Influenza [illegible] prefers to call it, is quite prevalent here.

About 30 of the members of Fanny Ledyard Chapter, Daughter of the American Revolution, were in New London Monday, attending the annual luncheon of Lucretia Shaw Chapter, D. A. R., as guests of that chapter, those who were present being: Mrs. Frank W. Batty, Mrs. Ira C. Hoxie, Mrs. Ebenezer Morgan, Mrs. Newton A. Dickinson, Mrs. B. L. Holmes, Mrs. John W. Phillips, Mrs. Fanny P. Fish, Mrs. John Crandall, Mrs. George Matthews, Miss Emily F. Denison, Mrs. George F. Costello, Mrs. Harry F. Hill, Mrs. C. C. McGaughey, Miss Annie A. Rathbun, Miss Edith M. Rathbun, Mrs. J. A. Schoonover, Mrs. John P. Gray, Mrs. W. A. Clarke, Mrs. G. A. Thompson, Mrs. Enid P. Hyde, Mrs. Mary P. Hyde, Dr. Clara Atwood, Mrs. Oscar F. Pendleton, Miss Fannie Pendleton, Mrs. Jennie Breed and Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson.

M. A. Hunter is seriously ill at his home on Jackson avenue.

Mrs. Jennie J. Davis has returned from a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. H. T. Williams, in Old Mystic.

Miss Maude Congdon has returned to Geneseo, N. Y., after spending the spring vacation at her home here.

The sewing society of Charity Chapter, No. 61, O. E. S., is to meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. Charles Sweet.

Peter Flynn has had the veranda on the front of his house removed and a new and wider one is being built.

Mrs. John H. Hoxie is confined to her home on East Main street with an attack of grip.

Miss Lucy A. Kellogg returned Tuesday to her home in New London after a visit with her nieces, Misses Lucy B. and Mary S. Kellogg. Although 83, Miss Kellogg is able to get about with ease and enjoys good health.

Mrs. Anna Sylvia, 77, died suddenly Monday morning at the home of her son, Manuel Sylvia, on Pearl street, where she had been visiting for a few days, having come here from Westerly where she resided with her other son, Albert Sylvia. Mrs. Sylvia was born in St. George, Azore Islands, Portugal, Jan. 1, 1847, and was the daughter of John and Mary Goes. She is survived by two sons, Manuel Sylvia of this place, and Albert Sylvia of Westerly.

Theron A. Greene is seriously ill at his home on Broadway.

At the prayer service this (Wednesday) evening at the Methodist church, Rev. J. G. Sallis will speak on What Christ Expects of Us, and there will be special music. Methodists in the New London Road unit have been specially invited this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Lyston Morgan and Mrs. Frank Pilsbury have returned to their home in Chicago.

The blacksmith shop of the late Thomas Melvin, on Pearl street was recently leased to a Bridgeport man.

Mrs. William Thomas is caring for Mrs. C. F. Congdon who is ill.

ONECO

Mrs. Susie Tyler of Washington, R. I., and Miss Mabel Kennedy of Central Falls spent Sunday with Mrs. Ellen Waite.

Philip Welch and Horace Baker of Providence called on friends in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sayles of Sterling Hill were Sunday visitors at John E. Marriott's.

Mrs. Celinda Whitford returned home Thusday from Virginia, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. E. E. Kirkman, with whom she has been spending the winter.

Mrs. Charles Saunders is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Rufus Greene.

Mrs. Wright Mellor of Centerville spent Thursday night with local relatives.

The three-act play, Breezy Point, given by local amateurs Friday night in the town hall, netted $35 for the Epworth league treasury.

NORTH STONINGTON

The women of the Baptist church gave a May day tea at the home of Mrs. Henry L. Allen Thursday afternoon of last week. Salads, sandwiches, cake and tea were served. Mrs. Harvey Arzamarski of Westerly, the daughter of Mrs. Allen, poured, and Mrs. Otto Nellsen, Mrs. T. [illegible] Bown, Mrs. R. D. Cook and Mrs. [illegible] Ernest Gray assisted in serving.

Rev. S. M. Cathcart of Westerly preached in the Congregational church Sunday and Mrs. Herbert L. Richardson of Norwich sang. The pastor, Rev. O. D. Fisher, is expected to be in his pulpit next Sunday, when communion will be administered.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Thompson are temporarily living in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Chapman, who are in Westerly.

Gustave Swanson and family have moved into the upstairs tenement in the house of Leonard R. Main.

The J. C. Harland family are settled in their newly purchased home, Green Gables, on the Norwich road.

SPRING COMES WITH COLORS BRIGHT
To Delight the Eye and Make the Frocks More Beautiful

The colors of Spring will make our streets veritable flower gardens when all of the Spring frocks are made, and the weather man sends us a few days of warm sun. Our Spring display is really beautiful, and the prices are not the least attractive feature.

55c BEACH CLOTH
49c A YARD
It is a yard wide, the colors are fast, the weave is firm, and it is altogether a delightful fabric from which to make the Summer frock. Shown in brown, copenhagen, lavender, gray and pink.

98c RATINE
85c A YARD
The characteristic rough, nubbly weave of the Ratine lends itself readily to the styles of today, and we can show you many beautiful colors including rose, lavender, light and dark green, champagne, tan, brown, gray and dark blue.

89c LINEN SUITING
79c A YARD
When we say Linen, we mean the kind of Linen which depends entirely upon flax plant for its being. We show these beautiful yard-wide Linens in lavender, cocoa, orange, champagne, pink, rose, yellow, gray, honeydew, coffee, green and tan.

55c COTTON SHANTUNG
49c A YARD
With all the appearance of a real silk Shantung it offers you a service which cannot be duplicated. We can offer it in gold, yellow, tan, rose, gray, lavender and copenhagen.

49c LACE VOILE
This exquisite, lacy weave, a yard wide is offered in a wide range of pretty colorings. Shown in pink, navy, rose, grey, apricot, brown, lavender, tan, copenhagen and green.

49c DRESS VOILE
Voile holds a place for Summer dresses which is not to be taken by any other weave. These pretty floral designs make most charming frocks. Grey, tan and blue grounds.

45c DRESS VOILE
33c A YARD
A voile which we can recommend for those who wish something really good without spending a large sum. It is 38 inches wide, and we have it in eighteen choice designs.

55c WOVEN DOTTED SWISS
46c A YARD
The ground is white—the colored dots are woven in—dots of gold, of blue, of lavender and of brown. A pretty weave for the summer dresses, extremely dainty and in good taste.

BULKELEY SLUGS OUT A 14 TO 0 VICTORY OVER MORGAN HIGH AT CLINTON TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Clinton, May 6.—Bulkeley clouted its way to a 14 to 0 victory over Morgan High this afternoon on the town field. For a few innings it looked as though a real pitchers' battle between Parisi for Bulkeley, and Schetzel for Morgan High, was in progress. However, while Parisi kept the home batters to but two singles in six innings, Schetzel was driven from the mound by the Bulkeley batters in the sixth inning after four hits were made in a row off him. Stannard replaced the wobbling Schetzel and his curves were easily solved for hits and three runs in the one inning. Schetzel returned to the mound again and was treated to some more medicine he received in the early innings.

During the course of the afternoon Coach Robert T. Aldrich used three pitchers—Parisi, Montali and Daniels. The unseen Parisi was pulled out was not because of ineffectiveness, but to give the other hurlers on the Bulkeley squad a chance to work out. Off Parisi in the six innings he occupied the mound but two hits were made. Montali worked one inning and allowed one hit but a double play put a crimp in the rally. Daniels pitched the eighth and ninth innings and he struck out four of the six batters to face him. He allowed no hits.

The pitching of the state champions' hurlers was effective at all times. The infield work was also good for two double plays and but one man was safe during the entire afternoon. Not a single Morgan High player reached base, so well was the twirling and the fielding of the Orange and Black. It was a good hot afternoon and the Bulkeley players were in condition for the game.

The Bulkeley players lived up to their reputations as heavy hitters. Seventeen safe drives were corralled by the combined offerings of Schetzel and Stannard, the two Morgan High pitching artists. Of this number, Robinson, the Bulkeley third sacker, had the team in this respect, collecting three singles and a double in six times at the bat. Booth, with two doubles and a single, was the next in line for batting honors. Sheffott and Rice each had two hits apiece. The score:

TIMELY HITTING BY TIGERS BEATS WHITE SOX

Chicago, May 6.—Timely hitting by Detroit in the pinches enabled them to come from behind and defeat Chicago and win the second straight game of the series, 6 to 4. Heilmann's homer with the bases full gave Detroit the lead in the fifth and his sacrifice fly again gave the team in front after Chicago had tied the score. The score:

YANKS WIN WELL-PLAYED GAME FROM ATHLETICS

New York, May 6.—New York defeated Philadelphia here today in a well-played game by a score of 3-2. Rommel and Hoyt were in splendid form and strongly supported. Ruth drove in New York's two runs in the fifth and scored the winning run in the eighth.

Perkins made an acrobatic catch of Dugan's foul in the eighth inning and turned a somersault into a concrete field box. Dugan was hit on the right temple by a pitched ball during batting practice. Both required medical attention. Score:

LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO

On May 2nd we sent this wire to every one of our salesmen throughout the country.

What's back of this big shift?
Why are men changing by thousands?

Note—If you have not read the telegram above, please glance through it.

Looking out from behind the scenes

BIG EVENTS happen rarely in the cigarette business—yes.

But if today you were "behind the scenes," you could sit and watch a thing going on that—in a mild way perhaps—might open any man's eyes.

The Man in the Street, the average smoker, is hardly aware that anything's happening.

He might chance to notice that Smith has changed to another cigarette. Or, sitting with a group, it might occur to him that three or four of them have "switched"—quite lately.

No—there's nothing spectacular about it.

But when every small brook starts to rise, there's a big flood in the river—and "flood" is exactly the word to describe this thing we are talking about.

What is it that is happening?

The thing that is happening is simply that, for months now, an average of over one thousand men EVERY DAY in this country (1,000 every day—think of it!) are changing from other cigarettes to Chesterfield.

Is cigarette taste changing? We don't know. But we do know that smokers are changing—over 150,000 have changed to Chesterfield since New Year's Day.

Nothing to get excited about, of course; but not a thing quite to ignore either—if you are interested in "what's what" in smoking.

Why are these men changing? Is it Chesterfield's exceptional tobaccos, the fortunate blend, the unusual freedom from "sweetening," or what? Perhaps you don't care.

Perhaps the only thing you care about is "How do they TASTE?" All right. When it comes to that, Chesterfields—if you give them the chance—will tell their own story (and prove it!) in a far better way than we can.

Such popularity must be deserved

Brasscos Beat Profs.

New Haven, May 6. — Waterbury pounded on three New Haven pitchers here this afternoon and won by a score of 8 to 4. The batting of Thomas, who made two triples and a single, was the feature of the game. His first triple came with three on in the sixth after Donahue had been purposely walked. The score:

Roser's Homer Beats Hartford.

Hartford, May 6.—Roser's home run with three on base in the tenth inning gave Worcester an 11 to 8 decision over Hartford today in a game replete with thrills. The visitors scored three runs in the ninth, knocking Johnson out of the box and taking a one run lead. Hartford tied the score in its half of the ninth, but in the tenth Canavan and Williams allowed the bases to be filled paving the way for Roser's blow. Cosgrove stole home in the seventh inning. Stribling Fights on May 20th

Atlanta, Ga., May 6.—Assurance that Young Stribling of Georgia and Dan O'dowd, of Boston, will box May 20, was seen here today when the city boxing commission granted the permit for the bout. Harry Krohn of Akron, Ohio, and Billy McGowan, of Atlanta, will meet in the semi-windup.

Elizabeth Street Team Wins.

The Elizabeth street school on Tuesday afternoon at the academy campus defeated the St. Joseph's school team, 6 to 2. The features of the game were a home run by Meyer and a triple by Felli.

GIBBONS BEGINS TRAINING FOR GEORGES CARPENTIER

Chicago, May 6.—Tommy Gibbons bearing the appearance of a perfectly trained athlete, began light training here today for his ten round contest with Georges Carpentier, in the open air Bowl at Michigan City, Ind., May 31. The St. Paul light heavyweight plans to work here until Saturday and then go into training at his camp located on the shores of Lake Michigan, a few miles from Michigan City.

Gibbons engaged in a game of Handball took a few wallops at a man's sized heavy bag and boxed three light rounds with Jack Duffy, a local middleweight. He said he weighed about 183 pounds and probably would knock off between 8 and 10 pounds before the contests.

Sammy Mandell, Rockford lightweight, Tillie "Kid" Herman, a welterweight and Andre Anderson, a heavyweight, have been selected as Gibbons sparring partners.

NEW BEDFORD TEAM WANTS GAMES IN THIS SECTION

The Lexington A. C., one of the leading teams of New Bedford, is now filling out the schedule for the season and would like to get games for Saturdays and Sundays with teams in the eastern part of Connecticut. The team is the pick of last year's New Bedford Industrial league. The team would like especially to play in Putnam, Danielson, Sterling, Plainfield, Moosup or at the Norwich State hospital. May 20th is also an open date on the schedule. Write to John Sedon, 829 Acushnet Ave, New Bedford, Mass.

BROKEN HAND FORCES BERLENBACH TO CANCEL

New York, May 6. — Paul Berlenbach, sensational New York middleweight, suffered a broken hand in his bout against Harold Abbott at Madison Square Garden last Friday night and as a result has been forced to cancel two future fights.

Examination of the hand immediately after the fight failed to disclose a break, but an x-ray report today revealed a fracture.

Cancellation of the boxer's matches at Madison Square Garden on Friday night and at the Nostrand A. C. on May 27 was ordered by Berlenbach's physician. The doctor said, however, that Berlenbach would probably be in shape to meet Young Stribling at the milk fund show in June, the exact date of which has not been set.

As a substitute for Berlenbach's match at Madison Square Garden Friday, Morrie Schlaifer of Omaha, Neb., will meet Harry Martone of Jersey City.

LEONARD POSTS FORFEIT FOR BOUT WITH DUNDEE

New York, May 6.—Johnny Leonard, Allentown, Pa., featherweight and conqueror of Carl Duane, today posted a forfeit fee of $2,500 with the state athletic commission to bind a title match with Johnny Dundee, featherweight champion. This is the first formal challenge received for Dundee's featherweight crown.

The commission also announced that a license to conduct boxing exhibitions at the Polo grounds would be granted within a few days after a hearing relative to the seating arrangements.

Frankie Fasano was called before the commission to explain why he violated a rule in meeting Buck Josephs, a boxer under suspension in this state in Newark last week. He entered a plea of ignorance of the rule and was dismissed with a reprimand.

NEW LONDON TO HAVE A TWILIGHT LAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 6. — A meeting was held this evening at the Barrows building on State street for those interested in the city twilight baseball league. Although the movement to continue the city league this year as in the past several years meet with some favor in tonight's meeting, two of the three team managers, who had teams entered in the league last year favored that the league play games on Saturday and Sunday, afternoons instead of weekday evenings, as in previous years. Manager Charles Chester of the championship Corticelli Silk company team, sponsored the proposal that the league play games on Saturdays and Sundays. However, nothing definite could be decided at this evening's meeting due to the absence of a representative from the Knights of Columbus team, and other teams in the city who were desirous of entering the league this year. However, another meeting will be held shortly for the purpose of deciding whether or not the city league will be continued this year.

The meeting tonight was held in the office of William Fox, president of the league last year. Other team managers present were Charles Chester, Corticelli Silk Co., George Gadbois, Fort Trumbull Stars, and James MacDonald of the Tabe.

Haynes is Recovering.

Paris, May 6.—Everett Haynes, the American jockey who has been seriously ill at the American hospital at Neuilly, showed improvement today and his physicians expressed the hope that an operation would not be necessary. Haynes was to have piloted Epinard, the crack French racer in the match race with Sir Gallahad III, May 19, but on account of his illness will be substituted by Guy Garner of Kentucky.

Looking For Games.

The Putnam Mfg. Company Social club baseball team, through its manager, Ernest Lebeau of 53 Battey street, is another Putnam team that is seeking games with out of town teams. This team opened its season at Wauregan Sunday with a victory over the Wauregan team, the score being 9 to 5.

Wants Games.

The H. K. H. baseball team of Putnam, through its manager, Charles Franklin, is seeking games with Eastern Connecticut mill or semi-professional teams. Mr. Franklin will be pleased to hear from managers who would like to arrange games.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Eighth inning. Score 5-1 in favor of team in field. The bases are full. Ball is hit to rightfield.

Where should the rightfielder throw it?

The team in the field has the advantage of a four run lead and a single to right field under these conditions will score two runs, thus making the score 5-3, so the rightfielder should throw the ball to second base in order to hold the tying run on first base. This also leaves the team in the field with an opportunity for a double play when the next batter is up.

Of course, if the ball is hit real hard to the rightfielder and he takes it on the first hop, he can take a change of catching the runner from second at the plate as one of the infielders could cut the throw off short if he saw there was no possibility of getting this runner at the plate. That would still hold the tying run at first base.

WILDNESS AND ERRORS LOSE GAME FOR ACADEMY TO WESTERLY HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, May 6.—Segal's wildness coupled with frequent and costly errors enabled the Westerly High school team to decisively beat the Norwich Free Academy team, 13 to 7, here this afternoon in the second league game for both teams. Westerly by virtue of this victory takes the lead in the Eastern Connecticut interscholastic league and as yet remains undefeated.

The Academy team came with a record of five straight wins but Westerly put a sad dent in their perfect score. The Red and White team played the poorest brand of baseball let seen on the local field. Ellie Segal, the mainstay of the Academy pitching squad, was in poor form, handing out eight passes and forcing in one run when he hit a batter in the second inning. His ragged support was also a contributing cause to downfall the Academy players making eleven errors all told.

Westerly with the exception of the second inning played a good brand of baseball and Smith, who took up the pitching burden for the locals in the second inning after R. Meikle had been driven to cover, pitched well for the remainder of the game. His teammates gave him good support, especially Payne in left field who made several good catches of hard hit balls. I. Dabrowski led the hitting attack for Westerly with three hits.

The game started off well, neither team scoring in the first inning although both had men on. The second inning, however, was a free-for-all for both Norwich and Westerly, the latter having the best of it. In the Academy's half of the inning Hollander was safe on I. Dabrowski's error and went to second when W. Dabrowski fumbled Hinricks' roller. Milesid fanned and Tombari hit for two bases scoring Hollander.

Segal also doubled scoring Hinricks and Tombari and Kilroy followed suit with another double scoring Segal. This ended R. Meikle's sojourn in the box and Smith was sent in from first base to take up the pitching duties. He passed McNamara but fanned Gee and Busch ending the inning.

With a four run lead everything looked rosy for the Academy but the advantage was only short-lived. Segal passed Smith the first man up and Busch booted Payne's roller. Segal fanned Cornell and Larsen hit a long fly to Hinricks and Smith scored when Hollander missed a wide ball. With two down Segal walked the next two men filling the bases, and after getting two strikes on Salineno Segal hit the batts forcing in Payne. H. Meikle after taking two strikes connected for two bases scoring the Dabrowski brothers, who had walked. R. Meikle followed his brothers example and hit for two bases sending two more runs across the plate. Segal then fanned Smith and scored when Tombari let W. Dabrowski's roller go through him. Dabrowski going to third. I. Dabrowski pulled another brother stunt when his hit brought in the second run.

The Academy collected one run in the first of the fifth when Burke was hit and scored on Hollander's double. Smith fanned three men in this inning. Westerly got back the run in their half of the inning on hits by the Dabrowski brothers.

Three more runs added to Westerly's rapidly increasing total on hits by R. Meikle, Larsen and W. Dabrowski and errors by McGowan, Hollander and Kilroy. But for the errors in this inning no runs would have been scored.

In the eighth inning Smith began to weaken and Hinricks hit safely and Cimikowski and Tombari walked. Hinricks scored when he slid under the throw to the plate on Segal's infield bounder. Cimikowski scored when Larsen dropped a pitched ball. This ended the Academy scoring for the game. Westerly brought their total to 13 in the last half of the eighth, when errors by Busch and Tombari let in one run. The score:

CHAPMAN TECH WINS PITCHING DUEL FROM OLD SAYBROOK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 6.—Hewitt's single with McDonald and Linkletter on second and third base respectively, in the second inning with two outs, won the Chapman Tech - Old Saybrook High game for the local team. The was played on Morgan park and the two runners that Hewitt scored on his hit were the only runs scored by either team, the final score reading 2 to 0 in favor of the home team.

The game was a pitchers' battle from the start between Johnny Brown and O'Brien. The Chapman Tech slab artist had an edge over his rival from Old Saybrook and allowed but three hits and struck out 15 men. At all times during the afternoon he had the Old Saybrook players away from the plate by masterly pitching in the pinches. His strikeouts came at times when Old Saybrook had men on the paths dangerously near scoring. As it was Old Saybrook had nine men left on the base paths.

O'Brien, who opposed the dusky Brown on the mound, also twirled a good game, but weakened in the second when two hits bunched behind a base on balls gave Chapman Tech its victory. O'Brien had an off day. He generally has more control over his curves than he had today. He walked six men to Brown's two. Chapman Tech touched his offerings up for five safe bingles, two more than Brown allowed his own team. The score:

AMERICANS DISSATISFIED AT TREATMENT BY COMMITTEE

Paris, May 6.—The deadlock between Samuel Goodman, manager of the American Olympic rugby football team and Alan H. Muhr, representing the French Olympic committee, over the question of a referee for the France-United States match May 18, continues, the Americans absolutely refusing to accept Admiral Percy Royds, of the British navy, whom they feel Muhr is trying to impose upon them.

In addition, the relations between the Americans and Muhr are somewhat strained owing to Muhr's refusal to allow the Americans a real rugby practice match before the game with Rumania next Sunday. Manager Goodman feels that the efforts made in America to send the rugby team to France at great expense, $8,000 being subscribed in California alone, should be taken into account and members of the team afforded kinder treatment. Muhr personally favors allowing the Americans a practice match but has been placed in an unsatisfactory position as buffer between the American players and the French executive committee.

Meanwhile the Americans are practicing with a vengeance and tackling one another as hard as they would their opponents in the Olympic competition. Assistant Manager Austin this afternoon had to curtail the energy of Rogers, O'Neill, Manelli, Cunningham and Muldoon, who were tackling too earnestly. Cunningham injured two newly mended ribs which were broken in one of the English matches.

Hardigs Beat Dusky Giants

The Hardigs baseball team defeated the Dusky Giants at the Fairgrounds Tuesday afternoon by a score of 12 to 6. The game was loose until the seventh inning when a succession of hits netted 6 runs for the Hardigs.

SPORTING NOTES

Manager Gilbert of New Orleans has released unconditionally Hep Ripperton, infielder, and Rip King, catcher.

Smoky Dixon, a Mobile semi-pro, has signed with the Laurel team of the Cotton States League. He has been working out with the Mobile team for the past month.

Billy Gleason, second baseman of Memphis, has fully recovered from the broken leg he received last year, judging from his stellar playing for the Chicks this season.

Gordon Maguire, an outfielder obtained by Mobile from Rockford last year, has been placed on the voluntarily retired list by the Bears. He is suffering from an eye trouble and was unable to report. Mobile has released Infielders Hawley, Rollins, and Bruner and Clark and Pitcher Moulton.

The Memphis Chicks got down to the 18-player limit by the release of Sedgwick and Daily, pitchers, to the Spartanburg Club of the South Atlantic league; Sam Vick, outfielder, to Laurel of the Cotton States League, and the unconditional release of Mike Massey, outfielder and Otto Kraft, pitcher.

Southpaw Bob Bear has been sold by Atlanta to Jersey City. The Crackers also released Pitcher Doriy Miller to Greensboro, N. C., of the Piedmont League; Manley Llewellyn, pitcher to Little Rock and Roscoe Sheppard, pitcher, and Frank Bassel, a catcher to Greenville, S. C., in the South Atlantic league.

As usual, Atlanta capped the cup for the largest attendance on opening day. There were 14,216 fans on hand, 5,000 more than the next nearest team. Mobile won the cup given to the winner of the smaller cities division. The other attendances were: Birmingham 9,314; New Orleans, 7,700; Memphis, 7283; of the larger cities and Mobile 9,245; Nashville 8,622; Little Rock, 6,026 and Chattanooga 4,028.

Lou Payne has signed to play first base for Grand Rapids of the Michigan-Ontario League. He was with the team last year, but at the close of the season announced that he would retire from the game. Ted Teske, late of the Kansas City American Association team has also joined the Bill Bobs.

Hornell baseball fans went to the rescue of Scott Perry, former Athletic pitcher, and got him out of jail where he was held on a petty larceny charge. They made up a pot of $73 and gave it to Perry's former landlord who charged the pitcher had stolen from him. The charge was then withdrawn.

Jack Flynn, former Eastern League manager and first baseman, has been appointed coach by Providence College to succeed Joey Connolly, resigned. Flynn played four years for Holy Cross and later major and minor league ball. He played first base for Drafting of a schedule for the Southwestern League has been delayed because of objections launched by Coffeyville and Independence. A new committee has been named to work out a schedule. The league is made up of Eureka, Emporia, Newton, Coffeyville, Independence, Arkansas City and Salina, in Kansas and Enid in Oklahoma. The season will open May 2.

John C. (Red) Oldham, left-handed pitcher, who is carried on the Detroit Club's ineligible list, has been denied reinstatement by Commissioner Landis, who says he might be restored to good standing after a period of one year. Oldham thinks that if he is kept out of organized ball for one year his effectiveness will be gone. He pitched in the San Joaquin League last year.

The directors of the Appalachian League have adopted a schedule for the 1924 season, calling for 121 games and a divided season, the first half closing July 9. Double headers are to be played each Saturday after June 1. Because of financial difficulties in some of the smaller towns in recent years, the directors agreed to a division of gate receipts in all places, 60 per cent to the home club and 40 per cent to the visiting club.

Legal difficulties are expected over the old Nebraska State League franchise in Lincoln. The Lincoln franchise which was crowded out by the re-entry of Lincoln in the Western League is supposed to be that now held by Sioux Falls, S. D., a member of the new Tri-State League. According to C. N. Moon and the two Belzer brothers of Lincoln, they received nothing for their holdings which they value at least at $750. Secretary Farrell says he cannot interfere in the matter.

Jack Knight, veteran infielder, is not eligible to play with Salt Lake, according to a ruling by Secretary Farrell. He has been held to be the property of the Denver team of the Western League. The ruling is based on a so-called time limit sale which Oakland, who owned him, had made with Denver. Denver, it appears, did not file any papers in the deal, and Knight was permitted to go out and find himself a job which he did with Salt Lake. Incidentally Jack was doing fine work. A fight looms over the ruling.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, May 6.—Stock prices showed a reactionary tone at the opening of today's market on selling undoubtedly inspired by the senate's adoption of the 40 per cent maximum surtax clause in the tax bill, but they made irregular recovery later with important accumulation being reported in several investment issues.

Trading was again relatively light in volume. This was attributed to the absence of public interest and the disinclination of professional traders to extend their commitments pending the final determination of the tax, soldier bonus and other important legislative measures.

Active buying operations were again limited to a select assortment of stocks of which Consolidated Gas, Colorado Fuel, Davison Chemical, American Smelingt and Refining and Kennecott were the features.

U. S. Steel common moved within a radius of about one point, closing 1-4 higher at 98 3-4. Baldwin, American Can and Studebaker, the other so-called pivotal stocks, also showed fractional recessions on the day.

Revival of interest in the copper group apparently was based on the more optimistic tenor of recent statements of the leaders of the industry. April shipments of the red metal, both foreign and domestic, were reported to be unusually high. New top prices for the year were established by American Smelting at 64 3-8 and Kennecott at 39.

Oils were again under the pressing influence of the recently published statistics on March gasoline production, although a better tone was apparents in the late dealings as a result of more optimistic reports concerning current consumption. Local public utilities displayed a firm tone on buying reported to have been influenced by the recent increase in local telephone rates.

Rail shares held relatively firm with good buying reported in St. Paul common and preferred, Texas and Pacific, New York Central, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern and Missouri Pacific preferred.

Strong spots in the special list included General Electric, American Tobacco "B", Brunswick, Coca Cola, Jones Brothers Tea, Reynolds "B" and National Lead, all up a point or more. Woolworth (old stock) jumped nine points and Fisher Body 7 7-8.

Call money again ruled unchanged at 3½ per cent.; time money rates continued to ease, loans up to 90 days being available at 4 per cent, 60 and 90 days funds at 4 1-4 and the distant maturities at 4 1-2. Prime commercial paper was unchanged at 4 1-2.

Strength of French francs, which jumped more tha nten points above 6.55 cents, was the feature of the firm foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled about 1-2c higher at $4.38 1-4 and most of the other European rates showed moderate gains.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 6.—Bond prices held firm in today's quiet trading, which was featured only by the recession of Wilson and company convertible obligations to the year's lowest levels. Quiet accumulation of investment railroad issues and a few of the more speculative mortgages strengthened this group but prices changed generally were narrow.

Wilson and Company liens, deprived of banking support pending the company's capital readjustment, were subjected to fresh selling pressure today. The convertible 7 1-2's yielded 3 1-8 points, but the convertible 6's, after touching a new low level, recovered most of their loss. The company's first 6's, which, it is reported, will not be affected materially by new financing, were firm and scored a gain of more than a point on the late buying.

Despite the uneasiness of money rates, Liberty bonds showed a tendency to lag. Prices were shaded fractionally on most issues, with the exception of the third 4 1-4's, which duplicated the year's top price.

Negotiations for a $6,000,000 Peruvian loan were said to be nearing the final stages, with prospects that an offering would be made this week. In view of the government's recent dispute with its financial agents here, the financial district was interested to learn that a new banking group has been formed to handle the sale.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 6.—Cold and wet weather in the Canadian northwest, causing delay to seeding, had a share today in bringing about higher prices here for wheat. The market closed firm at 3-8c net advance, May 1.04 5-8 to 1.04 3-4 and July 1.06 7-8 to 1.07. Corn finished unchanged to 1-8c off, oats at a shade to 3-8c gain and provisions varying from 2c. lower to a rise of 7c.

Enlarged trading here accompanied the rise of values in the wheat market, and especially during the last part of the day there was considerable buying in Chicago against selling at Winnipeg. Talk of a probable ten per cent decrease of the wheat acreage of Saskatchewan had some bullish effect and so too did gossip about likelihood that the Argentine strike would be prolonged, and that Europe would require liberal supplies of wheat before harvest. Besides, the Winnipeg market has gained on the Chicago market recently so that the two markets were less than one cent apart.

Improved milling demand here for wheat today helped give more confidence to the buying side of the wheat market in general. The milling purchases were of no great volume, but taken in connection with hopeful indications as to foreign trade were sufficient to evoke comment, particularly in view of the late steady European absorption of big imports of wheat. It was pointed out that world shipments to date has been ahead of the previous season, and that the Canadian visible supply has fallen to seven million bushels less than the total a year ago.

Coarse grains lagged as compared with wheat, except that May oats were in demand from cash house. The corn market was adversely affected by slowness of eastern shipping call and by sales into store here.

Moderate buying on the part of packers steadied provisions.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 6.—Price fluctuations in today's quiet curb market were extremely narrow and irregular in most of he tactive stock. Heavy selling of Durant Motors followed the announcement that the stockholders would be asked to increase the capital from 2,000,000 to $3,000,000 shares of no par value in order to acquire Star motors was the individual feature. The stock dropped to 16 7-8 and then rallied to 17 1-2 for a net loss of 1 1-2 on the day.

Changes in the oil group were rather mixed, gains of 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points by Prairie Oil and Gas, Imperial of Canada and Swan and Finch being counteracted by losses of approximately a point each in Buckeye Pipe, South Pennsylvania Oil and Standard Oil of Nebraska. Standard Oil of Indiana closed unchanged at 58 1-2. Woodley Petroleum established another new high record for the year at 11 1-2 on reports that the company had brought in a 1,000 barrel-a-day well in the Smackover field.

Grades Stores continued to improve in further reflection of increased earnings. Public utilities held relatively firm. Radio issues showed slight improement.

Copper shares moed up in sympathy with the improvement recorded by those issues on the "big board."

METAL MARKET

New York, May 6.—Spot copper firmer, electrolytic spot and nearby 1 3-8; futures 13 3-8 a 13 1-2. Tin easy, spot and nearby 47.75; futures 46.87; Iron steady and unchanged; Lead quiet, spot 7.50 a 7.75. Zinc quiet, East St. Louis spot and nearby 5.82 a 5.86. Antimony, spot 9.00.

COTTON

New York, May 6.—Spot cotton quiet, middling 30.25.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mr. and Mrs. George Bosworth expect to move to West Hartford this week. Wendell Bosworth, who conducts the store, will succeed his brother as postmaster.

Misses Ethel and Fanny Upham and Mrs. Everett May attended the "fair" and entertainment at the Congregational church, Webster, Friday evening.

Irene Bosworth, 4, while playing at the home of her grandfather, J. A. Paine, at English Neighborhood, fell and broke her arm.

The last union social of the season is to be held at North Woodstock on Friday evening. The program will be given by entertainers from the Hill and East parishes.

At the thank offering meeting to be held in the chapel May 14 at 2:30 o'clock Miss Ellen Anderson, a missionary for 33 years in China, will give an address. The women from all the churches in town have been invited to attend. Mrs. F. A. Jordan is hostess.

Paul Swenson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swenson, and Miss Agnes Anderson were married last Friday at the Swedish parsonage by Rev. K. A. Anderson. They left by automobile for a short trip. The groom has been in the employ of William C. Child and they will occupy the cottage which has been fitted up for them.

If Hollingsworth had been allowed to go through the entire game against Mobile, on April 16, he would have probably set a record for bases on balls. He was taken out of the box after pitching one and two-thirds innings, during which time he gave seven passes.

Mary Pickford
in "DOROTHY VERNON OF HADDON HALL"
From the romantic novel by Charles Major
Adapted by Waldemar Young
A Marshall Neilan Production
Photography by Charles Rosher
Mary Pickford never so supremely beautiful
Never so splendid a portrayal as that of the vixenish miss of eighteen who braves parental wrath, faces treachery, intrigue, and even treason, to wed her heart's choice.
Beauty marks every phase of this classic.

REPUBLICANS WILL HEAD TICKET WITH E. W. PERKINS FOR MAYOR

Selection of Attorney Edmund W. Perkins as the republican candidate for mayor in the June election was made by a meeting of the republican town committee Tuesday evening at the office of the committee chairman, Judge Arthur F. Libby. Mr. Perkins, it is understood while not seeking the nomination, has signified his willingness to accept the nomination if it should be offered to him and the committee is confident that he will make a strong candidate to head the ticket.

The committee discussed the names of a number for nomination for aldermen and councilmen but took no definite action on them, pending a conference with Attorney Perkins and an agreement as to what other men shall make up the ticket.

The name of Stephen H. Reeves will again be upon the ticket as a candidate for city treasurer and Capt. Charles A. Hagberg for water commissioner while Charles H. Raynes and Maurice Looby will be the candidates for city sheriff.

ST. PATRICK'S BOY SCOUTS APPEAR IN MINSTRELS

The Boy Scouts of St. Patrick's church entertained large sized audiences Tuesday afternoon and evening in the church assembly hall when they presented an excellent minstrel show. The attendance at each performance numbered about 500. The stage setting was blue and white and a basket of begonias and pines loaned by Hawkins, the florist, added much to the appearance of the stage. The end men were James Casey, John Marks, William Shannon and James Moore. One of the features was a banjo solo by Robert Kirkup.

The programme was as follows: Opening chorus, Old Black Joe; My Pal, James Casey; Blue Hoosier Boy, William Brewer; Oh, Susanna, James Nickerson; Little Pal of Long Ago, Rev. Rocco Guerriero, William Shannon, James Casey, Raymond Cote; Just a Girl That Men Forget, William Shannon; It Ain't Going to Rain Any More, James Moore; I Love You, Walter LaFontaine; If the Rest of the World Don't Want You, Go Home to Mother and Dad, Raymond Cote, Daniel Mack, James Nickerson, Raymond Coyle; I'm Going South, Raymond Coyle; Down in Kokomo, James Casey and company; closing chorus.

Following is a list of those in the chorus: John King, Ed Hamil, Jas. Nickerson, T. Lafreniere, N. Holmes, James Fox, Ernest Cotuire, James Casey, Patsy Ferri, Thomas Riley, Joseph Finnegan, Raymond Coyle, John F. Cox, Francis Riley, Thomas Toomey, John Barry, Raymond Cote, Joseph Longo, Arthur Connor, Daniel Mack, Ormond Perry, John Englehardt, Anthony Kirker, Joseph Bunn, Arthur Cote, H. Ziegelmayer, John Marks, John McKenna, Henry Vignot, James Fitzgerald, Charles Drew, William Dunn, Jos. Boldrighine, John Foley, Louis Hazam, Wm. Shannon, James Moore, Russell Aldrich, Edward Lord.

The musicians, who volunteered their services for the evening were: Frank Zukowski, violin; A. Fournier, cornet; George Moore, Drums; Robert Kirsiup, banjo; Leonard Suntheimer, saxaphone; Mrs. Bernard Coyle, pianist and accompanist.

Following is the committee in charge of the minstrels: Rev. R. J. Guerriero, John P. Corcoran; Leonard Suntheimer, scoutmaster; Fred Addi, scoutmaster; John Hill, scoutmaster.

Those who gave their services as ushers were Stanley Blum, John Kelly and Arthur Brock.

300 NORWICH DOGS CARRYING DEATH WARRANTS

About 300 Norwich dogs are at present trotting around the streets on the brink of eternity without knowing it. The little brass tags that they have worn for a year as a license to live have been converted into a death warrant since the first of May.

Information of this fact in getting their dogs licensed at the town clerk's office by the first of May leaves the animals legitimate game for the dog warden to hunt and corral such as still carry their 1923 brass checks. Within a day or two the dog warden will be supplied a list of the unlicensed dogs and when he has captured one of these animals it will cost the owner $3 to redeem him from the pound.

Owners who still want to save their pets from this peril can do so by getting them licensed at once with the town clerk and paying a dollar extra for their delay. As only about 1,250 dogs have so far been licensed for 1924, Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook figures that there are about 500 more that need their 1924 tags.

GAS PIPE TO BE LAID, CONTRACT PRICE $11,562

A contract for laying 15,000 feet of gas pipe on Boswell avenue and in Norwich Town and Taftville has been awarded by the board of gas and electrical commissioners for $11,562 to the Connecticut Engineering and Contracting Co., the lowest bidder.

The bids made were as follows:—M. T. Miller company, $13,230; Archibald Torrance, $13,401; Carroll & Fenton, $11,775; Connecticut Engineering company, $11,562.

Join United Church.

Into the fellowship of the United Congregational church were received Sunday the following: By confession, Miss Lucy G. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Dickie, Mrs. C. E. Saunders, Mrs. Abby M. Schofield; by letter, John MacDougall Buchanan, Mrs. Herbert Buchanan, Miss Elizabeth Cameron MacDougall, Mrs. Archibald MacDougall.

MORE VESSELS COMING TO SUBMARINE BASE

This week's issue of The Base Newspaper says:

Within a few days the waterfront of the base will present a very busy appearance. Besides the submarines of Division Two which we are accustomed to see here, and the usual two or three other submarines in for repairs, the destroyers Mahan and Maury, and the mine sweepers Lark and Mallard of Mine Squadron one, will be docked at piers H and I. The crews of these vessels will add considerably to the population of the base.

On May 15, the Savannah, flagship of the Control Force, Admiral Taylor in command, will anchor in New London harbor. She will be accompanied by the Camden and the submarines of Division Eleven. Also the mine layer Shawmut will be at New London for the greater part of the summer, so that the navy personnel of this vicinity will be greatly increased during the next few months.

MRS. FARRELL RESIGNS FROM STATE COMMITTEE

Mrs. Frank L. Farrell of 262 Washington street, who for two years past has been a member of the democratic state central committee from the 19th senatorial district, has resigned from the committee, having sent in her resignation early this week. Late Tuesday afternoon after her resignation became known here, several of the party workers saw her with a request to reconsider but her answer was that she had definitely decided to withdraw from the committee.

During the time that she has been a member, she has given complete satisfaction with the way she has handled her committee duties and the prty work that has been entrusted to her has been well taken care of.

MAY BASKET HUNG BY GRADUATING CLASS

A pleasant surprise on Miss Estelle Sampson of Baltic was enjoyed Monday evening when the graduating class at St. Joseph's school hung a May basket in honor of her birthday. Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served by Mrs. Wm. Sampson, assisted by Myrtle Buteau and Hedwidge Sampson. Among those present were the Misses Doris Buteau, Gertrude Blain, Raymond Douvelle, Charles Lay, Joseph Vian, Leo Gaucher and Alonzo Desauteles.

Summer School of Religious Education

The sixth annual session of the Connecticut Summer School of Religious Education will be held at Wesleyan University, Middletown, from June 24 to July 5. Prof. Roland H. Bainton of the Yale Divinity school, New Haven, will give ten lectures in church history and Dr. Owen C. Brown, editor in chief of the American Baptist Publishing society, Philadelphia, will speak each day at the vesper service in the chapel. Miss Nannie Lee Frayser of Louisville, Ky., well known author and educator, will deliver two series of lectures, illustrating her material with her charming stories.

Mr. and Mrs. Mabrey Returning.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mabrey, who have spent the season at St. Petersburg, Florida, and have visited Southern Pines on their way north, are leaving Washington today (Wednesday) for a brief visit at the home of Mr. Mabrey's son, the Nelson Mabrey, at Milton, Penn. They expect to return to New London and to the beach the coming week.

Paid For Motor Law Violation.

(Special) to The Bulletin.)

Oneco, May 6.—Monday night State Policeman A. W. Williams, upon complaint of Grand Juror Frank A. Hazard, presented Joseph White, five days less than 16 years of age, before Justice C. B. Montgomery for violation of motor vehicle laws. He plead guilty and paid $50 and costs of court.

Beautiful Tulips at Court House.

The bed of red and white tulips at the court house, real Holland bulbs, is now in full bloom, presenting a beautiful sight which is at its best between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. They have responded well to the care given them by Superintendent Joseph J. Fields and are now at their best.

City Court Cases

There was a short session of the city court Tuesday morning and several men charged with intoxication were brought before the court. Two men unable to pay fines and costs were sent to jail to work out their fines.

What a Difference!

AND there's just as big a difference in the methods of vacuum cleaning. This is the day of the Vacuette—the wire-less, non-electric vacuum cleaner. Hundreds of thousands of women are using it every day. So are hotels, railroads and public buildings. The Vacuette cleans wonderfully, using revolving brush and deep cleaning suction combined. No cords to untangle—no light plugs to bother with. Light, easily handled and absolutely troubleless. Remarkably inexpensive to buy. Convenient payments if you desire them. A demonstration in your own home places you under no obligation. Why not phone for one?

One never sees a European or an American who has not that pasty, bloodless look which speaks of ill health and lack of vitality. I do not think it necessary to refer to the well known fact that every child born of European parents in this country, precociously developed because of the country, must be sent back home before the age of six. I heard a father say, "I have just said farewell to my kiddies. It will be two years before I can get to England to see them." None of these foreign residents ever dare deviate a moment from the rule in regard to uncooked food and unboiled water. The consequences are severe and often fatal.

We did not find Calcutta as interesting as Bombay or Delhi or Agra. It is too modern and I didn't travel the globe to find modern cities. I have those at my front door. The Buddhist Pagoda, called by some the Great Jewish Box of the world, is a marvelous elaboration of the goldsmith's art. It is chiseled in a lacelike pattern, covered with mosaic, made of marble and glass mirrors. The Victoria Memorial is a very beautiful building and very interesting. The present postoffice covers the spot once known as the Black Hole of Calcutta. We were there on the Hindu New Year and saw thousands go in the Ganges for a bath. Then, for excitement, they threw a pulverized red powder over their bodies, in a manner similar to the way we might throw confetti on a gala day. This powder, when it hits the body that is warm (because it was warm—108 degrees in the shade) immediately turned into paint. It was disgusting. Yet they called it a good time. Here we saw again the Burning Ghats and the Bathing Ghats.

Bengal is the largest province of India, with an area of 151, 185 square miles and it has a larger population than the whole of our United States, and more than half a million are Christians. Calcutta is the largest city of Bengal. The Bengal name is "Kalighat," which means the bathing place of the Black Goddes, Kali. Most of the people are given to idolatry. The temple of the Black Goddes is found on the outskirts of the city. It is not noted for its beauty, for it is a picture of darkness and wretchedness, a fit emblem for the religion it represents. Kali, sometimes called the Bloody Goddes, is supposed to be the keeper of Siva, the god of destruction. She is represented as a black or dark blue woman with four arms. In one hand she has a sword, in the other the head of the giant she has slain. With the two others she is encouraging her worshippers. For earrings she has two dead bodies, and she wears a necklace of skulls. Her only [illegible] is a girdle made of dead men's hands and her tongue protrudes from her mouth. Her eyes are as red as a drunkard's and her breasts are besmeared with blood. The sacred books say that after her victory over the giant she danced for joy so furiously that the earth trembled beneath her weight, and, today, the mothers of India carry their babes to her shrine and, laying them prostrate before the idol, press their little faces to the dust.

Bengal People Small.

The people of Bengal are a beautiful race of light complexion and graceful figure. They have good intellects and many are highly educated. Some of the jewelers that we saw had had the advantages of education and were pleasing to talk to. They were above the average of any country. For the most part, the people are small in stature, with small feet and hands. The men go with their feet shod (except our waiter who goes barefooted. Isn't that appetizing?) and the head bared, while the women cover their heads and faces and never wear shoes, but wear anklets and rings on their toes. It has been said that the women love their children more passionately than the mothers of other nations. This may be so, but I think that they show more blind love for their children because they have so little else to love. The companionship between husband and wife is not like it is in other lands, as woman is considered so much man's inferior. There is no home life. In fact, there is no such word as home in the Bengali language. They have "baree" or "ghar," meaning a house or place of abode. The men and wife never eat together. He eats first and she after and eats what remains on his plate. They usually eat on the floor, sitting on some matting and eating off of brass plates with their fingers, using the right hand only. This is their native custom which they enjoy. All I can say is "Ain't nature grand" and "I thank God I was born in Norwich."

Child Marriage.

Child marriage is practiced here in its most terrible form, the man seldom marrying until he is from 18 to 26 years old, and then he marries a little girl from 4 to 9 years of age. The upper classes of woman are shut up in the Yenna, a convent-like place, and, until late years, women of all classes were uneducated, and even now, the masses are illiterate. Can you imagine eight men carrying a piano for several miles or men carrying a large heavy safe on their heads and women carrying my big wardrobe trunk on their heads? Well, I have seen it and how much do you suppose they get for carrying the trunk? For the feat, they get the munificent sum of four annas, which, in our money, is eight cents, and they are pleased to get that Saw Priceless Jewels.

You can imagine how clean the tile floor in our room was. Cadden dropped his hair brush on the floor and the next day I saw him brushing his hair with a whisk broom. He may deny this to you, but it is an honest-to-God fact. They tell you not to walk without shoes on the bare floor for fear of getting the disease called the hookworm, which enters the body through the feet. I could keep on telling you things about their customs, but it gets on ones nerves. I hope Rangoon is more cheerful and bright. As I said before, I leave India never to return to it again if I can help it. However, now that I have seen it I am glad, but never again for me, and were it not for England and its rule, I can't imagine what would happen there. England controls it all and maintains all the principal executives. It was at the Jain temple which I described as the Great Jewel Box that I saw the name of G. Wyman Carroll registered as a visitor. It seemed good to see that in far away India. When we arrived in Calcutta, a messenger was awaiting Mr. Cadden, and there sure was a treat in store for him. He was to be allowed to see the collection of jewels which is considered to be the finest in the world. I hope he will write to you and tell you of some of the pieces that the old rajah had. Very few people have this opportunity and he can consider himself very lucky. I had a busy day. I got restless and left before it was one-half over, but he is still living it over and over again. They accepted his judgment on several pieces and I really never knew it was such a judge of precious and semi-precious stones, but what is it they say of a prophet in [illegible] country?

I want to put you right about this child marriage which is the curse of India and I want to quote from a letter wife of Sir Edward Burrows, New London gave to me, and which she received at the mission which he visited. "During the last four months there have been at least six little Hindu girls married who attend our mission school. The youngest is not yet 7 and the eldest not more than 9 years of age. They represent at least four different castes—one or two belonging to the highest in Hindu society. These little [illegible] were consulted as to their desire in the matter. At first hearing of the arrangements were being made for their marriage, begged her parents with tears, to wait another year, and let her attend school for a while longer, but without avail. These children never saw nor spoke to the man who was to be their lifelong lord and master. The first time they ever beheld him was during the marriage ceremony. If he be blind, crippled, deaf or dumb, tottering with age, or [illegible] serious, less is [illegible] to be her husband. Her dad [illegible] safe, for Saathi advises [illegible] she dare not refuse a decision thus setting aside the heaven right of every woman [illegible] shall be the father of her children. Some will say that this is only betrothal. Those of us who are acquainted with the people and their customs know it is not betrothal. It is binding for life. Should the husband die the next day, she is a widow, bound by all the cruel senseless rules of Hindu widowhood, and can never re-marry. She may be permitted to return to her father's house a few days after her marriage and remain some months, or, in some cases, a year or two, and in rare cases she may be allowed to attend school, although never regularly, but we [illegible] is so binding that her [illegible] claim her at any time [illegible] and her parents [illegible] concerning her, and the law fixing the age of consent at 12 years, many of us know is violated in the city of Calcutta every day of the year. I have been present at the marriage of [illegible] and one of the most heartrending sights is to see the officiating Brahman priests lift the screaming, frightened child, and with the help of a relative, place her in the hands of the man who is to be her husband, and while two or three strong men (no woman is allowed to be present at any part of the ceremony) hold the struggling girl, the [illegible] pronounces her [illegible] which make the objecting child his wife forever." This, I hope, will make it a little clearer, as it is always better to get this information first hand.

I bought some lovely work which was made by the children at the Baptist Mission and is a credit to their instructors.

I wonder if I have written you that a Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hoxie of Westerly, R. I., are fellow passengers aboard the Empress of Canada. We [illegible] the boat more and more each day and the food and table [illegible]

[illegible] Japan tree in [illegible] Calcutta.

[illegible] transported in [illegible] Howrah Harbor to Chandernagore [illegible] Hooghly river, a distance of [illegible] miles, were side-wheelers and reminded me of the old ferry boats they had years ago in New London to ferry the trains over to Groton.

Many Places Ahead.

I hope you all have been well so far this winter. We still have Rangoon, Singapore, Sourabaya, Batavia, Manila, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Peking, and Japan and Hawaii, so you see we have got to go some yet.

The Canadian Laconia, which is bound for around the world with the "Clark's Cruise," is just passing us on [illegible] and for Canada [illegible] Thos. [illegible] cause we have a much larger boat and have only three hundred and six cruise passengers.

If you see James Dawson, tell him I bought some of the bath sponges [illegible] and I have told you all the news that is of interest, so I'll say "Au Revoir."

Give my regards to all, and thank each one for the card on my natal day.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEMROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed.

HEMROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing the blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

POETRY

CHILD'S SONG.

(These verses took the prize in a competition for poems to be sung to music conducted by London Poetry.)

In among the branches, in among the leaves,
Round about the cornfields turning into sheaves,
Hiding in the haystack, sliding on the thatch.
There's a teeny-tiny nobody can catch.

Underneath the apple, underneath the peach,
When you think you've got him, he's twinkled out of reach—
Down beside the fowl-run, out behind the well,
Where he goes and what he knows, nobody can tell.

Bess, the wooly sheep dog, barked and turned aside,
Clover cow and Dainty cow moo'd and scampered wide,
Through the wet forget-me-nots, through the cherry pie,
Something ran and something sang and nobody knows why.

I saw little Martha crying in the sun,
Tippet-tied and clean beside, the morning just begun,
Shoes bluckced, and dolly whacked, and nothing for to spite her,
She's tied the teeny-tiny tight—she couldn't tie no tighter—

But . . . .
In among the branches, in among the leaves,
Round about the cornfields, skipping through the sheaves,
Running up the haystack, sliding down the thatch,
There the teeny-tiny runts that Martha couldn't catch.

—Thomas Day

MY SONGS ARE GONE.

Where are the songs I used to sing
Bred of me, flesh and bone?
Nor words, nor music yet were mine
But Youth's, and Youth is gone.

Through furthest chambers of my brain
Their haunting echoes rang;
So deep they went, I thought them mine
And raised my voice and sang.

Knowledge and passion, fire of men,
Were mine, yes, mine—I heard the tramp
Of feet upon a sounding way
And seized my cloak and lamp

Eager, I pressed into the crowd,
Singing, toward the goal.
The echoes died— trembling I stand,
A beggar with a broken bowl

Government scientists have discovered another reason for getting rid of rats. It is a blood-sucking mite allied with rats in making things annoying and dangerous for man in our southern states. These mites may carry disease. Certainly, when they park on a man where his clothing is tight, their bites are painful and their crawling and running about annoying. It has been found that the way to repress the mites is to kill off rats and spray rat-nests with kerosene.

Congressional Conventions

It was midnight before the congressional district conventions were begun.

The main contest was over the makeup of the state delegation. It had been expected that the party leaders would get an agreement to have eight delegates at large of whom four would be women and ten district delegates, the entire 18 to have the 17 votes to which Connecticut is entitled. This would give a delegate a seven-ninths vote and, thereon the women [illegible] Mrs. Martin [illegible] to Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees and Miss Joseph Whitney. By convention time the leaders had altered their plans and swung around in favor of ten delegates at large with seven-tenths of a vote and ten district delegates with a full vote each. This provided a place for State Chairman Yeomans, and the delegates at large would be Homer C. Cummings, Thomas J. Spellacy, David E. Fitzgerald, William E. Thoms, Mr. Yeomans, Mrs. Welch, Miss Ruutz-Rees, Miss Whitney Mrs. Caine and Mrs. Kennedy. During the convention it was reported that the women did not like the arrangement, but action later of congressional district conventions forecast that the slate would go through.

The confusion which ensued at the minor conventions was due to lack of markers in the seats to indicate the convention meeting places.

After the senatorial districts had ended the congressional conventions opened. In the first, Richard J. Kinsella and Edward G. Dolan were named as delegates. In the third the choice were Thomas J. Cahill of New Haven and James J. Walsh, of Meriden. In the other district there were long contests with roll calls, and three such calls at one time amid noise caused by delegates moving about made the task a long one. Litchfield county and of the fifth district chose John Heffernan, of Torrington over E. O. Wagner, of Salisbury, 47 to 40, and he was selected, and Peter FitzHenry of Waterbury was the choice for the New Haven end.

In the fourth district the three cornered contest was with Archibald McNeil, Jr., of Bridgeport, and Martin Cuff, of Danbury combined against former Senator Jeremiah Donovan, of Norwalk. The latter's cause was sponsored by Judge Tierney, of Greenwich, who charged a "deal" between McNeil and Cuff as against Donovan. Homer S. Cummings presided and there was much argument among the delegates. A roll call to determine whether the vote should be singly or for two together was decided sixty-six to sixty in the latter way which was a victory for the McNeil-Cuff combination. Both were chosen but the Donovan supporters threatened to appeal to the state convention tomorrow.

In the second district there were roll calls and on the first one Raymond J. Judson, of Sprague was named as delegate. Frank P. Fenton, of Windham won for second delegate beating James F. Cooney, of Middletown and Timothy Murphy. After New Fairfield and Bethel delegates were not permitted to vote.

Meantime, Chairman Guilfoile had postponed until morning the meeting of committees such as resolutions, credentials and permanent organization.

Mr. Guilfoile will be the permanent chairman, and the convention roll call will be adopted as it stood tonight.

HONEYWELL UNABLE TO PARTICIPATE IN FLIGHT

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—Captain H. E. Honeywell, veteran St. Louis aeronaut, who won second in the recent national elimination balloon race, announced tonight he might be unable to act as one of the three United States representatives in the international race starting from Brussels, June 15. He has participated in six previous international contests.

Captain Honeywell said the international cooperative club, with which he had been negotiating, today telegraphed its decision not to finance the trip because its budget would not permit.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Japanese Cabinet May Resign.

Tokio, May 7 (By the A. P.)—Reports that the cabinet will resign shortly are receiving increasing attention and space in vernacular newspapers. Two reasons are assigned, first, the "diplomatic failure" regarding the United States immigration ban, and, second, the improbability of government supporters obtaining a majority in the general election next Saturday.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The senate took up the Jones proposal for a graduated corporation tax.

The house shipping board committee examined T. L. Clear, treasurer, of the fleet corporation.

The Fairfield bill was reported to the house to provide independence for the Philippines after 20 years.

President Coolidge and republican leaders discussed plans to clear the congressional calendars for adjournment in June.

Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, and J. W. Zevely, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, were witnesses before the oil grand jury.

Ambassador Warren at Mexico City was instructed to protest against interference by gun boats with American commerce at Frontera.

Protests were heard by the interstate commerce commission on proposals for the installation of the automatic train control system on railroads.

Conferees on the immigration bill decided to report a provision to make Japanese exclusion effective March 1, 1925, with the understanding the gentlemen's agreement would be abrogated.

James Martin Miller before the senate agriculture committee defended the accuracy of his telegram quoting President Coolidge as saying he was "trying to deliver" Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford.

The senate Daugherty committee received a batch of new testimony dealing with the activities of Howard Mannington and events leading to the indictment of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, committee prosecutor.

GERMAN ELECTION RESULT WILL INFLUENCE FRENCH

Paris, May 7.—(By the A. P.)—The result of the German election, in the opinion of political experts, will have some influence on French voters Sunday, driving a certain number of hesitating people from the fence to the camp of the national bloc. Otherwise the only clear thing about the situation is voting day approaches is that no election in France has ever been more confused or uncertain.

The new system by which proportionate representation is supposed to be guaranteed has developed the curious effect of bringing candidates on the same ticket into competition with one another quite as much as the candidates on the opposition tickets. The law provides for a quotient which may be reached by one or two or more candidates on the same ticket while others on the ticket fail.

On the whole, the chances are good for the return of most of the party leaders but the prospects for their lieutenants are much more doubtful on account of the new lineup of parties and coalitions and the great number of dissenting tickets made up by the radicals and socialists who are unwilling to combine with the other parties. This uncertainty has resulted in intense personal campaigns by different candidates on the same tickets, each striving to poll the biggest vote so as to profit from the application of the quotient in case the ticket fails to obtain a majority.

KIDNAPPED BABY WAS FOUND ALIVE AND WELL

Philadelphia, May 7.—The nding today of ten weeks old Corinne Modell, stolen Monday, alive and well in the home of Mrs. Mary De Marco a mile from the Modell home, was followed by the holding of Mrs. De Marco without bail for court charged with kidnapping. Anthony De Marco, her husband, was held in $1,000 bail for a further hearing Monday. He asserted his wife had told him the baby had been born to her Monday while he was at work.

Mrs. De Marco denied that she had snatched the infant from its coach in front of its father's store, declaring that a woman had asked her to hold the child and had failed to come back for it. Dr. M. C. Thrush, the De Marco family physician, however, told detectives, that Mrs. De Marco had confessed to him she stole the baby in order to gratify her husband's desire for a child.

FAVOR INDEPENDENCE OF PHILIPPINES IN 20 YEARS

Washington, May 7.—Absolute independence for the Philippine Islands in twenty years without the necessity of a plebiscite would be granted under the Fairfield bill as favorably reported today by the house insular committee.

The vote on the measure was 11 to 7. As originally prepared the bill, introduced by Representative Fairfield, republican, Indiana, would have provided a plebiscite in the islands after 50 years on the question of remaining under American sovereignty. By today's action the committee struck out this proviso and cut down the period of American sovereignty to 20 years.

GOVERNMENT ANSWERS TO FORBES' ALLEGATION

Chicago, May 7.—Formal denial of charges of irregularities in the grand jury proceedings as made by Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States' veterans bureau, who was indicted for conspiracy and bribery charges here, was made in the government's answer to Forbes' allegation. The answer was on file today.

All charges were categorically denied by John W. H. Crim, assistant attorney-general, who had charge of the grand jury. Mr. Crim's answer is in reply to Forbes' motion to quash the indictments in which he and John A. Thompson, Chicago and St. Louis contractor were named.

ARBITERS DECIDE ON WAGE REDUCTION FOR SHOE WORKERS

Haverhill, Mass., May 7.—A net wage reduction of 20 per cent effective immediately in third grade factories will be recommended by a board of arbitration considering the shoe wage situation in this city, the board announced tonight. The same differential will apply to other factories subject to hearings for which the board has made provision.

Murder Rate Has Doubled in 24 Years

Growth of Lawlessness and Crime in U. S. is Without Parallel in Social History of Other Nations.

New York, May 7.—In an analysis of the 1923 homicide record, Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, writing in today's issue of the Spectator, an insurance journal, asserts that the murder rate in the United States practically has doubled in the past 24 years.

Dr. Hoffman, who is an insurance agent, describes the growth of lawlessness and crime as "without a parallel in the social history of other nations." The trend is still upward, he states.

No homicides were reported in 1923 in the following Massachusetts cities: Brockton, Concord, Holyoke, Lynn, Salem, Chelsea, Haverhill, New Bedford and Quincy.

A decline in homicide rates also was shown in several cities, including New York, Baltimore, Buffalo, Dayton, O., Erie, Pa., Oakland, Calif., Pueblo, Col., Richmond, Va., Sacramento, and San Diego, Savannah, Springfield, Ill., and St. Paul.

The murder rate among the white population in 1922 was 5.6 for each 100,000. Among the negro population the rate 30.7.

RESULT OF INDIANA PRIMARY VICTORY FOR KU KLUX KLAN

Indianapolis, May 7.—(By the A. P.)—Ku Klux Klan influence, an open factor in the pre-primary republican contest that ended Tuesday, was felt with tremendous force tonight when virtually complete returns showed that Ed Jackson, secretary of state, and candidate for governor having klan support, had gained a majority vote that precluded the contest being thrown into the state convention later this month.

Mayor Lew Shank of Indianapolis, avowed klan opponent and closest rival of Jackson in the six-man contest, fell 100,000 votes behind the leaders as returns continued to pile un 24 hours after the closing of the polls. Jackson's vote was 162,131 against 141,069 for all his opponents when 2,900 of the 3,4009 precincts of the state had been tabulated tonight.

While the klan issued dominated interest in the pre-primary republican fight, the voting strength of the klan also appeared on the face of returns in the democratic gubernatorial contest. Likewise the anti-klan sentiment within the party expressed itself but neither of the candidates having its support or the support of its opponents was able to gain a plurality vote Dr. Carleton B. McCulloch of Indianapolis, who did not enter into any discussion on the klan, gained a big plurality vote but was so far behind the combined vote of his seven opponents that the nomination was thrown into the state convention.

The only contest for president preference was between President Coolidge and Senator Hiram Johnson. From the start the president's strength was so overwhelming that interest waned. In 2,857 precincts Coolidge got 237,222 votes against 43,585 for Johnson, thereby gaining Indiana's 33 delegates to the national convention.

AMERICAN CENTER OF WORLD SECURITIES MARKET

New York, May 7.—Predicting that the New York Stock Exchange soon would be called upon to facilitate a continual export of surplus American capital abroad by the marketing of foreign securities here, Seymour L. Cromwell, retiring president of the exchange, declared in his annual address to members today that America's leading securities market was coming to its maturity as part of a genuine international center of credit.

"If the exchange is to assist with its indispensable financial services the older but now embarrassed nations of Europe," Mr. Cromwell said, "it will but repay an historic debt to those countries whose bourses and stock exchanges formerly played so vast a part in financing American railroad and industrial developments, and who at times provided for the maintenance of our very government by distributing to European investors our public and corporate securities.

"The outlook for genuine and definite settlement of European war claims seems peculiarly auspicious," the head of the stock exchange asserted. "The new opportunity of international service which the eventuality of heavy foreign financing here would open would prove at once an undoubted responsibility and a genuine patriotic opportunity to the New York stock exchange."

COALITION DOMINATES TAX BILL IN THE SENATE

Washington, May 7.—The senate republican insurgents-democratic coalition voted another amendment into the revenue bill tonight, substituting a graduated tax on undistributed profits of corporations for the present corporation levy.

The vote was 43 to 32.

The amendment was put forward by Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico, and was endorsed at a conference of the minority party. President Coolidge had made known his opposition to the proposal and republican organization leaders strenuously fought its adoption.

Then the senate accepted without a record vote an amendment offered by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, substituting an inheritance for the present estate tax.

This action virtually concluded disposition of controversial provisions of the measure, including all committee amendments, except for the gift tax which will be taken up tomorrow. This tax was written into the measure by the house, but knocked out by the finance committee.

BECAUSE OF MOTHER'S DEATH DAUGHTER SUES FATHER

Winsted, Conn., May 7.—With no material evidence to offer against Joseph T. Spoth, of Sharon, charged with being criminally responsible for the death of his wife, who was beaten over the head with an iron pipe on the night of March 17, Thomas Ryan, counsel for Spoth's daughter, who is suing her father for $10,000 damages because of her mother's death, after reading the coroner's decision today, rested his case until the trial will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Three Collisions Of Runaway Surface Car

Score of Persons Were Injured —Telescoped a Passenger Car Taking on Passengers in the Bronx.

New York, May 7.—A score of persons were injured this evening when a Bronx surface car, out of control dashed down the steep 155th street hill, crashed into a taxicab and a touring car and ended its dash when it telescoped a car taking on passengers at the foot of the decline. The runaway car left behind it a string of injured for a quarter of a mile.

Although no one was fatally hurt, ambulances rushed to the scene and carried a dozen persons to hospitals where they were treated for bruises and lacerations. Others were taken home by automobilists. The occupants of the touring car refused medical attention as did the four occupants of the taxicab, one of whom was said to be a brother of Eddie Cantor, comedian.

TESTIMONY BY BURNS IN DAUGHTEY INVESTIGATION

Washington, May 7.—A sudden return to the more lurid fields of its inquiry was made today by the senate Daugherty investigating committee.

M. S. Kruffmiller, 20, tenant with Howard Mannington of the "Little Green House of K Street," in Washington, during the early months of the Harding administration came unheralded to the stand, to tell of money payments, liquor deals, and liquor permits, all based on the "closeness" Maningotn was alleged to have had to former Attorney General Daugherty, while W. J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, introduced a fighting phase to the inquiry during examination as to the Montana indictments against Senator Wheeler, the democratic prosecutor fro hte committee, in a half hour of sharp questions and answers.

A sheaf of checks and a batch of photostatic reproductions of other checks, came into the Kraffmiller examination, and the witness identified some of them as having been made by him or passed under his knowledge by Manington. He testified that he came to Washington upon the Harding inauguration, to live with Manington, as a sequel to an acquaintanceship which began in 1920, when he gave Manington, then at Marion, Ohio, some $12,000 or $15,000 to defray costs of President Harding's front porch campaign.

In Washington, Kraffmiller said, he paid Manington $15,000 out of $20,000 paid by the General Drug company, of Chicago for liquor permits, and $25,000 furnished by J. B. Shever company of the same city, for the same purpose.

Manington, at whose home he saw George Christian, then secretary to President Harding, Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger, Jess W. Smith, the late companion of Mr. Daugherty would not "let him in," on deals in New York "affecting liquor permits," Kraffmiller testified.

They did share, however, fees paid by other concerns for representation in tax controversies and shipping board claims, and Frey A. Caskey, another resident of the "Little Green House," got some portion of the money, as legal fees. The witness named various individuals, including Will Orr, as having some connection with the New York liquor permits, and said that Manington went to "Louisiana and then Mexico," when indictments were brought against Orr.

Mr. Burns testified that Gaston B. Means, now agent of the committee, was being "shadowed" by his instructions, at the request of federal prosecutors in New York, but denied that Bonner, the secret agent assigned to the work had made away with the diaries and documents whose loss Means reported some days ago.

He conceded likewise that at former Attorney General Daugherty's request, last March, he assigned Ralph Healey, a federal agent now dead, to lock up Senator Wheeler's record, but he denied with heat that the Burns detective agency had ever entered into the service of George B. Lockwood, secretary of the republican national committee in investigating Montana incidents which have led to Senator Wheeler's indictment. Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Daugherty had discussed that investigation, he added in his presence.

U. S. CHAMBER OPPOSES EXCLUSION OF JAPANESE

Cleveland, May 7.—(By the A. P.)—Business men firmly gripped a thorny problem of state today and gave expression to the view that American industry is without sympathy for Japanese exclusion by law.

A resolution expressing the sense of the meeting that "friendly negotiation" instead of congressional enactment should offer the approach to the solution of the Japanese immigration problem was unanimously adopted by the foreign commerce section of the twelfth annual convention of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

Subject to approval of the board of directors the declaration will be submitted to the final plenary session of the convention. Leaders in the convention anticipate ratification of the expression by a safe minority.

Introduced by Edward A. Filene of Boston and by three representatives of Pacific Coast states, the resolution was unanimously adopted by approximately 400 members of the foreign commerce section.

Among the spectators at the session, presided over by Charles E. Weed, of Boston, was Iwao Nishi, New York, commercial attache to the Japanese embassy.

Introduction of the resolution followed an address on "foreign trade from the standpoint of the western states" by Robert N. Lynch, vice president of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, which was concluded with an apparently studied presentation of the opposition viewpoint on the exclusion issue. In the remarks of the speakers who followed, there was only reaffirmation of Mr. Lynch's arguments.

Before encountering the exclusion problem today the convention was occupied chiefly with giving approval to a broad transportation report submitted by a special committee named to formulate a unified transportation policy.

TO DEFER THE EXCLUSION OF JAPANESE TILL MARCH, 1925

At the Insistence of President Coolidge the Conferees Have Reconsidered Their Decision to Report For Exclusion July 1, 1924 — Agreement Reached With the Understanding That a Formal Abrogation of the Gentlemen's Agreement Be Negotiated.

Washington, May 7.—President Coolidge by strenuous last-minute efforts today obtained from senate and house immigration bill conferees an agreement to recommend postponement of statutory Japanese exclusion until March 1, 1925. Such postponement would give the state department opportunity to negotiate with Japan for exclusion by treaty.

Confronted with the prospect of exclusion effective July 1, next, as agreed to yesterday by the conferees, the president held a number of hurried conferences with the result that the conference committee at a session late in the day rescinded their previous action and voted for the new effective date.

Insistence by the president for the delay in operation of the exclusion section was the reason given by the conferees for their unusual action. Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, was spokesman for the conference, said the new provision had been proposed by the house members "at the request of the president," and had been accepted by the senate members for that reason.

The new effective date was suggested by the president to Chairman Johnson of the house conferees, during a conference this morning at the White House. Senator Reed was also called to discuss the question with Mr. Coolidge, and previous to his conversations with the immigration conference chairman, the president had sought to enlist the support of republican leaders of the house in a move to make a fight on the house floor in behalf of a deferred date.

The provision, incorporated in the report of the conference committee which will be submitted to the house and senate, recommends insertion in the bill after the section excluding all aliens ineligible to citizenship, of the following clause:

"This sub-division shall not take effect as to exclusion until March 1, 1925, before which time the president is requested to negotiate with the Japanese government in relation to the abrogation of the present agreement on this subject."

The president, in his discussions with the conference chairman, house leaders and also Chairman Lodge of the senate foreign relations committee, was said to have represented strongly that the administration would be hampered in its efforts to reach a solution of the problem by diplomatic means if the time available for negotiations was restricted to July 1, 1924. The executive's original proposal would have deferred statutory exclusion until March 1, 1926, but taking note of yesterday's action of the conferees, he today put forward the March 1, 1925 proposal.

The session of the conferees today was secret but there were indications that the vote by which the president's views were met was not unanimous. Senator Harrison, democrat, Georgia, a member of the senate group announced later that he had voted against reconsideration and would reserve the right to oppose the report when it came to the floor.

Notice that a point of order would be raised in the senate against the report was given by Senator Shortridge, republican, California, as soon as the decision was announced. Not only had the conferees exceeded their authority as measured by [illegible] stated precedents, he [illegible] reasons [illegible] roughly lauded.

The California senator predicted [illegible] termination of July 1, 1924, the effective date would have given ample time for abrogation of the gentlemen's agreement, had that been the real purpose of the delay.

"Of course" he continued, "if there is some ulterior motive, the longer time may be needed. A suspicious man would at once see something suspicious about the whole matter."

Senator Shortridge referred to a ruling by Speaker Clark in a similar situation as setting a precedent which proponents of delay would find it difficult to surmount. The ruling, he said, was in effect that if conferees had authority to extend a date beyond the maximum laid before them, "they could just as legally extend it ten, twenty or forty years, or indefinitely and thus defeat the intent of the legislation."

Efforts of President Coolidge to obtain delay in the effective date of Japanese exclusion have been continuous during the month which has elapsed since the Johnson bill was approved by an overwhelming vote in the house. Even before that date, Secretary Hughes had vigorously opposed any alteration in the existing arrangement by which immigration is controlled at the source by the Tokio government.

The president redoubled his efforts when the senate, reenacting the house provisions, agreed to make them operative upon approval of the immigration law. Repeated conferences were held at the White House with administration leaders in congress, and with Secretary Hughes, who asserted that the measure as sent to conference meant the destruction of twenty years' diplomatic endeavor in the Pacific area.

Western senators active in the fight for exclusion insisted that agreement by both houses had taken that section out of the jurisdiction of the conference committee but other parliamentarians advanced that the theory that the variance in the effective dates offered a point upon which a compromise might be based.

UNIFICATION OF NORTH AND SOUTH M. E. CHURCHES

Springfield, Mass., May 7.—A new chapter in the history of American Methodism was begun today when a report for the unification of the Methodist Episcopal church with the Methodist Episcopal church, South, was ratified by 842 votes to 13 at the general conference of the former body here. The thoughts of the delegates next turned toward Nashville, Tenn., where a general conference will soon be called by the southern church to consider ratification.

It fell to Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington, the second of the bishops in point of seniority and the chairman of the commission which reported the unification plan, to make the speech of the occasion. When he had finished the entire audience rose to its feet with long applause. Fifteen minutes later, when ratification was was accomplished, the 3,000 visitors and delegates joined in the singing of doxology.

COOLIDGE VICTORY IN CALIFORNIA IS ASSURED

San Francisco, May 7.—President Coolidge's lead over Senator Hiram Johnson for California's endorsement for the republican presidential nomination continued to increase in returns late today, the gain being especially apparent as belated tabulations from Los Angeles county came in.

The figures from 5,823 of the state's 6,974 precincts gave Johnson 233,710; Coolidge, 372,309.

The same precincts gave a slate of delegates to the democratic national convention pledged to William G. McAdoo almost a six to one lead over an unpledged group which opposed McAdoo. The figures, also from 5,823 precincts: McAdoo, 97,499, "no preference" delegation 16,891.

The returns were representative of all but one of the state's 53 counties.

EVELYN NESBIT NOT TO CONTEST FREEDOM OF THAW

Atlantic City, N. J., May 7.—"The Thaw millions are too much for a working [illegible] to combat."

Such was the declaration here tonight of Evelyn Nesbit, cabaret entertainer in announcing she had withdrawn her opposition to efforts of Harry K. Thaw to regain his freedom. He was recently declared sane by a jury in Philadelphia, Miss Nesbit denied that any settlement had been made upon herself or upon her son Russell.

Judge Monaghan had set next Sunday for argument on the appeal of a jury's decision, which declared Stanford White's slayer sane. The application was made by William A. Gray, of Philadelphia, counsel for Miss Nesbit.

"Announce to the world that Evelyn was never more fit to take care of herself, but Russell must be provided for under any circumstances," said Thaw's former wife.

Miss Nesbit said that she had written to Mr. Gray of her decision and had received an acknowledgment from his office in his absence.

"My decision in the matter is final," she declared, "I hesitated a long time before reaching a decision, but realized it was no use for a working girl to battle the Thaw millions. I have done more [illegible] degree of success. [illegible] al of the objection [illegible] trustees of the [illegible] whole burden of [illegible] earning good [illegible] count and not [illegible] big odds [illegible] Thaw will have [illegible] vision for him."

TRANSIT OF THE PLANET MERCURY NOT VISIBLE

New Haven, May 7.—The transit of the planet Mercury across the sun was not seen here today nor in any part of the state, as far as could be learned, due to the fact that just a short while before the transit was to begin, the sky clouded up, making it impossible for observations to be taken. Professor Frank Schlesinger, of Yale observatory stated tonight that it will be several years before the transit will take place again and added that in the middle west observations were successfully made today.

WILLIMANTIC

The severe thunderstorm which raged in this city about 11 o'clock Tuesday evening apparently did not cause much damage to the telephone service locally but attempts to reach some of the stations in Norwich were unsuccessful. Up to 12.45 standard time the toll line operators continued to declare the Norwich central out of order.

A bad fire was prevented by the excellent work of the fire department about ten o'clock Wednesday morning, when a blaze broke out in the basement of one wing of St. Mary's parochial school on Valley street. It was caused probably by defective wiring in the cellar of the new stucco addition known as St. Mary's hall, but the fire was confined to the basement and caused a monetary loss estimated at $500, covered by insurance.

The pupils of the first and fourth grades who occupy four of the rooms in the addition were having recess so the building was unoccupied, at the time. An alarm was rung in from Box 53 at the junction of Valley and Jackson streets and members of Engine Company No. 1 with the hook and ladder truck and the LaFrance pumper, also a large delegation of the call men responded. Dense smoke worked up through the building and when the flames started to eat through the floor on the westerly side of the building they were checked by the firelads. Three lines of hose were directed at the flames and the recall was sounded within half an hour. The wiring system of the building was practically ruined. New boards will have to be laid to replace the underflooring of the first floor, which was the ceiling to the basement. The damage to the wiring was the main loss. It was necessary Wednesday to suspend school sessions until the odor of smoke could escape from the rooms. The addition was built in 1915, following a severe fire which destroyed a section of the old wooden structure. The other part of the school is of wood, but was not endangered by the fire Wednesday. The entire school property is covered by $15,000 insurance.

Over one hundred and fifty members of Willimantic chamber of commerce with their young women friends or wives gathered at the annual Ladies Night social at the Al-Pierre Tabarin Tuesday evening. Entertainment, dancing and refreshments were enjoyed. The entertainers were, Miss Elizabeth Otto, pianist; Farrari, accordionist and Neil Paterson, famous Scotch tenor, story teller, dancer and tapping artist. The piano was furnished by the United Music Co. Music for the dancing was by the Peerless orchestra. Favors of colored hats, whistles, toy balloons and fans were distributed. Ice cream and cookies were served by Jacob J. Albro and assistants. Before the entertainment President Valentine T. Murphy delivered a short address of welcome. James B. Fullerton headed the committee on general arrangements comprised: A. E. Green entertainment; James P. Bath, tickets, James B. Fullerton, favors; A. J. Piche, floor manager; Otto B. Robinson, reception and C. J. Allaire, refreshments.

The decorations were by Dawson and consisted of beautiful blossoms and flowering plants. Draperies for the temporary stage used by the performers were furnished by the J. C. Lincoln Co.

At St. Mary's hall Tuesday evening a delightful program under the supervision of Sister M. Dorothy was carried out before a capacity audience, late comers finding it necessary to stand in the aisles. The orchestra was under the direction of Miss M. R. Blanchette. The three short French plays on the program were well interpreted and thoroughly enjoyed. The cast:

Le Feminisme—Mme. Cherville, Mlle Y. Baillargeon; Mme. Velfroy, Mlle. B. Marcil; Lucie Guillet, Melle A. Dube; Claire Guillet Melle G. Dion; Mme. Mere E. Bernier; Claudine, Melle C. Furniture for the stage was furnished by The Martin-Senour Co. and the Hurlbut-Boese Corp.

The fund for St. Mary's parish, South Coventry was materially increased by the receipts of the entertainment and dance held at Hillside hall, Eagleville Tuesday evening for the benefit of the church. Four hundred crowded the hall and included delegations from Willimantic, Norwich, Stafford Springs and surrounding towns. A trio of Connecticut Agricultural College players under the direction of Professor H. A. Seckerson presented "Suppressed Desires," a one-act play. The players were Russell White, Mamie Brosnan and Dorothy Stellingwerff. The C. A. C. quartet appeared in pleasing selections. The vocalists were Scott Adams, M. J. Farrell, Robert Lauterbach and William Tiebout. A request was given by the college orchestra. Vocal solos were rendered by George LaFleur, Eagleville's youthful singer. National colors were used in decorating the hall.

Another meeting of Garde Sacred Heart was held Wednesday evening to complete the arrangements for the exhibition prize drill and dance at the Al-Pierre Tabarin this week. Seven gardes will appear here, coming from New Bedford, North Grosvenordale, Southbridge, Putnam, Webster, Brockton and Fall River. Garde St. Cecile will drill also. The committee of arrangements included, Arthur Cartier, chairman; Lucien Vertefeuille, secretary; Arthur Lacasse, assistant secretary; Ovila Garceau, treasurer; F. J. Bergeron, assistant treasurer; Captain Arthur Vertefeuille, Ulric Hervieux, Harry Dumas, Emile Dazy, Walter LaFontaine, J. F. Aubin, Edward Grenier, F. X. Caisse, Joseph Vincelette, Joseph Paulhus, Edmond Sylvestre. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the boys of St. Mary's parish.

The funeral of Louis J. Matte was held Wednesday morning from the family home, 61 Spring street. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock was sung by Rev. J. J. Papillon. Mrs. J. F. Gaudreau was at the organ and solos were given by Mrs. Eva Aubin, Mrs. Laudia Fortier, Mrs. Louis Beaudry, Arthur Caisse and J. F. Gaudreau. Included in the large attendance at the services was a delegation of the St. Jean Baptiste society and of the Sacred Heart society. The floral pieces were beautiful. The bearers were Zepherin Coutu, Emile Roy, Xavier Caisse, Dieudonne Riquier, Alfred Paradis and Alexis Caisse. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The Martineau-Bacon Co. had charge of the arrangements.

Elias Fedus of Colchester was before Justice of the Peace John Baker, Tuesday night, on a charge of violation of the liquor law on three counts, two for sale of liquor and one for having liquor in his possession with intent to sell. Fedus is alleged to have sold liquor to his cousin, Julius Nicholas Fedus on one occasion and on another occasion, when the latter became violently ill and was believed to be nearing death. As the result of the sales a search warrant was made out by Grand Juror Brown and the premises of Elias Fedus were raided at midnight Saturday by Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs and Constable John Reilly. A quantity of liquor was found. Fedus asked to have his case continued and he was given his freedom until Saturday morning under bonds of $500.

John Rose who will tap the 90 mark if he lives until next October, is one of the wonder men who stand today as examples of the good living type of days gone by. Mr. Rose was formerly a South Windham resident, but upon the death of Mrs. Rose some eight years ago he left for Boston, where he has been employed as a janitor. Mr. Rose is an interesting character. He won fame in these parts as a base viol player and is known to many as a spiritualist. Walking along with quite a spry step and with the glow of health and contentment on his face, Mr. Rose returned to this city this week and called to see his old friend John N. Cartier, at the latter's business place. His home in South Windham has been sold, so Mr. Rose plans to reside in this city. He holds the distinction of being the oldest Knight of Pythias in Connecticut.

An auto truck driven by Samuel Lyons of this city was a little too high for the fixtures of the drop electric light at the corner of Walnut and Main streets and pulled out some of the screws Wednesday afternoon. The police department and the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company were notified.

Robert F. Stanton

(Contributed)

Robert F. Stanton, was born October 31st, 1844, the son of Samuel B. and Harriet L. Stanton. In early life he worked as a clerk in a grocery store in Willimantic and later was employed in Brooklyn, N. Y., for two years.

In the late sixties he entered the employ of the New London Northern railroad, fired by an ambition to be a railroad man. During the winter of 1871 and 1872 he was in charge of a railroad station in Illinois but found that he did not care for the west and returned to resume his employment with the New London Northern. Upon the illness and death of his father, in 1876, he was called home to care for his mother. As he was the only child he gave up the work which he had chosen to follow and took charge of the home affairs. For several years the position which he had left was kept open for him. His services were also sought as a salesman, he being offered several excellent positions, among them being with wholesale merchants of Willimantic who wanted him to travel and sell goods. This work, however, would have taken him away from home, and feeling that his widowed mother could not spare him, he declined.

After the death of his mother, in 1878, he became agent for the Underwriters' Fire Extinguisher, continuing for 30 years or more, when he resigned. March 17, 1917 he entered the employ of the Chaffee Manufacturing Co., in Willimantic. He was placed in charge of the finishing department, which position he filled ably and to the satisfaction of his employers. Mr. Stanton was always careful and particular in his work and very industrious, never being satisfied unless occupied and made his time count for the benefit of his employers.

Mr. Stanton was always very fond of music and at an early age played the violin with proficiency. He led an orchestra for a number of years and filled a large library of music which became a source of peaceful enjoyment and contentment to him in later years.

Quite late in life he composed several pieces of orchestral music which have been played in large as well as in small cities. He was a 32nd degree Mason. Mr. Stanton had a host of friends and acquaintances who will long remember him.

COLCHESTER

Today (Thursday) a well baby conference is to be held at Colchester in Grange hall from 2 to 4 p. m. The object of these conferences is to teach the mothers how to keep the well baby well. Some mothers already know the value of these conferences and they have been bringing their children each month to have them weighed and measured and looked over by the doctor. Conferences were started in Colchester, April 12th, 1923. In order to extend this opportunity to a larger number, a special well baby conference committee has been formed. The mothers will be continually reminded of the conference by announcements sent out by their local merchants and by a special moving picture on health which has been shown at hte local theatre. There will be measuring and weighing to see if the babies are keeping up to their standard weight, there will be "listening in" to the heart and lungs to see if they are working regularly, there will be examinations of the eyes, ears, nose and throat. Any irregularity so found will be referred at once to the family physician.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Last Meeting this Season

The Woman's League of the Central Baptist church will hold a May party in the church parlors, Friday afternoon. This is the last meeting of the season and reports will be heard from all the departments. A large attendance is expected.

Laurel Hill Residence Sold.

Grace E. Parkhurst has sold the property of C. D. Greenman located at 168 Laurel Hill avenue, to William A. Mason of Lebanon. It consists of a modern house of 12 rooms, also two garages and large garden lot. It is one of the most attractive residences on the avenue and Mr. Mason intends soon to occupy it as his home.

Broadway Theatre.

The ever growing popularity of the B. F. Keith vaudeville shows which have been continually drawing capacity houses at the Broadway theatre will be further elevated by the well picked programme arranged for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Knights of Jazz as the headliner. Victor Oliver and his Southern Illinois Recorcording orchestra consist of a company of ten people who present a riot of syncopation, melody and steps.

A great European novelty which comes direct from Europe is Feeman's Marcionettes in Surprise Transformations.

A potpourri of comedy, songs and yodeling is offered by Wild and Sedalia in "Here, There and Everywhere."

Walter Smith and Ruth Durelle in Musical Moments de Luxe is a truly refined offering that will make a hit.

With Rita Rogan, the seven year old girl star. Dorothy Mackaill, Zena Keefe, and Reed Howes in the leading roles, the Broadway theatre is preparing to show another of the super-specials for which it has become famous, when it presents "The Broken Violin."

It is replete with action and thrills that make this feature unusually good.

Strand Theatre.

A picture to make you think even while you are being entertained to the nth degree. That is "By Divine Right" at the Strand theatre, with Elliott Dexter starring. It is his own production for Grand-Asher and he has made it a film which the public will simply go into ecstacies over. It is human, full of beauty and drama, with two great thrills, and a marvelous cast. R. William Neill produced the picture and did a wonderful piece of work which should bring him additional laurels.

Mildred Harris is beautiful in the leading role, while Grace Carlisle, Anders Randolf, DeWitt C. Jennings, Sydney Bracey, Jeanne Carpenter and others make wonderful support for the star who never looked or acted better.

This picture is a novelty. That is to say, it gets over a wonderful message even while affording most melodramatic entertainment at times.

The picture will be shown today, Friday and Saturday.

A new Andy Gump comedy, "Oh, What a Day," and Kinograms up the short features.

When a woman marries a man to reform him the poor fellow is up against heroic treatment.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mary Pickford's Ten Commandments for Movie Aspirants

As a special concession to the Hollywood and Los Angeles Chambers of Commerce, Mary Pickford is, with these bodies, trying to solve the riddle of "What to do with the movie-struck."

The mayor of Los Angeles recently set aside a Mary Pickford Day, and the star put away her make-up for Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, when open a four days engagement at the Palace theatre on Sunday night May 11th and twice daily thereafter, long enough to act as the city's guest of honor and chief speaker at a mass meeting attended by 25,000 persons in the principal down-town park. The main points of her talk were summed up in the following Ten Commandments:"

1. Don't come to Hollywood to try the movies unless you have money enough to carry you a year.
2. Be sure to have some profession to fall back on in case you fail—stenography or salesmanship, for example.
3. If you are a girl, be sure to bring your mother. She will be an unfailing inspiration and help.
4. Try to gain some stage experience before coming.
5. Have a screen test made first. When you see it you may change your mind.
6. Make every effort to find out if you have camera features. A pretty face is not always a camera face.
7. Bring a large and varied selection of photographs.
8. Bring a large and diversified wardrobe.
9. Be prepared to spend five years in trying.
10. Be tactful, be resourceful, be patient and persistent, and above all, be intelligent. Only one in every thousand wins—but perhaps you are that one.

It is estimated that 10,000 persons invade Hollywood every month seeking work in motion pictures. Both the Los Angeles and Hollywood Chambers of Commerce are making every effort to check this flood and bring to Hollywood only those qualified to succeed on the screen.

Seat sale opens this morning at the box office for the Palace theatre for entire engagement. All tickets are reserved for all performances.

Lyceum Theatre—New London

That most alluring, but little known subject Life Back-Stage which has fascinated theatre-goers since the time before the first regular playhouse was built, is portrayed with telling realism and truthful atmosphere in Schemers, the new comedy-drama with Selma Morasco and Montagu Love and a typical Morosco cast, which comes to the Lyceum theatre New London on Saturday, matinee and evening, May 10th.

The author, Dr. William Irving Sarovich has taken as his hero and heroine a theatrical manager and a leading lady. Around them he has drawn a set of highly colored, yet true-to-life characters in dramatic critics, actors and actresses, motion picture magnates, press agents, authors, and producers of plays. The entire set of figures that go to make up a play on its artistic and financial side are here presented in the tense and truly dramatic atmosphere of backstage.

In Schemers the characters battle for prestige, money, honor and love. There is a great conflict of forces in which love and jealousy bring strong, thrilling climaxes. This leads up to the big scene in the dressing room of the leading lady, who is just preparing to make her entrance on the first night of a big play.

All those who have ever felt the lure of the stage or have been curious as to the life of actors and actresses in their professional life, will find satisfaction and a wealth of entertainment in the truthful presentation of back-stage life offered in Schemers.

ONE CENT SALE

This unusual, distinctive type of sale was originated by the Liggett Drug Stores.

The plan, in brief, is that you buy one article at its regular everyday price, and obtain another of the same article at one cent additional.

For example: The purchase of a $2.00 Hot Water Bottle gives one the privilege of getting another one for one cent.

Among the selected list of merchandise are included such needed things as Complexion Preparations, Household Remedies, Candies, etc.

Even though a person may not be able to use two of an article, by combining one's purchase with neighbors or friends, a saving of almost half is effected.

This feature sale is conducted only twice each year, each sale lasting three days. The Liggett people say that the values are made possible only because most of the products are manufactured in their own factories at a minimum cost, and they are willing to take small profits because they consider these one cent sales one of the tremendous advertising methods for breaking new customers to their stores.

Dog Breaks Director's Heart—Spoils Scene.

In "Her Temporary Husband," a First National comedy feature showing at the Palace theatre this week, there is a cross-section view of three rooms, through which two men are alternately chased by two villians. The four are supposed to reach their door in unison, open and close it so that neither is seen by their pursuers or able to see the men ahead.

During the production of the picture Director John McDermott worked for hours calling "One, two, three, four," so that the four actors would work in accord. But sooner or later, before the scene would be completed, one of them would open a door too soon, or wait too long. After a while, just as the chase was getting warm and McDermott was sighing with relief, in loafed "Prince," the studio dog.

"Bow, wow!" protested Prince, perplexed at such unstagelike conduct. He entered the chase grabbing Owen Moore by the trouser leg.

Curses. Oaths. Threats. McDermott all but collapsed.

"Her Temporary Husband" is the most outstanding comedy of the year. Directed by John McDermott, a master of laugh-provoking pictures, it is interpreted by a most unusual cast of funsters, including Owen Moore, Sidney Chaplin, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall, Chuck Reisner, Charles Gerrard, George Cooper and others.

Extra added attractions: "The Northern Trail," with Lewis [illegible] Wallace Beery and Ethel Grey Terry, adapted from a story by James Oliver Curdow. A two reel photoplay, Latest Pathe Review and the spice of the programme, Wilderness Tales "From the Windows of My House," by Robert C. Bruce.

A high class programme at small Palace prices. Evening, adults 35 cents, children 20 cents. Matinee, adults 20 cents, children 10 cents. Daily 2 p. m. evening 7 to 10.30. Saturday continuous 1.30 to 10.30.

Judge Edward V. Chaplin, 83, justice of Holyoke, Mass., district court from 1898 to 1911, president of the Farr Alpacca company and of the Holyoke and Westfield Railroad corporation, died Tuesday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The residents of this vicinity will be interested in an announcement made recently by President Edwin A. Barrows of the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company of Providence, to the effect that the Narragansett Company is again offering to the general public an opportunity to purchase capital stock in the Company. Already several hundred residents of this vicinity are included among the shareholders of this Company's securities.

Like the preceding offers, the opportunity is available only to those who are not stockholders and the purchaser may subscribe for from one to five shares at $55 per share, payable in cash on or before June 1st or in equal quarterly installments.

Mr. Barrows, commenting on the new offer said: "All the preceding offers of stock have been oversold, and we have been unable to meet the demand. Again we have been able to procure in the open market, a limited number of shares, which we will sell at cost. We suggest that those who desire to take advantage of this offer do so promptly, as our experience shows that the available stock is exhausted in a very few days."

"We inaugurated the plan of selling our stock to the general public several years ago, believing that it is mutually beneficial for both the community and the company of its stock can be widely distributed. [illegible] of the last few offers we have increased the number of shareholders from 5,000 to approximately 11,500, and at present 60 per cent of our shareholders own ten shares of stock or less. A recent analysis shows that our shareholders are in every walk of life—policemen, merchants, dressmakers, office boys, farmers, etc. In addition, approximately 60 per cent of the employes of this company are stockholders, thereby having a greater interest in the Company's affairs.

"The year 1923 was a prosperous one for the company and the present outlook for 1924 is very favorable. The company and its subsidiaries have over 43,000 customers and new ones are being added at the rate of about 1,500 per month. The output for electricity in 1923 was about 360,000,000 K. W. H. or 26 per cent greater than in 1922, and we produced more in February of this year than we did during the entire year of 1912.

"A particular attractive feature of this new offer is that those who pay in full on or before June 1st, 1924, will be entitled to the July 1st dividend, thereby receiving two months' dividends gratis."

BREED THEATRE

As a part of the crashing action in North of Hudson Bay, Tom Mix undertook a stunt which is abstained from by even the most intrepid and hardy men of northern Canada. Director John Ford was resolute in obtaining some scenes of a canoe being dashed to pieces in a torrential Canadian rapids.

It being impossible to get a canoe down to the rapids without human guidance, Mr. Ford sent out a general call for the man willing to assume the risk. Within a radius of 100 miles, inhabited by scarce five hundred people, all being venturesome, sandpaper skinned, ivory skulled and indomitable, not one applicant was found. Mr. Ford thought this extraordinary. If never before happened that a director went out a call for an extra, and didn't find himself submerged by half a hundred.

The delay caused by the unconquerable fear with which these unusually brave men looked upon the cataract, at length became intolerable. Tom Mix offered his services. The natives hearing that someone was going to attempt

ROSES FOR THE ROSE.

Much is to be said in favor of the idea advanced by Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., for the planting of more roses in Norwich. This effort, which is based not only upon the beautification of city and town, but upon spurring the community on to live up to its name, should get a hearty endorsement from the residents.

As the Rose of New England, Norwich should be continually striving to exceed past efforts. There are cities which have become noted for their rose gardens and people go there for hundreds of miles to see them. It might take some time before Norwich could obtain any such distinction, but there is an admirable opportunity to start and with the proper amount of community spirit there's no question as to the success.

In the movement to get Norwich to stand faithfully by its name there is a chance not only for the community to do something as a unit but for every individual to make their respective home lots a thing of beauty and a joy forever. There's certainly much that can be done by the planting of roses. There are many hillsides, which are now nothing but waste land, which could be covered with roses that would be a wonderful sight in the blossoming time. It would be a marked contrast to the eyesores that exist at present, while the nucleus of a rose garden in Mohegan park might well come in for steady development and expansion.

The idea of more roses for Norwich is not a new one. It nevertheless deserves to receive the support and cooperation that will accomplish what is aimed at. A definite movement that will get organized direction from year to year should get as good results as similar activity in behalf of tree planting accomplishes in other cities. As individuals and as a community the people of Norwich have good reason to get back of this beautification effort and create a valuable asset for the community.

THE SENATE TAX BILL.

Whether the senate republicans will be able to bring about a change in the vote upon the revenue bill, different from the way in which the Mellon rates have been turned down and certain other detrimental features have been worked in, remains to be demonstrated to the country when the time comes for the final vote in the upper house upon the completed measure.

Frankly the action of the senate thus far is a disappointment. That is an impression that is created in no particular section or solely with republicans. It is the view that is taken by those who believe that the welfare of the nation should have been put before political activities, who feel that the taxpayers of the country ought not to be made to labor over a crumped up tax measure while one which was scientifically worked out is ripped up and discarded, and who recognize that public welfare is not the goal being aimed at.

Instead of a favorable impression it is a bad one which the senate is making. It is even worse than the one created by the house. What may develop before the final vote in the senate or before the conference committee, which must deal with the bill, gets through with it, no one knows. Possibly the senate will put the country before itself, but the indications are not very strong for such an outcome.

It is a time for constructive rather than destructive legislation. In this connection the Brooklyn Eagle, democratic, well says: "If a wrong system of taxation shall be maintained in preference to a right system the country may credit that result to the present combination of democrats and republican insurgents. Neither element in this combination has approached the question of tax revision otherwise than in a narrow spirit. Together they are doing their best, or worst, to hand the president a bill that he will be bound to veto to protect the treasury against a deficit. If Mr. Coolidge be finally compelled to take this course public opinion will approve."

That is placing the trouble right where it exists and it clearly senses the sentiment of the country.

ALLIANCE TALK.

Talk is said to be cheap, and that may be the case regarding the rumors that are being spread concerning a possible alliance between France and Japan. It of course comes at a time when more attention might be paid to it than otherwise, but is prompted by the return of the Japanese military attache in Paris to Tokio at a time when the governor general of French Indo-China is making a visit to the Japanese capital. Suspicion regarding such visits often leads to the getting of facts, while much gossip that has no truth in it is built upon just such a foundation. Time of course will tell.

If such a thing is contemplated both France and Japan have reason to know with what suspicion and concern the Anglo-Japanese understanding was viewed, and what satisfaction resulted when it was abandoned at the time of the naval agreement among the leading nations. The minute two nations undertake any such move that is the signal for others to go and do likewise. Such action is believed to be necessary for self protection.

Any alliance that might be formed between France and Japan would not be regarded with favor by this country. It could hardly be expected to be pleasing to Great Britain. It would in fact be open to the interpretation that it meant the planning for trouble rather than the much desired stimulation of the worldwide movement for peace.

Both countries have large interests in the Pacific and Japan may figure that this is the time to tie up to another of the big powers, while France would be justified in believing that the present is a favorable time for it to get the proper response from Japan. Certainly Japan would not be disposed to have so much regard for the feelings of this country just at this time, but France would be expected to think seriously about forming an alliance similar in character to the one between the Japanese and the British which was regarded as displeasing to this country.

MORE PRIMARY RESULTS.

The results of the primaries in the states of Indiana and California serve to bring more nearly unanimous the nomination of President Coolidge at the Cleveland convention. The result in Indiana was fully anticipated, that indicated in California creates no surprise.

When Hiram Johnson withdrew from his campaign without endeavoring to make a speaking tour of Indiana he had read the handwriting on the wall. It had been there long before he had been willing to put on his glasses and interpret it. From the very beginning there was no clamor for his candidacy. Except that he was anxious to have the nomination, there has been no demand in his behalf that warranted his throwing his hat into the ring. In fact the early indications were against it and despite the fact that they continued to pile up the senator from California refused to heed them. His insistence upon remaining in the fight, or making a fight, has come to the inevitable result. Not only has he found that his views were not approved but the people of his own state have repudiated him. They have displayed greater confidence in President Coolidge, and his policies than in their own native son. It was bad enough to see other states which had previously been Johnson states falling by the wayside but when his own state turns against him he cannot fail to recognize what a bad impression his attacks have been making upon those who are expected to know him best.

California's repudiation of Senator Hiram Johnson must be regarded as reflecting the sentiment of the people of that state against Johnson's methods in congress as well as in the campaign. It should carry its meaning to others as well as to the man whose candidacy has been so convincingly turned down.

TAXING OUT-OF-COUNTRY CITIZENS.

According to a decision of the United States supreme court those citizens of this country living in another country and deriving their income from the other country are subject to the income tax laws of the United States.

To this the claim has been made that this means double taxation for these people, but they must remember that they are subjects of Uncle Sam and as such they must be expected to meet the taxation that is imposed upon Americans. It may not have been their object to avoid taxation here, by going elsewhere to take up their residence and establish their business enterprises, but it is to be noted that while they have established homes elsewhere they have clung to American citizenship, look to this country to give them protection in case their rights are not respected and retain the right to come back here and enjoy the full privileges of the country any time they wish.

Whether this will have the effect of encouraging such people to abandon their allegiance to this country and seek future protection under some other flag and government will be determined in time. Some may be willing to make such a sacrifice but it cannot be believed that such action will become general. It is to be presumed that those who live and get their income outside the country do so because of the extra advantages which they gain by so doing. But even if the new income tax decision causes them to become citizens of other countries the loss is certain to be to the individuals and not to this country. If they do not live here and do not pay their part of the taxes there would be no loss except in action on their part to prevent the collection of such a tax by Uncle Sam.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One more week and the straw hat will be legalized regardless of what the weatherman is offering.

The man on the corner says that thunderstorms were supposed to be reserved for Sunday afternoon.

"Auto Party of Five Near Death," says a headline. Will the driver try to get still nearer at his first opportunity?

Congress tries to tell the country that no chance to spend money should be overlooked, but it doesn't seem interested in the reduction of taxes.

It is a new member of congress who wants the salaries increased to $10,000. There are still those who rush in where angels fear to tread.

Are we to expect that the provoked thunder storms of April and May are going to increase in frequency and severity as the season for them warms up?

If the Cuban revolution was a puny thing, all the better. It was certainly not helped along by any assistance from this government. Its end was in fact hastened by this government's stand.

When the statement was made that Norwich's tax situation was the accumulation of years there's no questioning the truth of it. The shame of it is that being known it should have been allowed to continue without remedy.

THAT PARIS LOOK

"I have just seen Mrs. Janes," said Mrs. Simmons' niece as she sank wearily into a chair. "She had a new dress on. I don't think I'd like it a bit if people copied my clothes."

"You are not very clear in your remarks," laughed Mrs. Simmons. "But you remind me of an incident in my girlhood that was almost a tragedy. There was a dress I designed all by myself. It was a mighty pretty girlish gown. I wore it to some entertainment at school and when the girls admired it I told them I had designed it myself and I thought it was the prettiest dress in the world."

"Three weeks after I first appeared in it," Mrs. Simmons continued, "one of the girls whom I liked least came to me with a sort of triumphant manner and said she thought I had been boasting that my brown dress was my own design and therefore the only one of its kind. I defended my statement and she finally believed me, but told me that she had seen a white-haired woman wearing a dress of the same style. I was heartbroken and tried to think she was mistaken, but when I asked our dressmaker about it she said the woman had seen my dress and had come in and offered her such a good price to make one like it that she had done so hoping I would never know about it."

"Oh, the poor child!" cried her niece. "I was just wondering about whether I'd better tell what Mrs. Janes said. But I don't know that you would mind after all."

"Mrs. Janes is a very pleasant woman," declared Mrs. Simmons.

"It wasn't much," said her niece. "She had on a new dress and she very evidently expected me to notice it, so I obligingly admired it. It was really very pretty, so I could do so truthfully, but Mrs. Janes said it did not compare with one her sister had just made. She said that her sister had met you somewhere or other in a lovely dress that she liked extremely. She said it was one of the dresses you got in Paris last summer and was therefore just in the height of style here now, so she had her dressmaker copy it from her description."

"That is very flattering," said Mrs. Simmons dubiously. "It is nice to have people like your things but I'd a little rather they didn't copy my Paris dresses. I don't remember where I wore that gown that Mrs. Janes saw it. Did she describe it at all?"

"She said it is dark blue with a line of red near the neck, and it has some kind of drape on the hips. She says her sister copied it exactly and is telling everybody it is a model by somebody or other in Paris. Mrs. Janes always adds that it is a copy of the model, and her sister tells people that now and makes it sound as if it were really a better thing than the original gown."

"I never said my dresses were anybody's model," protested Mrs. Simmons, "Some woman at the boarding house over there told me about an inexpensive dressmaker and I went to her to have these two dresses made, that is all. They aren't anything much. I just wanted to get something there. But I can't think where either of those two women saw that dress, for I have worn it only twice, and to places where they don't go. I've been saving them, as I said, to use this spring.

"Mrs. Janes said she saw it when you had it on at a meeting of the Guild," said her niece. "But her sister saw it before that and asked her to notice particularly how the sleeves were made when she saw you next, as she had forgotten them when she saw you at Mrs. Dunbar's mah jong party."

"But I didn't wear that Paris dress to Mrs. Dunbar's. Let me think—oh, yes, I did wear that blue dress with red pipings. Well, well, so Mrs. Janes' sister copied it did she?"

"Yes, she did!" cried her niece. "And I should think you'd be awfully sore at her for it, too—your new Paris gown!"

"Oh, no, I don't mind a bit," chuckled Mrs. Simmons. "You see, I gave that dress to the janitor's wife only yesterday."

"You did! And you have worn it only twice!"

"Oh, I have worn it a great deal. I had made it over three months ago from an old thing I got before the war and I hoped it would last, but I am getting too plump for it, not to say fat. That dress never, even heard of Paris! I wonder if I haven't some more old clothes with the Paris look. —Chicago news.

GOETHALS GAVE UP HIS AMBITION

George W. Goethals wanted to be a doctor; he studied hard to prepare for the favorite family profession, but his poor health compelled him to abandon his ambition and start over again.

He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and when 11 years old left the public schools to become an errand boy in New York. He was slender, light-haired and quiet and was considered to be just an ordinary boy.

When 14 he attended school again and kept books for a produce merchant after hours and Saturdays at a salary of $5 a week. He worked his way through the College of the City of New York, entered Columbia University to study medicine, but the day-and-night work and study had undermined his health, and he had to stop.

Deciding to be a soldier, he wrote General Grant for admission to West Point; the letter was ignored and he applied to "Sunset" Cox, the political leader, and had to assure him that he would make good, before he got his support.

He made brilliant records at West Point and at the Engineering School at Willet's Point, then carried a rod in the field. Within two years he was made first lieutenant and nine years later captain. His results when in charge of canals at Marietta, Ohio, and Muscle Shoals, Tenn., earned his appointment as member of the General Staff and Board of Fortifications.

During the Spanish-American War he was Chief Engineer of the First Army Corps, then was detailed to the General Staff and, in 1907, was given charge of construction of the Panama Canal, that had cost France many lives, $250,000,000 and a political scandal.

Goethals fought fever epidemics, political red tape, native revolutions, strikes and rock slides, and completed the fifty-mile water-way, the world's greatest engineering feat, within seven years.

Congress thanked him and made him a major-general of the United States Army.

And his services during the World War, while in charge of transportation of supplies and troops in this country and their embarkation overseas won him honors from this and other countries.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Frank G. Carpenter, the veteran globe-trotter, who today enters upon his seventieth year, is known to two generations of American readers through his interesting letters which have been featured in the newspapers for more than forty years. In addition, he has been heard throughout the United States as a lecturer on foreign lands. Mr. Carpenter is a native of Mansfield, Ohio, and received his education at Wooster College. In 1879, soon after completing his studies, he began his journalistic career as a legislative correspondent at Columbus. For some years he served as a political correspondent in Washington, but the lure of the road was so strong in him that soon he became a free lance writer and has since spent much of his life in foreign countries. In 1888-89 he made his first trip around the world. Since then he has been almost constantly on the move, until there is scarcely a nook or corner of the entire globe that he has not visited.

AMERICAN OLYMPIC FOOTBALL MEN RESENT FRENCH WRITER'S REMARKS

Paris, May 7.—Members of the American Olympic football team today were almost ready to challenge City Councillor Armand Massard, sporting authority of La Liberte, who in an article yesterday hinted that their amateurism was considerably tainted.

Massard, who is an expert swordsman, would have the duel of his life on his hands, according to a member of the Olympic team, who said:

"Just let him come out here, choose his own weapons, footballs or foils, and we'll soon show him whether we are amateurs or professionals. We haven't had the pleasure of a visit from him and wish that before writing again, he would investigate."

Another hitch in the hitherto friendly Franco-American sporting relations has arisen over the determination of the American players to take their own photographs of the match with Rumania Sunday for documentary and training purposes, despite the insistance of the French Olympic commission that exclusive contracts had already been let to French firms for all photographic work in connection with the Olympic games. It is expected that the difference will be smoothed out at the conference tomorrow in view of the determination of the Americans to take photographs whether

MARQUARD CHECKS WINNING STREAK OF DODGERS

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 7. — Rube Marquard checked the winning streak of the Dodgers today, holding them to eight scattered hits, and beating them, 4-1. The Braves fielded brilliantly behind the veteran southpaw, four double plays pulling him out of trouble on as many occasions. Harrison was knocked out of the box in the third inning after which Henry and Decatur held Boston scoreless.

The case against Fisher arose from the landing and load of liquor [illegible] by Judge [illegible] April 23 1923. Benjamin Cianciarulo, Fisher's counsel, presented the petition for removal.

The May meeting of Westerly town council held in the council chambers this morning at 9.30 lasted till 12.30 o'clock. The greater part of the time of the session was taken up with the discussion of the two new ordinances presented by the council at this session, the building and the itinerant vendors ordinances.

Those present were President Campbell, Councilmen Morrison, Utter, Ross and Nichols. Later were Clerk Fowler and Sheriff Smith. Counsel Hull and Town Solicitor Ferguson also in attendance. Mr. Campbell in the matter of the [illegible] made provisions [illegible] but there were many halls [illegible] use of fire exit would prove [illegible].

Postmaster Thomas F. Lenihan appeared before the council relative to [illegible] numbering in White Rock and asked that action to change the name of Rose street as it caused confusion with Main street in Westerly. The sentiment of the council was that the street be called White Rock avenue. Postmaster spoke of the duplicate numbers on Spruce, Oak and Rose streets, also said that he would like to see a system of numbering at Pleasant View adopted. He stated that the Pleasant View mail business had attained such size that a petition was circulated next year he thought a carrier delivery could readily obtained.

Mr. Walter Flynn, Jr., asked that there be granted Joseph T. Grills Sunday baseball in Riverside park in June, July and August. On motion of Councilman Utter, seconded by Councilman Rossi, the license was voted granted.

Peter M. Rose applied for license to hold boxing exhibitions May 13, 20 and 27 at the athletic club rooms, Rose avenue. On motion of Councilman Rossi, seconded by Councilman Nichols the license was voted granted.

David A. Lowry, a resident of Rocket street, in anticipation of the consideration of the building ordinance later, asked if unaccepted streets like Rocket street were included in the act's scope. Solicitor Ferguson said that every by-way and highway in town was included. He was informed that the act did not cover work which was already started.

The town's bills were voted paid as follows: Waterworks $3790.66, sewer $1406.51, and poor department $631.43; street lights $1749.16, miscellaneous $31.42, town hall $622.33, printing and advertising $7.45, interest on notes and bonds $788.00, new schools $12.-36.74 and town hall $6.00.

April police bills voted paid were automobiles $30.50; special officers, $79.90; telephone and telegraph, $34.-17 and miscellaneous $253.07.

While President Campbell was discussing the condition of light and telephone polise with the councilmen, General Manager William C. Clarke, of the Westerly Light and Power Co. came in to ask the councilmen to take action governing the erection of wireless antennae. An incident was cited by him where a bare wire was drawn across a 500 volt fortunately well insulated cable of the light and power company when an aerial was being erected by a layman. It was decided to have an ordinance prepared similar to those of other cities governing the issue.

In the lengthy discussion about the poles, Manager Clarke said the Western red cedar poles were a good pole but not the square poles that the councilmen wanted to see in place. In reply to the question of putting wires underground, Mr. Clarke said that the cost for the center of the town would be the prohibitive price of $100,000. Chairman Campbell and Councilman Morrison were made a committee to confer with the light and power company on the pole question.

The bill of Rossi and Lewis for $158.54 for city planning work was voted paid.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for April showed 22 arrests made, 16 of which were for drunkenness.

The report of Health Officer, Dr. Samuel C. Webster, recorded, three cases of chicken pox and four cases of scarlet fever. Several pool victualizing and other licenses were voted. The license fee of Charles R. Johnson at Atlantic Beach was raised from $25 to $100 for the season. The amount of shooting gallery and bowling license fee remaining unchanged.

Town ordinances regarding building restrictions and itinerant venders were discussed and adopted, before the council adjourned.

Miss Elizabeth E. Hogg is ill at her home on Summer street with scarlet fever.

Mrs. John Champlin, Jr., having completed her studies for the year at Powers school of Oratory, Boston, is visiting at the home of Dr. John Champlin, Sr., in Westerly. Thursday of this week Mrs. Champlin will leave Westerly for a visit with relatives in Campbellton, New Brunswick.

Charles S. Fowler was a business caller in New York Tuesday.

Daniel Watson and Percy Smith of Wakefield were Monday afternoon visitors in Westerly.

Miss Kathryn M. Sturtevant, teacher of French in Westerly High school, accompanied by her mother, has returned to Westerly, after a week's visit with Boston relatives.

The Westerly student body was considerably in the majority, at the second in the series of interscholastic baseball games Tuesday afternoon on the Playground diamond off High street which resulted in the score of Westerly 13, Norwich Free Academy 6, making the fifth consecutive win for the blue and white of Westerly High.

By vote of Westerly town council, following a hearing, building ordinances have been adopted of especial interest to anyone contemplating building in Westerly either in the compact part of the town or at any of the numerous shore resorts within the boundaries of the town.

The ordinances makes the following provisions:

Section 1. Wherever four-fifths of the frontage of the lots on any street between two intersecting streets contained at the time of the passage of this ordinance, residential structures, no structure shall be build or altered for business or factory purposes thereon, unless the written consent of the owners, of the three-fourths of the entire frontage shall be on file with the town council at the time of the issue of the permit.

Section 2. In any residential section, a private garage shall provide for not more than four motor vehicles; the main walls of the garage must be everywhere distant at least three feet from each property line and forty feet from front street line and also other street line in case of a corner lot.

Section 3. Where at least one half of the buildings situated on either side of the street between two intersecting streets conform to a minimum set-back line, no building shall be erected, and no existing building shall be reconstructed or altered to project beyond such set-back line. Where there is no existing building in the street, no new building shall be erected with street wall nearer than twenty-five feet to the street line. Where a building is to be erected on a private right of way and there is no plat of said right of way filed in the town clerk's office, no such new building shall be erected with a street wall nearer than fifty feet to the center of said right of way.

Section 4. A side yard is required on each side lot line in a residential section. No such side yard shall be at any point less than five feet wide.

Section 5. No building shall be erected which touches the ocean, with no intervening highway or private right of way, except as it conforms in every way with section 3, except that buildings facing the ocean shall not be erected in advance of the line by five buildings on each side. It is understood that this district shall conform to section 3 and 4 as if the buildings faced on a street in the rear.

Section 6. No part of a public garage shall be nearer than twenty-five feet to any public street, and all entrance, driveways shall have an unobstructed width of at least fifteen feet.

Section 7. No station of place of business for the wholesale or retail selling of gasoline shall be established or maintained until a permit to establish or [illegible] station shall have first been obtained from the town council. The location of such station or place of business shall be such as no to impede the [illegible] public, and [illegible] the motor vehicles purchasing the gasoline, to stand upon the property controlled by [illegible] or place of business.

Section 8. The [illegible] shall approve no permit for the construction or alteration of any building or structure or part thereof, plans and specifications and intended use for which are not in all respects in conformity with the provisions of this ordinance, except in exceptional cases, in which the refusal of the town council it would be inequitable to enforce the provision of this ordinance.

Section 9. No building or structure shall be [illegible] altered, unless [illegible] building, [illegible] same [illegible] accordance with the provisions of this ordinance [illegible] ing permit, [illegible] a plan [illegible] showing [illegible] and angles [illegible] upon, the [illegible] the lot and [illegible] ed, and such [illegible] necessary [illegible] for the enforcement of this ordinance.

Section 10. Permits shall be issued by the town clerk [illegible] approved by the town council.

For the purpose of this ordinance, the street line [illegible] is the dividing line between the street [illegible] and the adjoining [illegible] space [illegible] manent [illegible].

A street [illegible] the nearest open unoccupied space between the building [illegible].

A residential section where four-fifths of the lots [illegible] two intersecting streets [illegible] structures exclusively residential.

Section 11. Any owner and [illegible] violation of the provisions of this ordinance, the owner, general agent or contractor of the building or premises where such violation has been committed or shall exist, the lessees or tenants of an entire building or entire premises where such violation has been committed or shall exist, and the owner, general agent, lessee or tenant, or any part of the building or premises in which such violation shall exist shall for each and every violation, and for each and every day that such violation continues shall be subject to a fine of not more than $100. The legal remedies for such violation shall be had and violations shall be prosecuted in the manner prescribed by any law or ordinance effective in the town of Westerly.

Section 12. The invalidity of any section or provision of this ordinance shall not invalidate any other section or provision thereof.

Section 13. All ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 14. The ordinance shall take effect upon its passage.

A disagreement of the jury kept the jurymen in the Emilio Pizzaia vs. Joseph A. Bristow alleged $10,000 automobile damage case at Narragansett Pier in their jury room at West Kingston until after 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. At that time a disagreement was reported and the Kingston session of the April term of superior court for Washington county was adjourned to meet for the Westerly session which will begin Monday, May 11th

Representative Samuel H. Davis of the Second Westerly legislative district who has been suggested as a candidate for governor of Rhode Island at the next election, on Tuesday afternoon in the Rhode Island state legislature attempted to introduce a bill for the removal of the lieutenant governor as the presiding officer of the Rhode Island senate, and the election of a presiding officer of that body by the senate from one of its own number.

After the resolution had been read, Representative Francis B. Condon of Central Falls, democratic leader, objected to receiving the measure under the rules.

The Davis bill would allow the lieutenant governor to preside only over the grand committee.

Before Probate Court Judge Edward M. Burke, Tuesday afternoon, business was transacted as follows:

Estate of John Benson. First and final account of John L. Brown, administrator, received, allowed and ordered recorded. Petition for order of distribution granted.

A hearing was held Wednesday morning in a special session of the Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox in the condemnation proceedings against the eighteen barrels of cider seized at the Walter Taylor place, Randall district, town of Stonington, Saturday night, April 19th. Appearing for Taylor was Attorney Thomas M. Shields of Norwich, who filed a plea in abatement for alleged defects in the service of the papers. The plea was demurred to by Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna of the town of Stonington. Judge Wilcox sustained the demurrer and the defendant was ordered to answer over. The defendant refused to answer and the cider was adjudged a nuisance. Attorney Shields took an appeal and the case will come up this month in the court of common pleas for New London county. A bond of $200 was furnished by Alzina Taylor, wife of Walter Taylor.

Joseph Maggs left Wednesday for New York and a week later will sail for Galveston, Texas, where his wife is now. Mr. Maggs will make a stop over at Key West, Fla., for supplies to enter business in the Lone Star state city. Last January he made the trip south by automobile and later returned to Westerly to dispose of his gardening business.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Spending the Night in the Garage

"Who's that speaking?" asked Uncle Lucky again because no one had answered [illegible]

"I've been sitting here all day
Waiting for you to come this way,
I've most important news for you
Your house has fallen down in two," replied [illegible] peeping out of a tree [illegible].

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed Uncle [illegible] ful," and [illegible] explain another [illegible] man rabbit was [illegible] so in his Luckymobile.

"How did that happen?"

On reaching [illegible] avenue and [illegible] anxious bunnies [illegible] looked over toward [illegible] Just as [illegible] had [illegible] dear little [illegible] the middle.

"How did that happen? Oh, dear, dear," cried the poor old gentleman rabbit, hopping out of the Luckymobile and up on the front porch to look in the window.

"Well, we'll have to make the best of it. We can sleep in the garage tonight," sighed Little Jack Rabbit, and spreading the Luckymobile cushions on the floor, they lay down to sleep.

"An earthquake broke your house in two.
No wonder you are feeling blue.
But I'd do this if I were you.
I'd telephone your elephant friend
And ask him quick your house to mend.
Why he can push the parts together
And tie them with a strap of leather!"
All of a sudden tooted Old Barney Owl

"Am I dreaming or did I hear someone talking?" asked dear Uncle Lucky rubbing his eyes with his left hind foot. Again the old owl gave a long "too wit, too woo," making the bunnies shiver from head to toe, for they are afraid of owls, you know.

"Did you hear what that bad owl said?" asked Uncle Lucky in a [illegible] answered the little [illegible] But when Uncle Lucky told [illegible] the little rabbit didn't think the old owl was such a bad sort of a bird, and neither do I and neither does the little mouse that lives all alone in the next house.

"We'll telephone the elephant in the morning," said Uncle Lucky, and pulling his night cap on straight he went [illegible] again. And so did Little Jack [illegible] but the old owl stayed awake all night hunting for mice.

As soon as Mr. Merry Sun got up [illegible] morning the two little rabbits hopped out of bed and telephoned to the circus elephant, and in the next [illegible] you shall hear what he [illegible].

MRS. ADAMS SAYS SHE OWES LIFE TO TANLAC

Friends Had Given Her Up Because Nothing Seemed to Remedy Stomach Trouble.

"If ever a medicine saved anybody's life Tanlac surely saved mine," is the striking statement of Mrs. Anna Adams, 167 New Bridge St., Merrick, Mass.

Mrs. Adams, now seventy-five, is one of those grand old ladies who become more charming with the passing time. She is not only the idol of fourteen children, twenty-seven grandchildren and a number of great grandchildren, but is beloved by all who know her.

"From a woman of average weight and strength, stomach trouble brought me down to almost a skeleton. My relatives and neighbors thought my days were about over, and I was looking for the end myself. One day I asked one of the family to let me try a bottle of Tanlac and I have almost worshipped Tanlac ever since. My weight has increased from 115 to 166 lbs. and I am feeling fine, all due to a few bottles of Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, May 7—Stock prices developed moderate strength in the early part of today's session, but forfeited most of their gains later when concentrated selling pressure was directed against the oils, particularly Sinclair. Trading was again relatively light in volume, total sales being slightly less than 650,000 shares. Weakness of Sinclair, which established a new low record for the year at 19 5-8 was based on unconfirmed reported that the company had lost concessions and rumors of new financing which later were officially denied. The stock closed at 19 1-2, off 1-2 on the day. Marland, Cosden and Phillips also closed fractionally lower, but the Pan-American issues and Mexican Seaboard each showed a net gain of about a point.

Steel shares held relatively firm despite reports of further contraction in output by the weekly trade reviews. U. S. Steel common closed slightly lower at 98 1-2 on total transactions of less than 12,000 shares and Bethlehem and Republic improved fractionally. American Can was the outstanding strong spot among the so-called "big four," closing 1 1-8 points higher at 103 5-8 after having sold as high as 104 3-8. Studebaker closed nearly a point higher at 56 1-4 and Baldwin dropped 1-3 to 113.

Brokers report that public participation continues to be of small proportions. Speculative uncertainty over the ultimate fate of the tax and soldier bonus bills is still regarded as a restrictive influence on trading.

Except in the case of a few specialties, price movements in today's market were extremely narrow and irregular. Colorado Fuel and Iron was subjected to heavy selling, much of which probably represented profit taking, and dropped a little more than two points. On the other hand, Corn Products was pushed up 3 1-2 points and net gains of a point or more were registered by more than a dozen issues, including Brooklyn Union Gas, General Leather preferred, International Harvester, Philadelphia Company, U. S. Smelting and Refining, Pittsburgh Steel, Kennecott Copper sold at new high prices for the year.

Most [illegible] showed [illegible] Colorado [illegible] American Can [illegible] Royal Dutch [illegible] per cent preferred [illegible] among the last issues to record a point or more. Call money ruled unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent. The time money market continued easy with 4 1-4 per cent the prevailing rate. Commercial paper was more active, with the bulk of the prime names moving at 4 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were reactionary. Demand sterling dropped 3-4 of a cent to $4.38 and French francs broke about 23 points to 6.40 cents. Slight recessions took place in most of the other principal European currencies.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 7—Investment buying of Standard Public utilities and high-grade railroad issues imparted a firm tone to bond prices today. Mixed movements, however, took place in the industrial and speculative rail groups, the improvement in some issues being offset by decided heaviness in others.

Strength of Brooklyn Union Gas company 7 per cent. mortgages, which advanced two points on fairly heavy buying, was attributed to the easiness of money rates. Both issues were in demand because they had been returning a better yield than other similar investment obligations.

Wilson & Company liens displayed strong recuperative power today, all issues scoring advances of more than two points, although the convertible 6s dipped to a new record low at 43 before rallying. Improvement was reported in the company's business for April.

New railroad financing occupied considerable attention in the bond market. The Seaboard Air Line, it was announced, would guarantee a $7,000,000 issue of 10 year 7 per cent bonds to finance construction of its projected southern Florida link, the Florida, Western and Northern Railroad. Offering of the bonds is expected this week at a price slightly below par. Sale of the issue through banks not heretofore affiliated with the seaboard, it was said, did not indicate a change in the control of the property. Bankers who are handling the "Nickel Plate" financing denied that a definite date had been set for offering the first issue of about $26,000,000 but intimated it would come some time this month.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 7—Corn made an abrupt descent in value today, and dragged down the wheat market. Notice that one corn-milling establishment would shut down tomorrow for an indefinite period and that another plant was likely to take similar action had much to do with the break in prices. Corn closed heavy, 1c to 2 a 2 1-8c net lower, May 75 7-8 to 76 1-4 and July 77 1-4 to 77 3-8. The finish in wheat was unsettled, 3-8 to 3-4 off, May 1.04 1-8 and July 1.06 1-4 to 1.06 3-8, with oats varying from a shade decline to 1-8c advance, and provisions at 5c lower to a rise of 8c.

Persistent selling on the part of commission houses disclosed that the corn market had no adequate support and prices gave way very rapidly all the last, May delivery showing the most weakness but all deliveries closing at the day's bottom figures. In addition to the reported stoppage of corn mills, an Iowa corn industry was said to be re-consigning corn to Chicago, although shipping demand here for corn gave no promise of a ready outlet. In fact, general buying [illegible] except from previous sellers [illegible] light as to be almost negligible.

Slackness in the purchasing of corn products was assigned as a reason for the laggard character of the demand for grinding. Meanwhile receipts of corn here continued to be of liberal volume, where as shipping inquiry from the east in particular was nearly at a standstill.

Wheat followed corn down grade but was also affected by Washington advices that legislation which increased public expenditures would be disapproved. Reports that the Argentine strike had been virtually settled counted too as a bearish factor.

Offerings of oats were meagre and the demand good.

Firmness in the hog market upheld provisions.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 7—The line of least resistance in today's curb market was downward although isolated strong spots appeared in each group. Oils again furnished the bulk of activity with Prairie Oil and Gas, Prairie Pipe, Imperial of Canada, Solar Refining and Standard Oil of Ohio declining a point or so and most of the others receding fractionally.

Heavy buying of Glen Alden Coal, which established a new high record of 95 7-8, apparently in anticipation of an early increase in dividend, was the feature of the industrial list. Public utilities were mixed, Lehigh Power securities dropping nearly a point.

Radio shares showed little change. Doehler Die moved up a point to 21 1-2 and then forfeited its gain. Copper shares were the most active features in the mining [illegible].

When Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters met Wednesday with Mrs. Edward L. Greene, of Yantic [illegible] ave. the vice-leader, Mrs. Hannah Adams Jr. presided in the absence of Mrs. Stanton W. POETRY

Economics

I do not preach that all is well
Within this world. We must admit,
And any one with sense can tell
Things might be bettered quite a bit.

But, on this statement you can bet
As sure as two times two is four,
"Unless you earn the pay you get
You haven't any right to more."

If you are sure you do your trick
And give the service that is due,
You've got a reasonable kick
At any one who's skinning you.

But were the present scheme upset
This would be true, as 'twas of yore,
"Unless you earn the pay you get
You haven't any right to more."

The shirk who soldiers on the job,
The loafer who's just "getting by,"
What right have they to whine and sob
Because they are not living high?

They haven't paid their honest debt.
What business have they to be sore?
"Unless you earn the pay you get
You haven't any right to more."

My Peach Tree

My peach tree is a lovely thing,
A blushing bride in early spring.

September finds her ruddy-cheeked,
A matron midst her red-checked brood,

In winter an old lady rare,
A little bent, with snowy hair,

But with a heart that still can sing
Of birds and bees and coming spring.

WHITE HOUSE IS SILENT ON SENATOR LODGE'S PRIVATE WORLD COURT PLAN

Massachesetts Senator Submits to the Senate and the Country A Provision for the Reconvening of the Hague Conference at the Call of President Coolidge—Makes No Mention of the International Court Already Created Under the Auspices of the League of Nations, Which Has Had the Approval of Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

Washington, May 8—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, today laid before the senate and the country a new world court plan of his own.

It provides for the reconvening of [illegible] at the Hague years ago, with judges selected much after the manner of those in the court pronsored by the league itself [illegible] in the procedure [illegible] States would not [illegible] Britain, France, Italy and [illegible] a "special committee" [illegible] veto power over elections. [illegible] immediate reaction of the white house and state department to the [illegible]

Secretary Hughes [illegible] he proposal before it [illegible] forth on the senate floor, officials close to them gave no sign of [illegible]

On the contrary there was a plain [illegible] Mr. Coolidge remaining [illegible] on his recently repeated preference to the existing court of international justice as the most practical yet devised, and [illegible] Hughes had not lost hope that [illegible] the attitude of Senator Lodge, the foreign relations committee might [illegible] out the adherence plan originally set up by the administration [illegible] present heading.

Coolidge himself made no explanation when he sent the resolution to the desk of the senate secretary. He would not indicate what plans he might have for bringing the [illegible] up for action But some of his republican colleagues on the committee suggested so many different world court proposals [illegible] get action on [illegible] its session [illegible]

A [illegible] Hughes proposal; Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking democrat on the committee, has pending [illegible] along somewhat similar lines; Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, and others have put in proposals either for adherence to the existing court or some other means of codifying international law.

For completeness of detail, however, there is no plan now before congress that approaches that presented by Senator Lodge. After prescribing all the ins and outs of the organization and procedure of the court, his resolution carries its own reservations—designed like the Lodge reservations to the league of nations [illegible]

Moreover [illegible] foreign trespass on American domestic questions including immigration, and to preserve the traditions and independence of the nation.

It is provided specifically in one of the reservations that no case to which the United States is a party shall be suggested to the court except under the provisions of a definite agreement setting forth the exact scope of the questions to be decided and the precise extent to which the court may go.

It would be provided, however, that once an international question has been submitted under the express agreement of the nations affected, the decision would be final and subject to review and interpretation only by the court itself.

JAPANESE EXCLUSION DEBATED IN THE SENATE

Washington, May 8.—Approval by vote an house conferees, at the request of President Coolidge, of a new [illegible] resolution bill to defer Japanese exclusion [illegible] may be given for diplomatic negotiations to abrogate the gentlemen's agreement, was subjected to a series of clashes today during a two hour debate in the senate.

From both sides of the chamber disagreement with the president's position and compliance to it voted by the conference was expressed. Not only would the step constitute a move towards [illegible] the sovereign right of the United States to deal with "a strictly domestic question," it was charged, but it indicated an attempt to lay aside the expressed decision of both houses of congress by subterfuge.

The conference report was not submitted to the senate today but was presented to the house by Chairman Johnson of the immigration committee with the announcement that it would be called upon for action tomorrow.

Mr. Johnson and republican leaders, for the most part, expressed confidence that the house would approve the report. On the other hand, members out of sympathy with the Japanese exclusion provision said they would seek to recommit the report to the conference, and put out the claim [illegible] would have the votes to do so.

[illegible] were indications that an attempt might be made to have the existing [illegible] substitute thrown out on the [illegible] of order that the conferees exceeded their authority in writing it [illegible] Republican leaders and [illegible] Democrats, opposed to the provision, however, were of the opinion [illegible] a point would be overruled.

A BUFFALO POLICEMAN IS CHARGED WITH TENDING BAR

Buffalo, N. Y., May 8.—Patrolman [illegible] E. Culligan faces a federal charge of possessing liquor and possibly will be dismissed from the force as the result of a raid on a soft drink establishment by federal prohibition agents and police, who hired Culligan before [illegible] States commissioner, [illegible] with tending bar in the place. Bottles of whiskey was found in a [illegible] the agents said. Culligan was held in $1,000 bail.

MOTHER OF GOV. AL SMITH IS ILL WITH PNEUMONIA

[illegible] York, May 8—Suffering from bronchial pneumonia, Mrs. Catherine Smith, aged mother of Governor Alfred E. Smith, is seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John [illegible], 8 McAdam street, Brooklyn. Governor Smith who called on the telephone from Albany tonight to inquire after his mother's condition was told that she showed a slight improvement.

DR. MURRAY OUT SQUARELY FOR ANTI-PROHIBITION PLANK

New York, May 8.—Declaring that the republican party will lose 14 important states in the coming presidential election if it does not make a declaration on the wet and dry question Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, today came out squarely for the adoption of an anti-prohibition plank in the G. O. P. 1924 platform.

MERRY-GO-ROUND INJURIES FATAL TO NEW HAVEN BOY

New Haven, May 8.—Harold Epstein, 12, who sustained internal injuries on a merry-go-round in a public park here last night when an iron pole collapsed, died at a hospital today. An inspection of the park's playground equipment was ordered today by the coroner.

BANDIT ROBBED BANK CLOSED BY EXAMINERS

New York, May 8—The first national bank of Bellmore, robbed on April 4 by six bandits who killed Ernest Whitman, a bystander, was closed in custody of national bank examiner Charles M. Vanderoef, its cashier, was under arrest, charged with misappropriating funds, and three men were indicted for first degree murder as participants in the holdup.

John J. Slattery, proprietor of the Old Homestead Hotel, of Astoria, and Ataforse Ross and Stanley Klvana, arrested several days ago after an intensive investigation of the holdup which resulted in the theft of $7,937 and the murder of Whitman, were indicted in Mineola. It was understood there would be further arrests.

Depositors in the bank early today found the doors bolted and posted on them the sign "This bank is closed by order of the board of directors. The national bank examiners are in charge. J. R. Funsten, national bank examiner."

John J. Bedell, president of the bank said the closing was merely a means of facilitating the work of the examiners. He said no depositor would lose a cent.

Vanderoef, who was arrested charged with theft of $4,000 was in $10,000 bond. He said. Federal Attorney Greene, however, said the sum involved might reach $25,000 or more and asserted it would be called to the attention of the federal grand jury next Tuesday. It was claimed he admitted taking the money and declared he did not know the exact amount taken.

DESPONDENCY PROMPTED SUICIDE OF MAN OF 86

East Hampton, Conn., May 8.—Despondency over ill health is believed to have prompted Joel W. Smith, 86, to attempt suicide here today by firing a bullet into the back of his head. He was taken to the Middlesex hospital Middletown, where his chances for recovery are slight.

Mr. Smith, a Civil war veteran, was blinded during a celebration of a Union victory when a cannon was fired beside him. He devoted much of his life to the education of the blind and is reputed to have been the first blind man to operate a typewriter. He was instrumental in bringing about the use of the Braille system in aiding the blind to read.

Hearing Given The Opponents of Beer

House Committee Hears Their Belief of Evils Which Would Follow 2.75 Beer.

Washington, May 8.—Evils which they believe would attend the legalization of 2.75 per cent. beer, as proposed in a number of pending bills, were described in fulsome testimony today by dry leaders at hearings before the house judiciary committee.

A committee of five from the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, now meeting at Springfield, Mass., Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, and Mrs. Ella A. Boole, representing the Womens Christian Temperance Union, joined in an attack on the proposed bills to liberalize the prohibition laws.

After presenting a statement from the Methodist conference in which it was delared to be the belief of that that body that the "proposal to nullify the constitutional amendment by legalizing the sale of wine and beer is an appeal from orderly legislation to law defiance and anarchy." Members of the delegation further presented their personal views.

While Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Chicago, president of the Anti-Saloon league and one of the delegation, was on the stand, Representative Perlman, republican, New York, asked whether "the league is financing the fight now being made to release William H. Anderson (former New York state superintendent of the league) from prison."

"So far as I know, none is being made", the bishop replied.

When Representative Perlman, next, asked what Mr. Wheeler's salary was, the latter volunteered from his place in the committee room that he received $600 a month.

When the New York representative asked "whether any officers or employes of the Anti-Saloon league in the past have been charged with violation of the prohibition laws," Representative Sumner, democrat, Texas, objected to the line of questioning, and the query went unanswered.

Before the dry advocates opened their attack on the proposed legislation, Francis C. Harley, chairman of the National Liberal Alliance, concluded the argument for modification. He told the committee he spoke for seven million people who had voted through a referendum of his organization.

SENATE MAY TAKE FINAL VOTE ON TAX MEASURE TODAY

Washington, May 8.—Continuing its program of night sessions, the senate tonight proceeded with consideration of the final phases of the revenue revision bill but last minute hopes of completing consideration of the measure before adjournment were dimmed by lengthy debate and a private announcement by Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, that he intended to propose the McNary-Haugben farm relief bill as an amendment.

Confronted with the situation leaders of both parties endeavored to reach an agreement whereby a final vote on the tax measure would be taken tomorrow afternoon. Consideration of finance committee amendments was completed today and then the way was opened for voting upon individual amendments.

As the debate dragged along, amendment after amendment was headed on to the bill, members of the finance committee which framed the measure offering little objection. Chairman Smoot essayed the role of buffer to these individual proposals but he usually yielded with the reconsideration of the proposition would be reserved for the conference with the house.

TRIPLE ELECTROCUTION IN KENTUCKY TODAY

Eddyville, Ky., May 8.—A chair, resembling an old-fashioned "easy resting grandfather's" seat, was ready tonight to receive three men, all of whom have said they were ready for Kentucky's first triple electrocution early tomorrow.

Frank M. Thomas, the first to go, will be th coldest man ever executed in Kentucky. He has already passed his seventieth birthday. Thomas, convicted of the murder of his friend, Lee Arbegust in Louisville, and Charley Miller, negro slayer of two railroad guards in Breckinridge county, have confessed.

George Welch, Louisville, the third man, continued to protest he was innocent. He was convicted of slaying William Oelke, at Louisville.

Members of the teachers' federation asked that he be requested to resign and the city council passed a resolution criticising him for his stand.

Shipping Board Reverses Position

Withdraws Certification to I. C. C. on Section 28—Democratic Members Dissented.

Washington, May 8—The shipping board voted tonight to withdraw, without conditions, its certification to the interstate commerce commission that existing shipping facilities warranted application of the preferential rail rate provisions of the merchant marine act.

The vote by which the board reversed its previous position in preference to section 28 of the merchant marine act was along party lines and was 4 to 3, Commissioners Thompson, Haney and Benson, the three democratic members, cast the dissenting ballots.

Commissioner Thompson, in a statement after the final vote, declared withdrawal of the application by a majority of the board "may stop forever the establishment of American flag preference, and for that reason is to regretted deeply."

Earlier in the day the board had voted down by a similar vote, the four republican members opposing a resolution by Commissioner Thompson to modify the board's original certification limiting the territorial and commodity ranges to which the preferential rates would be applied.

DECLINES IN FRENCH FRANCS AND STERLING

New York, May 8.—Speculative operations in the foreign exchange market, based on uneasiness over the outcome of the approaching French election and disturbances in the Ruhr, today caused abrupt declines of more than 40 points in the price of French francs and 2 cents in the price of sterling.

After dropping from 6.34 1-2 to 5.89 cents on heavy selling from abroad in the early dealings, francs fluctuated erratically during the rest of the day's trading, rebounding at one time to 6.17 and falling back again at the close to around 5.95 cents. Interests close to the Bank of France said the break was a technical reaction and no attempt was made to support the rates. Sterling sold below $4.38 but later recovered about a cent. London selling was said to have been influenced by fears of a delay in the reparation settlement.

WINTER WHEAT YIELD BELOW THAT OF LAST YEAR

Washington, May 8.—Production of winter wheat this year will be 553,013,000 bushels or 3.4 per cent. less than last year's crop of the department agriculture forecast today.

The area of winter wheat remaining on May 1 to be harvested was about 36,893,000 acres or 3,035,000 acres, (7.6 per cent) less than the acreage planted last Autumn and 2,624,000 acres (6.6 per cent) less than the acreage harvested last year which was 39,522,000 acres. The average harvested acreage of the last ten years is 39,222,500 acres and the ten-year average abandonment is 10.6 per cent.

RESOLUTION BY STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Hartford, May 8.—The action of the state board of education yesterday was to adopt a resolution opposing the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution of the United States. HAS MORGAN $100,000,000 GERMAN LOAN CONTRACT?

Financier Would Neither Affirm Nor Deny Wall Street Report to That Effect—J. P. Morgan Admitted That Since the Government Was Not to Participate in Floating the Bonds J. P. Morgan & Co. Was the One Private Firm in America Most Likely to Dispose of Such A Huge Issue—$100,000,000 Advanced to France Was With the Understanding That France Would Undertake To Float No More Government Bond Issues.

New York, May 8.—Wall street reports that J. P. Morgan was returning from Europe with the $100,000,000 German reparation loan contract in his pocket" were [illegible] denied by the [illegible]

Accompanying Mr. [illegible] offer a two months [illegible] the financier emerged [illegible] tion [illegible] he declined [illegible] street report, point [illegible] not discuss the [illegible] the $75,000,000 share of the Dawes committee allotted to [illegible] and the $25,000,000 [illegible] raise among continental [illegible] nations.

"If I had the American $100,000,000 contract in my pocket, as they say, I couldn't possibly discuss it at this time, before I have opportunity to confer with [illegible] associates," he said.

He appeared struck with [illegible] fright to which he had been subjected in the presence of interviewers and dismissed [illegible] reparation loans subject with a sweeping gesture, a laugh and nothing whatever to say. "I'd rather not discuss it at all, I can't. You see, My usefulness hinges upon [illegible] silence at this time."

A much smaller group of [illegible] later overcame his reticence, [illegible] resisted first to corroborate a statement of Owen D. Young, of the committee, that America would advance a half of the $2,500,000,000 loan to Germany.

"That was very nice of Mr. Young," he said. "But I hesitate to talk about it because there are so many issues involved and so many governmental phases [illegible] considered before we bankers are ever ready to move to take up the subject [illegible] I did not discuss [illegible] the American government was [illegible] connected with the Dawes committee. But there were many [illegible] issues of J. P. Morgan & Co., and I would have to go [illegible] matters and [illegible] You know, [illegible] Mr. Morgan [illegible] I must be fair to my business associates. I intend to [illegible] with them. I must be discreet."

He admitted that, since the government was not to participate in floating the $100,000,000 bonds, J. P. Morgan & Company was the one private firm in America most likely to dispose of such a huge issue. Asked how much time might elapse before his firm would consider the terms of the loan plans and publicly announce whether it would undertake to float the $100,000,000 issue in America, he said bluntly, "I don't know."

Mr. Morgan corroborated reports from Paris that the $100,000,000 his firm advanced that country recently to halt the plunge of the franc on the exchange was loaned on condition that the French would undertake to float no more government bond issues than were already outstanding.

He declared also that his arrival in Paris just as the Dawes report became public and his ensuing conferences with Bradbury, the British, and Barthou, the French experts, on the reparations commission, was "purely circumstantial"; that "they learned I was in Paris and asked that I confer with them, in a professional and individual capacity, about the financial provisions of the report."

STRIKING TAXI DRIVERS SEARCHED BY DETECTIVES

New York, May 8.—Two hundred taxi drivers crowded the West Side police court today when they learned that an officer and a delegate of the Brotherhood of Taxicab Chauffeurs had been arrested charged with extortion in forcing owners of small taxi fleets to pay $1 each for labels declaring that the owners had settled with the brotherhood in the drivers' strike that started early this week.

While Jules Martin, president of the organization, and Louis Dauman, a delegate, were in the courtroom awaiting arraignment on the complaint, James Murphy, local yellow cab president, and William Stone, John Connolly and Joseph Murphy, all delegates, were also arrested. They had come to court as spectators.

When the magistrate had held the six defendants in bail for examination, Assistant District Attorney Aubrey asked that the chauffeurs present be searched.

"On account of the nature of the charges," he said, "I fear that a wild and uncontrollable situation may develop."

The search was made by detectives, but no weapons were found.

The complaint against Martin and Dauman was made by Theodore Lipsett, head of a small taxi company, who declared that they had forced him under threat, to pay $100 for labels for his 100 cabs. Dance Prodoscia, another operator, made similar charges against Connolly, Stone and James and Joseph Murphy.

COX NOT A CANDIDATE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

Boston, May 8.—Governor Channing H. Cox, in a statement today definitely announced that he would not be a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator in place of William M. Butler, who withdrew from the contest after his selection by President Coolidge as republican national chairman.

"After 14 years' service in the state government to which I have given all my time and energy, I am absolutely certain that my duty now lies in other directions," the governor said in explanation of his decision. "I am confirmed in this decision by my own sincere belief that there are other worthy men as candidates who can be certain of election. Massachusetts stands squarely behind President Coolidge and proposes to elect a senator who will give him loyal and whole hearted support."

Louis C. Coolidge, of Boston, at present is the only candidate actually in the field for the [illegible] republican nomination for United States senator. Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger has announced that he will be a candidate if Governor Cox does not seek the nomination. Other members of the Massachusetts delegation in congress whose names have been mentioned are Speaker Frederick H. Gillett, and Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Samuel E. Winslow and Louis A. Frothingham.

MUST SURRENDER OR FORFEIT BOND OF $50,000

Chicago, May 8.—John Barry, pal of "Big Tim" Murphy, Chicago labor leader now serving a term in Leavenworth federal prison for the Dearborn street station mail robbery, and who was convicted with Murphy, calmly walked out of the federal building today and made his escape just after [illegible] an order denying his right to appeal and affirming a sentence of four years imprisonment for the mail robbery.

Barry not only eluded the federal officers but walked past six policemen from the state's attorney's office who had been waiting outside the circuit court of appeals to arrest him on a state charge.

He must surrender tonight or forfeit a $50,000 bond posted pending the appeal.

PLEAS FOR ADMISSION OF WOMEN TO M. E. PASTORAGE

Springfield, Mass., May 8—Impassioned pleas for the full admission of women to the pastorage of the Methodist Episcopal church were made at the general conference today. After long discussion it was voted to let the matter go over till tomorrow when it will be made an order of the day.

Most of the argument was over a proposed amendment to a report by the commission on the ordination of women and their admission to annual conferences. The report recommended that the limitation of women to the so-called local pastorates be continued; the amendment, put forward by Mrs. S. F. Johnson of California, omitted the word "local."

The arguments presented for the commission's report were that marriage and motherhood would interfere with the proper performance of pastoral duties, that the church as a whole was indifferent to the matter at issue, that the experiment of women pastors in other churches had had as yet but fragmentary results, and that "embarrassing" situations would be created by full inordination.

Those who supported the amendment finally laid on the table, declared that women had earned an equal place with men in every department of activity, and that the church should join other professions in giving women equality.

PROTEST ELIMINATION OF PULLMAN SURCHARGE

Washington, May 8—Railroads today fought a proposal to eliminate the Pullman surcharge at hearings before the interstate commerce commission.

Representatives of the Eastern, Western and Southern lines, attacking the proposed report of a commission examiner recommending removal of the surcharge, claimed that the roads faced an actual deficit in Pullman operation if the surcharge was denied them, and charged that to relieve Pullman car travellers from paying the surcharge would place an added burden upon the day coach passenger, for a luxury he does not enjoy.

The surcharge is being opposed by travelers' and traffic associations, and business men's leagues as an unjust and unsound assessment in return for which no additional service is rendered by the railroads. The surcharge, 50 per cent. of the Pullman charge, is collected by the Pullman Company, and accrues to the railroads.

LATEST RETURNS FROM CALIFORNIA PRIMARY

San Fracisco, May 8.—An additional 57 precincts reported late today in Tuesday's presidential primary election which accounts for all except 405 of the state's 6,974 precincts. The new precinct reduced slightly the lead of the Coolidge delegation over the Johnson delegation while the lead of the McAdoo delegation on the democratic ticket was increased several hundred.

WILLIMANTIC

Acting Mayor George W. Hickey has addressed a letter to the Willimantic Merchants' association in regard to the desired co-operation of the members with the street department, which he says is necessary in certain ways to keep the streets in the business section clean. The acting mayor suggests a campaign, using for its slogan, "A Cleaner Main street," as a means to bring this situation about.

His letter is as follows:

"Mr. Jeremiah D. Sullivan, Pres.,
"Merchants' Association, City.

"Dear Sir: It has been reported to me that the Main street is not kept as clean as it should be with the result that grass is seen to grow in all the cracks at present of the year. It is a commonly held that first impressions are lasting.

"One method by which to avoid this proposition is strictly up to the street department, but one I hope will receive consideration not with standing the fact that it is not the duty of the merchants and owners of property to do. Have you ever thought of a solution of the problem of keeping the sidewalks clean?

"It is my intention to call a meeting of the merchants and owners of property on Main street to discuss the matter and if possible find a solution to the problem. Have you any suggestions to offer? Kindly let me hear from you within a few days after the receipt of this letter.

"Arrangements will be made for the meeting to be held in one of the stores during the early part of the week following the receipt of your reply.

"Respectfully yours,
"GEORGE W. HICKEY,
"Acting Mayor."

The police court bench was occupied by Judge Frank H. Foss Thursday morning for the first time since his return from Dallas, Texas, where he spent two months for his health. Only one case was heard, that of Arthur Noel, charged with being drunk. Noel said that he was undecided what to plead. He said that he had two drinks but did not think that he was drunk by any means. He told the court that he was "steering" a friend home when the officer came along and took him in. "Probably the officer was the best judge," he said. Noel told the court that he belonged in Hartford but was now employed by the Spectors in this city, dismembling second hand automobiles. He also told the court that his wife died last Tuesday and that he had a son 20 years of age. He was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $9.13.

A report of the Waterbury convention was given by Mrs. May Russ, one of the delegates.

The degree team from Canton Windham, No. 1, I. O. O. F., of this city, captained by Ralph Scribner, conferred a degree upon several candidates for Canton Oneco at Danielson Wednesday evening. A social time followed the exemplification.

The weekly whist of Windham Girls' club was held at their rooms on Union street Wednesday evening with a a large attedance. The prize winners were: First, hand embroidered handkerchiefs, Miss Mae Sisti; second, hand embroidered luncheon set, Miss Elsie Baker; consolation awards, Miss Katherine Colgan and Mrs. J. Egan. Luncheon followed the play.

A number of the members of Radiant chapter, No. 11, O. E. S., had a very successful whist Wednesday evening at Hallock's on Jackson street, the place being attractively decorated. Mrs. Mable Dinwoodies and Joseph Goldsborough were awarded first prizes while the consolation awards went to Miss Louis Thompson and John G. Boss. Cake, ice cream and coffee were served.

Members of the American Thread Athletic Association Bowling League, which concluded its season some time ago, were banqueted at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Thursday evening. An excellent repast was served under the auspices of Court Veronica, Catholic Daughters of America. There were about seventy in attendance, including those who participated in the league schedule, guests and the several business men who donated the individual and team awards. A musical programme was given and several lyceum entertainers furnished a brief programme.

The fourth annual concert of the Euterpean orchestra, composed of talented local musicians under the management of Miss Mary Rose Blanchette, is being planned. Miss Blanchette has been fortunate in securing as piano soloist for this year, Miss Catherine Carver, of Boston, a fifteen year old prodigy.

P. S. Hills, of The Ridges attended the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Springfield, Mass., Wednesday. While in that City of Homes he had the pleasure of meeting a college classmate, Thomas W. Rawlins, whom he had not seen in forty-two years. Mr. Rawlins is an ex-treasurer of the state of Delaware. He also met his nearest neighbor in the west, Judge John Marshall of Kansas supreme court. Mr. Hills states that there followed a wonderful demonstration of approval upon the presentation of the resolution uniting the northern and southern branches of the church, at the morning session. Another classmate of Mr. Hills at college who was in attendance was Frank Gunewall, whose father was the inventor of the fire alarm system which bears his name.

Windham High School baseball team will go to Hartford to play the Weaver High School. The local school has been very successful since athletic relations were begun with the Capitol City institution. Thursday afternoon next the local youngsters will entertain the South Manchester High School team at Recreation Park. Little is known here of the strength of the Silk City team on the diamond.

An appreciative audience heard the Colonial Male Quartet of Hartford render a programme of nine numbers at the First Baptist church. Maurice E. Wallen, formerly of this city and first tenor of the quartet, was given an ovation when he appeared in solo work. He rendered three selections and was obliged to respond to several encores. The members of the quartet include: Maurice E. Walden, first tenor; Raymond Grant, second tenor; Charles Bradford Beach, baritone and Harry Coe Olmstead, bass. The pianist was Albert Stanley Usher and the concert was given under the management of Robert Kellogg.

Sells-Floto circus is to appear in this city during May at the Windham Acre on Jackson street. This was the tract of land formerly known as the Terry Nursery and is now the property of Arthur J. Dubreuil.

Mrs. Olga Gunn of New York made a most favorable impression on a capacity audience at the town hall on Wednesday evening, when she gave her lectures under the auspices of the Connecticut Spiritualist association. Dwight A. Lyman of the local society introduced Mrs. Gunn. Visitors were in attendance from Hartford, East Haddam, Norwich and other cities in the state.

A pleasing programme was carried out with Miss Maybelle Taft as ac-

Ladies' Dresses of Linen

For a number of years prohibitive price deprived us the luxury of wearing linen during the warm months.

Now, however, recent revisions in the price of linen makes it possible for us all to indulge our preference for this delightful fabric.

It is particularly fortunate that the style decree "linen for summer" comes at a time when the purchase of linen is so easy that we can all respond.

To be sure there are many qualities of dress linen, and as usual there is one which, because of quality, is more desirable than all others: we believe that the one we offer at 89c a yard beats 'em all.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The newly elected officers of Killingly Woman's club are: President, Miss Emma F. Pilling; first vice president, Mrs. Alfred L. Reed; second vice president, Mrs. Ernest R. Warren; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. J. Craig; recording secretary, Miss Marion D. Chollar; auditor, Miss Elizabeth R. Woodworth; executive committee, Mrs. John D. Young, chairman, Mrs. Lucius W. Danielson, Mrs. John Merrick Paine, Mrs. James M. Paine.

An outstanding feature of the activities of the club during the year has been its efforts in behalf of the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, this line of endeavor being new for the organization. The results achieved have been gratifying and reflect the effort and time expended by the club in the interest of the hospital.

During the past few days the club, working through a committee of which Mrs. George M. Burroughs is chairman, obtained cash subscriptions amounting to $400 and articles of a value of $100 for the hospital. During the year the club raised $200 for the Nurses' Home fund of the hospital and also conducted a campaign for offerings on Mother's day. The year's work, therefore, in behalf of the hospital represents a highly encouraging beginning along that line of endeavor.

This (Friday) evening brings the fourth annual typewriting contest between teams representing Killingly Memorial high school and Putnam High schools. The contest will be held in the assembly hall of the Killingly building beginning at 7:30 o'clock and is expected by members of the faculty that many attend.

Each team will represent its school. For Killingly the senior group is made up of Misses Annette Hevlaine Blanche Testeault, Margaret Burton, Ruth Spalding and Emily Wells. Killingly's junior group is made up of Miss Deborah Codding, Dorothy Chester, Pauline Metthe, Dorothy Lague and Ellen Stockton. The senior group has had two years of training experience, the junior group dating from last September.

The history of these typewriting contests between Killingly and Putnam High school shows that in their first meeting a Killingly student won the senior contest and a Putnam student the junior contest. In 1923 Putnam students won both contests. In 1923 a Putnam student won the senior contest and a Killingly student the junior contest.

Miss Freedman, representing a typewriter manufacturing company, will be present at the contest and will give a demonstration of typewriting. Miss Freedman is an expert and won third honors last year in the national typewriting contests.

The school orchestra will play.

The Windham County W. C. T. U. convention to be held in the East Thompson M. E. church, Thursday. Meeting at 10:30 a. m. Train leaving Putnam at 9:21 a. m. standard time, for East Thompson, and autos will take delegates and ladies to the church.

Next Tuesday Joseph Berniaume of Arbor View, representing Court Arbor View of Norwalk will be in Norwalk attending the state convention of Foresters of America.

The Eastern Connecticut Mills association has a joint outing planned for the members of the Blackstone Valley Mills association, this affair to be held early in the summer at Point.

At least 500 people are expected to gather here from all parts of eastern Connecticut Sunday, May 18, when the Union St. John Baptist inducts into membership a class of more than 50 candidates. This organization has been conducting a membership drive throughout New England for several months past and has had excellent success in Danielson.

Many persons from this town will go to Hartford Sunday to attend the Field Day exercises of the Connecticut Children's Aid society. Special trains will leave Hartford at 2:30 p. m. and 5:30 p. m.

Several matters of special local interest are on the calendar for consideration at today's session of the superior court in Willimantic.

PUTNAM

Relief for textile workers in this city will be undertaken by the American Federation of Textile Workers with which the unionized operatives in cotton manufacturing plants hereabouts are affiliated, it was stated Thursday by A. J. Gauthier, president of the Connecticut Textile Council, who is in the city in company with John P. O'Connell of Fall River, general secretary of the American Federation of Textile Workers. These officials are to address a meeting to be held in Foresters' hall and which, it is expected, will bring together a large number of workers of the city who ordinarily are engaged in the cotton industry.

President Gauthier said he hoped to interest various organizations and especially the business interests in the proposed relief work program. Due to the pressure under which the American Federation of Tetile Workers is now laboring on account of the relief work necessary in the large textile centers of New England, relief here will not be in the form of stated payments to idle workers each week, as was done in paying strike benefits here last year. The plan is for a fair, developed, but not necessarily in such an elaborate manner, as the Elks' fair of last year and the year before, all the net assets to be turned over for the relief of idle workers of the textile industry, even those who are not members of any organized body of textile workers. It is believed that generous sums for relief work would be obtained through such a program.

Secretary O'Connell, discussing the present depression in the textile field, pointed out Thursday that business generally throughout the country is looking up and that steel, generally regarded as the barometer, is swinging upward as to sales and production; that freight shipments are increasing and that there are many other tangible bits of evidence of sound underlying conditions that point to renewed prosperity in the textile field. Secretary O'Connell's optimism coincides with that so freely expressed last week at the convention of the National association of Cotton Manufacturers in Boston. He looks for greatly improved conditions within a few weeks, and pointed out that no manufacturer can afford to let his plant stand idle when there is even a prospect of breaking even on his manufacturing operations.
